

Over The County

Deary Press: During 1920 the Deary creamery paid the farmers $15,000 for butterfat. In such a puny as this the monthly disbursements should be not less than $5,000 a month. There are hundreds of farming sections all over the United States that became prosperous only after they began to make a specialty of dairying, and one of the mysteries of the times is the fact that farm bureaus and agricultural colleges do not push this industry more. If one half the energy that has been spent in general farming here during the past ten years had been intelligently devoted to building up a dairy industry we should by now have had the richest section in the north west.

Juliaetta Record: Dr. Rothwell, of Kendrick, was in Juliaetta Saturday. While in town he vaccinated quite a number of the school children. Not many cases of small-pox are reported in this vicinity, but a precaution to prevent its spread is always the best plan. The law is not compulsory in Idaho to vaccinate, but parents should be careful and not run the risk of their children getting this disease.

Genese News: The work of rebuilding the electric lighting system of the business district of Genese has been begun by the Washington Water Power company, altho it is being somewhat retarded by the bad weather and shortage of material, which has not yet arrived.

Manager Jack Barnes says that two blocks on Main street will be built and the present wiring replaced with No. 2 solid copper wire (which is almost as large as an ordinary lead pencil) and which is capable of carrying 100 per cent more juice than the present wire, with no danger of over-loading. A 40-kilowatt transformer will be placed opposite the News office and which will take the place of five smaller transformers now in use.

Star-Mirror: By the overwhelming score of 63 to 22 the Moscow high school basket ball team defeated the Kendrick high school team here Saturday night, the game being played in the high school gymnasium. The Moscow team simply outclassed the visitors in every way. Nedros, with 23 points; Stivers, with 16 were the high point winners of the Moscow team, but all members played a good game. Flaig, of Kendrick, with 12 points, led his team, Chamberlain being second for Kendrick with six points. The Moscow team is composed of new men, with one exception, Stivers being the only man who had played before this year. The Moscow team is composed of Nedros, Nelson, Garrison, Thomas, Bumgarner, Stivers, Clark, Cornelison and Mix. The team is going after the state championship at the basket ball tournament to be held here in March.

Kendrick High Lost

Another defeat was administered to our local high school team last Friday evening at Lewiston, when the Lewiston High School ran up a score of 62 against 16 for their visitors. Remer, Lewiston forward scored 24 points for his team. Kendrick played the regular lineup consisting of Flaig, center; Chamberlain and Harres, forwards; Dammarell and Carlisle, guards.

Grinding Flour Here

The Kendrick Flour mill is again operating at full capacity with a day and night shift. A miller from Lewiston has charge of the day shift and Charles Keeler has the night shift. Mr. Atchison states there are orders on hand now to keep the mill going two months or more, so the prospect looks good for a continued run. The mill gives a number of men employment so it is encouraging news to learn that it may continue to run for some time.

School Notes

The basketball boys returned from Lewiston and Moscow, Sunday, and acting somewhat the worse for their trip and the games played thereon. Cecil Chamberlain is wearing a patch over his right eye. Kester Dammarell complains of two sprained ankles, and all of them complain of very sore, stiff muscles. Both Lewiston and Moscow players were much larger than K. H. S. boys and since they were able to get the tip off on each ball the boys were unable to do much. Some very good playing was done, however, on the part of the Kendrick team. Score at Lewiston stood 62-16, Lewiston's favor; Moscow 62-22, Moscow's favor.

The boys go to Asotin Friday night and Anatone, Saturday. We sincerely hope they have better luck both in higher scores and fewer patches.

Semester examinations are in order in High School this week. Many sad faces were noticed when the honor list was posted. Cheer up! Your name will be there next semester.

Those receiving honor grades for the semester are:

English I. Elsie Bird, Alice Wegner, Lena Wegner.

English II. Rita Leith, Beulah Long.

American History. Curtis Bailey, Elsie Bird, Cecil Chamberlain, Joyce Hunt.

English IV. Nellie Dean, Joyce Hunt, Tula McGuire, Minnie Torgerson.

History I. Elsie Bird, Edith Dammarell, Rita Leith, Beulah Long, Audrey Stanton.

Geometry. Cecil Chamberlain, Nellie Dean.

Chemistry. Nellie Dean.

Biology. William Kelly.

"Brown Eyed Betty" the play now in preparation by the High School students is progressing nicely. Work on the second act was started this week. You don't want to miss it, so remember and watch for the definite date, sometime the first week of February.

Examinations for the eighth grade in Physiology and History are being given in Miss Little's room this week. Mrs. Mort has charge of them.

Shoe Shop Changed Hands

Ben Shay sold his shoe repair shop, Thursday morning, to J. J. Kincaid and B. A. Casper, both of Spokane. The new proprietors took possession immediately upon the conclusion of the deal and are now in charge of the business.

The new firm later on expects to install some up-to-date machinery so that they can handle anything in the line of shoe repair work that comes to them. In the mean time they are equipped to turn out first class work along ordinary lines of shoe repairing.

Hunt up your old shoes that need repairing and give the new firm a good start in business here.

Mr. Casper is a single man. Mr. Kincaid is married and expects his wife here soon.

Mr. Shay, who has owned the shoe shop here for several years, expects to leave soon for California where he has relatives.

Oh, Man!

He had to quote Kipling to hold his own with his bright young lady. So he lightly did so. "As Kipling says, my dear, 'Woman is a rag, a bone and a hank of hair.'" "And man," she sweetly smiled, "is a jag, a drone and a tank of air." Which served very nicely to change the subject.

Idaho Farm Bureau

Nampa, Idaho—The Idaho Farm Bureau Federation, at its annual meeting here, in connection with the state seed show, January 10 to 14, discarded its old constitution and adopted a new one, which will permit it to engage actively in improving market and transportation conditions, or even to enter the business field itself for the marketing of farm products, if it so desires.

The state federation made itself independent of public funds by empowering the executive committee to employ a paid secretary, and other employes, rather than depending on the director of extension to serve as secretary, as heretofore.

County farm bureaus will continue to co-operate with the university extension division and the United States Department of Agriculture as formerly, and the delegates passed a resolution which stated that, despite their approval of public economy, they went on record as favoring the most systematic consideration of the budget for the university and the extension department. It was decided that a legislative committee should be sent to the capital to see that this matter was pressed.

