

Record Cow Idaho Product

Star-Mirror: Segis Peterje Prospect, the Holstein which recently broke the world's record for milk production, is a cow of Idaho birth according to Prof. H. P. Davis, head of the department of animal husbandry at the University of Idaho.

"The animal may truly be classed as an Idaho cow," said Prof. Davis today, "since she was born in this state and lived here during her early months. She was born on the farm of George V. Leighton, near Boise, and although her record was made on the Carnation stock farm in Washington, Idaho dairymen may feel a just pride in the fact she comes from this state.

"Her sire, King Segis 10, headed Mr. Leighton's herd for some time and many of his offsprings are still in south Idaho. At the Caldwell substation experiment farm, a son of King Segis heads the Holstein herd.

King Segis Matador Walker, the son of Matador Segis Walker, already a famous bull, and the grandson of King Segis 10, the sire of the record breaking cow, headed the University of Idaho dairy herd for a time. His daughters are just coming into milk and look quite promising.

"Various dairymen in both north and south Idaho are known to have stock which can trace back relationship to King Segis 10 and hence to Segis Pieterje Prospect. From this it appears that enough of the blood of King Segis 10 remains in the state to materially help the Holstein breed."

The champion cow made a record of 37,384.1 pounds of butterfat in one year. This is 3,000 pounds more than the next best record and an average of 47.74 quart of milk daily. She is not of exceptional size for a Holstein weighing but 1650.

The county commissioners will supply a rock crusher to this district on the same terms which they gave Genesee and it would stand us in hand to secure it. The county furnished the crusher and Genesee did the rest, guaranteeing a certain amount of work would be done in a given period. We have always advocated this manner of road making because one yard of road when thus made is an investment, not a makeshift or source of expense, and in the roads lay Kendrick's most vital interests.

Bought Dump Wagons

The Kendrick Highway District bought two dump wagons the first of the week from a firm in Spokane. The wagons have been used a short time but are practically new. They will be used on the road work in the district, the tractor furnishing power to haul them both at once when filled with dirt or gravel.

Each wagon has a capacity of about 3 1/2 yards of dirt, making the combined capacity of the two about 7 yards. They are constructed so that they can be pulled from either end.

The price paid for both wagons was $900 delivered to Pullman. This is approximately what one would cost new, delivered from the factory. They will be used extensively for hauling crushed rock and can also be used advantageously during the process of grading to haul dirt for fills, etc. The tires are eight inches wide and the other parts of the wagon are correspondingly heavy, each wagon weighing approximately 3500 pounds.

Income Tax Facts

Births, deaths and marriages during the year 1920 affect materially income tax returns for that year.

Millions of babies were added to family circles, each of whom brings an exemption of $200 in the parents' income tax returns.

Widows and widowers who lost their husbands or wives during the year are especially affected. They are single for the purposes of the income tax law and are granted only an exemption of $1,000, unless the head of a family.

Persons who were divorced or separated by mutual agreement during the year also must consider themselves as single persons.

The status of the taxpayers on December 31, 1920, determines the amount of the exemptions. If on that day the taxpayer was married and living with wife or husband, claim may be made for $2,000 exemption. If single, or married and not living with wife or husband on December 31, the exemption is only $1,000.

Persons who reached majority during the year and whose earnings for that period amounted to $1,000 or more, or $2,000 or more according to their marital status must file a return and pay a tax on their net income in excess of these amounts.

To avoid penalty, the return must be in the hands of the collector of internal revenue for the district in which the taxpayer lives, or has his principal place of business, on or before midnight of March 15, 1921.

Mrs. Joday Long Entertains

A very delightful social evening was spent at the home of Mrs. Joday Long last Friday, when a number of her friends responded to invitations to a card party given in honor of Mrs. A. R. Shumaker and Mrs. L. W. Candee. Three tables of "500" furnished several hours of pleasure to the assembled guests, after which a dainty two-course luncheon was served. The color scheme of red and white was carried out in serving the refreshments. Dainty heart shaped sandwiches and pressed chicken decorated with heart shaped pimento, and olives furnished the first course and fruit sherbet, heart shaped cakes and coffee for the last course.

The rooms were beautifully decorated in red and white carnations and red hearts.

Those present aside from the hostess and guests of honor were Mesdames Carlson, Newton, Bechtol, McConnell, Raaberg, Dunkle, Morrison, Knepper and Miss Esther Lowery.

