DECEMBER FOOD STAMP LIST HAS SIXTEEN ITEMS

Sixteen food items, including pork, butter and fresh grapefruit, are on the blue stamp food list designated for the month of December by the U. S. Secretary of Agriculture, Claude R. Wickard. It was announced today by Willard F. Walter, area supervisor for the USDA Surplus Marketing administration.

Following is the complete list which stamp plan customers may purchase with blue food stamps during December (which is the same as November's with grapefruit added: Pork (all cuts, fresh, including chilled or frozen, salted, cured, smoked, but not cooked or packed in metal or glass containers); butter, corn meal, shell eggs, raisins, dried prunes, hominy, grits, dried edible beans, wheat and whole wheat (graham) flour, enriched wheat flour, fresh grapefruit, fresh pears, fresh apples, fresh oranges, and all fresh vegetables, including potatoes.

All food retailers who handle the stamp plan business in this area which covers Idaho, should have this new list on display, beginning today.

The blue stamp food list plays an important part in Federal agricultural programs which are assisting farmers in the Food-for-Defense production drive now in progress. In addition to the nutritional value of blue stamp foods to families who are unable to buy the food necessary for adequate health, the list helps to stabilize prices which farmers receive for their total production of blue stamp commodities.

The added market among the low-budget families, and price-stabilizing effect of blue stamp sales, amounting to $10,000,000 monthly for the nation, are encouraging farmers to meet production demands now upon them under the Food-for-Defense program.

Goal Should Be Easy

Idaho hog growers should experience no difficulty in meeting the government's "pork for defense" goals for next year. Such is the prediction of Prof. C. W. Hickman, animal husbandryman with the U. of I. agricultural experiment station.

A two per cent increase in 1942 marketing and farm slaughter, compared with 1940 figures, is the goal set for the state. A national increase of 15 per cent more hogs has been asked; but actually a 30 per cent increase can be obtained, some authorities believe.

"The answer lies in the fact that normally, one-third of America's annual pig crop dies before the pigs can be brought to marketable age," Prof. Hickman said. "About 25 per cent of the losses occur in the first few hours after farrowing, due to exposure and chilling. To stop these and other losses, rigid disease control measures can be set up which will give easily the increase in marketable hogs without the need for a single added brood sow, or a single extra litter."

Some of the steps being suggested are as follows: Better construction and ventilation of hog houses, to guard against influenza, pneumonia and other mortality factors which occur at farrowing time.

Protection of fall pigs against exposure in bad weather.

Feeding good alfalfa hay in meeting common ration deficiencies of barley, wheat and corn.

Housing young pigs in fresh pastures, away from old, contaminated hog lots.

Supplementing of fall pig rations with proper vitamin and mineral elements to prevent rickets and other deficiency diseases.

Inspection and segregation of all newly-purchased pigs for a time, to prevent possible disease spread to other hogs.

Double Bill At Theatre

The first offering at the local theatre this week-end will be another of the Cisco Kid series, entitled "Ride On, Vaquero." This is said to be one of the best of this series, and it hits a new note of fun and music lacking in others of its kind. And, of course, it is a real western. Caesar Romero has the lead, assisted by Mary Beth Hughes.

The second offering of the evening will be "The Great American Broadcast," which has as its stars Alice Faye, Jack Oakie, John Payne and Caesar Romero. It features one of the old-fashioned three-cornered love affairs, but is treated in a new way. Music and songs abound in this picture, which even children will enjoy.

The usual cartoon will also be shown.

Order Repair Parts Now

Probable shortage of farm machinery next year as a result of the national defense program makes it all the more important that Idaho farmers extend the life of their machinery and tools by ordering repair parts now, according to Prof. Hobart Beresford, agricultural engineer at the University of Idaho. The government has indicated that there will be no shortages of parts if needs are known in time.