"There will be a concert of thinking and planning and fighting by the American farm forces, such as we never have known," said W. S. Shearer, of Lewiston, in reporting the Indianapolis meeting of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

W. S. Shearer, of Lewiston, was elected president of the state federation. The state was divided into four districts, from each of which a vice president and two members of the executive committee were elected.

Entertained at Cards

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Knepper entertained the members of the Okeke Kloutchman Club and their husbands and Mr. and Mrs. Joday Long, at a Japanese party last Friday evening. The house was decorated with Japanese lanterns and in the national colors of Japan. The evening was devoted to "500", Mrs. R. D. Newton winning the lady's prize and W. M. McCrea the gentleman's prize. The guests then sat in true Japanese fashion in a circle, in front of the fire place and each told his or her favorite story of Japan. The story told by Mrs. W. M. McCrea was voted the best of all. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Knepper assisted by Elvira Atchison and Artilee Holada. The two young ladies were charmingly dressed in Japanese costume.

Will Electrify Juliaetta

The Potlatch Consolidated Electric Company has purchased the electric line and equipment from Mr. Vincent of Juliaetta and will build a line connecting Juliaetta with the present Troy-Kendrick system. The three towns will receive power and light supplied by the Washington Water Power Co., at Moscow. A. Wilmot will own the line connecting Juliaetta, Kendrick and Troy with a big transformer at Moscow.

Construction work started this week and it is expected the line will be completed within 30 days, providing weather conditions are favorable. The poles are being cut near Troy and will be shipped here and to Juliaetta for distribution along the line.

The light system of Juliaetta has heretofore been 220 volts direct current. This will be changed to 110 volts alternating current, which is the standard voltage on all modern systems. This will necessitate the installation of new meters at Juliaetta.

When the new line has been completed Juliaetta will have 24 hour service equal to any town between Lewiston and Spokane, a vast improvement over the former system.

W. O. W. Had Big Time

A large crowd attended the annual open meeting and entertainment of the Woodmen Lodge, held at the Frateran Temple, Wednesday night. This is an event that is always looked forward to by the members of the Lodge and their friends. The early part of the evening was devoted to a delightful program. Following were the numbers rendered:

After a very substantial lunch the evening was devoted to dancing.

Owl Electrocuted

It hardly seems possible that an ordinary hoot owl could stop the Kendrick flour mill, put out all of the lights in Kendrick and cut off the power on the power line between Kendrick and Troy. Nevertheless, such is the case. Tuesday a large owl "lit" on the light line in front of Claus Eichner's house on American ridge. It is presumed he spread his wings and touched both high tension wires. At any rate he was electrocuted and during the process the switch was "kicked out" here at the local switchboard, shutting off the electric power in Kendrick. Twice the switch was thrown out before it was learned what caused it. After the owl was electrocuted he hung suspended from the wire by both feet. Latter the wind blew his wings against the wires, causing the switch to be thrown out a second time.

He Got The Spirit

There's a suburban home whose owner's principal delight is in keeping it spic and span. After dinner he and a guest were smoking on the front porch. The guest after lighting his cigar, threw the burned match to the ground.

"Oh, I wouldn't do that, George," said the host.

"Why not?" asked the guest, surprised.

"It spoils the appearance of a place," was the answer. "It's just those little things that make a place look bad."

The guest smoked his cigar in silence for a minute. Then, without a word, he got up from his chair, walked down to the road and disappeared. He returned in a short while and his host asked:

"Why, where have you been, George?"

"Oh, I just went down to spit in the river," said George.

L. Davis' House Burned

The Leonard Davis residence and household goods were destroyed by fire Wednesday evening. It is believed the fire originated from an exploding lantern. The house and contents were valued at approximately $3,000, with $1,500 insurance.

Insurance Company Prospers

Nearly fifty members of the Nez Perce County Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Company attended the annual meeting, held at Lewiston last Friday. President E. F. Stamper presided over the meeting. The annual report, after being audited by R. B. Parks and J. M. Woodward, was presented by Jesse Hoffman, secretary-treasurer of the company.

The company was organized about fifteen years ago and now has a membership of 1245 and insurance in force to the amount of $2,048,640.

The balance on hand at the beginning of the year was $1,230.33. The amount received from fees was $398; from premiums, $3,776.30; from assessments, $42.59; making a total of $5,447.22. There was expended for advertising, printing and stationery, the sum of $229.86; for amounts returned to policyholders, $110.14; amount paid to directors, adjusting agents and secretary, $1,344.22; for losses, $3,573.25; for filing statements, $10.50; for hall rent, $2.50; for check unpaid, $22; leaving a balance of $148.38; the total being $5,447.22.

The business in force at the beginning of the year was $1,651,024.48, among 1,137 holders. The amount written during the year was $771,189, for 398 policyholders, making a total of 1,535 policyholders and a total of $2,422,213.48 insurance; but during the year 290 policies were cancelled or expired, with insurance of $378,572.60, leaving at the close of the year, 1,245 members or policyholders, with a total insurance of $2,048,640.88.

The total fire losses since the organization of the company were $28,939.03. Only one assessment has been made during the past three years but a small one will be made in the near future. The territory of the company covers Nez Perce, Lewis and Clearwater counties.

E. F. Stamper was re-elected president and Jesse Hoffman secretary-treasurer.

Can't Sell Dried Prunes

J. L. Johnson was in Kendrick Wednesday with a sample of prunes that he raised and dried on his place on the point of American ridge. They were extra fine quality. He weighed a small sack of them and found they averaged 27 prunes to the pound. He has been selling a few of them locally for 12 cents a pound but cannot find an outside market for them. He has about four tons of the dried fruit.

Four years ago he set out a prune orchard on the northeast slope of his place. These trees began bearing this year, some of them having as high as fifty pounds to a tree, and the quality of the fruit was exceptionally fine. The soil in the orchard is a rich ashy loam and seems to be particularly adapted to the raising of prunes.

