Wheat and Beans Look Good

C. J. Schultz of Cameron was in town Tuesday and says that wheat and bean prospects there look mighty good. Beans planted before the last two rains are coming through nicely, being about half up. He does not believe the recent rains will set bean planting back to any appreciable extent, saying that if no more falls they can again be in the fields by Friday. Some of the wheat is eighteen inches to two feet high and gives every indication of being a splendid crop.

60 FROM MOSCOW MEET WITH COMMERCIAL CLUB

Some sixty members of the Moscow Chamber of Commerce, accompanied by several members of the music department of the University of Idaho, motored to Kendrick Thursday evening of last week to make a fraternal visit to the local club.

The first thing on the program was a splendid banquet, served by the ladies' aid of the Presbyterian church in the banquet hall of the Fraternal Temple. While the banquet was being served some splendid music was furnished by the college entertainers and was thoroughly enjoyed. After all had done justice to the splendid repast adjournment was taken to the lodge hall, where a very delightful entertainment was given by a group from the music department of the University, under the direction of Carleton Cummings, head of the department of music, and which was thoroughly enjoyed by the large assemblage and the applause given was indeed generous. It was announced by Prof. Cummings that there would be no encores, but it was next to impossible to resist the insistent applause given and several encore numbers were graciously given and duly appreciated by the listeners.

The meeting was presided over by R. H. Ramey, president of the Kendrick Commercial club, and a right neat job he did of it, too. In addition to the music program a short talk was made by Prosecuting Attorney Abe Goff, principally in a humorous vein, he stating that Moscow did not come to Kendrick to ask for anything, but just to take part in a "get-together" program. E. H. Dammarrell also made a short talk, principally expressing the appreciation of the people of Kendrick for the splendid program and the good will expressed by the Moscow delegation.

Elk Destroying Crops

Farmers in the vicinity of Deary and Texas ridge are recommending that the Izaak Walton league hire someone to herd the carload of elk shipped into Bovill last fall.

It seems that the elk are foraging in fall wheat fields and have no respect for either fence or "no trespassing" signs. While the elk are waxing fat, it was reported, the wheat crops are suffering. Leaping over the highest fences, the animals, in groups of three or four, have for the past three weeks made excursions into the green pastures.

J. A. Harsh of Deary reports that they have become so tame that it's almost necessary to "club" them like a herd of cows. R. E. Darr, living on Texas ridge, drove a band off his place four miles into the mountains and the elk were back almost as soon as he was, he relates.

However, youngsters in that neighborhood have great fun playing Indian and stalking the animals through the brush.

The Sky Weeps

This section, together with many others, was visited during the latter part of last week and the first of this week with copious rains that made this decidedly "wet territory." While a few who had some hay down or wanted to cut, were inconvenienced somewhat, yet the amount of real good that has been done the grain, both spring and fall sown, is almost incalculable. Some are wishing for a let-up so they can get their beans planted while others say it is all right—let 'er rain!

It is very evident the weather clerk has things all mixed up for we certainly have been having April weather during the past few weeks—and it isn't necessary to go to the Coast to see it rain.

Road Graded

Men with a grader were busy on the Gentry hill Tuesday putting that thoroughfare in order. The road is now in fine condition.

FORMER KENDRICK RESIDENT DIES AT TACOMA

The body of Allen B. Oakes, an old-time resident of Kendrick, who died at Tacoma on Saturday, May 31, 1930, arrived in Kendrick Tuesday afternoon, June 2, and was taken direct to the Kendrick cemetery, where short funeral services were conducted by Rev. Claude Groth of the Methodist church, funeral services having been held at Mellinger's Funeral Parlor, Tacoma, at 1:30 Monday afternoon. J. J. Pickard of Troy was in charge.

Allen B. Oakes was born at Williamsburg, Iowa, November 22, 1857, and was 72 years, six months and nine days old at the time of his passing. He was married to Miss Olive Riddle at Rippey, Iowa, on February 16, 1881, and came to Kendrick in 1892. In 1905 Mrs. Oakes passed away and is buried in the Kendrick cemetery. In 1914 Mr. Oakes moved to Redmond, Oregon, with his family and last September went to live with his daughter, Mrs. Bruce Lindquist, at Tacoma, Wash., where he passed away. He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. I. Lawrence, Dent, Idaho; Mrs. Bruce Lindquist, Tacoma, Wash. and Mrs. Olive Watts also of Tacoma. One son, John C. Oakes, of Bend, Oregon, also survives.

The singers assisting at the services at the grave were N. E. Walker, Rev. Groth and M. O. Raby, who sang "Abide With Me." The pallbearers were C. G. Compton, N. Brocke, N. E. Walker, M. O. Raby and S. P. McAllister.

B. Lindquist accompanied the body from Tacoma.

Old-Timer Visits

J. J. Hamley, for 14 years a resident of Kendrick, but now in business at Pendleton, Oregon, was a Kendrick visitor Thursday of last week—just 25 years from the day he had left here to go to Pendleton.

