

Care of Winter Vegetables

"As cold weather approaches we should plan to care for the surplus vegetables still found in the gardens", advises Prof. C. C. Vincent, the horticultural department. Following the directions given below many kinds of vegetables may be kept during the entire winter. Cabbage can remain in the garden until hard freezing weather, after which it may be kept sound by several methods. One of the simplest is to dig a shallow trench in a well drained portion of the garden and place the cabbage roots up in it, and cover with straw and loose earth. For other vegetables such as potatoes, beets and turnips select a well drained location, make a shallow excavation, about six inches deep, line it with straw or similar material, and place the vegetables in a conical pile on the lining. Cover the vegetables with the lining material and carry it up several inches above the apex of the pile, having it extend thru the dirt covering for ventilation. The top needs to be covered with a piece of tin or board to keep out the rain and snow. The pile should be covered with 2 or 3 inches of dirt, and the thickness increased with colder weather.

These pits are rather inconvenient to get at in winter, and a good plan is to bury several kinds of vegetables together in about the proportion they will be used on the table, and take them out at the same time.

Another good plan with cabbage is to pull them roots and all, and set them side by side in a shallow trench of any width up to 8 or 10 feet, and as long as necessary.

Cover the roots with earth. Erect a frame of rails, boards or poles about 2 feet high; place poles across, bank the sides with dirt and cover the top with straw or corn fodder. When the heads are cut, leave the roots and they will furnish early greens in the spring.

Turnips and beets may be left in the field until a freeze sufficient to make light ice, when they should be taken up and stored in pits or cellars. The same is true of carrots and salsify. Parsnips can stay in the ground all winter and improve with freezing, the only trouble being to dig them when needed. It will be found advisable to dig a half peck or peck at a time during the winter.

Later potatoes should be left in the ground until the tops die or are killed by frost, and then dug before the ground freeze. They may be stored in pits like those described for root vegetables, or in well ventilated cellars.

Drugged a Lifetime For $18

A home convenience survey the other day discovered a farm wife nearly 70 years of age, who had walked 5,710 miles to and from the household water supply. In the 50 years she had lived on the same farm she had traveled daily to the well, which was 140 feet from the house, and had carried nearly 2,000 tons of water. The survey showed, moreover, that the pipe could be extended from the well to the house and the pump moved inside the kitchen for $18.

This happened, according to the official report, in a populous state east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio river; but similar instances may come to light anywhere unless certain parties invest promptly in better facilities for their housekeepers.—Western Breeders Journal.

Worsley Rented Ranch

Dick Worsley, who arrived here a few weeks ago from Arcadia, Kansas, rented his Cedar Creek ranch near Crescent to Elmer Hudson and Mr. Quick, for a period of three years. Mr. Quick is from the Big Hole Basin country in Montana.

Mr. Worsley returned to Kansas the first of the week where he will continue to make his home.

Over The County

Star-Mirror: The teachers' joint institute for central Idaho will be held at Lewiston next week, beginning Monday, the 31st, and continuing for five days. Nez Perce, Lewis, Latah and Clearwater counties, Idaho, and Asotin county, Washington, will be represented at the meeting, which will be held in the state normal building at Lewiston. It is expected 700 teachers will be in attendance.

Superintendent Ph. Soulen of the Moscow schools is named as one of the institute instructors. Other instructors are: W. H. Carothers, of Emporia, Kansas; John G. Werner, of the Albion normal school; Jas. M. O. Gorman of the state university; Miss Josephine Fitzgerald, of the Cheney normal school Ethel E. Redfield, state superintendent; Professor Neilsen, of Nampa; President O. M. Elliott, of Lewiston normal school; C. L. Harlaon, of Lewiston normal.

Superintendent Joel Jenifer of Lewiston is institute director, and he has the assistance of an executive committee made up of the county superintendents.