Crocker Lost Hound

A week ago Sunday, Frank Crocker and Harry Fowler went after coyotes with their hounds. Each had one hound which he valued very highly as they are extra good ones. The dogs got on a trail and followed it out of the country. Neither hound came home until the first of this week Harry Fowler's dog returned. Nothing has been heard of the other hound and Mr. Crocker is anxious about him as he was a valuable dog—worth at least $100. Mr. Crocker had him assessed and is paying taxes on him, so that if anyone has him tied up and is trying to keep him, it would be a good idea to let him loose.

These hounds have been worth a great deal to this community and anyone who can give Mr. Crocker information as to the whereabouts of his hound will be doing the entire community a favor.

Joe Frucht of Lenore arrived Wednesday to attend the annual open meeting of the Woodmen Lodge.

Southwick Community Work

Tribune: Miss Grace Harrington, director of public health nurses for the northwestern division of the American Red Cross, returned on Sunday to the headquarters at Seattle, after an interesting visit with the Lewiston chapter. On Friday she accompanied Miss Heuermann, the public health nurse of this county, to Southwick, where a very successful class in home hygiene is being conducted by the latter, and was much pleased with the results of the work observed.

At the schoolhouse at Southwick on Friday evening the bi-weekly community meeting was held, with a house crowded to the limit. Here the lack of better facilities for such meetings was so evident that expressions were heard to the effect that a gymnasium should be provided. It is understood that before the next meeting for Friday evening of next week, the partition between the two school rooms will be removed and a platform provided.

Before the opening of the regular program on Friday evening Miss Harrington, who commended the fine community spirit and organization, told of the value and need of concerted effort. She told of her experiences in Siberia, where a great number of Petrograd children were cared for and eventually returned to their homes. Miss B. S. Hoiles, the Lewiston nurse, also spoke.

The regular program included a song, given in excellent way, by the pupils of the intermediate grades, recitations by some of the little children, a playlet by local young people of the surrounding community, and a fine violin duet by a man and a girl.

Miss Hoiles returned to her work in Lewis county on Sunday. She was accompanied by Miss Ruth Brewer, who was returning to social service work at Winchester.

Kids Defeat Cubs

In a very interesting game played here last Saturday evening at the high school gymnasium, the Kendrick Kids won their second game of the season from the Moscow Cubs by a score of 31 to 18. Both teams played a good game and a number of sensational plays were made by both the Cubs and the Kids. Egnaz Flaig was the most consistent point winner for Kendrick, throwing most of the baskets for his team. Billy Frazer, the smallest member of the Cubs, played the feature game of the evening. He only played the second half of the game, but for his size he was a wonder. If the Cubs had had more just like him the score would have been reversed.

Farm Bureau Meetings

Three important business meetings of the Latah County Farm Bureau will be held in communities tributary to Kendrick next week, according to notices sent out by County Agent Fletcher. The first meeting will be held on Big Bear ridge at the U. B. church, Thursday afternoon, January 27, at 1:30. K. D. Ingle is chairman in that community.

The second meeting will be held at Kendrick in the City Hall, Friday, January 28, at 9:45 a. m. This meeting is for the benefit of the bench farmers who live in the canyons tributary to Kendrick. E. E. McDowell is community chairman.

The third meeting will be held at Juliaetta, Friday afternoon, at 1:45. J. C. Hamil is chairman in that community. The place of meeting can be learned from him, as it was not definitely decided upon at the time the paper went to press.

All farmers who are interested in better methods are cordially invited to attend these meetings whether they are farm bureau members or not. These are the annual business meetings of the community centers of the farm bureau and the work for the coming year will be taken up and discussed.

Teakean and Cavendish

We regret to report an accident that happened to Sam Harp last Friday while he was decking logs at Hoffman's mill. A log rolled and struck him in the back. He was carried to the bunk house and later removed to the home of his brother, Earl. At this writing the doctor is not certain as to the extent of his injuries.

A number of young folks gathered at the home of J. C. Petersen last Sunday and spent a very pleasant day.

A surprise was given in honor of Mrs. Edith Kelley last Saturday night. Games and music were indulged in during the evening after which delightful refreshments were served. Everyone reported a fine time.

Mr. Stinor of South Idaho held services at the Brethren Church at Teakean for three evenings last week.

Miss Pansy Frazer and Mr. Roy Shoemaker were married last week by Mr. Detrick. The community extends best wishes to the happy couple.

Mr. Ede of Orofino was in Teakean on business last week.

A dance was held last week at the home of D. Stanaker. It was well attended.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Crutcher returned from Orofino last week.

The need of better roads has seldom been more noticeable than this winter. Many farmers still have large quantities of grain to haul to market, but the roads have been in no condition to encourage hauling. When the grain can't be hauled in the slack winter months, farmers have to do their hauling when they can ill afford to spare the time—either in the spring or early fall. A few days this winter there was enough snow to make it possible to haul on sleds. These were good days in Kendrick as loads of grain were brought here a distance of fifteen miles or more. There is an exceptionally good market here if it were only more accessible during the winter months. Nothing but good roads will improve this condition. The only way we will get the good roads is to pull together.

A reformer was opposed to the slaughter of animals for their furs. He held that any woman who wore the fur of an animal or the feathers of a bird was laden with sin. One day he attended a party. Across the room from him was a woman wearing furs. At his side sat a little boy. "My boy, who is that lady wearing the furs?" the reformer asked. "That's my mamma," replied the boy. "Well, do you know what poor animal had to suffer in order that your mamma could wear those furs?" asked the reformer. Yes, sir, it was my poor papa," replied the boy, who knew his "stuff."

Linden Items

Miss Edith Jenks returned to Lewiston, Thursday, after visiting her sister, Mrs. Lou Alexander.

Fred Allen, who is working near Bovill, spent the week end with home folks.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sackett and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kingen of Cameron attended the dance here Friday night.

Jess Damals of Cavendish spent the week end at the McPhee home.

About twenty-five friends of Miss Edith Jenks gave her a surprise party Tuesday evening. The evening was spent in singing and games, and was greatly enjoyed by all present.

Jim Ball is in Lewiston for medical treatment.

Mrs. Gus Farrington visited her sister, Mrs. Frances Stevens in Kendrick last week.

