

Over The County

Troy News: H. N. Enholm arrived in this city Tuesday to visit his ranch near Troy, which he purchased last fall. He will remain here for some time and have his headquarters at the Inland Hotel. He is promoting the oil industry in this section of the country. He is here to take leases on farm land. He has found evidence of oil, he states, and that is why he purchased land and if he can get a good number of leases and receive the right kind of encouragement he will put down some test wells near the town. Now don't get excited and think you are going to be a J. D. oil king and hold out that you may get better inducements to lease. Meet it fair and if it should be true that oil is under the earth in this section you will share in the game and get all that is coming to you. Take a chance, he says, and find out the facts. If there is oil in this country for the love of all good and bad lets get her out of the ground to help grease the wheels of progress for they have been getting dry lately.

Juliaetta Record: The electric lights were turned on in some of the business houses Thursday evening of this week, when the Washington Water Power line extension from Kendrick was completed. The Heacox confectionery was the first business establishment to be connected up for lights and the event was celebrated by breaking a bottle of soda pop over the counter as the switch was turned on which lighted up the building. Practically all the business houses will have the lights installed by Saturday night and the coming week will see the streets and residences lighted up once more.

Deary Press: Since the reduction in freight rates on lumber from the northwest, lumber shipments from Potlatch have picked up appreciably. The Weyerhaeuser Sales Corporation of Spokane recently announced a cut in lumber prices which, coupled with lower freight rates, will aid materially in moving the big surplus stocks of the Weyerhaeuser mills. Occasional extra trains have been taking good sized shipments of lumber through Deary to Bovill for shipment east over the Milwaukee.

Genesee News: A farm accounting school was held Monday at the American Legion rooms under the direction of the farm bureau and was presided over by W. Schloeter, as chairman. The school was conducted by C. C. Taylor of the extension division of the University of Idaho for the purpose of demonstrating the use of the new standardized account books and for discussing the cost of growing wheat in Latah county. Between 20 and 25 farmers attended the school and 20 remained throughout the day, receiving valuable help in farm accounting and some pertinent figures in farm management and the cost of production.

Southwick Pig Club

Potlatch ridge now has two pig clubs—one for the Leland and Campeon communities and the other for Southwick community. Five Duroc Jersey sows were shipped here from Moscow last Saturday for Southwick. The Southwick Club was made possible by the efforts of members of the community committee of Southwick and the co-operation of the Farm Bureau. This club is under the Armour plan and the hogs will be cared for by five boys of the community, selected by Livestock Improvement Committeeman, L. E. Stalnaker. The boys in the club are Delbert Hayward, James Southwick, Christian Tschantz, Cecil Harris and Ward Hilton. The bred sows, which are due to farrow next month, are from the Duroc Jersey herd of the University of Idaho and were shipped here by express Saturday. The boys will follow the regular standard club work plans under the direction of the Farm Bureau workers.

Squirrels Are Doomed

Quite a number of farm bureau members from the bench farms in the surrounding country attended the meeting here Tuesday morning. The purpose of the meeting was to distribute poison to the farm bureau members and talk over the best method of conducting the 1921 squirrel eradicating campaign. County Agent Fletcher was not able to be present as he was confined to his home with a case of the mumps. Mr. Kjosness, who is associated with the state extension work, substituted for him and conducted the meeting here as well as the one on American ridge in the afternoon. Leonard Sturdevant, community chairman for squirrel control, has a stock of poison for distribution. The supply of strychnine will be sold for $1.90 per ounce. Enough saccharine is included with the ounce to mix up the proper amount of poison bait.

Get-Together Club Met

A crowd of nearly forty members of the Get-Together Club of Kendrick met in the dining room of the Electric Bakery and Cafe, Wednesday evening, in response to a call issued by Chairman McKeever. The meeting was called simply for the purpose of meeting together in a social way during the dinner hour and discussing anything of interest that might tend to promote the welfare of the community.

