

Over The County

Deary Press: All of the Potlatch Lumber company's logging camps in this vicinity, as well as the Potlatch mill, were closed down this week. Camp 2 at Princeton, cutting timber on state land will continue to operate, as the company's contract with the state requires that timber on state land be removed within a specified time.

The shut down was brought about mainly by the present market conditions, it is said. The company has an immense supply of lumber in its yards at Potlatch, movement of which for months has been very slow. High freight rates to the eastern markets and scarcity of cars have been factors that have also interfered with the ready marketing of western lumber, of which this company is the largest single producer.

Juliaetta Record: George Grove and wife returned to Juliaetta last Saturday. They were located at Dishman, Wash., near Spokane, where they have been conducting a confectionery store since leaving Juliaetta last fall, which was completely destroyed by fire on Monday night, January 17th. The loss was partially covered by insurance. Mr. and Mrs. Grove will remain in Juliaetta until they find another location.

Genesee News: Harvesting ice has been the winter "pastime" for Smolt & Son and Edward & Son for the past several days and the crop has been a very good one, the thickness averaging from five to seven inches, which is not so bad, considering the very mild weather we have had thus far this winter.

Troy News: Ex-service men of Troy have been trying for several months to get compensation and medical aid for Oscar Ohman, local ex-service man, who served with the 91st division in France and Belgium. Mr. Ohman participated in three of the major offensives, the Ypres Lys, St. Mihiel and Meuse Argonne. He was gassed and shell shocked some time during these engagements, and as a result of which he has been mentally and physically unfit to do any kind of work, since his return to civil life. Arrangements have been made to have Mr. Ohman committed to the psychopathic department at the Western Seattle Hospital which will be ready for the reception of patients in a short time. Leo Vance volunteered to accompany as attendant at the Legion's request. They left for the P. S. H. at Tacoma, Monday, at which place Mr. Ohman will be kept for a short period of observation and treatment, and until his claim for compensation has been settled.

The Revival Meetings

The special meetings started at the Methodist church last Sunday evening have been in progress each evening of the week with a marked increase in attendance and interest each evening. The Rev. Henry T. Greene is the speaker for all of the evening services. His sermons and teachings are directed primarily toward the building up of definite organized Christianity for the Kingdom of God and are not the tearing-down, destructive, "ravings" that are at times in evidence in such meetings. Mr. Greene "Fears not the truth", and it is to be remembered that it is often the truth that hurts, but at no times are his remarks an insulting imitation of so called "fearless truths".

Each afternoon at 2:30 p. m. a bible class in Epworth Hall is conducted by Mr. Greene with a striking illustration for each topic. All who are free and can attend are cordially invited to this service.

The Children's Hour is held directly after school in the afternoon and following this is the Bible Hour, which includes songs, prayers, bible drill and some real genuine fun.

The services in the evening begin promptly at 7:30 except Saturday. No service will be held Saturday.

Farm Bureau Meetings

Annual business meetings of the Farm Bureau were held in Big Bear Ridge and Kendrick communities last week. The Bear Ridge meeting was held at the U. B. church at 1:30, Thursday, January 27. Community chairman, K. D. Ingle presided. U. S. Fletcher, county agent, told of the work of the farm bureau during the past year. Projects were selected and leaders elected as follows: Organization, K. D. Ingle; pest control, D. J. Ingle; weed control, A. N. Rognstad; wheat standardization, C. J. Bower; livestock improvement, R. A. Hughes.

Goals for 1921 were set as follows: Organization: Increase the farm bureau membership as much as possible.

Pest Control: 1. Hold big community squirrel control meeting early in the spring and at that meeting demonstrate mixing of poison; prepare poison bait for all desiring the same; distribute poison supplies at cost; set a community poisoning day; leave a reserve supply of poison material with the project leader.

2. Enforce rodent control law.
Weed Control: Conduct four demonstrations to show the effect of a poison spray of sodium arsenate in the control of wild morning glory.

Wheat Improvement: 1. Continue the two varieties demonstrations now being conducted. 2. Secure as wide a distribution as possible of pure seed of Jenkins Club. 3. Conduct at least two demonstrations to compare the bluestone-salt-lime dip treatment for smut control with the treatments now commonly used by the demonstrators.

Livestock Improvement: Have all cattle of community tested for tuberculosis.

The Kendrick community meeting was held at the City Hall Friday morning, January 28, with chairman E. E. McDowell presiding.

Projects were selected and leaders elected as follows: Organization, E. E. McDowell; pest control, J. F. Reid; livestock improvement, G. A. Wayland.

Goals were set as follows: Organization: Work to increase interest in the farm bureau and secure as many new members as possible.

Pest Control: Same as Bear ridge.
Weed Control: Work to get everyone to put forth maximum effort to control the noxious weeds of the community.

Livestock Improvement: Have all cattle of community tested for tuberculosis.

School Notes

Mrs. Joday Long is substituting this week for Miss Malloy who is ill.

According to new rulings of the school board, there is a teacher in the school building at noon, now.

The basketball game with Gifford, played here last Saturday night, was one of the best, if not the best, game played on Kendrick's floor this winter. It was exciting all the way thru and was a tie-score in the first half, but Gifford picked up in the last half and beat the boys by three points, score standing 27-24.

Dive down into your pocket, see if you can't find thirty-five cents from the numerous things thus brought to light. Just put that sum aside to buy your ticket to the home talent play, "Brown-Eyed Betty", presented by the Athletic Association of the Kendrick High School. If by chance you want a reserved seat, put aside fifteen cents extra and rush to the Drug Store to get it. Remember the date—Friday, February 4, 8 p. m. at the Grand Theatre.

Mrs. Rowe and her sister, Mrs. N. P. LeCornu of Opportunity, Wash., went to Lewiston the first of the week to visit friends. Mrs. Rowe, whose home is in Portland, expects to remain here several months with her father, George Wright.

Henry Hill connected up the fountain at Perryman's confectionery this week.