Mr. Hamley's father ran a harness and saddlery where the village flag pole now stands, from 1890 to 1905. J. J. Hamley, having been brought up in a leather store, naturally continued in the business and today has one of the finest harness and saddleries in the entire Northwest, catering mostly to the mail-order trade.

Mr. Hamley left one of his catalogues at the Gazette office and it is a very nice piece of work.

He met quite a few old-timers while here who gave him the glad-hand of welcome after all these years.

First Wheat To Federal Board

The first shipment of wheat to go out of Kendrick to the Federal Grain Stabilizing Board was sent out Tuesday, when four cars were loaded for Portland from the Vollmer-Clearwater company's warehouse in Kendrick, which will be taken over by the Federal Farm Board. The grain was shipped for members of the corporation principally resident at Lewiston.

The Kendrick-Rochdale company of Kendrick has not taken any action regarding membership in the corporation, rather waiting to see what the general outcome will be before subscribing for stock.

Old Gym Being Wrecked

A contract has been let by the school board to Chas. McCoy and Ernest Freytag for the demolition of the old gym building and the work is being pushed as rapidly as possible. They expect to have the building leveled to the ground within ten days.

You Must Register

The registration office for this precinct is now open and everyone who expects to cast a vote this fall, either at the primary or general election, will have to register, no matter whether you have ever voted in this precinct or not.

Better do it today. The registration office is at the law office of C. A. Oppenborn.

Commercial Club Meeting

The regular meeting of the Kendrick Commercial Club will be held Tuesday evening, June 10, at the Kendrick Hotel. Dinner will be served at 6:30. This is the end of the year and election of officers for the ensuing year will be in order. Other matters of importance will also come before the meeting. A good attendance is requested—Tuesday evening, June 10.

KENDRICK DROPS GAME AT OROFINO TO OROFINO

Braving roads deep with mud and sullen cheerless skies the Kendrick ball team journeyed to Orofino Sunday for a return game with that city. It was a bad looking day for anything except water polo, so few of the local fans went, and about half of the regular team did not go.

The final results showed a score of 8 to 2 in favor of Orofino, making up for the game Orofino dropped here.

Orofino went scoreless in the first inning but in the second came through with some hits and retired with two scores to their credit. Each of the next two innings netted them three. Ed. Damarell retired at the end of the fourth inning and Cecil Chamberlain took up the burden of pitching and succeeded in holding Orofino scoreless for the balance of the game.

The battery for Kendrick was Dammarrell, Chamberlain and Davis, that for Orofino Swolensky and Munston.

Struck out by Dammarrell 6, by Chamberlain 6, by Swolensky 11. Hits off Dammarrell 7, off Chamberlain 3, off Swolensky 3, with the final score standing 8 to 2.

The Lapwai Indians play here on Sunday, June 8. This is the third attempt made by the Indians to play here, rain having forced the other two games scheduled, out.

Repairing Road

Fred Bailey of Texas ridge was in town Wednesday interviewing the business men regarding the repairing of the road running up Texas ridge and incidentally asking if they would help in a small material way toward the work. Mr. Bailey reported that he found all willing to give and was exhibiting a good-sized purse which was rather heavy with the coin of the realm. This money will be used toward the purchase of 100 yards of crushed rock to be put on the grade. The district will furnish another 100 yards, which will give them enough to put the worst places on the grade in fair condition.

The Gazette hopes it will not be many years until the good roads and highway movement will gain such momentum that there will be no way of stopping it until this entire section is served by rock roads.

Solving a Problem

Where is the Kendrick motorist who hasn't at some time or another wondered what actually becomes of automobiles after they reach the point where human ingenuity can't coax them to run an inch farther. We've wondered ourselves, and now that we have read of Henry Ford's plan to dispose of worthless flivvers we want to pass it on. Ford is building a plant away up in the northern edge of New York City. It will be equipped to separate the metal in old machines worth saving from the waste material; to reclaim the hair in cushions and bale it for further use; to smooth out such metal sheets as can be salvaged and melt up such as cannot. In a word, it will be a modern flivver reduction plant, and will solve New York City's problem of what to do with worthless junk that once rolled over the streets as autos. But that still leaves us wondering what will become of the millions of other annually falling into that class in other parts of the country.

Farm To Market Roads For 1930

The year 1930 should be a record-breaker from the standpoint of increasing the mileage of farm to market roads. A program for these feeder roads to main highways is essential to open up back country and thereby give an equitable apportionment of road tax funds to the more inaccessible farming districts.

The cost of building or improving such roads can be held at a moderate figure under modern road building methods.

Vote Street Bonds

Bovill's proposal to issue bonds for $10,000 for street improvements went over at the special election held on Tuesday of last week by a vote of 66 to 6. Since the notice of sale was published concurrently with the other legal notices required to hold the election, the money for the proposed improvements should be available very soon. All the principal streets of the village are to be graded and hard-surfaced.—Troy News.

It is a great pity that the parents of our present day agitators for birth control didn't think of it!

