LIFE WATER

By Virginia Halling, Age 11,
E24 Sixteenth Ave., Spokane

There lived a boy whose name was Aneth. He loved the princess and the princess loved him, too.

The king was very angry for his daughter would marry a peasant. He had already told his daughter that she may marry anyone she wishes to.

So the princess went and told Aneth that he must get the Life Water. He set out. He went through many hardships, till he came there and killed a seven-headed dragon.

He got the Life Water and went home. They had a grand wedding and lived happily ever after.

IN OCTOBER

By Evelyn Hoepft

The autumn winds are sighing,
The fruit trees laden down
With a golden, mellow richness
Hanging nearly to the ground.

The maple and the chestnut,
Their brilliant dresses wear,
And dot the sunny hillside
With their colors bright and rare.

The squirrel is busy as can be,
Searching the forest over
For chestnuts and for pine-nuts
To eat in colder weather.

All the grasses and bushes
Are getting brown and bare
For all the pleasant summer
Is fading from the year.

All the brooks are silent,
No one picks the meadow flowers,
For the school bell's ringing loudly
Through the pleasant autumn hours.

Though our pleasant summer's over
And the day seems long and drear,
We are glad that winter's coming
And October days are near.

Fun For the Younger Kiddies

Mask: Cut an oval out of paper (or dress lining) and in it cut holes for eyes, nose and mouth, fitting first to the child's face to insure getting them in the right places.

Simple cutouts: A six-inch square of light weight paper folded twice, making a small square; then fold from center to corner.

IDEAS THAT GREW

One day the two Curtice boys and their mother found themselves with too many tomatoes on hand and no refrigerator to keep them from spoiling.

A waffle or muffin batter gives left-over berries a new lease on life.

MORE FUN FOR YOU HALLOWEEN PARTIES

The following games will add much enjoyment to your Halloween parties. Plan your parties ahead of time. They will prove more popular.

Toss Hickory Nuts

A large pumpkin with a grinning face cut in one side is placed in the doorway or an open space of the room. Each guest is required to take turns at standing a certain distance from the pumpkin and taking five chances at tossing hickory nuts into the open top of the pumpkin.

Pass a basket of red apples and fruit knives and ask each player to carve a face from the side of his apple. The handiwork is then submitted to judges who decide which is the prettiest and which the homeliest face.

The Witch's Caldron

Over a make-believe fire in a secluded corner of the room suspend a large iron kettle. At some time during the evening an old witch rushes into the room. The lights have been turned low to make it more witchy.

In a covered basket the witch has a number of ingredients which she will need for charms. She gives the basket to the hostess and then retires, muttering to her witch kettle.

NO RIDES FOR WITCHES

Windmills in Portugal are often hung with pots to keep witches from taking free rides when the mill turns, say Jan and Cora Gordon in "Portuguese Holiday."

FARMER'S POWER COSTS REVEALED

OLYMPIA.—Estimates of the costs of carrying electrification to prospective customers of the Puget Sound & Light company were given by S. P. McFadden, vice president, in a letter to E. F. Banker, director of conservation and development.

McFadden also estimated it would cost the prospective customers of his company an additional $2,000,000 for wiring and appliances. He recommended that the rural electrification administration advance each prospective customer up to $500 at three per cent interest, repayment to be made over a period of 15 years, for line extension costs, and $225 for wiring and appliances.

The estimates were obtained in view of the $100,000,000 allotted for rural electrification out of the federal government's relief appropriation. Banker is acting as temporary REA agent in this state.