High School Play Tonight

"Brown Eyed Betty" will be staged at the Grand Theatre tonight by members of the Kendrick High School. Those who have parts in the play have been rehearsing diligently for several weeks under the direction of Miss Little, and a production of special merit is expected. The high school has some very good talent this year and it will be a treat to everyone to see it developed tonight.

The play is not a part of the lyceum course. It is under the management of the high school athletic association and all proceeds will be turned into a fund to pay for the new floor in the gymnasium.

Mill Shut Down

The Kendrick Flour Mill is again at a standstill, having been shut down Monday after a brief run of about a week's duration. It is stated that on account of the falling wheat market orders for flour have been cancelled and for this reason grinding had to cease.

A Benefit Show

The Grand Theatre will give a benefit show Tuesday night. All proceeds derived from the entertainment will be sent in to relieve the sufferings of the children of Europe. A special feature has been provided by the management of the Theatre for this benefit show, and along with this, plans are being made for special music by home talent. Rev. Hood and Rev. Mort will have charge of the finances of the show and anyone wishing to make special contributions to this good cause may do so through them.

The advertisement in this issue of the Gazette gives a description or outline of the special feature for Tuesday evening.

According to information given out this week by John Kite, manager of the Standard lumber yard here, lumber has taken another drop of $2 a thousand on common and as high as $10 on finished lumber. Other building materials have taken a corresponding drop, which ought to be encouraging news for those who contemplate building in the near future.

Congressman Interested in Relief Work

Burton L. French Writes Appealing Letter Urging People To Help Save Children of Europe.

The Gazette is in receipt of a letter from Congressman Burton L. French, in which he urges that all possible publicity be given to the desperate conditions that exist in Central and Eastern Europe. His letter follows:

"We are familiar in a general way with the desperate conditions that exist in Central and Eastern Europe.

"In connection with my committee work, it has been deeply impressed upon me how awful the situation is, and I am convinced that unless we American people give most generously to the support of women and children in these devastated lands, millions of their number will perish.

"There are 3,500,000 children in these countries now dependent upon American organization relief. There are 17,000 hospitals and clinics maintained in Central and Eastern Europe. In Poland, alone, there are 7,000.

"An organization has been formed known as the 'European Relief Council' with Herbert Hoover, Chairman, and Franklin K. Lane, Treasurer, having headquarters at 42 Broadway, New York, to raise money to help these people.

"Cooperating with the European Relief Council are the following: American Relief Administration; American Red Cross; American Friends' Service Committee (Quakers); Jewish Joint Distribution Committee; Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America; Knights of Columbus; Y. M. C. A.; Y. W. C. A.

"I am sending you herewith a little 'ad' that is being run in eastern papers giving address where money may be sent: European Relief Council, 42 Broadway, New York, (or to such local representatives as may be working with the national organization).

"I feel so deeply upon this subject that I am taking up the matter with you. I fully believe generous effort on our part is necessary to save the child life in these devastated lands.

Yours sincerely,
Burton L. French."

Is Your Conscience Clear?

Have you saved one life when you could have saved many?

Have you saved NONE when you might have saved some?

THEY ARE LOOKING TO YOU

The lives of 3,510,000 starving children are on your hands and on your souls. You, alone, Americans, can save them from death. In God's name. DO NOT LET THEM DIE!

$10 will save the life of a child. How many will you save.

Robbed Two Stores

Last Friday night the Kendrick Store Co. and N. B. Long & Sons store were burglarized. Thirty-six dollars and several bottles of extract were taken from the Kendrick Store and two dollars and a half, together with half a box of cigars and some candy from Long & Sons. The money was taken from the cash registers and in both instances nickles and dimes were left in the money drawer.

It is presumed the robbers entered the stores from the rear windows either late Friday night or early Saturday morning.

Sheriff Woody came down from Moscow Saturday but no clues were left upon which to work, so that the identity of the robber or robbers is still a mystery.

Formed Card Club

Last Friday evening a number of young people gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Kite for the purpose of forming a card club. The fore part of the evening was devoted to the task of organizing and selecting the members. It was finally agreed to limit the number for the present at least, to eight couples. Following is the list of charter members: Messrs. and Mesdames, Kite, Leith, Rogers, Edgar Long, MacPherson, McCreery, S. W. Compton and Boyd. The club will meet every two weeks—the second and fourth Tuesdays of the month. Mr. Kite was elected president and Edgar Long, secretary.

After disposing of the business of organizing, the balance of the evening was devoted to cards. Mrs. Kite served dainty refreshments consisting of sandwiches, cake, pickles, coffee and ice cream.

Attend Troy Lodge

About fifteen members of the I. O. O. F. Lodge from Kendrick and three from American ridge, attended a big meeting at Troy, Tuesday night. The Kendrick team put on the second degree on eleven candidates and the Troy team put on the first degree on four candidates.

Those who attended from here say they were royally entertained by the Troy lodge. Delegations from Moscow, Deary and Kendrick were present.

At midnight a splendid banquet was served to over one hundred Oddfellows. The meeting was considered a most successful one from every standpoint.

Birthday Party

Mrs. O. E. MacPherson entertained a number of little folks at her home last Friday afternoon, in honor of the third birthday of Master Donald MacPherson. Twenty guests were invited and all responded at the appointed hour and spent a jolly time playing games and having a general good time. Dainty refreshments consisting of sandwiches, ice wafers, ice cream, cake and cocoa were served. Following is a list of the little folks: Edwardine Bechtel, Elizabeth and Frederick Carlson, Jonny and Mildred Kite, Nona May Compton, Ermalee Braden, Roy Long, Marjorie Newton, Jean and Mary Ellen Dunkle, Keith and Paul Danmarrill, Vivian Wegner, Eleanor Lutz, Babe Holiday, Clarice Leith, Cleo McCreery, Mary and Ruth Hood.

Wheat Grows to Meet

Mr. Lampsom of the Northwest Wheat Growers Association is scheduled to speak at the City Hall in Kendrick, Friday afternoon, February 12, at 1:30 p. m. The meeting is to be held for the purpose of discussing the work of organizing and other matters of interest. Everybody is invited to attend this meeting.

Will Stump of Southwick went to Lewiston, Tuesday, on business.