Leaves On Trip East

Mrs. Theresa Schultz left on Saturday, May 24, for an extended vacation trip in the east, expecting to be gone until about the 30th of October. She will visit friends and relatives.

Leaving on Saturday she spent a few days in Palouse, going from there to Spokane for a visit. Proceeding east she will visit for a time at Dutton Montana, St. Paul, Manakato and her final destination, Oshakas, all in Minnesota.

MAKE TROUT REARING POND AT LAPWAI

The state game department has selected Lapwai as the location for one of the six or more trout ponds to be located within the state for the purpose of holding trout fry until they are large enough to take care of themselves when they are turned loose in the streams of the state.

The pond, according to Harry L. Walrath, assistant chief of the game department, will be about 32 feet in length and about 20 feet wide, capable of holding between 75,000 and 100,000 fish under conditions. Deputy Warden Seaborg will leave soon for Coeur d'Alene to collect fry to be distributed to the Lapwai pond.

"We find it better to distribute trout in the rivers, creeks and lakes that are larger than what is termed the fingerling size," said Mr. Walrath. "Careful study has proved that they are better able to care for themselves. Therefore the game and fish department has concluded that the establishment of more rearing ponds will work in favor of the sportsmen."

State Game Warden R. E. Thomas made a tour of the central and north parts of the state in the spring for studying the need of more rearing ponds. Five additional ones have already been located in the northern tier of counties and after the work is completed at Lapwai a pond will be erected on the Lochsa and another near the Boungalow ranger station.

The project at Lapwai resulted from initiative by the fish and game committee of the Lewiston Chamber of Commerce and the Izaak Walton league.

Did You Ever Stop to Think

That advertising has the power of suggestion, which creates a desire to possess?

Continuous advertising is the most effective kind. Continuous advertising causes readers to form a friendly feeling towards the concerns advertising and makes customers and prospective customers realize that only the best in quality is continuously advertised.

Persistence in advertising is unquestionably the greatest force in the building of business. It increases turnover and breaks down sales resistance. Truthful advertising of quality products means satisfied customers. It is building better business everywhere for those who use its aid.

Advertising is the magnet that attracts the attention of all. It reminds the people of everything they need. Business concerns who handle well advertised lines and back them up with local advertising are the ones who profit most.

Only those concerns who are continuous advertisers can successfully survive competition.

Business men who do not believe in advertising are just sleeping, while competitors, neighboring cities, door-to-door peddlers and mail-order houses are getting the business they should get, says Edison R. Waite of Shawnee, Oklahoma.

Here For Visit

Mrs. O. E. McPhearson and sons, Donald and Gerald and Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Knepper and son John arrived from Salmon, Idaho, last Thursday. The Kneppers left again Friday morning for their home at Salmon, taking Miss Hester with them. The MacPhearsons will spend about three weeks here with relatives and friends.

First Motorist—I had a drink of real moonshine the other day.

Second Motorist—How was it?

First Motorist—I find that I can get about the same result if I kiss a spark plug when my motor is running.

Lieutenant(roaring with rage at steward)—Who told you to put those flowers on the table?

Steward—The commander, sir.

Lieutenant—Pretty, aren't they?

INDIANS DEATH RATE SHOWS BIG INCREASE

A startling increase in mortality among the Nez Perce tribe of Indians in the last ten months was revealed the other day when O. C. Upchurch reported that since July 1, 49 deaths have occurred. This was the heaviest death rate for a like period in many years.

There were 1,400 Nez Perce when the last Indian census was taken in 1929 and the losses, sustained by the tribe figure three and one-half per cent in less than one year.

While death was claiming 49 members of the tribe, there were six births recorded at the agency, where care is taken to secure vital statistics of the tribe for the Indian department.

Thirty-five years ago, when the reservation was thrown open, the Indian population of the Nez Perce reservation was set at 2,500. This indicates a decrease of 44 per cent in little more than a third-century.

In 1929, there were six more deaths than births. Agent Upchurch said. This was the most favorable showing the tribe had made in almost ten years. Educational work is now being carried on by the Indian department to encourage Indians to solve their own problems. Despite the 1929-30 showing the United States is still endeavoring to teach the Indians how to live and how to better their condition, one move in this direction being carried out two weeks ago when George L. Vatta, Shoshone Indian, visited Lapwai and Kamiah and talked to the younger men on the advisability of leaving the reservation and taking up work in other fields.

The 49 deaths occurring since July were occasioned by automobile casualties in two cases, old age accounted for possibly 10 and the remaining number were in almost every instance victims of tuberculosis and pneumonia. The death rate among children equaled that of aged persons.

Included in the death list within the last few months were several notable men and women of the tribe.

French Not Aspirant

Congressman Burton L. French has made it plain that he is not and has not been an aspirant to the presidency of the University of Idaho to succeed Dr. F. J. Kelly, resigned. We admire his stand on the situation, which is not the best, to say the least. Congressman French has served the people of Idaho long and well in the congress but his work is not yet done—nor will it be for many years to come.