Before the banquet the manager of the cafe told one of the business men not to expect too much as the dinner had been prepared on short notice. However, no apologies were necessary as it was one of the best "feeds" that the Club has ever had. Everything was nicely prepared and the service was excellent.

After the cigars had been passed around a general discussion, covering almost every subject imaginable, was continued until ten o'clock. One of the favorite topics was the prospect of celebrating the Fourth in Kendrick. The general sentiment seemed to be strongly in favor of a celebration and the matter was referred to members of the American Legion to be passed upon at their next meeting. If they are in favor of celebrating it is understood that they will receive any and all assistance necessary to make the celebration a success.

The End of A Perfect Day

Hotel Kendrick Sold

Joe Ivy closed a deal last Friday morning whereby the ownership of the lease on the Hotel Kendrick and the pool and card room passed to Taylor and Erickson. The new proprietors took over the management of the business the first of this week.

Mr. Taylor is well known here as he comes from Juliaetta. Mr. Erickson was proprietor of the hotel at Keubens a number of years ago but has been farming until recently.

Mr. Ivy says that his only reason for selling is that he wants a change for a while. The business has been a paying proposition and is well established. Mr. and Mrs. Ivy have rented the rooms next to the Kendrick State Bank where they will make their home until the close of school, when they expect to drive to the coast, somewhere below Portland, with a view of locating there.

Lyceum Next Friday

The school entertainment, fourth number of the lyceum course, will be held at the Grand Theatre next Friday night, March 18. The nature of the entertainment, as stated in last week's paper, is a "Stunt Fest" in which each grade in the school will have a part. The pupils of the school are working hard under the direction of their teachers to make this entertainment one of special interest and enjoyment.

All funds above actual expenses, derived from the entertainment, will be deposited in the lyceum fund to help defray the cost of the course. All season tickets entitle the holder to admission to this entertainment.

Asotin, with 25,714 sacks, has an average of $1.84 per bushel.

Clyde Spur with 6,432 sacks paid an average of $1.90 per bushel.

Vollmer-Bernard with 40,179 sacks paid an average of $1.70 per bushel.

The total average, from the six buying points, of 146,102 sacks was $1.85 per bushel.

Rogers Entertain

Mr. and Mrs. William Rogers entertained the members of the Circle Card Club and a number of friends at their home Tuesday evening. The evening was spent very enjoyably with cards, "500" proving the popular game, for which there were six tables prepared. The rivalry among the ladies was very keen, Mrs. Herres, Mrs. Leith and Mrs. MacPherson all having equal scores. The tie was decided, however, by Mrs. MacPherson cutting the high card. G. F. Walker had the high score among the men.

At twelve o'clock Mrs. Rogers served a dainty lunch consisting of sandwiches, cake, pickles, salad, waffles and coffee.

Those present were Messrs. and Mesdames Hanson, Boyd, Leith, McCrery, Compton, G. F. Walker, H. H. Stevens, MacPherson, Kite, Herres, Ivy; Miss Lowery and Miss Reta Leith.

Cigarette Bill Revised

The revision of the cigarette bill, recommended by the governor, places all dealers of tobacco under a $500 bond and a license costing $50 a year. The new bill is said to be a compromise measure. It is primarily intended to prohibit the sale of cigarettes to minors. When this bill becomes a law any dealer convicted of selling or giving cigarettes to a minor will forfeit his bond of $500 and have his license revoked. The bill is meeting with general approval.

Charles Riggie writes from Anantone, Wash., that he and his wife expect to return to their home in Kendrick about April 1. The school which Mr. Riggie is teaching will complete the spring term by that time. Mr. Riggie states that the winter there has been a very enjoyable one.

Mrs. Mina Davidson, who left here about a year ago to make her home in Clarkston, has purchased a five room modern bungalow on the corner of Twelfth and Libby Streets in Clarkston, the consideration being $2800. She bought the place for an investment and will rent it.

