

Over The County

Genesee News: There are perhaps few who realize that Genesee has an industry that she should be proud of, and this is none other than the gardens planted and worked by John Maldegen, where seasonable garden truck of all kinds may be had. Last week Mr. Maldegen shipped a truck load of cauliflower, onions and cabbage to the Lewiston Grocery Company—and this in face of the fact that Lewiston has some good gardeners of her own.

Troy News: The parent-teachers association that did such good work here last year will be organized at a meeting to be held on the third Wednesday evening in this month. The official call has not been made yet, but it was announced at a meeting of the commercial club some time ago that this date would be used for the first gathering. This association was one of the effective organizations in Troy last year, and was used as a social gathering as well as one for discussion of the school and home problems. The same method of conducting it will be in vogue again this winter.

Deary Press: The body of Aronid Aosed, another martyred hero of the world war, is in transit home, according to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Aosed, of Avon, and is expected to arrive in about three weeks. The members of Arnold Aosed Post No. 98, American Legion, are preparing to accord their fallen brother in arms a full military funeral.

School Notes

The High School classes have organized during the week and have elected the following officers: For the Freshman class: President, Artyle Hollada; Vice-President, Violet Riley; Treasurer, Dorothy Stanton; Miss Dirks was elected class advisor. Sophomore class: President, Audrey Stanton; Vice-President, Harley Perryman; Sec-Treas., Claud Stanton. Mr. Carlisle was elected class advisor.

Junior class: President, Nell Ameling; Vice-President, Beulah Long; Secretary, Rita Lieth.

Senior class: Pres., Agnes Jones; Mr. Daniels was elected class advisor for the Junior and Senior classes.

Because of the overcrowded condition in second and third grades, these grades are to be divided and a new teacher provided. They will occupy the room formerly occupied by the type-writing class.

With the arrival of the new basket ball, the season has opened with a big turnout of enthusiastic players. With the support they are sure to get from the business men of the town, there is promise of some mighty good games, hard fighting and a winning team. The girls also intend to organize a team soon.

The seventh and eighth grades liberally contributed toward the purchasing of the new basket ball and both boys and girls of these grades will have an opportunity to learn the game.

The first basket ball game is scheduled for October 28th, with the Troy high school in the Kendrick gymnasium, and it is planned to have a Halloween party after the game.

The Modern Health Crusade starts next week in the form of a contest between the grade rooms, to extend until Christmas. A prize is to be awarded to the winning room. The purpose of this crusade is to establish beneficial health habits and it is requested that the parents co-operate in making it a success. The fifth and sixth grades have organized a Health Club and are conscientiously abiding by the rules laid down in the crusade.

Howard Dammarell of the fourth and Kouert Dammarell of the fifth grades are champion spellers of their grades for the month of September. Closely following in the fifth grade are May Forest, Bennie Westendahl, Hugh McDowell, Rush Chamberlain and George Atchison.

Control Contagious Roup

Contagious Roup is a rapidly spreading disease which is very common during the fall and early winter among the poultry flocks of Idaho, according to R. T. Parkhurst, associate professor of poultry husbandry in the College of Agriculture. It causes a heavy loss, not only from a heavy death rate, but also from the interference with egg production and loss of vitality in breeding. It is highly contagious, especially in damp, cold weather, and attacks both young and old stock.

SYMPTOMS: Contagious Roup is probably easier to identify than any other poultry disease. It starts usually like a simple cold, with a thin, watery discharge from the nose and eye. This secretion has a peculiar, offensive odor. Inflammation begins in the nasal passages, eyes, and spaces just below the eyeballs. The birds often cough and sneeze, breathing becomes noisy, and, if the air passages of the nose become entirely blocked, they breathe thru their mouths. The birds soon lose their appetite and become depressed, their wings droop and their feathers ruffle. The secretions from the nose and eye change from fluid to a yellowish, cheese-like mass. This increases rapidly about the eyelids and in the nostrils. One or both eyes become enlarged and swelling may appear on the head.

CONTROL: In most cases, the following procedure is advisable:

1. Dispose of bad cases by killing and burning them.
2. Isolate birds having colds.
3. Be sure quarters are dry and tight on all sides, with adequate opening in the front for ventilation and light to reach every part of the house.
4. Allow at least three square feet floor space per bird.
5. Place a little kerosene on the top of the drinking water or a 7.3-grain mercury-bichloride tablet in a gallon of water in a non-metal container. The tablet should never be used more than ten days in succession.
6. Place one pound epsom salts per one hundred birds, in the drinking water or wet mash.