There are too many institutions of various kinds run by politicians now without adding any more to the list—in fact, there is entirely too much politics in the University of Idaho at this time. Educational men, and not politicians should be at the head of all institutions of learning.

Graduate From Normal

Miss Ida A. Morey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. V. Morey of Big Bear ridge, was one of the graduates from the Lewiston State Normal this spring, having taken a general course.

Miss Hester Knepper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Knepper, former owner of the Gazette, was also a graduate from the Normal this spring.

Mrs. Knepper Honored

A very pleasant bridge party was given Thursday evening of last week by Mrs. A. K. Carlson in honor of Mrs. Ralph Knepper of Salmon, who, with her husband and family, spent a short time here.

At bridge Mrs. George Leith was given high honors while the guest-prize was awarded Mrs. Knepper. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess during the evening.

"No-Account David"

The Senior class play of the Kendrick High school, which was so successfully given in Kendrick May 30 and 31, will be presented at the Southwick Gymnasium on Saturday evening, June 7, at 8 o'clock.

This is one of the best plays that has ever been given by the Kendrick High school and is well worth seeing.

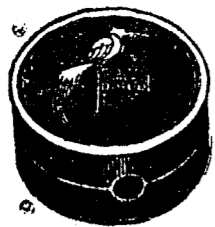

He—Are you writing a letter to Bill?

She—Yes.

He—But I thought he was engaged?

She—He was, but she has thrown him overboard so I am dropping him a line.

J. H. FELTON, TROY, ANNOUNCES CANDIDACY

In announcing my candidacy for the office of prosecuting attorney of Latah county, to be first voted on at the Republican primary on the 5th day of August, 1930, I wish to make these few personal statements:

As a boy I came to this county in the early spring of 1914 with my father, N. W. Felton, and lived the remainder of my boyhood at Felton's mill, northeast of Moscow.

I attended high school at Troy for a time and was graduated from Moscow High school, and then studied law at the University of Idaho, where I was graduated in 1921, and the same year took the bar examination and was admitted as an attorney and counselor before the Supreme Court of the State of Idaho, which entitled me to practice in all the courts of this state. I have since been admitted to the Federal Court. My standing in my school, college and law work are in this county, and are open to those who care to inquire.

I engaged in the practice of law at Troy in 1922, and have been a continuous resident of this county since I first came to it, with the exception of the time I was in the service.

I am well acquainted with the industries of the county, and have acquired this acquaintance by hard work as a laborer, when gaining my education, and later through my association as a lawyer in direct contact, and believe that I am capable of giving the people of this county good and honest service as their prosecuting attorney.

I do not base my candidacy upon any inefficiency of any other candidate, but do base it upon my belief that the office should be filled by a man anxious and willing to give the county real service and unswerving justice, as far as a prosecuting attorney can do so.

J. H. FELTON.

Dr. Simmons at Kendrick

Dr. Charles Simmons, Eye-sight specialist of Lewiston will be at the Kendrick Hotel, Tuesday, June 10th, on his next professional visit. He will be ready to receive his patients by nine o'clock in the morning. The doctor is building up quite a following here and reports a decided increase in calls at the Lewiston office. He will be unable to visit Southwick this trip.

CITY GAS CONVENIENCE IN YOUR COUNTRY HOME

City gas used everywhere from cook stoves to furnaces by four out of every five city families, is now taking country homes by storm.

Standard Flamo, condensed natural gas, is rapidly being introduced in the Kendrick countryside by the Standard Oil Company of California. And there are mighty few things that can bring more comfort to folks in the country than this city gas, the cheapest and quickest fuel for everyday cooking and heating—ready for instant use without installation of gas mains.

In ushering Standard Flamo in suburban homes, the Standard Oil Company, one of the pioneers in developing "home gas plants" is offering a product proven in scores of California households during the past year. This new fuel, condensed to a liquid and stored in steel cylinders, is delivered in town or miles out by company trucks. Two gas cylinders, enclosed in an attractive metal cabinet, may be installed outdoors and connected, by ordinary piping, with modern gas ranges, water heaters and other gas appliances that mean so much less housekeeping drudgery.

Time was when country women just had to get used to carrying wood and shoveling ashes, but those days are about to go out of style. With Standard Flamo being delivered everywhere and comparable to city gas in both quality and cost—there's not much excuse any more for spending long hours over a hot cook-stove or exorbitant fuel bills or late meals.

The Carlson Hardware company has two stoves for burning this gas on display, together with the gas tanks and metal housing cabinet for them and Mr. Carlson invites you to come in and look them over.

TODAY IS HERE

TODAY IS HERE—The day when people no longer buy by guess-work. They must know that the goods they buy are good—no matter if its only a shoe lace — and there is no better way of expressing your faith in your goods — of your ability to give an honest dollar for dollar value than advertising.

TODAY IS HERE—And Kendrick and Juliaetta's vast trade area lie at your fingertips through the medium of the columns of the Gazette, at a rate so cheap that you can't afford to pass-up advertising.