Business Men Met

A number of Kendrick business men met at the Kendrick Hardware Store Monday evening in response to an invitation from Charles McKeever. The meeting was called for the purpose of considering the advisability of sending an exhibit to the Sportsmen's and Tourist's Fair to be held at Spokane, April 12 to 15 inclusive. A committee was appointed to take charge of the matter and ascertain whether it would be possible to get up an exhibit from the committee. The names of those on the committee follow: M. V. Thomas, R. D. Newton, S. P. Callison, M. B. McConnell and N. E. Walker.

The committee met with a number of interested citizens Wednesday evening at the city hall, and after discussing the matter it was unanimously decided to prepare an exhibit for the fair. S. P. Callison was appointed chairman of the committee and M. B. McConnell, secretary. The committee had already prepared a tentative list of trophies, etc., which included mounted game birds and animals, mounted heads skins, photos and other interesting specimens.

No charge will be made at the fair for space in the large building for exhibits and the public will be admitted free.

It is encouraging to learn of the number of progressive farmers who have signified their intention to seed a part of their land to alfalfa or clover. They are the men who will prosper when their average is taken over a period of years. A big field of one of these two soil-building crops in connection with a patch of corn and a silo is a combination that will transpose Old Gus Gloom into Sunny Jim. Herman Koepf of the Leland community, who purchased a silo last summer, says it is the best thing on his farm. A. Hooker of Big Bear ridge said his alfalfa crop paid him more net profit, even during war prices for grain and beans, than any other crop on his farm. Potlatch farms can't hold out indefinitely under the present system of constant cropping year after year. Something will have to be put back into the soil.

Judging by the equipment being purchased by the Kendrick Highway Commissioners, they are getting ready to do some extensive road work. That they are wise in getting modern road building machinery will be indicated within a very short time. The old methods of trying to make roads with a pick and shovel have so often proved inadequate that the change will be welcomed by those who really want good roads and are willing to spend something to get them. There is no reason why a substantial showing cannot be made this spring and summer on a part of the roads of the district. At least a good start will be made and that ought to act as a stimulus for a larger road construction program for next year.

Knee length skirts and half-socks are the latest in ladies' wearing apparel. Paris will have to sidestep for Bonnie Scotland. A Highlander's kilties wouldn't be far out of line for the modern American female attire.

It is stated on good authority that when Russia brings her corn producing lands up to the standard of America's corn lands, she alone will be able to supply the world's cereal needs with the exception of maize and rice.

A puzzled paragrapher asks: "If there isn't any hell, where has business gone?"

Deary Press: The legislative session is drawing to its close. Each individual solon went to Boise with the avowed intention of doing big things for the state, but he'll have to hurry. So far nothing big has happened except some big blunders, which are mainly the result of sectional strife. The row over the university is a sectional row. It requires two sets of agrarian laws, game laws and educational and road laws to suit both ends of the state—why not admit it once for all? How can either section hope for anything but blunders and flukes from a legislative session under such conditions?

EXERCISE FOR SOWS OF BIG IMPORTANCE

Necessary to Use Good Judgment in Management.

Corn Alone is Very Poor Feed for Pregnant Animals Because It Lacks in Essential Protein and Mineral Matter.

E. F. Ferrin, in charge of swine production at University Farm, St. Paul, Minn., believes that good judgment in the care and handling of brood sows during the winter is as necessary as good feed in making a success with the pig crop.

"The cheapest grain for brood sows," he says, "is corn, but this feed alone is a very poor one for pregnant sows or gilts. Corn lacks in protein and mineral matter, each of which is essential if strong pigs are to be produced. Oats will supplement corn fairly well, and a ration of two-thirds corn and one-third oats is reasonably good." One of the best feeds to be used with corn is meat meal or tankage, the proportion of one part to nine or ten of corn. Alfalfa or clover hay is an excellent addition to the grain ration, and will reduce the cost of the winter's feed if used.

"Amounts of feed to be given can well be governed by the gains made by the sows. Yearling, or older sows, need not gain more than a half pound daily during pregnancy, unless they are very thin in the fall. Gilts have growth to make as well as litter to produce, and consequently should increase more in weight than mature sows; from one-half to three-fourths of a pound is a reasonable amount.