Machinery should be stored under cover when not in use. Available shed space, lofts or overhead storage can be utilized by hoisting light machines up into the rafters with ropes and pulleys. Wall racks may be used for some pieces of machinery while others might be stored on end and against walls and partitions. Where storage facilities are not available the use of tarpaulins and heavy oil and grease for protecting bright parts that might be corroded should not be overlooked.

In Commemoration of W. E. Borah

A compilation of the addresses made in Congress commemorating the life and work of Idaho's great statesman, the late William Edgar Borah, has been received by the Gazette, with the compliments of Compton I. White, member of Congress, which is indeed appreciated by the Gazette. It would be a fitting addition to anyone's library.

Show the town you're alive—Advetise.

NETWORK OF DEFENSE ROADS BE BUILT IN IDAHO

A network of defense roads, connecting Idaho mines with transportation centers, will be constructed in the near future throughout this state, according to Sam E. Johnson, director of state highways.

Johnson said the program has already been started in some sections of the state, but that the greatest number of projects are being held up pending final approval.

Contemplated under the program are 100 miles of roadway. While most of the work will be financed by federal money, Gov. Chas. A. Clark has set aside approximately $300,000 in state highway funds to be used, if necessary, to match the federal money made available for the program.

Federal money was provided for the projects under terms of the Access road bill, vetoed recently by President Roosevelt. State officials are confident, however, that federal agencies will make funds available, since the program is of such a vital importance to national defense.

Allen C. Merritt, state director of the bureau of public works, will confer in Washington, D. C., with authorities during the next few days. At the conferences, he will ask for additional money to complete the road program in the state. The roads are classified as defense projects because they aid in encouraging the mining of such strategic minerals as tungsten, zinc, and antimony.

The minerals in many cases are not mined because claims are located in inaccessible areas and cost of production is too high to warrant operation if the company must build a road.

Johnson said that as soon as a mining company asks for consideration in the construction of a mine-to-market road, a sworn affidavit must be made to the effect that the mine contains substantial deposits. Figures must be available giving present production, past production and anticipated production. An inspection is then made of the mine, and if it is found to be satisfactory, recommendations are made for road improvement or construction.

FSA Coops. Supply Dairy Sires

Increased milk production is the contribution being made to the national food for defense program by many Latah county farmers cooperating in the department of agriculture farm security program, Mr. Mix, county FSA supervisor, Title building, Moscow, announces. Additional milk is being produced to provide milk for dairy products which can be shipped to Great Britain under terms of the lend-lease bill.

"Dairymen working with FSA are increasing milk production through better feeding practices and by giving their cows better care. Addition of grain, as recommended by the extension service, is being added to the daily rations of milk producing animals. Good drinking water, proper shelter, both from heat and cold, as means of increasing dairy production is being stressed.

Improvement of dairy herds through cooperative purebred sire services is playing an important part in boosting production, says Mix. Joint use and joint ownership of purebred sires gives many small dairymen access to better breeding stock and eventually better herds. Dairymen find it profitable to add to their herds by holding over heifers from good stock.

Mix suggests that farmers interested in bull rings, contact either the extension service or the Farm Security office, located in the Title building.

Many Lose Driving License

Driving privileges were taken away from 48 male motorists during the month of September, Commissioner J. L. Balderston of the law enforcement department has reported. This makes a total of 444 drivers who have lost their rights of driving motor vehicles according to the accumulative record which shows 259 revocations and 95 suspensions had been made during the nine months this year, and 90 drivers who lost their rights to use the highways last year. The suspensions included a total of 15 reckless drivers for the year. The remainder were drunken driving.

Eight drivers between the ages of 21 and 25 lead the revocation list, while five drivers between 15 and 20 head the suspensions. Five out-of-state drivers had their licenses revoked, while two non-resident permits were suspended. Revocations were to drivers in 21 counties, while eight counties were numbered in the suspension lists. No female drivers lost their licenses in September.

As We See It

The state law enforcement division has been for many months pushing a safety campaign, at least through the publicity channels of newspapers, and over the air — but seem for some reason or other woefully lacking in real law enforcement.