Bear Ridge Stags Met

Last week a reverberating call issued from one of the highest points on Big Bear ridge. It is a sound that is seldom heard except when a stag has been temporarily deserted by his mate. In this particular instance the call came from Art Rognstad and those who were versed in the language, knew that there was to be a rendezvous of all the stags from the highest cliffs to the lowest vales of Bear ridge.

A band of thirty-four answered the summons and on the evening of January 19, began gathering at the Rognstad stamping grounds. At the entrance cunningly concealed wires formed pitfalls that caused the downfall of many a young stag whose head was too high in the air. There was a second surprise, however, that was of a still more startling nature.

It was generally understood that this particular party was to be for stags only. It was also definitely known that the wife of the host was not supposed to be there. Judge then the surprise of those who timidly knocked at the door when they were met by a handsome young lady, and a strange one at that. This was indeed a shock to the friends of Mr. Rognstad as he was supposed to have nothing but gentlemen friends in the house. However the shock was no greater than the disappointment when it was learned that the handsome female was none other than Ingvald Aas, dressed in the latest Parisian costume imported for the occasion from some young lady's wardrobe.

The festivities began with a most interesting program, presided over by N. E. Ware, who was appointed for the evening to be the man with the Big Stick. The first number was a selection by the Bear Ridge Orchestra, which was repeatedly encored. This was followed by a reading by Mr. Ware, entitled "A Dream". The next number was a very pathetic account of "A Sick Jew" given by Mijo Slind. D. Galloway then gave a reading "A Border on His Way", and Percy Ware brought tears of anguish to the eyes of the crowd by his account of "Mutt Going to the Country", "Miss" Ingvald Aas told about "The Shipwrecked Swede", and a double quartet sang "The Gang's All Here".

One of the athletic features of the evening was the pie eating contest between Stag Bengs and Stag Hecht. The hands of the two contestants were tied behind them and the pies placed on the table. The former won the contest and demonstrated in a most satisfactory manner his superior gastronomic ability. It is said that the pies were of the chocolate variety, which made it still more interesting.

Cards and other games served to pass away the evening all too soon. The finale was a most pleasing surprise. The host was relegated to the discard and was replaced by the hostess, Mrs. Rognstad, who was assisted by Miss Suppiger and Miss Aas in serving a delightful supper. It was truly a most satisfying "feet" that delighted every masculine heart and the unanimous vote of thanks to the three ladies was but a feeble attempt on the part of the guests, to express their appreciation.

Aside from a delightful time, the evening was productive of the formation of a Stag Club with Ingvald Aas, president; T. Nelson, vice-president; D. Jones, sec-treas. Through the united efforts of this band of stags some big times are said to be in store for the young people of Bear ridge. February 14 was set for the next meeting and at this time the Club will entertain the ladies.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Long expect to leave tomorrow on a trip lasting a month. It is in the nature of a delayed wedding trip which they have put off for the past six or seven years. They will visit relatives at Dayton, Yakima, Spokane and other points before returning.

Since wage reductions are being put into practice by a number of large employes of labor, strikes are again becoming numerous. The demand has been to reduce prices and the high cost of living, but when wages are included in the plan of reduction there is strenuous objection. In many instances employes have issued the ultimatum to either accept the lower pay or quit. According to a recent estimate there are 2,352,000 workers out of employment, so it has evidently reached the stage where jobs even at reduced wages will begin to appear attractive.

Governor Davis recommended a cut of almost a million dollars from the amount of appropriations applied for by state educational institutions. This action will no doubt meet with distavor from a good many quarters, but we believe the majority of taxpayers will heartily endorse the Governor's action. The people of Idaho are just as progressive as any other people in the world and will always strongly favor spending money for educational purposes, but they want their money's worth, and it is a question, wherein there is much room for speculation, whether they have been getting proper returns from the money expended for maintenance of state educational institutions.

According to a recent report paper mills are now operating at only fifty per cent of their capacity and yet the cry has been for the past four years or more while paper prices were soaring, that the mills couldn't supply the demand. Paper price reductions to date are so slight that they can hardly be computed without involving the use of long columns of fractions, and in spite of this we will venture to say that if a congressional investigating committee were to look into the matter the mill owners would blandly inform said committee that paper prices were unavoidable on account of the shortage that can't possibly be overcome. The paper situation has been on a par with the sugar graft, the only difference being that sugar prices went up in a hurry and came down the same way, while paper prices have been going up for the past five years and from all indications it will take that much more time for them to get back to normal.

RIDDING HENHOUSE OF MITES

Cleanliness and Disinfection Required to Destroy Parasites That Live on Fowls.

To rid the henhouse of the little red mite that stunts the hens so much requires cleanliness and disinfecting. The filth must be cleaned up, the house ventilated and the sunlight let in. Removable roosts and drop boards will help clean up the house. To disinfect the roosts and house everything should be painted or sprayed with a solution of two parts of oil and one part of stock dip. Applications should be made in pairs about five or six days apart in order to kill the mites that have hatched since the last spraying.