"Exercise is one of the important factors in producing strong pigs. When the snow is not too deep, it is a good plan to feed ear corn some distance from the house or shed so that the sows will have to exercise to get their feed. It is probable that exercise is a big factor in avoiding hairless pigs."

High Commissioner Praises Near East Relief

Rear Adm'l Bristol

Mark L. Bristol, U. S. Navy, High Commissioner to Turkey, who has charge of all American interests in the Near East, went on record wholeheartedly in support of the American relief organization.

"If I have been able to encourage the workers of the Near East Relief or give them assistance in any way," the Admiral said, "I feel that I am more than repaid in keeping with the success that has attended the efforts of the Near East Relief Committee in this part of the world in the past. I hope the future will bring you greater success. It will always give me pleasure to render any assistance possible to the Committee as a whole, to any of the workers, and to the great work of humanity that the committee represents."

When 138,000 Russian refugees from the Crimea arrived off Constantinople, Admiral Bristol immediately cabled the Near East Relief for help, and the Near East Relief bakeries fed these refugees and N. E. R. workers helped the American sailors to get the sick to hospitals.

Admiral Bristol is in intimate touch with all the work being conducted by the Near East Relief and speaks from personal knowledge of its accomplishments.

Effects of Constipation

Constipation causes a stoppage of the sewerage system of the body. The poisonous refuse matter that should be carried away is retained in the system and often poisons the blood and causes numerous disorders. No one can afford to neglect his bowels. A dose of Chamberlain's Tablets will afford relief. Avoid drastic cathartics as they take too much water out of the system and their use is likely to be followed by constipation.—Adv.

FORDSON

For thirty-five years Henry Ford, a farmer's boy, has been working on the problem of a successful tractor for the farm, and for the past fourteen years has devoted much time and a vast amount of money to the development of the present Fordson Tractor. Today that tractor is in use on nearly 200,000 farms and if you have any doubt as to the satisfaction it gives to those who are using it, call in or send and get the booklet, just issued by the Ford Motor Company, and called "The Fordson at Work" and read the testimony which is there given by the multitude of owners of Fordson Tractors. No evidence can be more conclusive than that of the man who actually knows by personal experience and this is the line of testimony carried in this little booklet. If you cannot call for it, write, drop us a postal and we will mail it to you without charge. It is so valuable you ought to have it because it is the open door through which the farmer will pass from the hard working drudge to the comparative comfort of the manufacturer. The Fordson makes it possible for the farmer to plan and direct, while the machine will do the work. It presents the widest latitude for the farmer to exercise his brain power and plan how he can get the most from the soil, knowing that the Tractor will do the hard work, do it better, do it quicker, and therefore do it more profitably. This means not alone in the cultivation of the soil, in the harvesting of the crops, but in a hundred and one different demands that are made for labor—cutting of ensilage and the filling of the silo; cutting of wood; operation of the washing machine; in the lighting of the house with electricity; supplying the house with running water; bringing to the farmer's wife and daughters the convenience of the city, relieving them of much of the hard, unpleasant part of housework. The price is within the reach of any progressive farmer—only $865.00, including pulley, extension rims, fenders, canopy top and filled with fuel and lubricating oil, and we have a competent man to instruct you in handling it.

Even as Miss Van Teller was sobbing her heart out and Mr. Randolph was standing in the bewilderedment of one who knows he has not only taken the wrong turning but placed both his feet in a beartrap, a thick, heavy, unsympathetic voice arose from the foot of the steps.

"Break Away and Come Along with Me."

"Here! Youse! Break away and come along of me."

Memories of a mischievous boyhood swarmed to Mr. Randolph's mind, recollections of those days when, as chief of the Madison Square gang, his ears had tingled to the cry of "Cheese it, de cop! We're phoned, fellers!" A cold sweat came out upon his brow; he slowly relaxed his grip on Miss Van T. and whispered tremulously to her to keep her nerve but hand him her latchkey.

Over his shoulder he said with forced calm, "On what charge, officer?"

"Same old dope," replied the policeman phlegmatically; "drunken, disorderly. Come along, now, er d'yer want me to climb them steps so's we c'n all roll down together?"

During that speech Mr. Randolph made a lucky shot at the keyhole, stealthily turned the lock and opened the door. "The way's clear, Madge," he whispered. "Beat it."