TODAY IS HERE—And at the rate our modern civilization moves the man who does not keep his name, his store and his goods before the buying public is sure to be forgotten, for the live-wire is going to keep his name always before the buyers—and the buyers make business.

TODAY IS HERE—And newspaper advertising costs so little that you just simply can't afford to let your name pass into the limbo of forgotten things.

Yours for better business,

Many Electric Ranges Sold
Electric range sales records of the campaigns conducted during the past 10 years were eclipsed by the Washington Water Power company with the sale of 529 electric ranges and 495 electric water heaters in a seven-week campaign ending May 24, according to word from R. B. McElroy, assistant sales manager. In a similar campaign last spring the company sold 240 electric ranges.

"In selling this large number of electric ranges in this campaign, we have broken all previous electric range sale records," states Mr. McElroy.

"This is especially significant in view of the fact that we have been selling electric ranges steadily for many years until now one in every four of our residential customers cooks with an electric range.

"Our records show that there are now 12,000 electric ranges in service on our system, as well as more than 11,000 electric water heaters.

"We are greatly pleased with the results of this campaign and believe that they speak highly for the sound condition of the entire territory as well as for the progressiveness of the people of the Inland Empire."

In the purchase of these 529 electric ranges and 495 electric water heaters, the customers of the electric service company spent approximately $100,000 for the modernizing of their kitchens, according to Mr. McElroy.

Statistics of the campaign show that 178 electric ranges were sold in Spokane while customers of the suburban districts purchased a total of 351 electric ranges.

The tariff is one of the factors that make the wheels of industry go round.

It is our bulwark against foreign domination of the American market. It is the protection afforded our workers, manufacturers and farmers against low-wage-scale, poor-living condition competition which, if allowed-free play, would prove ruinous to our prosperity and our hopes of progress.

It should not exclude foreign goods, however. It should be an equalizer that assures fair and equitable competition to all in the domestic market.

LIVE COUNTRY TOWN DE-SIRABLE PLACE TO LIVE

By Thomas J. Sullivan

If you would be known and not know, vegetate in a village. If you would know and not be known, live in a large city.

God made the country and man made the town. What wonder then health and virtue should most abound and least be threatened in field and grove.

But, while man made the country towns, God is to be thanked for them. They have been as lamps of life along the pathway of humanity. Within them great men have been born and great minds conceived and developed. Behind their walls freedom has fought her noblest battles. They have stood on the surface of the earth like great breakwaters, rolling back or turning aside the swelling tide of oppression. Country towns have been the cradles of human liberty. They have been the active sentries of almost all church and state reformation.

We refer, of course, to live prosperous country towns, not places that are dead and ready for the last sad rites. Of course, there are many towns which are not dead, only sick. They need a tonic to quicken their pulse. They need general treatment by a community specialist, or, better still, they should consult their pride and their conscience, and awaken to a full realization of their position and condition.

A wise farmer is looking for the best market possible for his produce. He will naturally find it in a live town where there are live up-to-date merchants and business men, who will not only make good markets for the farmer, but are vitally interested in the welfare of the entire community. They are actively interested in bettering community conditions from an educational, social, moral, as well as financial standpoint.

Efforts in this line are not confined to the town alone, as the magnificent benefits extend beyond the corporate limits. The town is made a community and trade center for farmers, as well as townspeople, where there is a lively co-operation which makes for universal good. It becomes a center of exchange which supplies every human requirement from a needle to a thresher or a luxurious automobile. Modern merchants pride themselves on their ability to serve the buying public. They fill their stores with merchandise of a standard quality which should make and keep customers.

The live town, with live merchants, who are broadminded enough to look beyond present day profits, invariably affects land values and the desirability of the countryside as a place to live.

Buying your necessities at home and selling your produce at home is what makes and keeps the home market and contributes largely to the making of the home town and community the sort of place where one generally desires to live and die. If a town is going backward or is making no progress, the real cause for such a condition is the backward business man and the citizens themselves.

Mud And The Farmer

A recent editorial in the "Bureau Farmer" says that the barrier of mud which five months out of the year separates five million farmers families from the markets where they sell their produce and likewise buy their supplies, is of supreme importance in the agricultural economic situation.

According to this authority, there are almost two and one-half million miles of unimproved dirt roads in the United States, and nearly five million farmers live on them. Farmers in this country pay seven per cent of the highway tax, yet less than three per cent of them are situated on year-round highways.

Here is room for some "farm relief activity" which will actually relieve. The greatest present need, in the matter of highways, is improved farm-to-market roads. These can be constructed with a durable waterproof surface, at a low cost and without large maintenance expense.

The five million farmers now living with a barrier of mud between them and their markets, are deserving of immediate consideration. Good roads will probably do more than anything else to advance agricultural progress and prosperity.

It seems that the highway money voted is all spent in one spot, for we have seen with our own eyes roads being torn up and rebuilt in south Idaho that we would think a highway of the finest kind, but it was ever thus between north and south Idaho and we suppose it always will be.