FORDSON

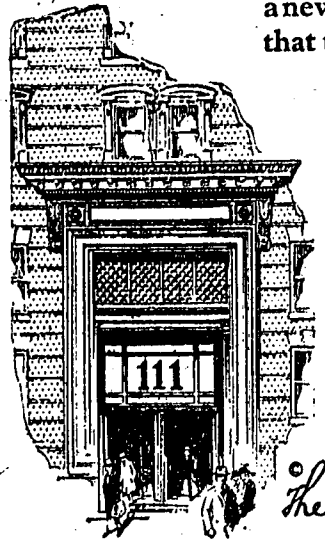

For thirty-five years Henry Ford, a farmer's boy, has been working on the problem of a successful tractor for the farm, and for the past fourteen years has devoted much time and a vast amount of money to the development of the present Fordson Tractor. Today that tractor is in use on nearly 200,000 farms and if you have any doubt as to the satisfaction it gives to those who are using it, call in or send and get the booklet, just issued by the Ford Motor Company, and called "The Fordson at Work" and read the testimony which is there given by the multitude of owners of Fordson Tractors. No evidence can be more conclusive than that of the man who actually knows by personal experience and this is the line of testimony carried in this little booklet. If you cannot call for it, write, drop us a postal and we will mail it to you without charge. It is so valuable you ought to have it because it is the open door through which the farmer will pass from the hard working drudge to the comparative comfort of the manufacturer. The Fordson makes it possible for the farmer to plan and direct, while the machine will do the work. It presents the widest latitude for the farmer to exercise his brain power and plan how he can get the most from the soil, knowing that the Tractor will do the hard work, do it better, do it quicker, and therefore do it more profitably. This means not alone in the cultivation of the soil, in the harvesting of the crops, but in a hundred and one different demands that are made for labor--cutting of ensilage and the filling of the silo; cutting of wood; operation of the washing machine; in the lighting of the house with electricity; supplying the house with running water; bringing to the farmer's wife and daughters the convenience of the city, relieving them of much of the hard, unpleasant part of housework. The price is within the reach of any progressive farmer--only $865.00, including pulley, extension rims, fenders, canopy top and filled with fuel and lubricating oil, and we have a competent man to instruct you in handling it.

An Adventure Romance

By GEORGE AGNEW CHAMBERLAIN

COPYRIGHT THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

Mr. Randolph, vice O'Reilly, drew up at the familiar address in Madison avenue and laid his car cheek by jowl with the curb as though anchoring it for a long stay; then he descended from the driver's seat, entered the cab, exclaimed thanksgiving at finding a rug, wrapped himself in its warm folds, curled up on the seat and went to sleep.

In the cold early morning the strong arm of the Law reached in and dragged him back from the Elysian fields where he had been wandering hand in hand with a lovely person dressed in a little velvet toque and very cheap clothes.

"Here, you!" said the voice of the Law. "Don't you know you can't put up a hotel in this burg without a license? Got that?"

"Morning, Officer," said Randolph, trying his best to be pleasant. "I'm waiting for my fare. Any regulation against that?"

"Don't pull that stuff on me," said the Law. "This ain't the Tenderloin." "I know it isn't," remarked Mr. Randolph. "But I happen to be waiting uses of you."

As soon as the man had entered the house, Mr. Randolph started his cab and made for a point of vantage in the park, from which, in due course, he beheld the arrival of the lawyer at Fifty-ninth street. He waited long enough to make sure that the legal gentleman had penetrated to Miss Thornton; then he threw up his flag and made for the garage.

He sought out the manager. "Say," he plunged. "Pat O'Reilly lost his job to me last night shooting craps. My clock read twenty-eight dollars this morning; here's my slip."

The manager glanced at the slip, and took a long look at Mr. Randolph. "You're on, kid," he decided. "Take any shift you like. What's your name?"

"Slim Hervey," said Mr. Randolph promptly. "One of them earned names," commented the manager. "All right. Go to it."

SYNOPSIS.

PART I.—Robert Hervey Randolph, young New York man-about-town, leaves the home of his sweetheart, Madge Van Teller, chagrined because of her refusal of his proposal of marriage. His income, $10,000 a year, which he must surrender if a certain Miss Imogene Pamela Thornton (whom he has seen only as a small girl ten years before) is found, is not considered by the girl of his heart adequate to modern needs. In a "don't care" mood, Randolph enters a taxi, unseen by the driver, and is driven to the stage door of a theater. A man he knows, Duke Beamer, induces a girl to enter the cab. Beamer, attempting to follow, is pushed back by Randolph and the cab moves on. His new acquaintance tells Randolph she is a chorus girl, and has lost her position. She is in distress, even hungry, and he takes her to his apartment. There, after lunch, a chance remark convinces him the girl is the missing Pamela Thornton. He does not tell her of her good fortune, but secures her promise to stay in the flat until the morning, and leaves her. In a whimsical mood, also realizing that the girl's reappearance has left him practically penniless, he bribes the taxi driver to let him take his job, and leaving word with the legal representative of the Thornton estate where he can find Pamela, takes up his new duties under the name of "Slim Hervey." He loves the girl, but his pride forbids him approaching her under their changed conditions.

PART II.

Flesh, Spirit and the Veiled God. Mr. Randolph spent the day getting acquainted and proved himself a good mixer. By telling a few stories that had not yet sifted down from Clubland and by standing a few drinks he soon found himself made free of all the technical information he needed and some more that was so ultra-technical that it could beat the brains that invented the delicate mechanism of the taximeter. He also established part ownership in a comfortable room in a house very much on the wrong or west side of Broadway, in fact within smelling and almost spitting distance of the North river.

While he was still in funds he bought himself a woolen khaki overcoat with one of those enormous collars which look like an inverted bucket when they are up and surpass in efficiency the traditional black mask so beloved by illustrators of the weekly press. He also had a speaking slot cut in the glass of the cab window just behind his best ear and subsequently removed and lost the slide that had been fitted over it with considerable skill and trouble.

During the next few nights he proceeded to have the time of his life; so much so that he was constantly overwhelmed with wonder at his stupidity in not having become a taxi-driver years before! It should be remembered that Mr. Randolph was of New York Yorky; he knew everybody casually, from Mr. Milyuns and his daughter, Eileen, down to the latest addition to the pitiful ranks of the midnette. More than that, so broad was his acquaintanceship that as a sporting gent he had once or twice been tipped off as to the where and when of a proposed gun-play.

In addition to being right of birth an integral part of all the social strata of Manhattan, he knew the surface of the island and of the adjacent commoner soil of the mainland considerably better than he knew the palm of his own hand. In fact, he could scarcely ever have been conscious that he had a palm, even as a map of personal fortune; for he who is completely satisfied with the present never worries about the future and Mr. Randolph had been born content.

With such an equipment, it is to be wondered at that he found the taxi field rich with unexpected and surprising blooms? Fair flowers, he had known heretofore to nod only over tea tables and solid silver appeared suddenly transplanted to his cab and ready to nod on a stalwart shoulder. Strong mule tiger-lilies of the money market, grafted to the cushions of a taxi, became complacent pillars upon which some clinging ivy twined.