"Oh, is it, Bobby, you dear," rattled Miss Van T. in a stage whisper that could be heard across the street. "I didn't mean it, really, what I said about hating you. But I do love Beacher, Bobby, and I'll—I'll—"

"For heaven's sake, Madge," groaned Mr. Randolph, hearing sounds as of a bear starting to swarm a tree, "keep all that till New Year's."

"I was just going to say," continued Miss Van T. breathlessly but with a cold eye fixed on the cumbersome shadow coming up the steps, "that I'll owe it to you, Bobby. I'll owe it to you. D'you understand?"

"Sure," lied Mr. Randolph as he pushed her firmly through the door, then caught its knob, slammed it shut and turned to meet Nemesis. "Hello, Flahaharty!"

The huge policeman stopped his ponderous but sure progression and stared long and suspiciously into Mr. Randolph's face. Finally he gave a grunt of recognition. "Slim," he said to himself aloud as though somewhere within his vast bulk there were a separate monitor that had to be tipped off to the situation, "Slim Hervey."

"Sure," said Mr. Randolph, leading the way toward his wagon. "Who else did you think it was at this time o' night?"

"How did I know," demanded Mr. Flahaharty gruffly but not unpleasantly for him, "as you had taken on deliveries o' fancy dress-goods on top o' your regular line?"

He breathed heavily and allowed his eyes to protrude farther than usual in search of a thought which he sensed in the near distance. "I tell you, Slim," he finally continued, "I don't know what this burg is a-comin' to. Why, even the street kind used to have a man to take 'em home, but this here was a bit o' high-flyin' fluff—me, I could see that—an' they had to give it to a cab!"

"Forget it," said Bobby nervously. "All I says," continued Mr. Flahaharty, "is thank God both o' my galls is married to hairy men that can an' does lick the stuffin's outen 'em."

"Well, here we are," said Mr. Randolph as he stooped to turn her over. From his seat behind the wheel he began to breathe more easily and leaned out to study the face of his friend, the officer, to make sure that therein was no guile.

"Cheer up, Jim," he said not quite reassured. "Forget it."

"I'll try," said Mr. Flahaharty dubiously. "but it'll come hard, bein' the first time I ever seen a thing like that. She sure give you a tussle, Slim!"

PART II.—One evening he is engaged by Beacher Tremont, notorious profligate, to drive him and Madge Van Teller to a hotly known as "Greenwood." Aware of the evil nature of the place, Randolph drives the pair to Greenwood cemetery. Infuriated, Beacher gets out of the cab and Randolph leaves him there, taking the girl (who has awakened to a realization of her folly) to her home. Madge recognizes him.

PART III.

Maid's Adventure.

Take a young girl of about twenty who, in her childhood, was pampered of fortune in money, position, good breeding, and pets, turn her loose on the world at the age of ten with no prop but a faithful, sickly and destitute old nurse, kill off the nurse a couple of years later, let the girl fend for herself as scullery-maid and what not through the uninteresting stage that precedes the sudden bloom of unexpected beauty, give her a long succession of jobs secured "on her looks" and lost because she wouldn't, lead her up to the crowded portal of despair and the long-drawn-out surrender; then snatch her suddenly back from destruction, feed her, give her the sole freedom for a night of Mr. Robert Hervey Randolph's comfortable apartment and—what will she do? The answer is easy. She will find the bath and turn on the hot water.

That was the very first thing that Miss Imogene Pamela Thornton did after she had finished spying from the window on the movements of what she supposed was Mr. Randolph and what, in reality, was Mr. Patrick O'Reilly in Mr. Randolph's best top-hat, best suit of evening clothes and overcoat, best gray silk muffler, price twenty-two dollars, and best patent-leather shoes—the last a very tight fit which made the revamped gentleman's gait a cross between that of a chicken on a hot stove and a drunk on his reluctant way home.

Even the unsuspecting Miss Thornton was puzzled by that halting locomotion in connection with what she knew of Mr. Randolph, but she added it, two and two, with the mysterious twenty minutes spent by that gentleman and the driver in the recesses of the cab, apparently to settle a difference in ideas as to the value of a waiting taxi, and decided that poor Mr. Randolph must have issued from the interview in a semi-crippled state.