Miss Mable McKeever came up from Lewiston, Wednesday, to visit her father and mother here.

Road Work Begun

The Kendrick Highway Commissioners started operations in the spring road work the first of this week. The first work was done just above Juliaetta, as the ground was in fairly good condition there. This strip of road is out of the district but the county commissioners made a deal with the highway board to rent the tractor and grader, with the regular men in charge, until this work could be finished. There is also a strip below Juliaetta which is being graded with the machinery. The commissioners felt that it would be better to co-operate with the county commissioners in this way, as the road which is being graded is used considerably by the people of this district. The county commissioners agreed to pay a sufficient sum for the use of the machinery to cover cost of gas and oil, wages for the men in charge and a liberal amount for wear and tear on machinery.

The first part of next week the commissioners expect to put the grader on the road between the Potlatch bridge, about a mile above town, to the Pine Creek bridge. As soon as this is put in shape the grader will be used on the grades in the district.

After the usual spring road work has been finished the commissioners will build a strip of permanent road extending from the city limits of Kendrick at the Bear Creek bridge to the bridge across the Potlatch at the mouth of Wandscher gulch. This piece of road will be put on a grade and surfaced with crushed rock. It is one of the roughest stretches of road in Latah county and it will be welcome news to the many farmers who have to haul over it, to learn that it is going to be put in first class condition.

The district is fortunate in having two good men in charge of the machinery. Gabriel Forest of Big Bear ridge is operating the tractor and M. O. Raby has charge of the grader.

School Notes

The Seniors are the proud possessors of new class rings. The design is simple but effective.

Don't forget that the lyceum number given by the school is scheduled for March 18.

On Friday afternoon will occur the old fashioned "CIPHERING CONTEST" in high school. The winner will be announced next week.

It is hoped that arrangements can be made for staging the senior play not later than April. There will be a decided advantage to both pupils and faculty in putting this on before the rush of examinations and commencement begins.

Nez Perce Squirrel Campaign

Big poison-mixing bees will be held in Nez Perce county this month. The ones that particularly interest this community are to be held at Leland and Southwick. These community campaigns are being carried on under the direction of the farm bureau, each community chairman having charge of the work in his district.

The date for the meeting at Southwick is Thursday morning, March 17 at 10 a. m. L. J. Southwick is pest control committeeman. At Leland the meeting will be held Friday morning, March 18 at 10 a. m. Wm. F. Behrens is the pest control committeeman.

The following extract was taken from the Farm Bureau News of Nez Perce County:

"This season we are going to give the squirrels another big battle as part of the big plan of the final extermination of them. Our aim last year was to wipe out half of them throughout the entire county. Some members think we killed seventy-five percent, but in any event there still are many left to kill, so we propose another efficient campaign. We have heard only great praise regarding the work of the poisoned oats. Not one complaint has come in to the Farm Bureau Office.

"We propose big poison-mixing bees in each community similar to those of last year, except that it is not necessary for community committeemen to collect deposits in advance. We are financing the campaign this year with funds out of the treasury of the County Farm Bureau with which we buy the chemicals thru the University Extension Division at a very low price, purchase the other ingredients of the poison mixture locally, and distribute at cost as before.

"We have made up our estimate on cost and figure that altho the strychnine alkaloid is higher this year, and some other supplies are also, still some other things are a little lower than last year. Accordingly as near as we can figure the cost price will be 30 cents a quart in 8 quart units, which is the only way it will be sold. A man can get as many 8 quart sacks as he wants, but it will be necessary to pay cash at the time of the mixing bees, as this is the only way that the Bureau can manage it.