On a recent night trip to Lewiston the writer of this article met (on the round trip) 11 cars that had but one headlight in operation — and three that showed no tail light! He was passed once on a blind turn and once when the white line was on his side of the road!

We don't have to look far for disregard of other warnings, for that matter, for it is a common occurrence to see cars pass at the foot of the schoolhouse hill, a blind and dangerous intersection if their ever was one, and properly equipped with a warning "blinker" sign! But it doesn't seem to mean a thing to many.

New Recipe!

Take one ignorant, spineless, natural-born fool.
 Fill with quart of liquor.
 Place in high-powered motor car set at full speed.
 Let stay for short time.
 Remove from ruins, place in a rectangular box.
 Garnish with flowers.

Well, folks — Here it is the first week in December — and no winter so far. Maybe it will be another of those open winters such as we have had for the past four years — and maybe it won't. There's no waiting for the check and can to come back, no fuss, no bother. We pay spot cash and return a steam-sterilized, ready-to-use cream can to you. You don't even have to wash the can.

And remember — Our locker boxes are right at home. Their cost is low, the benefits big. If you are not already using them, better pick one out today.

Three deaf Englishmen were riding through England on a train. As they came to a town one said: "Ah, this is Wembley." "No," said the second, "this is Thursday."

Said the third: "So am I. Let's get off and have a Scotch and soda."

A girl was driving in her new car when something went wrong with the engine. The traffic light changed from green to red and back to green and still she could not get the car to budge. The traffic cop came up.

"What's the matter, Miss?" he inquired. "Ain't we got colors you like?"

Be Careful With Lights

"If a little is good, more would be better," does not apply to the use of artificial lights for laying hens.

Since laying hens are creatures of habit, the winter lighting program should be uniform and regular from day to day throughout the season, advises Prof. C. E. Lampan, poultryman with the University of Idaho agricultural experiment station. Lack of regularity will cause a drop in production which will defeat the purpose for which the lights were intended.

The use of electric lights is primarily to lengthen the feeding period, which in turn makes possible increased feed consumption. Such additional intake of feed makes possible maximum production, resulting from the combined effect of well-bred stock and well-balanced rations. Light also causes the birds to be more active.

The fact that eggs are included as one of the foods for poultrymen makes it important for poultrymen to use every available means of increasing egg production through a coordinated program of management, including housing, feeding, lighting and sanitation.

Highly bred leghorns ordinarily give efficient production with a 12-hour day. Flocks that are not as highly bred and the majority of heavy breeds may need 13 hours. Bright light (60 or 75 watts) should hang about 5 1/2 feet above the floor over the mash troughs. A 7 1/2-watt globe painted red gives about the right amount of light for the 15-minute dim-light period.

Idaho To Do Her Part

Idaho will have a major part in the regional defense labor supply program through its State Employment service, it has been announced by E. L. Conner, manager of the Service at Moscow.

Work of the Idaho State Employment service will be carefully synchronized with the Regional Labor Supply headquarters in Denver. The first consideration will be given to the registration and placement of workers who have lost their jobs as a result of shortage in raw material.

Management and labor is coordinating its efforts to insure the maximum efficiency of industrial plants and labor facilities for the defense program in Idaho and the Rocky mountain area. This includes the registration of skilled and semi-skilled workers in the local state employment service offices, and the establishment or expansion of necessary training courses to open up new opportunities for reemployment of those workers who have been displaced as a result of material shortages.

Pensions Initiative Corrected

The initiative proposal calling for minimum pensions of $40 monthly for needy Idahoans over 65 filed with the secretary of state by Townsend clubs, has been withdrawn for technical corrections.

The clubs expect to place the proposal before Idaho voters at the general election next November. They must obtain 23,853 signatures to qualify the plan for the ballot.

Filing of the measure was decided upon at the Townsend convention in Coeur d'Alene two weeks ago.