Marion Jenks of Dent, visited at Lou Alexander's several days last week.

Miss Celia McPhee is spending the week in Cavendish with her sister, Mrs. Claud Pippenger.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Langdon spent Sunday at Ben Smiths.

Mrs. S. H. Fry and Mrs. C. H. Fry and children spent, Tuesday with Eva Smith.

Frank Starr spent Wednesday evening at the Shingler home.

A number of young people from here attended the dance at Long Meadow, Saturday evening. They say there is about five feet of snow there.

Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Foster, Mr. and Mrs. McCallister and Mr. Darby and son, Walter, attended the funeral of Mrs. Baker in Southwick.

Miss Hammond entertained her Sunday school class, "The Truth Seekers", Saturday evening. Various games and tricks were played and at midnight a light lunch was served after which the guests departed for their homes.

Mrs. Jim Ball went to Lewiston, Monday to be with her husband, who will have an operation performed on his face, at a local hospital there.

Mrs. C. T. Mulkey, Clem Israels and children, Lou Alexander's children, Mrs. Hunt, Mrs. Holt, the Fry and George Garner families have all been quite sick but are reported some better at this writing.

FORDSON

More and more every day the demand for the Fordson Tractor increases because the Fordson has demonstrated so much usefulness, so much economy, so much labor saving, so much money saving, along so many lines of activity. The farmer has discovered that not only for plowing, harrowing, discing, seeding, mowing, reaping and threshing, but a multitude of other uses; cutting wood, feed, grinding feed, churning, washing, furnishing water in the house; making electric light possible in the house and around the barns; so that, as a matter of fact, there is hardly an hour in the day when the tractor cannot be made a profitable servant. There is ditching to do; there are roads to fix; and so on all down along the line of the numerous calls that constantly face the farmer, the Fordson steps in and does the work, shoulders the complete burden of the toil and the hard work, one might almost say "drudgery."

This is the Age of Machinery, the day when man plans the day's work, or the year's work, and then turns it over to the Tractor to execute. Get the book, "The Fordson at Work," because it is free. If you cannot call for it, write and we will mail it to you. The Tractor is not only a necessity to every farmer but it is an established utility along a great many commercial lines. Our allotment is limited to so many each month. Let's have your order now.

An Adventure Romance
By
GEORGE AGNEW CHAMBERLAIN
COPYRIGHT THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.

PART I.—Robert Hervey Randolph, young New York man-about-town, leaves the home of his sweetheart, Madge Van Teller, chagrined because of her refusal of his proposal of marriage. His income, $10,000 a year, which he must surrender if a certain Miss Imogen Pamela Thornton (whom he has seen only as a small girl ten years before) is found, is not considered by the girl of his heart adequate to modern needs. In a "don't care" mood Randolph enters a taxi, unseen by the driver, and is driven to the stage door of a theater. A man he knows, Duke Beamer, induces a girl to enter the cab. Beamer, attempting to follow, is pushed back by Randolph and the cab moves on. His new acquaintance tells Randolph she is a chorus girl, and has lost her position. She is in distress, even hungry, and he takes her to his apartment. There, after lunch, a chance remark convinces him the girl is the missing Pamela Thornton. He does not tell her of her good fortune, but secures her promise to stay in the flat until the morning, and leaves her. In a whimsical mood, also realizing that the girl's reappearance has left him practically penniless, he bribes the taxi driver to let him take his job, and leaving word with the legal representative of the Thornton estate where he can find Pamela, takes up his new duties under the name of "Slim Hervey." He loves the girl, but his pride forbids him approaching her under their changed conditions.

PART I.

Moral Emblems.

Please don't skip this description of Robert Hervey Randolph—six feet straight up and down, broad of shoulder and narrow of hip, sandy-haired, blue-eyed, nose slightly up-ended and wearing a saddle of faint freckles, clean shaven, well groomed, very correctly dressed, and twenty-six years old. Let it be added that his eyes were placed just far enough apart to stamp him forever honest; he had an open and most prepossessing countenance.

At the moment of the start of this rapid yarn, he was standing in the Van Tellers' library, looking down in pain and flushed surprise at Miss Madge Van T., who was sitting in a huge leather chair half facing the fire in the open grate, one leg very much under her, the other waving a satin-and-silk combination of foot and ankle in distracting accompaniment to her disturbing speech.

"Look here, Madge," said the pained Mr. Randolph: "are you making fun of my face or of my brain or of both?"

"My dear," said Miss Van T. quite gravely, "I'm not making fun of you in any way whatsoever. I'm merely telling you how lovable you are, so that you will understand how serious it is when I say that I've decided not to love you any more."

"B-but how can you help it?" stammered Mr. Randolph, his tongue for once saying the same thing as his face at the same time.

Miss Van T.'s breast fluttered as though rising against its mistress to the defense of this disingenuous young man, and she was obliged to swerve her eyes from his and draw a long breath before she answered.

"I can, because I will," she said, her face paling. "Oh, Bobby, can't you wake up? Look round you and come to earth! You are born and bred on Manhattan, yet you've never seen New York."

"I guess you're right," said Bobby thoughtfully. "Look here, Madge: why should I try to see New York, and why should we be talking ash-cans when I've got you to look at in one of the most bewitching and abbreviated bits of dress goods that ever revealed a completely adorable person? Tell me that."

"Well," said Madge, her face hardening, "I will. It's a long story, not in words but in generations. The Van Tellers have lived in East Ninth street since the year one of the island. That is, they used to live here; now they hardly exist. They are merely an assorted lot of animated corpses that crawl out of their tomb periodically to take a strange air, leaning on a rotten stave called the 'Old Order.' Listen to this, Bobby: The new New York is a fever, and I've caught it. I want a rainy-day car, a calling-car, and a touring car; I want dresses that will stab with envy the heart of every woman that looks at them; I want my jewels to run to size and quality, and I want a yacht just for the papers to talk about, because I hate to ride in the smelly trolleys."

Bobby's eyes had grown rounder and wider as the list progressed.

"Do you think you could get along on a hundred thousand a year?" he asked very softly.

"I don't know," she said slowly. "I've been going into the subject rather thoroughly, and a hundred thousand would be running it on a pretty close margin. By the way, just what is your allowance under that crazy will?"