Will Have Another Teacher

Through the efforts of Prof. Daniels, the Kendrick 2nd and 3rd grades will be divided and will have an extra teacher in charge. Miss Newkirk has nearly 50 pupils in her two grades, the first and second. Half that many in the primary rooms is considered plenty for one teacher. Miss McAllister has over 40 in the 3rd and 4th grades.

The first of the week Prof. Daniels called up the county superintendent, Miss Scattaboe, and informed her of the crowded conditions in these four grades here. He stated that owing to the lack of funds in the district it would be impossible for District No. 24 to pay the salary of another teacher. Miss Scattaboe directed him to secure a teacher and she would guarantee the salary out of the state school funds. This action by the county superintendent will relieve the congested condition of the lower grades and solve a problem which has caused considerable worry to the teachers and members of the school board.

Finished Drying Prunes

J. L. Johnson, who has one of the best kept prune orchards in the country on a point of American ridge, finished drying his prunes this week. He now has seven tons of the dried fruit, four tons being extra fine quality. A part of his orchard is located on a bench of the northeast slope of the canyon. These trees bear a wonderfully fine quality of prunes. Mr. Johnson takes great pains in drying them and has always found a ready market for them because of their quality. He says that the price of dried prunes this season is somewhere in the neighborhood of ten cents a pound.

President Harding Now Heads Red Cross

Farm Bureau Office Moved

The office of the Latah County Farm Bureau and of O. S. Fletcher, County Agricultural Agent, has been moved from the office of the Farmers' Union Warehouse Company on south Main Street Moscow, to the Ostroff office, on Fifth street in the former Shields & Frantz building. The proposition of moving the office has been under consideration for some time, as the Farmers' Union was in need of all the room in their building. Also, the officials of the farm bureau felt that the Union was being subjected to unjust criticism by some who claimed that the Union was deriving direct financial benefit by having the office of the County Agent in the Union Building. The officials of the Farm Bureau do not believe this to be the case, but desire to remove any possible grounds for complaint.

N. Williamson, president of the farm bureau, has given a statement to the press in which he says that during the three and one-half years since the farm bureau was organized, it has been given office room, fuel and light free of all charge by the Farmers' Union, for the purpose of aiding and helping establish the work of the farm bureau in the county, and he believes the management is entitled to credit for its liberality and assistance.

The Latah County farm bureau was organized as, and is now, an educational organization and is not commercial. Through this organization the farmers co-operate with the College of Agriculture and the experiment station and with the United States Department of Agriculture in the solution of their problems. Among the projects on which the farm bureau is working are livestock improvement, grain standardization, weed control, and clearing, pest control and poultry improvement. Farmers in all sections of the country are interested in the work of the Farm Bureau and twenty-four communities have local organizations.

Farmers from any part of the county whether farm bureau members or not, are invited by County Agent Fletcher to call at his new quarters when in Moscow. Mr. Fletcher will continue to hold Saturday of each week as office day, and can be seen in his office on other days by appointment.

Splendid Oyster Dinner

The Methodist Ladies' Aid served a splendid oyster dinner in the church basement last Saturday evening. The cash receipts, however, were not what they should have been, when the quality and service of the meal are taken into consideration. The sum of $30 was taken in—double that amount would have been more in keeping with the work it took to prepare the dinner.

Land Changes Hands

Zieman Bros. last week concluded a deal with Chris Maier for the sale of their 120 acre farm near Southwick. Mr. Maier rented his newly purchased farm to Ralph Wright of Southwick. Zieman Bros. decided to sell the land as their mercantile business at Southwick requires all of their time and attention.

Mr. Maier has another fine farm on American ridge which he has rented to Sidney Dicks. He will retire from active farm work this fall.

Death of Gordon Heath

Word was received here the first of the week of the death of Gordon Heath, who passed away at his home at Marshfield, Oregon. He was afflicted with tuberculosis and died on the operating table.

Gordon Heath was well known here. For many years he lived at Southwick and several years before leaving this community he drove the Southwick stage.

He is survived by a wife and seven children, three brothers, Newt, John and Arthur. On receiving news of his brother's death, John left for Marshfield to assist with the funeral arrangements.