The Swelling Gasoline Tax

Gasoline taxation has come to the fore as one of the greatest of problems affecting the American pocket-book. Last year the tax reached almost $450,000,000. This year an authoritative estimate forecasts a total of $550,000,000.

This estimate is based almost entirely on the expected gain in gasoline consumption. It does not include the recent tax increase of a cent a gallon in Idaho or proposed higher rates in Mississippi, New York, New Jersey, Texas, Massachusetts, North Dakota, Kansas, Louisiana and other states. It is said that Missouri and California alone have displayed no tendency toward a higher tax rate.

At the end of 1930, when the $550,000,000 has been collected, American motorists will have paid a total of $1,744,400,000 in five years, over six times the total of the preceding five years.

Few people have any fault to find with a fair gasoline tax when all the revenue is used for road purposes. In many states, however, the tax has grown out of all proportion to the retail price of gasoline, and some of the revenue has been diverted to school, state departments, state debts and general funds. And the tendency toward still higher taxes continues with increasing force.

Civic enterprise is the grease that makes the wheels turn smooth. Let's use lots of it.

Small Town Merchants Would Profit

An adequate system of farm-to-market roads in every state would not only be of inestimable value to agriculture but to town and city merchants as well.

Ease of transportation causes more people to travel. Better roads, running into rural areas and making them readily accessible all year round, would attract tourists. They would bring visitors to the smaller towns and cities.

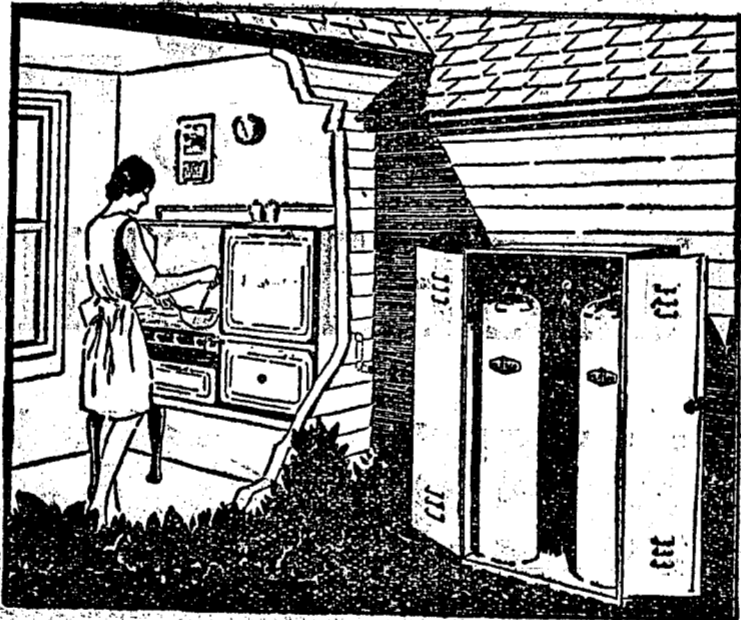

Furthermore, if farmers had constant all-year contact with surrounding communities through the medium of improved roads, they would bring greater patronage to local merchants. Accessibility to markets would increase farm profits, thus giving the farmer more money to spend for the necessities and luxuries of life.

Farm-to-market roads would be as valuable to the town and city dweller as to the farmer. They are a necessary agency in furthering American progress and prosperity.

Yet it seems that many communities are to see their share of the taxes spent widening a road or taking out a turn, instead of getting a passable road at home.

Reprehensible Idleness
After the lady wakes up everybody in the house, dresses and bathes the children, gets them off or takes them to school, does a day's washing, cleans house, makes a party dress for Jane and a costume for Junior, plans meals for the day, buys the groceries, cooks a couple more meals, dresses up for Dad, and sets a Dutch lunch for some of the neighbors who track in slush on her new rugs, it makes her very happy to have the census taker put her down in the blank opposite her name under "Occupation" the flattering word, "None!"

PROTECTION AND TARIFF RETALIATION

A familiar argument against a protective tariff measuring the difference in labor costs at home and abroad, and which will prevent cheap labor importations to the point of creating unemployment in the United States, is that it will cause reprisals by way of higher tariffs in other countries.

The truth is, says a Washington correspondent, that foreign countries at all times measure their tariff rates by their own necessities. Not one of them has the excuse of higher wage costs to justify protective rates against American products. A tariff measuring the difference in labor costs here and abroad does not handicap the foreign producer; it only prevents domestic industry from being handicapped by unfair production based on low standards of wages and living.

We have in recent years lowered our tariff rates to discover that it did not cause the lowering of tariff rates abroad. We have increased tariff rates to discover that our imports have increased, rather than decreased, because the encouragement given domestic industries has enabled our people to spend more money abroad for luxuries, and necessities we do not produce, such as tropical products.

With our tariff stationary, European countries have in the past few years been raising tariffs right and left, besides invoking some fifty forms of commercial discrimination to handicap American competition. Before the framing of the present tariff bill began, it will be recalled that the French government was attempting to place an embargo on American moving pictures, although foreign films enter this country free. Only rebellion on the part of local exhibitors and patrons of motion picture exhibitors caused this plan to be modified.