In six nights he learned the sound that a banker makes when slender fingers tickle him under the chin; the gasp of a girl, first-kissed; the cry of a young man upon discovering the absence of grandfather's gold watch, his since graduation day; the cluck of a top-hat fairly sat upon in the excitement of a moment that else would have been tragic, the exasperating tap, tap, tap, of a hen-pecking tongue that explained and condoned a murder mystery in the next morning's papers, and the sob of a ruined youngster who had played with borrowed money.

All these incidents took place with people whom Mr. Randolph knew or knew of and just to show what an extremely honest young man he was, let it be said that it did not once occur to him that he need never be poor while humanity, supposedly in good standing, continued to lay itself open to blackmail at the rate of a case a night. At the same time, he was not stupid and occasionally tapped out a missive loaded with dynamite on the garage typewriter when no one was around. Here is a sample.

"Mr. Dexter MacGuler, Sir: As I was driving you and Miss B. B. last night who was foster-mothered by an aunt of a friend of a friend of mine, I heard you talkin to her and all I got to say is if I see you out with her again short of the bands of matrimony I'll get another friend of mine to get Mr. Robert Hervey Randolph to tell what he knows about you cheatin at cards on Dec. 23 last."

Nights that gave birth in the morning to such illiterary tit-bits could scarcely be called dull, but it was not long before Mr. Randolph found himself threatened by an unexpected monotonous employment. Unfortunately for his entertainment, his reputation as the one par excellence St. Bernard lifesaver to the inebriate elite spread rapidly throughout the Force so that the telephone was constantly burdened during the wee hours with the following: "Say, is Slim Hervey on the job? Well, when he comes in tell 'im I got another tailor-model drunk here what has lost his home address from his mind."

With suspicious suddenness Mr. Randolph proceeded to forget half his school and clubmates and cold-bloodedly leave them to their fate and a night out, not without coming to grief on at least one occasion, however. "What are you comin' over me?" demanded the irate captain of the Nth precinct. "You ain't forgot that you was vally to R. H. Randolph for seven years, have ya? Has all his frens gone on the wagon?"

It looked like a loop-hole. "Sure," said Slim Hervey promptly. "His club's near busted what with water-drinkers and softs."

"Sounds kind-a phony to me," said the captain grimly, "considerin' you took this same gent home a week ago come Friday."

"Did I?" said Slim, and with feigned surprise managed finally to recognize the mess of evening clothes that was huddled on a near-by bench. "You're right, Captain. He's drunker than I ever saw him before and besides, he's wearin' a new set of shirt-studs. Kind of changed his looks."

Slim lingered. "Look here," he murmured to the captain confidentially. "You're on to me, but just let me whisper. I'm getting to be the delivery wagon for all the high-spot soaks in town. The first one of 'em that loses his jewelry between the curb and his own front door, just tell me where I get off, will you? I'm honest; I got a reputation, an' I tell you, Captain, I'm willin' to bill 'em through for you when you ask for the home port, but it's nix on me handlin' all the high-explosive freight north of Forty-second street. Get me?"

"Sure, Slim," said the captain, appreciatively. "I'll pass the word, lad."

Thus did Mr. Randolph make good his new front name and a little capital besides, working on the stalwart

"I'm Getting to Be the Delivery Wagon for All the High-Spot Soaks in Town."

old motto: Every knock is a boost. Instead of becoming a mystery and consequently anathema to the Force, an impression was created that Slim was a hustler, but clean white goods ready to sacrifice a fare or two that he might sit high up alongside Caesar's wife. By stopping at two or three strategically placed police stations during the wind before the dawn to ticket such drunks as were of his acquaintance, he was able to give the glad hand of farewell to a job not to his taste.

About this time a series of coincidences befell the young and fevered Fair of the city of New York which would have given pause to the persons involved had they been able to get together and compare the dope. Take what happened to Miss Georgiette Hatton. Her people had played in hard luck and died. Georgie had secured a job and was doing pretty well at it until young Doctor Bones met her and gradually persuaded her that she was threatened with galloping consumption. Once he had frightened her, the rest looked easy; he would take her out of bad ventilation into his run-and-out and the open-air—out of the goodness of his heart and the fullness of his purse, he would take care of her.

Bad Cold and Cough Cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

Several years ago C. D. Glass, Gardiner, Me., contracted a severe cold and cough. He tried various medicines but instead of getting well he kept adding to it by contracting fresh colds. Nothing he had taken for it was of any permanent benefit until a druggist advised him to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He says "I was completely cured by this remedy and have since awlays turned to it when I had a cold and soon find relief."

For a Persistent Cough

Some years ago H. P. Burbage, a student at law in Greenville, S. C., had been troubled for a long while with a persistent cough, which he says, greatly alarmed me, causing me to fear that I was in the first stage of consumption." Having seen Chamberlain's Cough Remedy advertised he concluded to try it. "I soon felt a remarkable change and after using two bottles of the small size was permanently cured."

NUT-BEARING TREES WILL YIELD COMFORTABLE PROFIT TO FARMER

These Butternut Trees Will Furnish Delight to Eye and Palate for Many Years.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

They were gathered about the farmhouse fire in the mellow light of a swing lamp, and the head of the house sent his youngest son to the garret for butternuts. A little later, with an iron lapstone on his knees and hammer in hand, he was producing a rhythmic rap-rap-crack-clink, as the crinkly brown shells split open and were tossed into a basin, exposing their delicately flavored twin meats.

"This is the last crop from that old tree," he remarked, thoughtfully, pausing after a few minutes of fascinating labor. "Rotted out, and the wind got it last night. And I have gathered nuts from that tree since I was a little tike in short breeches."

The hammer rested for a few moments, and the fingers of the farmer's left hand ran meditatively through the pile of richly laden shells.

"Fifty years," he mused. "Fifty springs I've seen the green come out on the leaves; fifty falls I or my children or grandchildren have picked up bushels of nuts; and fifty winters I've sat by the fire here and cracked them. That butternut tree has been a good old friend."

None to Take Its Place.

Yet, with all the pleasure that he had obtained from that tree, the farmer, thrifty in nearly everything, had no new butternut trees coming up to take the place of the patriarch which the wind destroyed.