Big Bear Ridge

Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Ware and daughter, Miss Neva, and Mr. Ware's mother, Mrs. Thomas, autoed to Clarkston Saturday, for a visit with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Ingie and son, Dwight and Miss Lacey, autoed to Moscow, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Pete Halseth and children of near Deary were week end visitors at the Ed Halsey home.

Milo Slind was a Lewiston visitor, Saturday.

Mrs. Ole Lien departed, Tuesday, for Spokane, to make the acquaintance of her grandson, who arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Einar Bruseth, October 3rd.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Jones and family have moved on the place recently vacated by the Ed Wegner family.

Miss Bertina Forest attended the Latah County Red Cross meeting held at Moscow, Friday, as a delegate from the local branch.

Services will be held at the Lutheran church Sunday, October 16th, at 10:30 a. m.

Mrs. Anton Nelson entertained the Deary Lutheran Ladies' Aid at her home, Thursday afternoon.

Miss Steward and Miss Dirks have rented the rooms which are being left by Mrs. French. The rooms are completely furnished. Mrs. French will spend the winter in Spokane and plans to return here about March 1, when she will again open "The French Shop."

C. L. Guy received word this week from his son, Dan, who is managing Mr. Guy's general merchandise store at Grangeville, that business was flourishing there and growing fast.

Death of Michael Bleck

Last Friday afternoon the entire community was saddened by the death of Michael Bleck, one of the pioneer residents of this community. Death came after a lingering illness, caused by the after effects of influenza which he had while in Spokane several years ago. He had the best of care and attention by his devoted wife and children, but several weeks before his death it was realized that nothing could be done for him and that it was only a question of a short time until his life thread would break.

Mr. Bleck's kindly personality will be greatly missed in this community. He was a man who had an unusually large number of real friends. Almost every evening during the past summer a number of his friends would gather at his home to spend several hours with him. They enjoyed his company because of his pleasant manners and his kindly disposition which were so characteristic of his everyday life. In his death the community has lost one of its best citizens.

Michael Bleck was born September 19, 1858 in Vandsburg, West Prussia. At the age of fifteen years he came with his parents to America and settled at Green Isle, Minnesota. In 1880 he was married to Amelia Kurzweg, who is now his widow. Six children survive him, two sons and four daughters. They are: Henry and William Bleck, Mrs. Emma Brunsek, Mrs. Russell Rogers, all living near Cameron; Mrs. Charles Thornton of Lewiston, Idaho and Miss Mabel Bleck of Kendrick.

In 1902 he and his family came to Cameron where he farmed successfully for a number of years, later moving to Kendrick where he made his home until 1917 when he moved to Spokane. After partially recovering from an attack of influenza he was advised by his physician to move to a lower altitude, so in 1920 he again came to Kendrick to make his home.

Mr. Bleck was a member of the Lutheran church, having served in the capacity of deacon for many years. While in Kendrick in 1915 he served as a member of the town council and his ideas were always along progressive lines.

A most impressive and largely attended funeral service was held at the Cameron church Sunday, under the direction of Rev. George Finke and Rev. E. A. Rein, the former preaching in German and the latter having charge of the English service. A choir from Kendrick furnished music.

Purchased Dray Line

Archie Clark, who until recently has been farming his father's place on Fix ridge, purchased the business of the Kendrick Dray and Ice Co. from Frank Chamberlain. The deal was made this week and Mr. Clark states that he will take over the management of the business the first of next week. Mr. Chamberlain is undecided as to his next move. The dray business here has been a paying proposition for a good many years as there is a large amount of work along that line in this community.

Golden Chimes Tuesday

Prof. P. Waldio Davis, with his Triple-Toned Chimes, will appear at the Methodist church here Tuesday evening, October 18. He will give a most highly entertaining musical program on his exquisitely toned chimes. This remarkable instrument consists of three bell metal tubes tuned in unison, although an octave apart, and the three tubes constitute triple chime. In all there are twenty-seven chimes in the set. They are manipulated by introducing a trilling effect with the hands, extracting therewith a marvelously exhilarating tone.

Prof. Davis will give a varied program here, consisting of popular, classical and sacred music. He will be assisted by his son at the piano.