Genesee News: Last Saturday afternoon between 1 and 2 o'clock, while Lou House and Chas. Odenberg were driving in Mr. House's car in the Blaine section, they happened to come up behind Joe Turtling, who was inspecting culverts in that section. Mr. Turtling had stopped his car on the left-hand side of the road and stepped from the front door just as Mr. House came along, not knowing that Mr. House was following him, and stepped in front of the House car, which knocked him down and passed over him—"and never touched him".

Mr. House was very much alarmed and stopped his car at once and went to Mr. Turtling, who had gotten up before Mr. House could get to him, to ascertain if he were badly injured, and was very much relieved to find that no more serious damage had been done than that Mr. Turtling's face was somewhat skinned and bruised.

No blame was laid upon Mr. House for the accident and Mr. Turtling is none the worse for his experience, although it might have been much worse.

Julietta Record: It is expected that the Julietta cannery will reopen soon for canning apples. Lloyd Anderson, who is getting the machinery in shape for the work, has no definite knowledge as to the opening date, and will not know until Mr. Mahon comes up from Lewiston. The plant will start as soon as things are ready.

Troy News: J. B. Watson made an extended trip to coast points last week and brought home evidence of the superior quality of the output of the Idaho Fire Brick company here in the form of orders which he captured against the field manufacturers by sheer superiority of the goods. These sales which will fill seven cars were made in Everett, Seattle, Tacoma, Centralia and Portland, and were all placed with companies needing a fine quality for use in fire boxes of boilers and other places where great heat is used. Mr. Watson was much elated over the orders, as it means steady work at the plant for some time. He stated that he found business on the upward trend all over the coast district and much optimism as to the future.

Sheriff Arrests Wild Man

Sheriff John L. Woody, with his deputy, Charles Summerfield, arrested a "wild man" at the Jones place on Randall Flats, where he has been living in the woods for the past month. When he was arrested he was carrying a rifle, knife and hand axe. He gave his name first as Bartlett and later as Bert Johnson. His clothes were in rags and he wore rubber boots with gunny sacks for socks. The authorities believe him to be insane.

Former Symphony Harpist and Pianiste Now Heading Own Concert Company

Eleanor DeMarco, of DeMarco-Aistrup Entertainers, Has Played Under Baton of Leading Symphony Conductors.

Before engaging in lyceum work Miss Eleanor De Marco was a well known symphony soloist. Her success as harpist with some of the leading symphony orchestras of the country, led her to engage in the bigger field of concert work. She is today one of lyceum's best known and most talented artists. Associated with Miss De Marco is Lowell Aistrup the well known young American violinist, who is rapidly coming into his own. Mr. Aistrup is a composer of considerable note. The De Marco-Aistrup Company features

Alec Galloway

One of the most largely attended funerals ever held in this community was that of Alec Galloway last Sunday afternoon, on Big Bear ridge. Friends from all over the Potlatch country gathered to pay this last tribute to the memory of their friend and neighbor.

The church service was conducted in a most impressive manner by Rev. Howard W. Mort, Methodist minister of Kendrick, after which the I. O. O. F. Lodge took charge of the burial service, internment being made in the Wild Rose cemetery.

Alexander Galloway was born at Flat Creek, Missouri, in 1864. On July 4, 1888 he was married to Miss Kate Baker, then of Springfield, Missouri. In 1899 they moved to Idaho, locating on Big Bear ridge, where they lived happily until his death.

Mr. Galloway is survived by his wife, two daughters, Mary, and Mrs. Charles Bower; six sons, John, Hiram, Edward, Ducey, Andrew and Henry; two sisters, Mrs. Jane Tompson of Springfield, Missouri and Mrs. Katherine King of Murtaugh, Idaho; four brothers, Charles of Co-burg, Montana; Nath of Los Angeles, California; Abe of Caw City, Oklahoma, and Jack of Springfield, Missouri.