"Ten thousand," said Bobby. "Well," said Miss Van T., "there you are! Just enough to keep you comfortably in debt, and you want to marry me on it! It wouldn't be quite so out of the question if you knew you were going to have it forever, but you don't. It may be cut off."

"Any day," said Bobby promptly. "It isn't likely, after all these years, but it may."

"Well, there you are!" Miss Van T. repeated herself. "I'm not altogether a pig, Bobby. Ten thousand with you thrown in is enough to make any woman think; three times, but the truth is you have been killed by too little and too much kindness. If you had never gone on as super for a disappearing heiress, you might have amounted to something by now. Instead of making you, that money has buried you."

"You don't know me altogether, Madge," said Bobby. "Do you think I've never thought things out? When I need to make money, I'll do it. The great thing nowadays, it seems to me, is not to have too much."

"Not to have too much!" exclaimed Miss Van T., a puzzled frown on her forehead. "Bobby, do you know that you've said something original? No; I won't put it quite as strong as that, but I will say that you've given birth to an exotic idea."

"But it doesn't alter things as far as I am concerned," she continued, almost without a pause. "In fact, it only simplifies matters. You've signed the warrant. I want loads of money; you're afraid of having too much. So we'd better turn our backs on each other and march."

Mr. Randolph looked at her through narrowed eyes.

"I suppose," he said, "you have picked out the man with a hundred thousand a year?"

"Not finally," said Miss Van T., "though they are not so scarce in this burly world as your question implies. After all, it isn't the cash I'm keen on, but what it will bring. If necessary, I'll earn my own living."

"Earn your own living!" exclaimed Mr. Randolph. "Will you please tell me how you could earn anything?"

"Well," said Miss Van T., "I've had a couple of offers without even asking. When I tried to Jew Simon Simon down on this very frock on the grounds that I was hard up, he said, in the nicest way, that he would take me on at sixty a week any day during the next five years."

"And the other?" asked Mr. Randolph.

"The other," said Miss Van T., dropping her eyes, "was Beacher Tremont. He wasn't quite so nice, but he offered more. He said he was looking for a private secretary, who could name her own price."

"During the next five years—at your own price," repeated Bobby, his mind dazed but nevertheless going straight to the kernel of each proposition. "Madge, do you know what you're saying? Do you know the horrible things you infer?"

She moved one hand impatiently.

"Bobby," she said, "don't get theatrical. I tell you New York is a fever. I've caught it, and I'm not a bit sorry. The choice between being a Van Teller corpse and a fastish woman is easy. The semi-declassées of New York, if they play for high enough stakes, have a world of their own that is worth moving in. Money is merely an adjunct to it—nothing but the bridge across which clever men come to show themselves off at their untrammelled best."

"Madge," said Bobby, at once frightened and earnest, "you only half know what you're talking about. There is such a world as you speak of—it's the world of insatiably hungry women. It's brilliant and fascinating for a while, but it breathes a poisoned air, and all its roads lead down. Every woman that goes into it with her eyes open has an idea that, with her beauty and her brains, she can buck the tiger and get away with it. She won't look over her shoulder and read the record of an endless losing run on the black."

Miss Van T. smiled.

"I'm already beginning on my reward," she said. "You've never talked so well before in your life."

"It's more than talk," said Bobby, flushing angrily. "And the ways of access that you have imagined!" he continued. "You read happy stories to the public taste of midnettes, show-room girls, and dress-models, and perhaps you think they mirror the life.

Why, Madge, the taunts that those girls fling indifferently at virtue and at vice are so vile that they couldn't be repeated even among half-decent men. And the other way, the private door for the private secretary. That's a road of burned bridges. Every man, decent or indecent, feels a queer sinking of the heart when he hears of a woman taking it." He looked at her shrewdly. "And yet you may do it," he said, half to himself. "If you are one of the hungry women, God help you, for they all walk blindfolded."

"They don't walk," said Madge, flushing, and her eyes gleaming

"It Would Take Me Years to Learn to Kiss You Again."

strangely. "That's just the point: they rush, whirl, and—"

"And crash," finished Bobby.

"That's the very word," said Madge. "If you'll only keep on the way you've started, I'd love to talk to you all night."

"No chance of that," said Bobby, straight-lipped. "I'm through, and I'm going." He turned toward the door.

"Not without kissing me good-by, Bobby!" cried Madge.

He looked over his shoulder with a polite but impersonal smile.

"I'm not much on kissing strange women," he said lightly. "It would take me years to learn to kiss you again."

He left the room and the house.

With his top-hat pushed back on his head, the ends of his muffer flying loose, his overcoat half unbuttoned, he swung up the deserted lower reaches of the Avenue, punctuating his thoughts with the solid rap of his stick on the pavement. It might be supposed that he was thinking and mourning over the sudden demise of the Miss Van Teller he had thought he had known for many years, but such was not the case.

Mr. Randolph was not built on mourning lines; at the moment under review, he was thinking about himself and the strange fate that had made him a foster-child of fortune. He proceeded to look back ten years. Just a decade ago he had had his one meeting with the young lady whose disappearance had brought him an unstable affluence. It had taken place on this very avenue and less than forty short blocks away. He had reason to remember the encounter, for it had brought into sudden conjunction a lovely Persian cat, a lovely wire-haired terrier, a lovely child, and himself. The cat had dashed from a proud front door to cross Forty-something street under the nose of a taxi-cab; the dog had flown in yapping pursuit and, in the act, yanked his young mistress off her pins. He, Mr. Randolph, had seized one of her flying feet, hauled her and the terrier back to safety, and no sooner placed her upright and smoothed down her absurdly short skirts than he, she, and especially it, the dog, became the center and circumference of an animated pin-wheel.

Her unshaken determination to hold to the leash, whatever happened, brought disaster. The said leash wound three times round her ankles and those of Mr. Randolph, bringing them both down kerplunk and facing each other. "My, what a bump!" she had cried, in startled tones, and then thrown back her curly head and laughed.