She herself was too excited to let pity altogether absorb her. Without waiting for either the tortured wayfarer or the taxi to get quite out of sight, she dropped the window curtain and turned to possess herself of her world of comfort for a night. A starved instinct led her straight to the luxuriously appointed bathroom. As previously intimated, she turned on the hot water and clasped her hands ecstatically as she watched its crystalline surge and imagined she could smell the opalescent steam.

But not for long was she inactive. Having surrendered to circumstance to the extent of promising to stay in the flat until ten the following morning, she decided to do the job wholeheartedly, for Imogene Pamela was one of those lucky and fated young women who can never give themselves by halves. If happiness so much as showed its nose, it was her nature to tucke blindly for its waist and go to the mat for the immediate present.

Consequently, let not her modesty be misjudged when it is related that, in the short time it took to fill the bath, she accomplished the following: Rooted out Mr. Randolph's best silk pajamas, found his softest bathrobe, filled a hot-water bottle and slipped it far down between the too cold linen sheets of his big bed. Continuing at this rate of achievement, it may be imagined that in ten minutes more the young lady, having bathed, was curled up and sound asleep. Not on your life!

Item: It took her twenty-one minutes by the clock to scrub out the memory of the scabby zinc bathtubs of many years. Item: Twenty more minutes to wash her hair. Item: Half an hour more to scrub her underwear and stockings. Assorted items: Various pauses during which she shamelessly looked at herself in a full-length mirror of such pure reflecting qualities as had not crossed her path since England was a pup. After that, a long, entrancing item, called "drying her hair."

Did you blame her, three lines back, in your heart for her frequent inspections of self in the mirror? If you did, look at her now! Mr. Randolph's bathrobe is billowed at her waist and tied tight to keep it from trailing on the floor; for almost a like reason, its sleeves are rolled up above her elbows. It is open in a V at the neck, showing the adolescent curve of a virginal but much excited bosom.

With a woolly towel in both hands, she plants herself before the staid old looking-glass and gives it such a treat as it has never before savored in its sixty-two years of service to the Randolph family. Rub, rub, rub with the towel. Her cheeks grow pink and plumper, her eyes round and rounder. They twinkle and smile, and once, when she made a little face at herself, they laughed out loud. Her hair slowly wakes from its stringy dampness until it, too, bursts into a sort of light and curly merriment. Pamela puffs out her cheeks and blows at its reflection.

When all the rubbing is done, even to the last rite where they divide the fragrant rite into two waves falling over the bosom and mercilessly knead the damp ends between folds of the driest bit of the towel, she drops that implement and runs into the big room where the dying open fire blinks its red eye as though it had been waiting up for her.

The writer—who is privileged, for the benefit of a large and growing public, to see her in his mind's eye as her pink bare feet pad up and down the room, racing every time they come to the home-stretch between the unpeopled grandstand of the couch and the fire, and then doubling suddenly, so that her wide eyes may catch her hair still on the wing, for all the world like a kitten chasing its tail—does herein affirm, by the collective manhood of the earth, that she was altogether lovable and beyond the reach of sullying thought. Now let her curl up in the bed and sleep.

Slumber meant nothing in Pamela's life. That statement should be taken not in the sense of the common slang of the vulgar, but at its literal face value. What is meant is that when this young lady slept, it was like taking a chunk bodily out of life and putting it in warm storage. As a consequence, when the old-fashioned clock on the mantel burred a warning that it was thinking of striking the hour of nine in about two minutes, she opened her eyes and wondered through what magic night had been suddenly replaced by broad and smiling day.

Not for long did that life-long and accustomed miracle hold her attention, for scarcely had it occurred, through force of habit, to her awakening thought than her startled eyes fell upon the tall, stooped, gray-headed figure of a man, clad in livery, and standing unsteadily poised in the doorway of the room. His eyes, naturally deep-set, actually protruded from his face as though they were determined to come half-way to meet Pamela's wondering orbs. He looked like a solemn raven which has carelessly alighted on a live wire.

"He-hello!" stammered the young lady.

"Good-morning, miss," said Tomlinson, in sepulchral and censorious tones. "Where is Master Robert?"

"You mean Mr. Randolph?" asked Pamela, a little breathlessly.

The old man steeled himself by seizing the door-jamb and bowed confirmation of her supposition.

"I don't know where he is," said Pamela, more calmly. "The last time I saw him he was limping west." A twinkle came into her eyes. "Why do you ask?"