Sell Albion Normal Buildings

The state board of education at its meeting directed the auditor of the board to advertise for sealed proposals for the purchase of the Albion State Normal school buildings and grounds as authorized and directed by an act of the 1921 legislature providing for the removal of the normal school to Burley. Possession will be given on or after September 1, 1921, says the Statesman.

Announcement of the board's intention is expected to open one of the bitterest and keenest battles for municipal supremacy staged in the state for some time. It is rumored among statehouse officials that the town of Albion will attempt to fight the removal of the institution to Burley and has already raised sufficient funds with which to finance the fight. Officials also say that both Twin Falls and Pocatello are backing Albion in its fight. Upon just what point the Albion people will attack the law is not known but persons in close touch with the situation say the Albion cause will be hard to beat.

Along with the board's announcement of its intention to sell the Albion holdings comes the question: "What can the buildings be used for?"

The 1921 legislature tried to solve this problem when it was making the law moving the institution by offering the buildings to the state tuberculosis hospital commission but the protest from that body was so loud and long that the matter was soon dropped.

Suggestions of using the buildings for schools devoted to the instruction of persons of certain religious beliefs have also been made.

The location has been described as one suitable for the site of a tuberculosis hospital. The elevation is 5,000 feet, there is an abundant supply of water, the buildings are adapted to the housing of the patients and the 30 acres of land could be used for farming purposes.

Return From Big Hunt

A. W. Longfellow and son, A. L. Longfellow, F. C. Lyons and Oscar Morey returned Monday from a hunting trip in the Red River Springs country, beyond Elk City. They were gone thirteen days and had fine weather during the entire trip. They drove a Sampson truck so there was no time lost in getting to the hunting grounds and returning with the fresh meat.

The party brought three elk back with them and could have shot more, but as they had all the meat they could haul on the truck, they were satisfied with three. Two of the elk had fine horns but the third was a cow elk and furnished the camp with fresh meat.

The trip was unique, as it is seldom that elk hunters go after their game in an auto truck, the approved method being by pack train. This trip however, was a most favored one because of the extremely pleasant weather. The members of the party report a splendid time and ideal conditions all round.

100 Sacks of Wheat

If everyone would donate as generously toward making up the 100 sacks of wheat for the Near East Relief fund, as did William Cox, it would be a case of going over the top with several hundred sacks to spare. Mr. Cox took five sacks to Juliaetta last week, which is enough to keep a child for one year. The donations for Kendrick are not coming in as fast as they should. If you can't bring one sack, bring two or three or five, and leave them at the Kendrick Rochdale Warehouse. Mr. Hanson will see to it that they are cared for and that they will be shipped at the proper time.

Betta, a Fiji nurse, who went to England to care for the children of Sir Cecil Rodwell, governor of Fiji, creates a sensation wherever she goes. Her hair is so bushy that she wears a comb 2 feet high.

At a meeting of the Red Cross at Moscow last week sentiment was very strong for a county nurse. The question will probably be brought up at the meeting in Moscow today. If a county health nurse could accomplish nothing else in Laton county than to convince hundreds of mothers that pickles, pork gravy, etc. are not the best of food for babies, the nurse would be worth her salary in the tummy aches she would save the babies and for their improved physical condition resulting from her work.

A sheriff in Pennsylvania has a dog that barks every time he smells a still. The Philadelphia Ledger wants to know when the poor dog rests.

Suicides have increased 34 per cent during the first 7 months of 1921 as compared to the same months last year, according to figures made public by Coroner Peter M. Hoffman of Chicago. The suicide toll was 365 for the 7 months, with the month of May highest with 57. Three times as many men took their own lives as women.

Some crazy statistician estimates that, taking the whole population of the world, the average person doesn't bathe oftener than once in 42 days. This shows that the soap industry is not afflicted with over-production, but by imperfect distribution.

Ten years ago every other man you met on the street was smoking a cigar, a cigarette or a pipe. If you will notice you will find a small minority now smoke on the street. Men are curtailing their bad habits. To test this out a count was made recently on the main street of a thriving western town. Out of 59 men counted, only 9 were smoking. The great number of men who were not smoking was astonishing. The smoker was the exception, not the rule.

A year ago a billion bushels of wheat could have paid $2,500,000 of the nation's debt; now a billion bushels could pay $1,000,000,000, says the Houston Post. From the wheat growers' standpoint the national debt has been more than doubled.