It was so that he remembered her—a child of ten or eleven summers and no winters, merry as a sunny day, dark-haired, dark-eyed, pink-checked, pampered but unspotted. She had risen and taken his hand, told him her name, thanked him, ordered a flurried nurse to thank him, shaken her finger at the terrier, and said, "Good-by" and "Come on, Maggie," all while he was still rubbing the seat of his first long trousers.

On that day she had been Miss Imogene Pamela Thornton, petted darling of the gods and Mr. Brewster Thornton, banker and widower; two months later had come Thornton's financial smash and, immediately afterward, his spiritual, moral and bodily collapse. Everything that had made for life in him having been swept away, he died as a matter of course, and was buried. For sole inheritance, little Gene Thornton found herself possessor and possessed of one Maggie O'Rourke, a nurse of long standing, of earnest and faithful face, and a monster heart imprisoned in a pitifully thin chest.

It had taken Gene's great-uncle, Asa Thornton, six more months to forget a quarrel of sixteen years' standing with his nephew, and by that time child and nurse had been seeped into that lower world which can't afford morning and afternoon editions and is too busy praying for daily bread to look for a rain of manna in the daily press.

PACKAGES HELP TO SELL GOODS

Desirability of Packing Products in Clean, Sound Containers Is Emphasized.

RECENT INSTANCE IS CITED

Farmer, Who Shipped Large Amount of Butter in Dark, Unattractive Barrels Suffers Loss of 8 Cents a Pound on Shipment

The desirability of packing farm products in clean, sound containers is again emphasized by the loss of $350 recently suffered by a producer in connection with a single shipment of butter, say specialists of the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture.

Used Dark-Colored Barrels. This farmer shipped in barrels unsalted butter that scored 89 points. Because of the dark gray color of the barrels, which suggested packing stock butter, the receiver was unable to interest buyers in the commodity. Realizing that he would be unable to sell it at all in that condition, he salted and reworked the butter and then packed it in butter tubs. Although the butter had deteriorated in quality by this time, the appearance of the packages commanded the attention of buyers and the butter was promptly sold. The loss to the shipper was practically 8 cents a pound, or over $350 on the entire shipment—a loss that would have been avoided in the first place had the shipper packed the butter properly, and a loss that would have been greater had not the receiver done so.

The same principle applies to eggs, beans, or any other commodity, say the bureau's experts. If the packages present an inviting appearance, the sale is half made; for good-looking packages suggest contents of high quality.

Another illustration, given by the bureau of markets is that of a country creamery that forwarded a five-tub sample shipment of butter to a commission firm and received an offer for future shipments. In the next shipment the creamery used second-hand tubs instead of bright, new, clean, attractive packages, such as were used in the five-tub sample. Although the butter shipped was uniform in quality and scored 92 points, the commission firm was unable to dispose of it as "extras," and the shipper was compelled to take a loss of 2 cents a pound on the shipment.

PREPARE CAPONS FOR BEST PRICE

No Feed or Water Should Be Given for 24 Hours Before Fowls Are Killed.

STICKING METHOD FAVORED

Some Feathers Should Be Allowed to Remain as Distinguishing Mark—Pack in Neat Boxes of Most Convenient Size.

Capons selected for killing should be confined for 24 hours without feed or water to empty their crops completely. The usual method of killing is known as the sticking method. The fowl is hung up by the feet, the head in the left hand, and the whole body stretched to full length. The mouth is forced open and the blood vessels at the back of the throat are severed with a sharp narrow-bladed knife. The knife is then turned and the point plunged through the roof of the mouth to a point just behind and between the eyes, piercing the brain. The muscles are relaxed and the feathers come out easily.

Dry Picking Is Best. Capons should always be dry picked, as they look much better and as some of the feathers should be left on. The feathers of the neck and head, the tail feathers, those a short way up the back, the feathers of the last two joints of the wing, and those of the leg, about one-third of the way from knee to hip joint, should be left on. These feathers, together with the head of the capon, serve to distinguish it from other classes of poultry on the market, and consequently should never be removed. In packing, be careful not to tear the skin. Bad tears, poultry specialists of the United States department of agriculture say, should be sewn up. Capons scalded and plucked bare bring very little, if any, better prices than other poultry in the same condition.

Most markets require capons to be undrawn and the head and feet left on. Care should be used to cleanse the head and feet of all signs of blood and filth.

Pack in Neat Box.

After picking, the carcasses are hung in a cool place until the animal heat has entirely left the body, when they are ready to be packed. Like other poultry they should be packed in boxes of convenient size, holding a dozen carcasses, or in barrels. Every attention should be given to neatness and attractiveness, as this helps the sale and the price. During the time of year when most capons are marketed—January, February and March—no ice is necessary, but if for any reason they are shipped in warm weather they should be packed in ice.

MAKING POSTS LAST LONGER

Good Plan to Treat Tops With Creosote as Well as Bottoms to Prevent Deterioration.

If the top of the fence post is beveled the water will run off instead of soaking into the top of the post and causing decay. It is as important to conserve the top of the posts as the part that is in the ground. It will also pay when treating the bottom of the post with creosote to give the part above ground a light treatment.

VEGETABLES ARE BEST FOR DUCKS

Most Profitable Returns Obtained Where Green Feeds Predominate in Rations.

HATCHING EGGS FROM PEKIN

Young Fowls to Be Marketed Should Be Fattened for Two Weeks Before Killing—Flash Aid in Reducing Feed Bills.

Ducks may be fed on the rations recommended for fowls and chickens, but better results are usually secured by feeding more green and vegetable seeds and a larger proportion of mash. Eggs from Pekin ducks are used largely for hatching, and the profit is secured in producing green ducklings; therefore these ducks are fed a maintenance ration after they stop laying in the summer until about December 1, when a laying ration is given and the amount of mash increased.

Runners for Eggs. Indian Runner ducks have been introduced as producers of commercial eggs, so they should be fed laying rations throughout the year if kept for egg production.

The ducklings to be marketed should be fattened for two weeks before killing on a ration made of three parts, by weight, of corn meal, two parts of low-grade flour or middlings.

Large Duck Farm on Long Island.

cent green feed. Feed this mash three times daily, or use a mash of three parts corn meal, one part low-grade wheat flour, one part bran, 5 per cent beef scrap, and 3 per cent oyster shell, with the green feed and grit added.