"Why do I ask?" he exclaimed. "Miss, do you mind telling me who you are and what you are doing in Mr. Randolph's apartment at nine o'clock on a Friday morning?"

"In November," supplemented Pamela, as though she were supplying a very important addition to the facts in the case. "I am Miss Thornton," she added, with as much dignity as a maiden, tumbled of hair, flushed of cheek, and cuddled in a young man's big bed, could summon.

RATION FOR EGG PRODUCTION

Combination of Corn, Bran, Middlings and Tankage Is Recommended for Hen Flock.

A practical ration for good egg production is mash and scratch grains as follows: Make up a grain ration of 18 pounds of corn and 7 pounds of mash. Mix up 5 pounds of bran, 5 pounds of middlings and 3 pounds of tankage. The birds should eat the 13 pounds of mash while consuming the 25 pounds of scratch grain. If meat scrap is used in place of tankage, use 3½ pounds, since it contains 10 per cent less protein. Feed only one-third of the daily grain ration in the morning in deep litter. This encourages the hens to eat the mash. With scratch feed, fill up their craws just before they go to roost and this should last them about twelve hours.

A Good Medicine For The Grip

George W. Waitt, South Gardiner, Me., relates his experience with the grip. "I had the worst cough, cold and grip and had taken a lot of trash of no account. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the only thing that has done me any good whatever. I have used one bottle of it and the cold and grip have left me."—Adv.

"He-hello," Stammered the Young Lady.

CHILD SAVING WORK IN ARMENIA TOLD BY AN AMERICAN

Charles V. Vickrey Gives Facts of Near East Relief Program for Orphans.

Charles V. Vickrey, general secretary of the Near East Relief, has returned from a trip of inspection throughout Central Europe and the Near East, and made a report to the trustees of the Near East Relief in which he covers in detail the actual work of child saving now being conducted by the great American relief organization in the Near East. Mr. Vickrey believes that "a few millions of dollars wisely expended at this time in the education of the children of the Near East, in character building and in moulding these young lives, will be worth vastly more to the world

Mr. Vickrey considers the need in the Near East, and especially in Armenia greater than anywhere else in the world, because, as he says, "In the countries of Central Europe there are going governments which have merely been temporarily impoverished by war. In the Near East, on the other hand, there is no such thing as stable government. The whole fabric of the state has to be created from the beginning, and the innocent and helpless children have to be trained to the responsibilities of future citizenship. Peace in the Near East and, in great measure, throughout the world, will depend very largely on the character of the citizenship of the peoples of the Near East."

Irresistible Appeal of Orphans.
Describing the orphanage work of the Near East Relief in the Armenian Republic, Mr. Vickrey said:

"We have at Alexandropol in the Caucasus, one orphanage where there are approximately 10,000 homeless children, fatherless or motherless, many of them having no known living relative. Some of them do not even know their own names, or the place of their birth. They have shown wonderful recuperative powers, and to see them play their kindergarten or other games under the direction of our American relief workers, one could never believe that they had passed through the years of suffering that most of them have experienced since they, or their parents, were driven from their homes in Central Turkey five years ago.

"For the accommodation of these orphans there are sixty splendid stone buildings, erected as barracks for the Russian army. These buildings are now given to us by the Armenian government for a period of ten years and lend themselves admirably to relief purposes.

"This orphanage at Alexandropol is but one of the 229 orphanages that the Near East Relief is now operating in various parts of the Caucasus, Anatolia, Cilicia, Syria and the Constantinople-Strait area.

"Thirty miles from Alexandropol, at Kars, there is another group of Russian army barracks, which were given us by the Armenian government for relief purposes. I was going through the dormitories of this orphanage at Kars when the young American college girl in charge turned to me and said: 'Mr. Vickrey, it sometimes makes me feel just a little older than Methuselah to be called "Mother" by 6,000 of those Armenian children.' And that is exactly what she was—the only mother that these 6,000 Armenian children have, except as she avails herself of the organized assistance of native Armenian women, in caring for this large family.