The big minds of the country don't know what is wrong with the government, but any bench warmer can tell you right off the bat.

Author of "Cappy
Ricks," "The Valley of the Giants," Etc.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—John Stuart Webster, mining engineer, after cleaning up a fortune in Death Valley, Calif., boards a train for the East. He befriends a young lady annoyed by a masquerade, thoroughly trouncing the "pest."

CHAPTER II.—At Denver Webster receives a letter from Billy Geary, his closest friend. Geary urges him to come to Sobrante, Central America, to finance and develop a mining claim. He decides to go.

"You just said a minute ago you'd turned the forty-year post," Jerome warned him. "And you're now going to lose a year or two more in which you might better be engaged laying up a foundation of independence for your old age. For Heaven's sake, man, don't be a fool."

"Oh, but I will be a fool," John Stuart Webster answered; and possibly, by this time, the reader has begun to understand the potency of his middle name—the Scotch are notoriously pig-headed, and Mr. Webster had just enough oatmeal in his blood to have come by that center fire name honestly. "And you, you poor old horse, you could not possibly understand why, if you lived to be a million years old."

He got up from his chair to the full height of his six-foot-one, and stretched 100 pounds of bone and muscle.

"And so I shall go to Sobrante and lose all of this all-important money, shall I?" he jeered. "Then by all the gods of the Open Country, I hope I may. Dad burn you, Neddy, I'm not a Methuselah. I want some fun in life. I want to fight and be broke and go hungry and then make money for the love of making it and spending it, and I want to live a long time yet. I want to see the mirage across the sagebrush and hear it whisper: 'Hither, John Stuart Webster! Hither, you fool, and I'll hornswoggle you again, as in an elder day I hornswoggled you before.'"

Jerome shook his white thatch hopelessly.

"I thought you were a great mining engineer, John," he said sadly, "but you're not. You're a poet. You do not seem to care for money."

"Well," Webster retorted humorously, "it isn't exactly what you might term a ruling passion. I like to make it, but there's more fun spending it. I've made $100,000, and now I want to go blow it—and I'm going to. Do not try to argue with me. I'm a lunatic and I'll have my way. If I didn't go tearing off to Sobrante and join forces with Bill Geary, there to play the game, red or black, I'd feel as if I had done something low and mean and small. The boy's appealed to me, and I have made my answer. If I come back alive but broke, you know in your heart you'll give me the best job you have."

"You win," poor Jerome admitted. "Hold the job open 30 days. At the end of that period I'll give you a definite answer, Neddy."

"I sniff excitement and adventure and profit in Sobrante and I've just got to look-see. I'm like an old burro staked out knee-deep in alfalfa just now. I won't take kindly to the pack—"

"And like an old burro, you won't be happy until you've sneaked through a hole in the fence to get out into a stubble-field and starve." Jerome swore half-heartedly and promulgated the trite proverb that life is just one blank thing after the other—an inchoate mass of liver and disappointment!

"Do you find it so?" Webster queried sympathetically.

Suspecting that he was being twitted, Jerome looked up sharply, prepared to wither Webster with that glance. But no, the man was absolutely serious; whereupon Jerome realized the futility of further argument and gave John Stuart Webster up for a total loss. Still, he could not help smiling as he reflected how Webster had planned a year of quiet enjoyment and Fate had granted him one brief evening. He marveled that Webster could be so light-hearted and contented under the circumstances.

Webster read his thoughts. "Good-bye, old man," he said, and extended his hand. "Don't worry about me. Allah is always kind to fools, my friend; sorrow is never their portion. In answering Billy's call I have a feeling that I am answering the call of a great adventure."

He did not know how truly he spoke, of course, but if he had, that knowledge would not have changed his answer.

CHAPTER III.

The morning following his decision to play the role of angel to Billy Geary's mining concession in Sobrante, John Stuart Webster, like Mr. Pepps, was up betimes.

Nine o'clock found him in the office of his friend Joe Daingerfield, of the Bingham engineering works, where, within the hour, he had in his characteristic decisive fashion purchased the machinery for a ten-stamp mill. It was a nice order, and Daingerfield was delighted.

"This is going to cost you about half your fortune, Jack," he informed Webster when the order was finally made up.

Webster grinned. "You don't suppose I'm chump enough to pay for it now, do you, Joe?" he queried.