Mr. Galloway was one of the prominent and successful farmers of the Potlatch country. He was a director in the Kendrick State Bank and was always active in community affairs. For years he was a member of the I. O. O. F. lodge of Kendrick and was one of its most enthusiastic supporters.

On October 4, 1921, Mr. and Mrs. Galloway departed for a visit to their old home in Springfield, Missouri. Shortly after their arrival there, Mr. Galloway was taken ill. Following an operation at a Springfield hospital, he passed away on Saturday, October 15, at 1 p. m., at the age of 57 years.

Jap Didn't Stay Long

Mr. Clark, who has been section boss here for some time, and who is well liked by the people of this community, was "bumped" this week. His place was taken by a Japanese, who had seniority rights. A petition was circulated and liberally signed by the business men of Kendrick to have a white man put in charge of the section here.

The Jap arrived on the afternoon train Tuesday. He was allowed to see the petition shortly after his arrival and, probably feeling that public sentiment was not very favorable toward his staying, he left on the night train. Mr. Clark is still in charge of the section.

Pig Clubs to Spokane

The members of the Southwick and Leland pig clubs shipped 14 head of fine Duroc hogs to the Livestock Show in Spokane the first of the week. The five members of each club also went to Spokane where they will be the guests of Armour & Co. for the week.

Last February, through the efforts of County Agent Skuse, two pig clubs were formed on Potlatch ridge, consisting of five members in each club. Each boy in his club received a registered Duroc Jersey brood sow from Armour & Co. The sows cost them nothing, but Armour & Co. reserved the right to select the first and third best pig from each litter. These pigs were to be exhibited at the Livestock Show in Spokane in competition for prizes. After the show they become the property of Armour & Co. The brood sow and the rest of the litter are the property of the boy club member. Only 14 hogs were in the shipment to Spokane, as some of the litters were small and Armour & Co. only took one pig from each of them. Several hogs in the bunch, at the age of six months, weighed 300 pounds. They were splendid types and spoke well of the care given them by the boys.

The pig clubs have been highly successful on Potlatch ridge, and will undoubtedly be the means of stocking that community with a good type of Duroc hogs. The clubs have also stimulated a keen interest on the part of the boys, in the matter of raising better hogs.

Circle Card Club

One of the pleasant social functions of the season was the banquet and dance Tuesday evening, given by the Circle Card Club. The affair was held in the dining room of the Fraternal Temple, which was festive in decorations appropriate to Halloween. The appointments of a long table in the center of the room, were most pleasing, with cut flowers and Halloween decorations in profusion. Places were laid for twenty-two and to these fortunate people, a delightful four course dinner was served by Miss Rita Leith and Miss Beulah Long, after which dancing and cards were indulged in until a late hour.

Guests of the club were Messrs. and Mesdames Deobald, Hanson, Ditley and Hill; members of the club were present as follows: Messrs. and Mesdames Boyd, Rogers, Leith, Kite, McCrery, E. Long and MacPherson.

Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Callison were Lewiston visitors last Saturday.

Will Arrest Hunters

Tribune: The announcement is expected soon of the arrest of seven persons who came, October 8, from the hot springs on the Lochsa river, a tributary to the Middle Fork of the Clearwater, and came through Orofino, bringing seven Elks' heads, but with only about 250 pounds of meat. Deputy Game Warden H. L. Walrath, of Clearwater county, stopped the party and made an examination of the outfit.

Afterwards, in company with L. G. Hornby, supervisor of the Clearwater national forest, Warden Walrath went into the Lochsa, where the game was killed, the trip being a difficult one, the place being known as the Jerry Johnson hot springs, a wonderful game country, and found that a great amount of game had been destroyed. This was in Idaho county, and, on Tuesday, accompanied by Warden A. R. Johnson, of Lewiston, Warden Walrath went to Grangeville and swore out warrants for seven men, who are said to be residents of Latah county. Both of these officials express their appreciation of the excellent cooperation accorded them by the forestry officials.