"In the hospital at Kars I found 1,150 beds, which, the day I was there, were occupied by 1,203 patients, it frequently being necessary to put two or more children in a single bed. At Alexandropol we have in one hospital, or group of hospital buildings, 1,500 trachoma patients. At Karaklis, forty miles east of Alexandropol we have an orphanage devoted exclusively to the care and training of the blind children. At Delijan we have another orphanage, located on a mountain side, for the care of tubercular children, this segregation being as much for the welfare of the healthy children in the orphanages as for the care of the unfortunate consumptives. At Erivan we formerly had twenty-six distinct orphanages, though they have now been reduced and consolidated to seven in number. There are something more than 6,000 orphans in the region of Harpout."

TIME NEEDED TO MANAGE PIGEONS

Good Blood First Requisite of Homing Bird That Wins Blue Ribbons.

PATIENCE QUITE NECESSARY

Distance From Home That Bird Is Taken Must Be Increased Very Gradually—Racing Is One of Most Fascinating Sports.

To Noah must be given the honor of owning the first homing pigeon of which there is written record. Although the olive tree from which Noah's dove or pigeon brought a sprig to him doubtless looked fair to the bird after the weeks of close confinement on the ark, yet that marvelous instinct for its home, which is one of the chief characteristics of the homing pigeon, brought it back once more to the boat afloat on the face of the waters. The Egyptians, Greeks and Romans all used the messenger pigeon in their days of power, and today pigeon breeding, rearing, and racing forms a pleasant and interesting recreation for many people in practically all civilized countries of the world.

Gallant War Services.

During the recent war, notwithstanding the use of telephones, wireless and all the methods of communication which modern genius has invented, pigeons played an invaluable and gallant part.

In the United States there is probably not a city which cannot boast of racing-pigeon fanciers, while clubs and associations for the advancement and enjoyment of the fascinating sport of racing the birds are being constantly formed in Eastern, Western, and to some extent in Southern cities. Lofts of homing pigeons are maintained by the United States Department of Agriculture at the government poultry farm at Beltsville, Md., and the department holds a membership in the Washington Racing Pigeon club, a branch of the American Racing Pigeon union. Many of the Washington club races flown during the past summer and fall have been won by Department of Agriculture birds, which number about 250.

Just what faculty enables the homing pigeon to return to its loft many miles away is a point of dispute among eminent homing-pigeon breeders. Some attribute it to remarkable instinct. Others maintain that this bird has slight so brilliant and powerful that it is able to see much farther than any other species, while there are some who claim that it is the extreme and strong attachment for home, coupled with a peculiar memory.

Training the Birds.

It is necessary to keep the birds in good condition with plenty of outdoor exercise, both in good and bad weather, if they are to have endurance for long flights. The young birds are usually hatched in February and March. During the time when the eggs are being incubated and the young cared for, only one of a pair is trained each day. On alternate days the other is shipped to the training station. In this way the breeding is not interfered with, and the eggs or young are never left without one or the other of the old birds.

In the beginning of the training the birds are conveyed in a basket not more than six or eight blocks from their lofts to an open spot away from buildings. The basket is faced toward the loft and the birds liberated at once. At this distance pigeon specialists advise practicing them from all points of the compass. The next step is to select the route over which it is intended to fly the birds. From half a mile the distance can be increased to 1 mile, then 5, 10, 50, 100, and 300, until the longest distance has been reached.

Fly in Clear Weather.

Clear weather should always be selected for the birds' flights, for many birds are lost during a stormy period. Then, too, good weather is especially necessary for rapid flying.

It is considered best not to be in too great haste in having the birds fly a long distance. The young birds need the time to develop their faculties, strengthen the muscles, educate the sight, and cultivate the memory and intelligence.

INVESTIGATOR INDORSES NEAR EAST RELIEF

During the Peace Conference in Paris the American Commission to Negotiate Peace, appreciating the importance of accurate, first hand information about the Armenian situation, sent Capt. Benjamin Burges Moore of the American Red Cross as head of a special mission to study and report on conditions. Captain Moore's findings as to the value of the work done by the Near East Relief form part of his official report.

"Armenians are sincerely grateful to us," Captain Moore states, "since it is no exaggeration to say that they would have disappeared as a nation had it not been for this splendid help given them by the Near East Relief and the American Food Administration. The best that sympathetic Americans can do is to continue and enlarge the present admirable work of the Near East Relief."

RED CLOVER CAN BE SOWN EARLY

Many Farmers Plant as Early as February, Even While Snow Is On Ground.