It is only recently that serious attention has been paid to nut-trees planting. Landowners set out orchards and plant trees in dooryards and on the highways for shade; but nut-bearing trees, which usually require eight to fifteen years to come into bearing, have been in a measure neglected.

There are a number of nut-bearing species, say specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture, which grow as rapidly for shade as the maple or elm, and which will yield pleasure and some revenue for a quarter or half a century after the first few years of cultivation.

The butternut is now being produced by nurserymen and grows farther north than most other species. Butternut trees will bear in about eight years and form an attractive yard or roadside ornament, especially in the northern states.

More attention, however, is being paid to its relative, the black walnut. The late war made heavy inroads on the ranks of these fine old trees for gunstocks, airplane parts, and other material; but nurserymen already had begun to grow young trees to make up the loss. Contrary to the common idea, the black walnut is not necessarily a slow grower. Under good conditions of culture, it becomes one of our most rapid growing trees, especially of the more valuable woods. It has been known to bear a few nuts in six years. At fifteen to twenty-five it is a heavy producer, and in old age it is always a resource for timber.

The chestnut, which has been an important resource for centuries, is now one of the fragiles of freedom, due to the bark disease brought from Japan. The United States Department of Agriculture and various nut-culture associations are now working with some promise of success to develop varieties which are blight-resistant. Until they arrive at established results, it will probably not be wise to plant chestnuts in any section where the bark disease is prevalent.

The shagbark hickory makes a handsome shade tree, and quite a few varieties have been propagated. Shagbarks generally come into bearing after fifteen or twenty-five years. A few hickory trees planted now would be a comfortable resource for another generation.

The beech is a slow grower, and can scarcely be classed as a commercial nut, but is an attractive and honey tree where there is room for its spread. Beechnuts furnish dainties for an evening's chat, or left on the ground in woods and pastures they furnish fattening material for pigs and turkeys. If the beech tree is headed low, it offers less chance for defacing its smooth bark with jack-knife hieroglyphics.

One other interesting nut tree is the filbert, or European hazel. It is one of our most tantalizing species, for while it can be made to grow in many parts of the North, no variety has yet been found to bear profitably east of the Rocky mountains, due to the fact that it flowers early and is caught by frost. In the Pacific Northwest it bids fair to soon become an important nut.

Pecan a Favorite.

The pecan is easily the favorite and most important nut of American origin, prolific and profitable in the South and now being introduced well into northern states. Bearing pecan trees are not infrequent along the Atlantic coast as far north as New Jersey. Fine specimen trees are not uncommon in many northern states. Occasionally nuts mature on a few of the stray trees scattered about in the state of Michigan.

The Persian, commonly called English, walnuts can be grown in a few years. It does well in a limited way in certain sections of the East, especially along the Atlantic coast in eastern Maryland, Delaware and New Jersey. It is one of the important tree crops of California, and promises soon to become of considerable importance in the Pacific Northwest.

Almonds of some hard-shell varieties endure practically throughout the range of the beech. Japanese walnuts can be grown over a large part of the country.

Except on the Pacific coast and in the South, nut culture as a general thing is not recommended as a sure source of large income. However, there are many places where nut trees may as well be planted as other shade trees. And a grove of hardy nut trees is a heritage for the future well worth considering.

PLAN TO ESTABLISH STANDARDS FOR HAY

Work Includes Analyses of Different Samples.

Endeavoring to Determine Importance of Factors Now Used in Fixing Grade of Commodity and Feeding Value of Product.

Sample bales of hay are being collected by the bureau of markets, United States Department of Agriculture, from producers, shippers, and consumers for the purpose of establishing standards for hay. The work is provided for by an act of congress, and includes analyses of the hay samples in order to determine the importance of the factors now used in determining the grade of the commodity, including the color, mixture, and texture. Moisture determinations and other analyses to ascertain the relative feeding value of various hay mixtures will also be made.

The work is in charge of a specialist from the hay, feed and seed division of the bureau, and the laboratory has been established at 201 South Strand street, Alexandria, Va.

The equipment used includes separating tables especially constructed for this work, display tables for use in color determinations, and racks and boxes for holding the various type-samples as well as a hay cutter and a grinder operated by a 15-horsepower motor. These two machines cut and grind the hay to a degree of fineness suitable for making the moisture tests and chemical analysis. An electric drying oven, also constructed especially for the work, is used in the moisture tests and in reducing the hay to a uniform moisture content for the other analyses.

The standardization work is now well begun and it is expected that tentative grades for timothy and perhaps clover will be promulgated before the close of the fiscal year.

FARM INVENTORY HELPS BUSINESS

Enables Farmer to Determine Whether He Is Going or Coming Financially.

ANSWER TO MANY QUESTIONS

Complete List of Assets and Liabilities Each Year Tells Land Owner Just How Much Increase or Decrease Has Been.

What is the net worth of your farm business? Is it more or less than one would imagine from a casual inspection of your farm? Do you know for sure whether you are going or coming in financial standing?

Question Not Easily Answered. These are important questions to the farmer and questions that are not so easily answered as would at first appear. Farming is an intricate business and one in which returns from investment are sometimes long delayed, so that progress cannot be accurately measured by the amount of money taken in in a given time. Sometimes cash income may be almost wholly attributable to reduction in other assets, so that in reality the result is like taking money from one pocket and putting it in another.

The farm inventory, or property list, offers the only practicable way of answering these questions. Once the farmer has made a complete list of all his assets and liabilities and has balanced them he knows just what his net worth is, and when he has made such a list annually he knows each year whether he has gone forward or back and just how much has been the increase or decrease in the net worth of his business.

Detailed Instructions. The United States Department of Agriculture has just issued Farmers' Bulletin 1128, entitled "Farm Inventories," in which are given detailed instructions for making an inventory of farm property and revising such a list from year to year. By using the single system described in this bulletin any farmer can determine exactly his financial status and lay the foundation for a permanent system of accounting. Without the farm inventory as a basis no system of accounting that might be chosen would be of any great use to the farmer.