He Ain't Human

A Chicago woman who has a model husband, sends this description of him to the public sentiment column of Herald-Examiner. We print it because bad husbands are the only kind you read about in the newspapers: He is not handsome, but has a pleasant way and soft voice, is generous, kind to me and to the children, of which we have 5, and he loves them all; he is very home-loving, scarcely ever goes out of an evening except to lodge and union meetings once a week, and works 1 night; stays with the children for me to go out. He is God-fearing, has no bad habits and is very thottul and helps out at the house. He has a good reputation among his men friends, of which he has many; does not smoke, nor has he any bad habits. No, he is not henpecked or a sissy, but every inch a man.

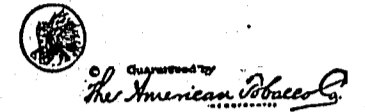

Home Talent Play

The home talent play to be given by Troy Post No. 87 of the American Legion, will be staged at the Grand Theatre in Kendrick tonight (Friday). The title of the play is "A Poor Married Man". It is a comedy and the promoters have sent out advance information that it is a laugh producer from start to finish. There are eight characters in the cast. This play was given at Troy last Friday to a packed house. The local Legion boys are expecting a good house tonight. They are co-operating with the Troy Post in making arrangements for the performance here. The curtain will go up at 8:30.

It has been learned from experiments that each squirrel destroys over three-quarters of a bushel of grain during the season. They are also very destructive to pasture.

Nez Perce County Farm Bureau News: Our executive committee voted that generally speaking there should be no restrictions on the sale of poisoned oats to men who are not members of the Farm Bureau, although some community committmen's patience is getting a little worn by the fact that in helping the squirrel campaign along besides their Farm Bureau dues and there are always a few individuals who are willing to take the benefits of the work with out putting in any work themselves or even so much as coming through with a membership fee of $1.00 a year, when they save more than that amount on each 8 quart sack of poisoned oats that they buy at a poison mixing bee, which in turn is financed by the membership fees of good, interested Farm Bureau members.

The between acts specialties were songs by Miss Brackett and Jack Blount.

The full appreciation of Mr. Blount's songs was shown by the enthusiastic applause. After the play Mr. Blount performed a clever black face stunt by auctioning off the boxes that had been brot to help raise money for the manual training department.

A Sure Sign of Spring

We are accustomed to hearing the weather prophets tell that we are going to have a late or an early spring, depending on how they feel, and then refer to the ground hog story to prove anything pertaining to the weather. But a really sure sign of spring is to see the new Fords moving out. During the past week we have made deliveries as follows:

Ford Touring Cars to: Albert Theissen. B. F. Widick, A. A. Wilson, Pacific Coast Elevator Co. A Ford Sedan to Kay Thompson, and Roadsters to J. R. McPhail and Henry Jameson, and a Ford one-ton truck to the city of Lewiston.

This demand indicates a shortage of Ford Cars very soon. If you want a Ford this spring, place your order now.

PART II.—One evening he is engaged by Beacher Tremont, notorious profligate, to drive him and Madge Van Teller to a hostelry known as "Greenwood." Aware of the evil nature of the place, Randolph drives the pair to Greenwood cemetery.
Influriated, Beacher gets out of the cab and Randolph leaves him there, taking the girl (who has awakened to a realization of her folly) to her home. Madge recognizes him.

Chapter III. Continued

A silent laugh crept into the eyes of the marblesque Eileen; something inside of her sat up and took notice. She glanced round the room and murmured:

"Mother, she's absolutely right. I'm for her."
"Right! Eileen!" exclaimed Mrs.
Milyuns, flushing in her indignation at finding a traitor in the home camp. "I don't know what your generation is coming to. The impossible is never right."

Having taken up her suave cudgel, Eileen was in no haste to lay it down, and may it be pointed out right here that Miss Imogene Pamela Thornton had the rare faculty of enlisting the nearest bystander to assume her battles for her, thenceforth becoming a charmingly interested onlooker, ready to watch the tide of her own fortune from the vantage-point of an entirely impersonal detachment.