Australia has just put into effect a tariff that is almost an embargo. Eighty products are excluded entirely. The purpose of the law, framed by a Labor government, is frankly to enable Australians to do their own work in the production of sixty million dollars' worth of goods now imported.

We are also told that because of vast American private loans abroad we must give foreign peoples the opportunity to make the money to pay off these loans by closing our own industrial plants and impoverishing our own farmers through surrender of our home market to the foreigner. That would seem to be an excessive price to pay in making good the foreign loans of American investors. Moreover, as before stated, when our industries are running full tilt and there is no unemployment, our people are thus enabled to spend more abroad than ever for luxuries, raw materials, non-competitive articles and travel.

FINDS STATE BANKS WELL SUPERVISED

Bankers Body Sees Less Politics in Banking Departments With Better Facilities in the Hands of the Responsible Officials.

A survey of state banking departments by the State Bank Division, American Bankers Association, discloses a distinct tendency the past five years to take bank supervision out of politics, to increase the discretionary powers of bank commissioners, to lengthen their terms of office, to supply them with adequate forces of qualified examiners and to relieve banking departments of duties foreign to banking, says a recent statement issued by the association.

"We have consistently urged that the office of bank commissioner be a free from partisan politics as the judiciary itself and that it be divorced from all other functions of state government," the statement says. "Further, that his term of office be made more secure and lasting, with sufficient salary and power granted to attract and retain the services of men of outstanding executive ability, courage, resourcefulness and successful banking experience."

"Five years ago the first survey of state banking departments by the division demonstrated the need for improvements. On the basis of data now in hand it is evident that, through the revision of statutes in many states, rapid steps are being taken in the right direction. One by one the states are coming to recognize the primary importance of strong, competent banking departments. The demand for increasing the effectiveness of banking departments is beginning to be met."

How Bank Commissioners Are Chosen

The office of bank commissioner is now operated as an independent department of state government in thirty-four states, the bankers find. In two states the bank commissioner is elected at general elections; in one he is appointed from eligible lists of the civil service and in another, he is selected by the banks. In one state the bankers' association elects a list of five names from which the governor appoints one as superintendent of banks; in another he is appointed by the State Corporation Commission and in another by the State Banking Board.

"Terms of office of bank commissioners have been lengthened in several states during the last five years," the report says. "In 28 states the term is four years, in one, five years, and in three it is six years and in some the term is indefinite. A short term is condemned on the grounds that the commissioner has insufficient time to become thoroughly conversant with his field work. A longer term permits his rendering useful service through capitalizing his experience. Five years ago the average length of service was less than three years, while now it has risen to five years."

Higher Standards Required

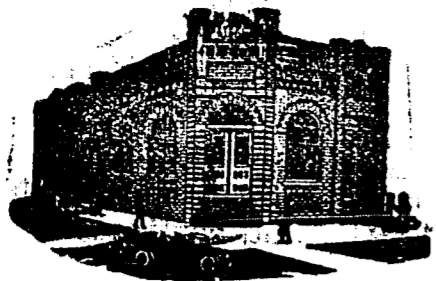

"Signs of an awakening to the necessity of making successful banking experience a qualification for bank commissioner are evident. While eleven states report no banking experience necessary, the majority require experience of this sort, ranging from two to five years. Twelve states now have banking boards, with powers ranging from acting in an advisory capacity to full power over all state banks to issue and reject charters.

"A healthy sign is the number of reports which disclose that the commissioners have full power to appoint bank examiners or that these appointments are made from civil service lists. This power is now granted to the commissioner by twenty-seven states. Three require that selection be from civil service lists. Complaints are still made in a few states of political pressure in the appointment of examiners, but the contrary seems to be true in a growing number of states. The most capable commissioner cannot successfully perform his duties unless he is able to command the services of efficient, honest examiners. The safety of depositors is dependent on their work, and their appointment, fitness and compensation are highly important. The number of examiners has increased 25 per cent in the last five years."

BANKERS TO HOLD GREAT CONVENTION

Cleveland, Ohio, has been designated for the 1930 annual convention of the American Bankers Association. This organization, which numbers about 20,000 banks with $85,000,000,000 in assets, is annually the nation's most important financial event. The attendance ranges between five and ten thousand.

Cleveland is especially significant in the history of the Association's educational traditions since it was in this city, when the organization met last there in the year 1899, that the original resolution was presented looking to the formation of an educational section. This subsequently resulted in the American Institute of Banking in which are now enrolled 35,000 bank men and women engaged in the study of the technical and scientific phases of the business.

KENDRICK STATE BANK

OF KENDRICK, IDAHO

"A Home Bank"

FRANKLIN D. RICHARDS

THE STATE WE LIVE IN

FRANKLIN

The Idaho that we know is seventy years old; it was born in the summer of 1860. It came into being as the result of two human quests, the one for homes, the other for gold. Credit for making our first permanent settlement is due to the Mormon people.