FANNING MILL VERY USEFUL

Present High Price of Grain Should Bring Machine into More Use on Stormy Days.

In many parts of the country there has been a tendency to let the fanning mill rest and rust and gather dust and to pay the mill or elevator for cleaning the grain, paying the bill by accepting a low price for the uncleaned wheat or oats or barley. Besides, the chickens lose the screenings. The present high price of grain should bring many a neglected fanning mill into profitable use. Incidentally, farmers will have profitable work for stormy days, and much cheap feed for chickens, pigs and other animals.

EASY TO WINTER FALL PIGS

Where Farmer Is Properly Equipped He Can Raise Young Animals Without Difficulty.

More fall pigs are being raised nowadays than was the case a few years ago. This is due largely to the fact that grain is relatively high-priced. When a man is properly equipped for taking care of fall pigs through the winter season he can raise them about as cheaply as he can spring pigs and he gets more out of his sow by breeding her twice a year than only once. It is not difficult to winter fall pigs if one gives the matter proper attention.

Polo Two Thousand Years Old.

"Hockey on horseback" was the name given to the first polo match played in Europe. It is the only athletic game which the west has borrowed from Asia. Its very name was unknown to England 50 years ago, though for over 2,000 years it has been played throughout the East. Flunsi, the Persian poet, who lived a century before Omar Khayyam, described a polo match between the Iranians and Turanians, and its name is nothing more than the Tibetan word, or ball made from a knot of willow wood. But it was not until India began to settle down after the mutiny that British officers took up polo, learning it from the Manipuris on the north-west frontier.

PROPER SIZE OF CONTAINERS

Dissatisfaction Caused by Use of Receptacles Not Sufficiently Strong Enough.

Much dissatisfaction with direct marketing has been caused by using containers that were not sufficiently strong. That is especially true when containers are used more than once, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Shipping containers should be light in weight but sufficiently durable to carry the produce safely.

The proper size of a container depends upon the desires of the customers. Most persons wish to obtain small quantities of each product at a time. Containers should be just large enough for the produce shipped. If the carton is too large or too small, both the produce and the container are likely to be damaged, for the produce will not be kept in place, and the container will be crushed.

The larger the quantity of produce shipped in one parcel the lower will be the cost per pound for transportation, and the lower the container cost per pound.

PREPARE GARDEN SOIL EARLY

"Planting Over" May Be Necessary Sometimes, but Labor Is Always Well Rewarded.

An early beginning in preparing the land and planting gardens is of much importance. Regardless of the seasons, it is well to get an early start. That "planting over" may sometimes be necessary cannot be denied. But little is lost when garden land must be planted over, for the labor necessary to prepare the land is always well-employed. Much is lost if early maturing vegetables are planted too late. Get your garden land ready and plant on time.

PROPER TIME TO PREPARE GARDEN

A Few Well-Cared-For Hotbed Sashes Are Good Money Makers on Any Farm.

COVER CROP IMPROVES SOIL

All Rubbish, Dead Vines or Plants, Stakes and Poles Should Be Cleared Away and Ground Planted to a Green Crop.

Whether it is conducted on an extensive scale to supply the market or whether it is to produce food for the family the garden plot is likely to be the most profitable acreage on the farm. Gardening really starts in the fall. When the last vegetables have been removed and stored the prudent gardener sets about to prepare the ground for the next year's crop.

Clearing Away Refuse.

Any rubbish, dead vines or plants, and bean poles or tomato stakes should be cleared away, says the United States Department of Agriculture, and the ground sown to rye or some other green crop to prevent the loose earth from washing under the winter rains. A cover crop also improves the physical condition of the soil. When a cover crop cannot be supplied the next best thing that may be done is to plow or spade the soil and allow it to lie rough throughout the winter. This practice destroys many insects that lie just below the surface. The winter frosts have a lightening effect upon the soil, especially on clay soils.

The earliest and choicest vegetables are harvested by the man who maintains a few hotbed sashes and uses them to start his garden. He is able to handicap the frost line by several weeks, and to set strong, well-developed plants in his garden at a time when his neighbors are planting seed.

The farm income is at its lowest point in the early spring, but it can be increased considerably by the sale of young plants grown in hotbeds and ready for transplanting. Tomato, cabbage, eggplant and pepper plants are always snapped up when the first warm planting days come, and they are easily grown in the hotbed. A little more space and a little more seed than the grower needs for his own use are likely to bring good profits. Before the ground freezes in the fall is a good time to clean out the old hotbeds.

Unless the soil used in the hotbed is to be exchanged for fresh earth it should be shoveled from the bed and tossed into a pile nearby. The decayed manure from the bottom is scattered over the pile and thoroughly mixed with it to form rich soil for next year's beds. Over this goes a coat of straw or leaves held down by bits of board to keep it from blowing.

Some farmers find it convenient to use evergreen boughs instead of straw for the outer covering.

Preparation of Hotbed.

New hotbed pits should be dug so that they will face the south, and the location should be selected so that the beds will be protected from the cold north winds and late spring storms. Sometimes the earth taken from the new pit is suitable for use in the hotbed, but this is the exception rather than the rule. A few loads of leaf mold from the woods mixed with the natural soil will often form a smooth, rich stoneless mass which gives an ideal hotbed filler.

The back or north side of the frame is usually from 12 to 18 inches high, while the south end is about eight inches, so that the whole bed may have pitch enough to get the sun upon all parts. The standard hotbed sash is handled by most dealers, and measures three feet in width and six feet in length. A frame just wide enough to support the sash seems to be the most satisfactory, though wider beds are sometimes used with supporting ridges placed at six-foot intervals. A well-painted cypress sash, glazed with a good double-strength glass well set in putty should give the careful gardener 12 to 15 years' service.

Heat for the hotbed is furnished by means of a bed of horse manure 8 to 16 inches thick in the bottom of the pit. Permanent hotbeds are often heated with coils of steam or hot-water pipes under the bed.

Hotbeds require constant care to prevent their becoming overheated, especially during bright weather.

GLEANINGS

Joe Davis, Sr. arrived in Kendrick last Friday morning from Los Angeles where he spent the past four months.