Influence of Feeds. The green feed is sometimes left out of the ration during the last seven days of fattening, as it tends to color the meat and may produce a slightly flabby rather than a firm flesh; however, it is easier to keep the ducklings in good feeding condition on a mash containing green feed. Boiled fish may replace the beef scrap, but should only be fed up to within two weeks before they are killed, as it may give a fishy taste to their flesh, United States department of agriculture specialists suggest. A considerable quantity of boiled fish is also fed in the mash to laying ducks in sections where the duck farms border on the water and where fish is available at a very small cost. This fish aids materially in reducing the cost of feeding.

BIG FACTORS IN TRAINING COLTS

Future Value and Usefulness Depend Greatly on Management While Young.

FIRST GET HIS ATTENTION

Education of Horse Is Based on Reward and Punishment—Many Animals Made Vicious and Unreliable by Carelessness.

The breaking and training of colts is of prime importance, because their future value and usefulness depend to a great extent on whether or not they are well broken. By a broken colt is meant one that is safe to handle in the stable or on the road and that will promptly obey the orders of the driver or rider.

Memory and habit are the two main factors with which we have to deal in training horses. A horse acts through instinct and habit, and one of its greatest characteristics is uniformity of conduct. What a horse is once trained to do he will nearly always do under like conditions.

Education of Horse.

The first thing in training a horse is to get his attention. The second is to make him understand what is wanted. The education of the horse is based on reward and punishment. The reward, a pat on the neck, etc., should immediately follow the act of obedience. The punishment, to be effective, must immediately follow the act of disobedience.

Few horses are inherently vicious. Many horses are made vicious and unreliable by the carelessness or unnecessary brutality of their trainers. If a horse kicks because the harness hurts him, or shies at something of which he is afraid, punishment is not justifiable. If, however, after being stopped, a horse starts before receiving the command to do so, he should be punished. Horses are naturally obedient, and when thoroughly trained their conduct is uniformly good.

Best Training of Horse.

A horse should be trained so that he thinks there is no limit to his power to do the things required of him, and believes that he has no power to do that which is against the wishes of his driver. Above all, never ask of a horse something he is unable to perform and then punish him because it cannot be done. If during the first year of his work a colt is hitched only to loads that he can pull, he will develop into a good work horse, while if he is overloaded a few times he may become balky and worthless.

All horses cannot be treated alike. A high-strung, sensitive horse must be treated gently, the dullard sharply. The same force applied to the sensitive horse that is necessary to make the dullard act would be likely to cause the high-strung horse to rebel, while gentleness would obtain obedience.

To train horses successfully a man needs to exercise great patience, gentleness and firmness. If you are training a horse and lose your temper, you had better put the horse into the stable until the next day, for further work at this time will be worse than useless and may undo the work already done.

Wheat Dockage

Of prime importance to the wheat-growing farmer is an understanding of dockage as the term is used in federal wheat grades, and how dockage in wheat is determined, since in grading wheat under federal standards one of the fundamental principles is to determine the numerical grade on a dockage-free basis. With a few exceptions the dockage is first removed from the samples and the grade determined with the clean or dockage-free wheat. Dockage is the foreign material screened from a sample of wheat to be graded, by the use of appropriate hand sieves or other cleaning devices, and consists of sand, dirt, weed seeds, weed stems, chaff, straw, grain other than wheat, and any other foreign material. It also may contain finely broken or small, shriveled grains of wheat, in cases where such material cannot be separated from dirt and other foreign material by the use of appropriate sieves.

Foreign Material Determined.

The purpose of the dockage provision in the federal wheat standards is to enable the person grading the sample to determine the approximate amount of easily separated foreign material that is in the lot of wheat. Therefore, dockage is approximately the percentage of foreign material which can be easily removed from the lot of wheat by the commercial types of cleaning machinery commonly found in grain elevators and mills.

The dockage test is described in Farmers' Bulletin 1118 entitled "Dockage Under Federal Wheat Grades," which has recently been issued by the United States department of agriculture to aid wheat growers and others in understanding this important feature of wheat grading as provided in the revised federal grain standards for wheat, which became effective July 15, 1918.

Dockage Test Described.

The dockage test is made ordinarily by weighing 1,000 grams of wheat (about 2 1/4 pounds), which constitutes a representative sample. Grams are used instead of other units for ease in determining percentages.

The dockage is separated from this 1,000-gram sample by screening with pan sieves of specified types or by using a cleaning device which has been officially approved. The dockage so separated is weighed and the percentage is found, based on the total weight of the sample including the dockage. If the amount of dockage is below 1 per cent it is disregarded. For example, if only one-half of 1 per cent of foreign material is separated by the means described above, no dockage is assessed. This one-half of 1 per cent, however, should not be returned to the sample used in determining the grade. If 1 1/2 per cent of dockage is separated, 1 per cent of dockage would be indicated in assigning the grade. Thus it will be seen that any fraction of a per cent of dockage is considered as a "tolerance" in the standards.

Indicated in Certificate.

After the dockage is removed the clean sample is used in determining the grade, save in a few exceptions. Dockage does not affect the grade assigned to the wheat. If 1 per cent or more of separable foreign material is found, dockage is assessed. In the inspection certificate the amount is indicated immediately after the grade designation, as, for example, No. 1 northern spring, dockage 1 per cent.

If the wheat seed used is carefully selected, cleaned, tested and treated before planting, if care is exercised in cultivation and crop rotation, and if the wheat is carefully threshed and cleaned, there should be, ordinarily, very little foreign material present when the crop is marketed.

Apply to Foreign Material.

Two terms in the federal wheat standard apply to foreign material—"dockage" and "foreign material other than dockage." The former is foreign material that is separated from the sample of wheat by the proper use of appropriate hand sieves. "Foreign material other than dockage" is the foreign material not separated in the screening, and remains in the dockage-free sample. "Foreign material other than dockage," on the other hand, is a factor in the grade and definite percentages are permitted in each numerical grade.

Dockage Easily Removed.

Ordinary dockage can be removed from quantities of wheat with comparatively simple cleaning machinery such as is installed in many grain elevators and mills, or it can be removed on the farm with an ordinary portable fanning mill equipped with a screen having perforations like those specified for the dockage sieves.