"That's where you slipped, mother," continued the quite unruffled Eileen.
"There's nothing impossible to our generation. Impossibilities are our food, drink and raiment. We're like those surprising orchid things that defy the usual laws and live on air."

"Yes," remarked Mrs. Milyuns; "any new air. But I didn't bring you here, Eileen, to be a stumbling-block to—Pamela, who is suddenly faced with problems in the solution of which she deserves our sympathetic assistance."
"You've hit the nail on the head again, mother," parried Eileen. "You're not in sympathy with her, and I am; so you'd better hand over her check, and tomorrow morning at ten I'll be here to help her cash and spend it—if necessary." She turned to Pamela with a twinkle of anticipation in her eyes.
"How about it?"

Pamela smiled back her bubbling smile, and then suddenly grew grave.
"Do you think I could order by measure?" she asked, and, remarking the hurt astonishment on Eileen's face, continued in rapid but nevertheless halting explanation: "You see, it's Mr. Randolph. This is really his apartment, and he may be back almost any-—any day. I—I don't want to miss him. I—I wouldn't be out when he comes, for anything."

"H'm," interjected Mrs. Milyuns, but before she could make any further progress along that line, Eileen was on her feet and saying good-by among these other things:

"That's all nonsense. If Bobby found you here just as he left you, the first time he decided to turn up, he might never appear again. But if he finds you after two or three unsuccessful calls and just one day's shopping, he will never leave. Tomlinson will have to throw him out."

"Tomlinson couldn't," said Pamela, with calm complacency.

Gradually the sure shot made by Miss Milyuns began to take effect. The thought of new clothes—new smart suits, airy evening nothings, filmy undergarments, and solid-silk hosiery—stole Pamela from her intention of eternal vigilance and led her to say:

"After all, I will go with you, if it really isn't asking too much of you."

Thus was Mrs. Milyuns side-tracked for keeps, and on the following morning the two young ladies were wuffed down-town in Mr. Milyuns' best limousine and proceeded to open a chain of credit-accounts, on the bare say-so of Eileen and in the name of Miss I. P.
Thornton, that spoke volumes for the former's exclusive taste in fashionable purveyors and financial ability to humor it. Possibly the two would have stopped up to the moment of the present writing had it not been for the fact that Pamela knew all about money from the short end.

"I have finished," she suddenly announced.

"Finished what?" asked Eileen.

"Finished shopping," said Pamela.
"I've been keeping account, and I've spent almost the whole check."

"The whole check?" exclaimed Eileen. "Why, you haven't touched it.
That's the beauty of charge accounts.
You can keep your checks to look at.
I've got some that father gave me three years ago."

Pamela smiled a smile of much wisdom and made for the nearest exit. As a matter of polite formality, when they reached Fifty-ninth street, she asked Eileen to come up for lunch from the bachelor's buffet in the basement, and she could not help a slight feeling of relief at the news that Miss Milyuns had promised herself elsewhere.

"But I'll break away and come for tea at five, if you'll let me," said Eileen. "I simply must help you try them all on."

"All right; do," said Pamela, inwardly pleased that she would have some one beside Tomlinson upon whom to flash the first dazzling vision of her metamorphosis.

The first thing she did when she reached the apartment was to ask if Mr. Randolph had called; the next was to summon the office of Milyuns, Branch & Milyuns on the telephone to know what steps had been taken in the new search. She was somewhat surprised to learn that the entire firm had gone out to lunch in a body, and still more startled at the information, obtained three hours later from the same supercilious voice at the other end of the wire, to the effect that none of them had come back. She was young; she believed it.

There's no doubt that in five minutes more Mr. Gloom would have assumed full sway in the late apartment

And Were Soon Involved in an Orgy of Trying On.

of Mr. Robert H. Randolph had not a long procession of parcels begun to arrive in the nick of time. Tomlinson brought them into the bedroom, one, two, three at a haul, and Pamela herself cut the knots with Mr. Randolph's best nail-scissors and laid out the goods, flimsy fold upon flimsy fold.