SEED SELECTION IMPORTANT

Plant is Hardy and Not Injured by Ordinary Cold, and Sowing May Be Done While Other Farm Work Is Comparatively Slack.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Red clover has been styled the corner stone of agriculture in the North Central and Eastern states.

Many farmers will begin laying the corner stone as early as February, when it is customary in many sections to sow red clover on the surface of the snow, so that it will sink into the soil with the first thaw in the spring. Red clover is hardy, and is not injured by ordinary cold; and the fact that it can be sown at a season when work on the farm is comparatively light adds to the economy of its cultivation.

The first important point to be observed is the selection of good seed, say specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. Considerable care should be used in this respect well in advance of the time of seeding. This is particularly true at present, when a large proportion of the red clover seed used in the United States comes from abroad. If poor seed is used the expected crop may be a partial or total failure.

Good Seed Is Plump.
Good red clover seed is plump or well filled, bright with a slight luster, the color of individual seeds ranging from violet to light yellow. The individual seeds should be at least medium sized and fairly uniform, free of adulterants of any kind and from seeds of noxious weeds.

Home-grown seed is desirable, especially in the North, because it is almost certain to be adapted to local conditions. If it is not available, samples should be obtained from reliable dealers. These should be examined for adulterants, weed seeds and shriveled seeds. They should also be tested for germination before purchasing in quantity.

In the absence of more accurate methods an estimate should be made of the proportion of true red clover seed and of weed seeds and other impurities. From the red clover seed separated from all impurities, a counted number, as 100, should be taken just as they come. These seeds should be placed between layers of moistened cloth or paper or merely covered in a bed of sand or light soil. A dinner plate, covered with another, is a suitable germinating receptacle. It can be kept in the living room, at a temperature between 65 and 85 degrees. Between the third and sixth days the sprouting ability of the seeds should be shown.

It should be borne in mind that the sowing value of the seed is represented by the amount of true clover which will germinate with reasonable promptness. Thus, if four-fifths of a sample is pure clover, and only three-fourths will sprout, then only three-fifths, or 60 per cent, of the original seed as offered will grow. Thus, the germinating test has an important bearing on the worth of seed offered to the farmer.

Protects American Farmers.
A seed-testing service is maintained by the United States Department of Agriculture, where 29,638 samples of various seeds were examined and tested in the last fiscal year—10,442 in Washington and 13,196 in the five branch seed-testing stations. Similar service is offered by the various state experiment stations. The department also exercises a strict inspection service over field seeds brought from foreign countries, and last year 5,000,000 pounds of various seeds were rejected or held for cleaning before being allowed to be offered to American farmers.

It is important that the testing of seed be done early enough that a sufficient supply of pure seed can be purchased in time for use; and if seed is to be sent to one of the government or state testing laboratories, at least two weeks should be allowed.

ARMENIAN GIRL PLEADS FOR SISTERS

Tragic Tale of Harem Victims' Sufferings.

More than ten thousand Armenian girls have been rescued from Turkish harems through the help and generosity of America. This is the statement given out by the Near East Relief, which is making the saving of these tragic victims of Turkish cruelty one of the most important features of its work.

That it is a work which in itself justifies the millions that America has spent in this stricken land is testified by little Miss Eliza Dodurian, a twenty-year-old Armenian girl recently arrived in this country. Miss Dodurian, through the intervention of American missionaries, was herself spared the sufferings of exile and the horrors of slavery; but she knows all too well the terrible fate of her sisters and friends. It is for them—the soft-eyed little girls of fifteen and sixteen whom last she saw being torn from their mothers' arms and carried off on the saddle bows of the Turkish soldiers—that she makes her plea.

What their lives have been since then may be guessed by a look into the faces of any of the ten thousand who have passed through the Rescue Homes of the Near East Relief. Their heads bowed in shame, they creep into the American relief stations, trying vainly to hide the tattoo marks which proclaim to the world their story. Thousands of these girls have been brought back to life and hope through the work of the Near East Relief. It is to rescue the one hundred thousand more still held captive that the Near East Relief is making its appeal this year.

Machines and Implements of All Kinds Should Be Overhauled and Needed Repairs Made.

Better bring in all the machinery not in use and start to get ready for spring. Take off the plows, put them where they will be handy to get to the blacksmith's and see that the cultivator shovels are cared for. Don't wait until the blacksmith is rushed to have the disks sharpened. He will do a better job if allowed to take his time.