The Mormon church was founded in New York state in 1830. For sixteen years it maintained its headquarters at different points east of the Missouri. The winter of 1845-7 found most of its people concentrated under the leadership of President Brigham Young, on the west bank of the big muddy stream not far from the present city of Omaha.

On the 16th day of April, 1847, an advance guard started across the plains and over the mountains to the promised land of the Great Salt Lake basin. This party consisted of 148 persons with seventy-two wagons; the last of them reached the goal on July 24. Before this party of pioneers had completed the 1300 mile journey, another and larger group had started. The steady immigration continued for years.

Among President Young's trusted confidantes and counsellors was a forceful and determined man named "Franklin D. Richards." In 1855 President Young's resourceful mind recalled an old plan. In a letter to Richards he suggested handicrafts, "made light and strong, without a particle of iron." More than four thousand people thus crossed the last two trips attended by considerable disaster.

In the spring of 1860 the energetic Richards began to look for new fields to colonize. With thirteen families he struck to the north, and on April 14 founded the community of Franklin, near the present town of the same name.

This was our first permanent settlement, and the work of that summer also included the creation of our first irrigation system. Richards plotted out a number of ten-acre tracts, and dug a three mile ditch from Maple creek. The indomitable leader had gotten farther from home than he supposed. It was twelve years before he discovered that he was clear out of the territory of Utah.

The historic and dramatic value of this incident, with its accompaniment of toil and hardship, impressed itself in later years upon Idaho's Grand Old Man, Governor James H. Hawley. Said he, "These names should ever be commemorated in the annals of the state." Under his administration, June 15 was made a legal holiday under the name of "Pioneer Day."

Some of the descendants of the original settlers still live at Franklin, and on that historic spot have erected an artistic memorial, the "Pioneer Monument." Here began what was to become and still remains our predominating industry, agriculture. It is curious that our great beginnings were so close together in point of time, so far apart in distance. The first harvest had not been completed at Franklin when a still greater event occurred in the opposite end of the coming state. 1860 was a great year in the history of the state we live in.

THE GREAT MASSACRE

The first crop of Idaho's first permanent settlement was still ripening in the fields at Franklin when there occurred the most horrifying incident in the history of the state.

About August 1, 1860, a train of emigrants on the Oregon Trail, under the leadership of a man named "Otter," and consisting of forty-four persons, went into camp about twenty miles below Salmon Falls on the Snake river. Most of the members of the party were people from Minnesota and Iowa, but the group included also six discharged regular army men from Fort Hah.

While thus encamped they were attacked by a superior force of Snake Indians, whose first move was to cut the emigrants off from the river. Mr. Otter ordered the wagons arranged in the typical circle, and for forty-eight hours held the improvised fort, until the need for water for men and beasts made it imperative to move. The soldiers undertook to guard the rear of the movement, but were overwhelmed by the first attack and directed their efforts toward their own escape. Four of them were subsequently killed.

In the first rush of the Indians on the unprotected train, nine of the emigrants were slaughtered, mangled and scalped. The remaining twenty-nine abandoned their wagons and supplies and took to flight, fifteen of them being later killed or made captives. Among the prisoners were the "Van Norman" girls who were not rescued from the savages until several years later.

The escaping survivors scattered along the trail, one of them finally reaching the Umitilla agency, from which point the affair was reported to Fort Walla Walla. Captain Dent, a brother-in-law of General Grant, was ordered to go to the relief of the survivors with eighty mounted soldiers and a guide in the person of William Craig of Lapwar.

The relief party found the main body of emigrants on the Owyhee river, in deplorable circumstances. Six weeks had elapsed since the massacre, during which time these suffering people, men, women and children, had been in constant fear of renewed attack. They had lived as long as they could on wild berries and the few fish they were able to procure. It is dreadful to know that they had finally been driven to cannibalism. They were all in the mental state of little children. Captain Dent took them slowly on to Walla Walla; here they were cared for until able to resume their journey to the Willamette. Only fourteen of the forty-four reached the promised land of Oregon.

It was with such surrounding circumstances, and amid such awful scenes, that the foundations of our state were laid. It has cost a lot. Let's take good care of it, this state we live in.

Names in Rhyme

In an interesting conversation between C. C. Blackburn and a member of the Onstott family in regard to old times in North Carolina and the people who lived there in his early life, Mr. Blackburn quoted the following multum in parvo:

Will married Martha Needham, Jim married Mary Faw, Mandy married Dolphus Russaw, And Em married Nathan Wah.

In North Carolina, Ash county, Mr. Blackburn states that in his boyhood days he used to visit the children of the four couples named in rhyme, as given above. Will, Jim, Mandy and Em were the four children of Dickey Gentry, a Baptist preacher, grandfather of Mrs. Onstott, now living in Kendrick.

Young Gladys was examining her grandpa's wedding ring. "What heavy, unwieldy things they were 50 years ago," she said. "Yes, dear," replied grandpa, "but in my day they were made to last a lifetime."