By the time Eileen turned up the apartment looked like the stateroom de lux of a millionaire young lady returning from Paris with nothing to wear and preparing to swear to it before all the customs officials in Gotham. Tomlinson was ordered to fill the cellar with wrapping-paper, tissue-paper, cardboard boxes and string, burning what was left over in the back yard.

As soon as sufficient space had been cleared for action, the two girls set to work, and were soon involved in such an orgy of "trying on" as only the healthiest stamina of youth could have endured without falling over in a dead faint from exhaustion. Even Eileen divested her person of everything but, and experimented with such dear garments as it seemed impossible Miss Thornton could get round to in the allotted time.

Having tried to show the public how charming was Pamela in and without her cheap clothes, no puerile and gasping effort will be made in these pages to measure the effect upon her of the latest creations of the raiment dreamers of Fifth avenue. Suffice it to say that, in one hour's twinkling of the eye, she became such a radiant vision as chokes mere words down into the pit of a man's stomach, makes his jaw work like that of a fish on a hot sidewalk, fills his eyes with the pleading light of calf-love and inspires his hands with an overmastering desire to reach for it.

For two, four, six days, a week, two weeks, Pamela lived in breathless anticipation of the moment when she could burst upon the eyesight of one Robert Hervey Randolph, and when all these days—and weeks—passed without any news of him, her lips that were made to smile, to kiss, and to bless the air with words softly spoken and carried on the fragrance of clean young breath began to droop pitifully.

Mr. Milyuns' efforts in several directions had so far proved in vain. He had advertised in every paper in Gotham, from the New York Epoch to the pink Police Gazette; he had offered rewards; he had set traps and was now supporting a large corps of rapidly fattening individuals who called themselves "plain-clothes" men—a name that would have fitted them admirably had the last syllable been omitted. His net results were the information that Mr. Randolph, in a reprehensible state of intoxication and at seven o'clock of the morning of which he had disappeared, had exchanged his swell evening garments at a second-hand emporium on Sixth avenue for a suit of thick and eighteen dollars in cash, stating, as he left the place, that he was thinking of going South for the rest of the winter.

After a minute and leisurely study of all the exits from Manhattan, the plain-clothes men had given it as their united opinion that Mr. Randolph had been speaking facetiously in his last-known remark and had probably not voyaged farther south than Canal street. They said if he would only try to leave New York they could find him at once, and settled down on a policy of watchful waiting for that event.

The efforts made by Mr. Milyuns in the direction of springing Miss Thornton on society went equally awry, but were not quite so fruitless. His natural love of a smooth-running establishment on the slippery crust of Gotham's social plane would have been saved a severe bump if American parents were as careful to look up their guests' moral records as they are to study their ratings in Bradstreetum's.

Unfortunately for Mr. Milyuns, it happened that a certain young scion of a once gentlemanly house was included in the first large dinner-box-party given to meet Miss Imogene Pamela Thornton. In the natural course of such events, the pesty youth stepped up for presentation, registering in his protuberant eyes a gleam of dubious surprise. What if he should say, "Hello, Vivienne!" Would it create a sensation?

Something else did; namely, Miss Thornton's modulated but terribly clear voice.

"I met Mr. Beamer," said Pamela, drawing back quickly her half-extended hand, "when I was a chorus-girl." She turned with a winning smile to her recently bearing hostess. "I don't care to know him in pleasanter surroundings."

For one breathless second there threatened one of those silences that spell social disaster. Eileen took it upon herself to wash it in its extreme youth with a soft tap of her efficient hammer.

"Oh, must you really go?" she remarked to Mr. Beamer.

CUSTOMERS SECURED FOR POULTRY SHOWS

Persons at Summer Resorts Buy Produce in Winter.

City People Have Inspected Producers' Farm and Know Under What Conditions Foodstuffs Are Raised—One Case Cited.