Dockage found in wheat in many cases is of real value, while in other cases it not only may have no value but may contain ingredients positively harmful if ground with the wheat. Dockage frequently contains quantities of other grains and weed seeds such as mustard, flaxseed, oats or other cereal grain. Much of this can be used to good advantage as poultry or stock feed.

Importance of Dockage System.

It should be understood that it is optional with a farmer whether he remove dockage or not. The point which United States department of agriculture officials emphasize is that it is to his advantage to understand dockage and, in many cases, to remove it himself. If the dockage system is not employed, the foreign material in the wheat may cause a lowering of the grade. If no grading system is employed (grading usually is not compulsory for the farmer in selling wheat at country points, though all shipments to terminal markets are graded), and the country miller or grain dealer buys wheat as delivered at a flat rate, or on the basis of the average quality delivered, the price paid usually is sufficiently low to protect the buyer against loss caused by objectionable foreign material delivered with the general run of the grain.

Under the dockage system of the federal standards, however, the amount of such foreign material separated and considered as dockage is deducted from the weight of the wheat purchased and, in any event, does not affect the grade of the wheat after it has been cleaned. This results in a higher grade, and the price paid is on the basis of this grade.

After the dockage is removed from the original sample and the test weight per bushel has been determined, the sample is then examined to ascertain whether an analysis is to be made for any other factors which determine the grade.

Methods of Handling Dockage.

Various satisfactory methods of handling dockage may be employed in normal times. Where wheat is cleaned on the farm or at the country elevator and only the screened wheat is delivered to the local buyer, there is less possibility of difference of opinion regarding the grade of wheat delivered. Such an arrangement tends to establish greater confidence in the grades given by the local buyer. When noxious weed seeds are present it is advisable to have the removed dockage ground before feeding to prevent the further spread of these weeds on the farm. In many cases such material has a relatively high feed value and often farmers will find it to their advantage to remove the dockage themselves or have their local buyers do it for them. The bulletin describes other methods of handling dockage and making allowance therefor.

Further information as to the correct method of determining dockage in wheat may be obtained by writing the United States department of agriculture, Washington, or by writing to or visiting the nearest office of federal grain supervision. Such offices are located in the large grain markets. A farmer or country grain dealer may also mail a sample to the nearest grain inspector and receive for a small fee an official certificate showing the grade and dockage on that particular sample. This sample should be two quarts in size, of which at least 1 1/2 pints is inclosed in a clean, airtight container. The remainder, if any, with the container, should be placed in a clean cloth sack. The address of the nearest licensed grain inspector can be secured by writing the department or any supervision office.

OATS NEED MORE ATTENTION

Crop Ranks Next to Corn and Wheat in Acreage and Value, but Yields Are Unsatisfactory.

Oats rank next to corn and wheat in crop acreage and value in the United States. But, notwithstanding this, less attention has been given to the production of oats than to any other important grain, so that yields often have been unsatisfactory and the crop sometimes unprofitable, say specialists of the United States department of agriculture.

Leland Items

The revival meetings, which have been running for the last two weeks, are still in progress. The interest and attendance has been good all through. There have been a number of conversions. Rev. Hall, the pastor here, does most of the preaching. Rev. Davis has charge of the music and is doing a fine work among the young people. Everyone enjoys his singing.

Notwithstanding the bad day the McVicker sale was well attended. Things are reported to have sold very cheap.

MOST EFFECTIVE WAY TO CONTROL INSECTS

Fall Plowing Is Easiest and Cheapest Method.

Better to Prevent Outbreak of Pests Than to Stamp Out Infestation Once It Is Established—Bugs Exposed to Sun.

Fall plowing is the most universally effective way of controlling the insect pests that annually cause great losses to the grain farmer. It is much easier and cheaper, says the bureau of entomology, United States department of agriculture, to prevent an insect outbreak in this manner that it is to stamp out the infestation once it is fully developed. The Hessian fly, so destructive to wheat, is one of the insects that can hardly be eradicated once it is established in the crop. Fall plowing is recommended because it breaks up the soil and destroys the grubs and pupae of many insects by exposing them to the sun and air.

Farmers' Bulletin 835, prepared by the bureau of entomology, tells how to control the most common and dangerous of the grain farmer's insect enemies. It gives briefly the life histories of the Hessian fly, army worm, cutworms, grasshoppers, white grubs, billbugs, corn-root aphids and wireworms, with authoritative data describing the characteristics of each pest and the best practical remedies for control. The bureau advises the grain farmer to plow in the fall, if possible; to keep a supply of insecticides and a spraying outfit on hand; to watch the crops carefully for an outbreak, and to report all outbreaks to the county farm adviser, or direct to the bureau of entomology, United States department of agriculture.

For a Persistent Cough

Some years ago H. P. Burbage, a student at law in Greenville, S. C. had been troubled for a long while with a persistent cough which he says, greatly alarmed me, causing me to fear that I was in the first stage of consumption." Having seen Chamberlain's Cough Remedy advertised he concluded to try it. "I soon felt a remarkable change and after using two bottles of the small size was permanently cured."

"Everything to Eat and Wear"

WE GREET YOU

This New Year of 1921

We all feel better for having lived to see the New Year ushered in. The sages tell us that we will soon be on a normal and substantial basis again.

Many things have favored us. Among them is a mild winter, taking less clothing and less fuel; a prospect of an early adjustment of many Questions of vital importance to us as a community and as a nation, and by reason of some good means the entire country is void of the FLU. Surely we have enough to scare pessimism away and all be optimists. So, with this in view, let us all put our shoulders to the wheel and assist every good enterprise.

We are ready, or will be as the season advances, to fill your requirements in all of the varied lines we carry. You will notice an appreciable decline in a number of articles we are offering you.

Please remember that we will be pleased to honor your orders received by phone or mail, or execute any errands for you.

We await your commands.

Grass seed will be much lower this year. Why not sow some clover or alfalfa and build up your land? Plow less and raise more on less ground. Conserving the soil is like putting money in the bank.

Yours for the best year yet,

The Kendrick Hardware Co.