"I'm going first to scout the country and in the meantime keep all this stuff in your warehouse until I authorize you by cable to ship, when you can draw on me at sight for the entire invoice with bill of lading attached. If, upon investigation, I find that this mine isn't all my partner thinks it is, I'll cable a cancellation and you can tear that nice fat order up and forget it."

From Daingerfield's office Webster went forth to purchase a steamer trunk, his railway ticket and sleeping car reservation—after which he returned to his hotel and set about packing for the journey.

Old Neddy Jerome, as sour and cross as a setting hen, accompanied him in the taxicab to the station, loth to let him escape and pleading to the last, in a forlorn hope that Jack Webster's better nature would triumph over his friendship and boyish yearning for adventure. He clung to Webster's arm as they walked slowly down the track and paused at the steps of the car containing the wanderer's reservation, just as a porter, carrying some hand baggage, passed them by, followed by a girl in a green tailor-made suit. As she passed, John Stuart Webster looked fairly into her face, started as if bee-stung, and hastily lifted his hat. The girl briefly returned his scrutiny with sudden interest, decided she did not know him, and reproved him with a glance that even passed old Neddy Jerome did not fail to assimilate.

"Wow, wow!" he murmured. "The next time you try that, Johnny Webster, be sure you're right—"

"Good land o' Goshen, Neddy," Webster replied. "Fry me in bread crumbs, if that isn't the same girl! Let me go, Neddy. Quick! Good-bye, old chap. I'm on my way."

"Nonsense! The train doesn't pull out for seven minutes yet. Who is she, John, and why does she excite you so?"

"Who is she, you ancient horse thief? Why, if I have my way—and I'm certainly going to try to have it—she's the future Mrs. W."

"Alas! Poor Yorick, I knowed him well," Jerome answered. "Take a tip from the old man, John. I've been through the mill and I know. Never marry a girl that can freeze you with a glance. It isn't safe. By the way, what's the fair charmer's name?"

"I've got it down in my memorandum book, but I can't recall it this minute—Spanish name."

"John, my dear boy, be careful," Neddy Jerome counseled. "Stick to your own kind of people— is this —a—er—a nice girl, John?"

"How do I know—I mean, how dare you ask? Of course, she's nice. Can't you see she is? And besides, why should you be so fearful—"

"I'll have you understand, young man, that I have considerable interest in the girl you're going to marry. By the way, where did you first meet this girl? Who introduced you?"

"I haven't met her, and I've never been introduced," Webster complained, and poured forth the tale of his adventure on the train from Death Valley. Neddy was very sympathetic.

"Well, no wonder she didn't recognize you when you saluted her tonight," he agreed. "Thought you were another brute of a man trying to make a mash. By thunder, Jack, I'm afraid you made a mistake when you shed your whiskers and buried your old clothes."

"I don't care what she thinks. I found her. I lost her, and I've found her again; and I'm not going to take any further chances."

The porter, having delivered his charge's baggage in her section, was returning for another tip. Webster reached out and accosted him.

"Henry," he said, "where did you stow that young lady's hand baggage?"

"Lower Six, Car Nine, sah."

"I have a weakness for colored boys who are quick at figures," Webster declared, and dismissed the porter with the gratuity. He turned to Jerome.

"Neddy, I feel that I am answering the call to a great adventure," he declared solemnly.

"I know it, Jack. Good-bye, son, and God, bless you. If your fit of insanity passes within 90 days, cable me; and if you're broke, stick the Colorado Con. for the cable tolls."

"Good old wagon!" Webster replied affectionately. Then he shook hands rapidly down the track to Car 9, climbed aboard, and made his way to Lower 6. The young lady in the green tailor-made suit was there, looking idly out of the window.

"Young lady," Jerome began, "may I presume to address you for a moment on a matter of great importance to you? Don't be afraid of me, my dear. I'm old enough to be your father, and besides, I'm one of the nicest old men you ever met."

She could not forbear a smile. "Very well, sir," she replied.

Neddy Jerome produced a pencil and card. "Please write your name on this card," he pleaded, "and I'll telegraph what I want to say to you. There'll be a man coming through this car in a minute, and I don't want him to see me here. Please trust me, young lady."

The young lady did not trust him, however, although she wrote on the card. Jerome thanked her and fled as fast as his fat old legs could carry him. Under the station arc he read the card.