Noted Cattle Killer Killed

Lobo, the wolf, king of the Arizona cow killers is dead. After a long and successful career as a cattle bandit on the Arizona plains he has bitten the dust at the command of a Government hunter, who brought him down with one shot from a rifle. And at that the rifle had the rear sight missing.

For three years, according to the report received by the Biological Survey, United States Department of Agriculture, Lobo has taken toll of purebred Hereford stock near Kingman, eluding all hunters and leading apparently a charmed life. Once in two weeks the old bandit of the plains went over his trail. On one ranch alone 50 fine white faced yearlings have fallen victim to his skill and cunning within a year. Several other ranches tell similar stories of Lobo's depredations.

Perhaps it was the old wolf's belief that his luck would last forever; perhaps it was that he was getting old; anyway, he got careless. Wary of men, the big fellow didn't mind the near approach of an automobile containing the hunter—and fell at the first crack of the rifle. He weighed 78 pounds after the skin from the shoulders to the head was removed and was the largest wolf ever seen on the range.

Cattle and rangers of Arizona are sleeping easier as a result of Lobo's death, and several thousand dollars in stock will be saved annually.

Will Run Special Train

A special train will leave Moscow at 6:30 p. m., Wednesday, November 9, bound for Boise, to take loyal Idaho rooters to the Wyoming-Idaho football game to be played on Armistice day. The "North Idaho Special" will carry at least 125 persons. It will arrive in Boise Thursday, November 10, and returning will leave Boise at 11 p. m. Saturday, November 12, arriving at Moscow at 5 p. m. Sunday. A committee composed of R. W. Morse, N. P. agent at Moscow, Geo. Lamphere and C. B. Green, have charge of the arrangements for the special and anyone wishing to reserve passage on the train may do so by communicating with any member of the committee. The round trip fare is $22.50.

Quarterly Conference

W. H. Forsyth, district superintendent, will arrive here this afternoon from Moscow to hold quarterly conference tonight. Sunday he will preach in the Methodist church in the morning. In the evening Rev. Gibbs of Arrow will conduct the service.

Tax Rolls Complete

The arduous task of computing, extending, recapping, and abstracting the taxes upon the face of the 1921 real property tax rolls has just been completed in the office of Homer E. Estes, county auditor, says the Star-Mirror. The tax rolls have been turned over to the office of the county treasurer and tax collector and the amount of all taxes extended upon said rolls are charged up to this official for tax collecting. The total assessed valuation upon the tax rolls, deducting the amount of all exemptions, is the sum of $20,438,779.00, and the total of all taxes to be collected total the sum of $597,001.39. The distribution of this tax and the funds to which it will be applied, and who will be finally responsible for the careful expenditure of this tax money is shown below. With this idea in view the county auditor has worked out the following distribution showing to just what proportion this amount is raised, and expended, by the county and state, and the local taxing districts and municipalities:

State of Idaho (all departments - - - - -)	$116,764.56
School Districts	$148,724.87
General School	85,842.91
Total for School Dist.	$234,567.78
Highway and Road Districts	$117,106.16
General Road	8,175.52

Total for Highways	$125,281.68
Cities and Villages	69,278.96
County Current Expense	51,096.6
Rodent Control assessment	11.45

Grand total tax - $597,001.39 Both the county and state taxes are materially lower than the taxes for the same funds last year, and while the total tax to be collected from the real property tax rolls of 1921 totals $27,042.45 more than the total amount collected from the 1920 Tax Rolls, this increase is all, (and more) made up from the local taxing districts and from taxes that have been voted, or assessed locally. For instance the special school district taxes are $25,599.14 more this year, the highway district taxes $3,375.77 more, and the City and Village special taxes $10,882.77 more.

This tax roll work calls for careful, and painstaking auditing and accounting on the part of the county auditor's office, and those in charge of this work as same must be checked, audited, and balanced, from every angle and phase of the work, have this year been balanced and finished ahead of schedule time, and before the time called for, or required by law.