Many producers living near summer resorts supply produce in the summer months to the persons at the resorts, and during the other months of the year ship produce to these persons while they are in the city. This, say marketing specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture, is one of the best methods of obtaining customers for direct marketing, as the producer and consumer have some acquaintance. In most instances the customers have been at the producer's farm and know under what conditions the articles are produced.

One man who lives near a summer resort in Indiana is about twelve miles from the nearest town of any size. He does not desire to drive to this town to dispose of his farm produce and is not satisfied with the prices that the hucksters pay. Consequently he built up a business of supplying products to resorters in the summer and of shipping produce by parcel post and express to these persons at their city homes in the winter.

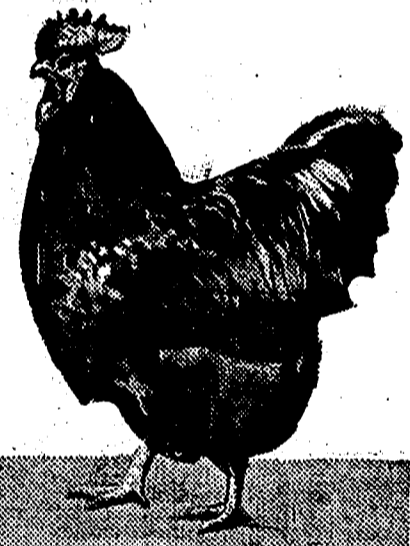

The principal products shipped are butter, eggs and dressed poultry. This producer uses good shipping containers and packs produce attractively. As he is acquainted with his customers, he renders statements of accounts only once a month. In this way the matter of making payments is simplified for the customers.

This producer has had no trouble in establishing his business nor in retaining customers. He states that his only trouble has been in getting enough high-grade produce to supply all of his customers.

OBTAIN BEST HATCHING EGGS

One Male Should Be Used With Every 15 Hens of Breeds Like Orpingtons or Rocks.

The male must be in the flock from ten to fourteen days before the eggs laid can be used for hatching purposes. After the male has been removed from the flock, hatchable eggs will be laid for about three weeks thereafter. To secure good, hatchable eggs, provide one male to every twenty leghorn or other egg breeds; use one male to every fifteen Rocks, Reds, Wyandottes or Orpingtons, and one male to each twelve Langshans, Brahmas or other meat breeds.

BARIUM POISONOUS TO RATS

Tests Indicate That a 20 Per Cent Mixture With Food Makes Most Satisfactory Bait.

A study of barium carbonate as a rat poison, made by the United States Department of Agriculture, indicates that a 20 per cent mixture with food makes a satisfactory bait. With this percentage a rat ordinarily needs to eat only one-third or three-eighths of a meal of average size to get a fatal dose. It was found that with this dose many of the rats poisoned died within 24 hours, though an occasional rat was found which survived an even larger amount, thus indicating that 100 per cent mortality is not to be expected in any case.

A summary of results of experiments conducted by various persons with a view to determining the deadliness of barium to different animals shows the fallacy of the assumption that barium is poisonous only to rats. It is pointed out that the fatal dose of barium per pound tends to decrease relatively as the size of the animal increases, and that a bait calculated to be fatal to rats may be assumed to be more or less dangerous to small domestic animals also.

SUCCULENT FEED FOR FOWLS

Now That Good Qualities of Forages Are Well Known Hens Should Be Given Ample Supply.

Everyone knows that a hen lays best when she gets the succulent grasses that first shoot out of the earth in spring. Most successful feeders use in their washes a base of some heavy, nonfattening, yet nutritious food. For a long time the best feeders of the country used wheat bran for this base, but now that the good qualities of forages are well known the bill of fare should be changed to suit.

MAKING CANVASS TO OBTAIN CITY TRADE

District of Good Incomes Offers Splendid Field.

Success Depends in Large Measure on Personality of Person Soliciting—Good Understanding Is Usually Effected.