X Born to Mr. and Mrs. Franke Benscoter of American ridge, Friday, January 21, a son.

Miss Esther Lowery, domestic science teacher of the Kendrick schools, spent the week end at her home in Pullman.

Mrs. Kate Kelley, who is teaching near Summit, Idaho, spent Sunday with her brother, John Reid.

Arche May of Potlatch ridge was a Lewiston visitor Saturday.

Clarence Dougherty of American ridge was a Moscow visitor the first of the week.

W. Westover was in Lewiston last Saturday on business.

Mrs. H. P. Hull and Mrs. W. M. McCrea were Moscow visitors, Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Brooks of Lewiston spent Sunday here visiting their daughter, Mrs. E. W. Lutz.

Neil Nelson of Clarkston was transacting business in Kendrick the first of the week.

Herman Wegner of Asotin was in Kendrick over the week end to visit his sister, Mrs. Fred Lucht, who is here from Arlington, Minn. This was their first meeting in twenty years.

August F. Wegner of Cameron was a Lewiston visitor last week.

R. F. Bigham was a Troy visitor Sunday.

L. E. Brooks of Moscow, deputy state game warden, was in Kendrick the first of the week looking after matters pertaining to his office.

X Mrs. C. L. Guy returned, Tuesday, from American ridge where she visited her new grandson at the Franke Benscoter home.

Mrs. A. C. Deeter came down from Moscow, Tuesday, to attend a meeting of the local Rebekah Lodge.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Clark visited relatives in Kendrick the first of the week.

X J. L. Johnson of American ridge was a business visitor in Moscow the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Benscoter returned from Clarkston, Tuesday, where they visited their daughter, Mrs. Neal Nelson.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bibb visited friends in Juliaetta the first of the week.

Bob Bigham sold a fine Duroc Jersey hog to B. H. Lester of Elk River, Idaho. He shipped the hog to its new owner by express last week.

A. K. Carlson was a Moscow visitor the first of the week.

Rev. and Mrs. Haskel Tudor of Juliaetta were Kendrick visitors, Tuesday.

Athol McKinnon of Three Hills, Alberta, arrived Monday afternoon for a short visit with his sister, who teaches the primary grades in the local schools.

X A local citizen said this week that he had just discarded a pair of shoes bought from one of the Kendrick stores, that he had worn for two years. If he had purchased these shoes from a mail order house and the news had leaked out that mail order shoes wore that long, it would be the pet fiasco story told these long, winter evenings, for miles around.

Miss Gladys Malloy was taken ill last week and a local physician pronounced it smallpox. She was staying at the Morrison home, which is now quarantined. Miss Malloy is the third and fourth grade teacher here. Mrs. Joday Long is substituting for her and as she is a teacher with wide experience in the school room, the children are faring very well. There is just the one case of smallpox in town and it is in a very light form.

Mr. and Mrs. Adam Wegner, who have been spending the past month or so in Deary, returned to their home here, Tuesday. Mr. Wegner is proprietor of the Kendrick Auto Co.

X Mrs. Emulus Brown and little daughter, Rosebud, arrived Tuesday from Fossil, Oregon, to visit at the J. F. Brown home.

X Claud Kimes has only missed two trips so far this winter with his car, carrying the mail from Kendrick to Southwick.

Rev. Howard W. Mort was a Lewiston visitor, Wednesday.

C. B. Candler is having a tough time of it. He is still quite ill and not able to be out of the house. His friends hope that when good weather comes this spring his health will improve. He has been ill since last summer.

Barton's Orchestra of Lewiston will furnish the music for the American Legion dance tonight (Friday).

X Born to Mr. and Mrs. Oral Craig of Leland, Monday, a daughter, weighing 8 1/2 pounds.

X J. M. Woodward of Leland attended a farm bureau meeting and a meeting of school trustees at Lewiston last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry McKeever expect to move to Clarkston next week to make their home. They will live with Mrs. McKeever's folks, the John Florence family, until Harry has a house built on his ten-acre tract.

Tonight will be a busy time in Kendrick, with revival meetings at the Methodist church, a high school play at the Grand Theatre and an American Legion dance at the Fraternal Temple.

Ed Kent returned, Thursday, from a visit at Seattle.

The high school play to be given tonight is not a lyceum number. Lyceum season tickets can't be used for this entertainment. The proceeds from the play will be used to pay for the new floor in the gymnasium.

Presbyterian Aid Entertains

The ladies of the Presbyterian Aid Society entertained the members of the Methodist Aid at the Manse, Wednesday afternoon. About thirty were present and a delightful afternoon was spent. A short program was rendered consisting of piano solos by Miss Elsie Thomas and Mrs. Leo Raaberg; Mr. Hood then led in prayer and a vocal solo by Mrs. Joday Long was the concluding number. Salad, hot rolls, tea and cake were served.

Big Bear Ridge

(Omitted last week)

"The Bells"

In 6 parts

Henry Irving went high to fame with "The Bells," which is the story of the conscience-tortured innkeeper who slew and robbed a traveler on a snowy night; and thence afterward, at all seasons, sleeping and waking, in the height of his prosperity and honor, he heard the haunting sound of the sleigh bells—baleful bells, murder chimes—which sounded in his conscience even as the shadow of death was upon him.

"Everything to Eat and Wear"

A Brighter Future

We are all getting started on our affairs for 1921. The spirit of pessimism is being left behind and we should all be optimists now. The year is before us and it is up to us to make good.

Many lines of merchandise have declined, and among them an increasing number in hardware. While at this time we cannot list all of these declines, we will give you a few that are noticeable: Galvanized Iron Pipe and Galvanized Tubs, Paint, Glass, Linseed Oil, Turpentine, White Lead, Bolts, field seeds, such as Alfalfa, Red Clover and Timothy. On all articles in our store we are following the decline.

After a long time in which little painting has been done, now is a good time to paint. Remember, "Save the surface and you save all."

Builders' hardware and building material have reached a point where we can build new and repair old buildings very economically.

To All Farmers

We call your attention to our annual repair week--don't forget it. The date will be announced later. This will save many anxious moments and expensive delays when work time comes.