Producers sometimes obtain customers by making a personal canvass among city dwellers, say marketing specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. The neighborhood selected should be one which is not well supplied with markets or grocery stores handling farm produce. A suburban district of homes with good incomes offers a good field in which to solicit trade. Success in making a personal canvass depends in a large measure on the personality of the person making the canvass. He should be neatly dressed, should state his business clearly and concisely, showing the prospective customer why direct marketing would be advantageous and, if possible, he should have samples of the produce that can be furnished. As this method of obtaining customers permits the consumer to see and talk with the producer, a better understanding is usually effected than if they had never seen each other.

A man living a few miles from Baltimore, who raised poultry, found it impracticable to market his poultry products personally and was not satisfied with the price he could obtain locally. He made a personal canvass of a few homes in a desirable location in Baltimore and obtained four customers to whom he began sending eggs by parcel post. Within a few weeks they had recommended the producer to a sufficient number of customers to purchase all the eggs and poultry the producer could supply. Customers were retained by supplying good quality products and by strict attention to business relations.

PROPER TIME TO CUT WHEAT

It May Be Done With Safety When Straw Has Lost Nearly All of Its Green Color.

Wheat may be cut with safety when the straw has lost nearly all its green color and the grains are not entirely hardened. If cut sooner than this, shriveled kernels will result. If left standing until fully ripe, a bleached appearance, due to the action of the elements, often results, and loss from shattering may ensue.

HOME-MADE HIDES ARE TOO UNCERTAIN

It Does Not Pay Farmer to Tan His Own Leather.

Packing Houses Have Considerable Advantage Because of Ability to Carefully Grade Skins—Holes Are Avoided.

Apparently it doesn't pay the farmer to tan his own leather. The bureau of chemistry, United States Department of Agriculture, is conducting leather-making experiments upon the scale to which the average farmer would have to adjust his work, and specialists say that the results obtained thus far do not warrant general practice. Good leather can be made in individual tanneries, but the results are too uncertain to give reliable profits.

The work was taken up by the department when it became evident that the farmers were feeling the injustice of a transaction wherein they sold a whole cowhide for less than they paid out for a pair of work shoes—an occurrence not at all unusual. Investigation shows that the leather dealer is not entirely to blame for the low prices that the farmer receives for his hides. Too often the hide from the farm cow is taken off in a careless manner that leaves the skin full of cuts and holes—farm hides are never as uniform as those bought from the packing houses, where the animals are carefully graded and the skins removed by expert skinners. For that reason the hide buyer is always willing to pay more for the packer's product than he can offer the farmer.

Then, too, the farmer sells his cowhide to the junk dealer, who deducts his profit from the price he pays. Whenever it is possible to collect a number of hides and skins it will pay the owner to deal directly with a large dealer, the specialists say.

SUCCESS IN MARKETING

Success in co-operative marketing depends upon obtaining a sufficient volume of business, observing co-operative principles, employing capable management, following up-to-date business methods, and having loyal members.

We Want To Cut Your Production Costs

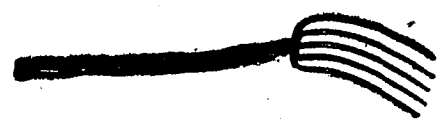

The Answer is: Good Farm Implement -- The Kind We Sell.

We followed the market when prices went up and are following the market now when prices are on the decline. Whenever you purchase from us you are buying on the lowest prevailing market prices on dependable merchandise.

You have been putting off the purchase of needed machinery, for some time. We carry a complete stock of John Deere Implements for your convenience. Prices on steel goods are fairly well established for the year especially on heavy machinery and heavy hardware. Moreover on most lines we are in a position to sell you on today's market and give you the advantage in the future of any decline which may come on a few items as far in the future as next September. It does not pay to do without needed equipment. By having necessary equipment you save in time and labor and get better results.