The office of Ione S. Adair, tax collector will now be very busy for several weeks writing up tax notices and receipts, and preparing for the work of collecting this tax, payment of which may start with the fourth Monday of November, or November 28, and can be paid up to and including the fourth Monday of December, or December 26 after which date taxes become delinquent.

Hunters Empty Handed

The members of the Bear ridge hunting party who returned last week from a trip to Goat Mountain, on the North Fork of the Clearwater, failed to get any game. The party was made up of Gabe Forest, Percy Ware, Harvey and Frank Fairfield, and John Stevens. They were out about two weeks and while the trip was an enjoyable one, the entire absence of game proved a disappointment, as the Goat Mountain country is considered a good game country.

The party lost two horses in the mountains. One of them injured his leg and had to be shot while the other made a break for freedom and disappeared in the woods and was never found. The animal had a saddle on and part of the provisions and clothing of the party were tied to the saddle and lost with the horse.

Take a drive through the Potlatch country and one of the most noticeable features of the farm buildings generally, is their lack of paint. Most of them apparently haven't been painted for years. It gives the country a run down appearance which it ought not to have. Farm buildings freshly painted add wonderfully to the appearance of the farm and give a better tone to the country in general.

According to regulations issued from the treasury department at Washington the first of the week, the manufacture and use of beer for medical purposes will soon be in effect. In case of sickness a doctor may give a prescription which will entitle the holder thereof to purchase 2 1/2 gallons, or practically a case of beer. Two quarts of wine may also be had on prescription and a pint of spirituous liquors. If these regulations are actually put into operation there will no doubt be the greatest wave of illness over the country in the history of the world. The doctor will spring into prominence as the most popular man of the community and will be able to control more influence than a ward politician.

The game of chess seems to have been known in Hindoostan by the name of Cheturang. Consequently they altered the name to Shetranj. Though at one time the Chinese claimed to have played chess in 174 B. C., the Hindus played it long before that time.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER COMPANY
149 William Street, New York

How to make it

Use level measurements for all materials

1/2 cup shortening	1/2 cup sugar
Grated rind of 1/4 orange	1 egg and 1 yolk
2 1/2 cups flour	4 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
1 cup milk	1/2 squares (1 1/2 oz.) of unsweetened chocolate (melted)
1/4 teaspoon salt

* Cream shortening. Add sugar and grated orange rind. Add beaten egg yolks. Sift together flour, salt and Royal Baking Powder and add alternately with the milk; lastly fold in one beaten egg white. Divide batter into two parts. To one part add the chocolate. Put by tablespoons, alternating dark and light batter, into three greased layer cake pans. Bake in moderate oven 20 minutes.

FILLING AND ICING

3 tablespoons melted butter	2 tablespoons orange juice
3 cups confectioner's sugar	1 egg white
(powdered sugar may be used but does not make as smooth icing)	3 squares (3 oz.) unsweetened chocolate
Grated rind of 1/4 orange and pulp of 1 orange

Put butter, sugar, orange juice and rind into bowl. Cut pulp from orange, removing skin and seeds, and add. Beat all together until smooth. Fold in beaten egg white. Spread this icing on layer used for top of cake. While icing is soft, sprinkle with unsweetened chocolate shaved in fine pieces with sharp knife (use 1/2 square). To remaining icing add 1/2 squares unsweetened chocolate which has been melted. Spread this thickly between layers and on sides of cake.

RED CROSS WORKING FOR HEALTHIER U. S.

Thousands Aided by Instruction in Care of the Sick, Food Selection and First Aid.

How the American Red Cross guides thousands of persons to health is shown in a summary of the society's activities in the health field based upon the annual report for the last fiscal year. Through its Nursing Service, its Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick courses, nutrition classes, First Aid classes, Life-Saving classes and Health Centers and in numerous other ways designed to acquaint masses of citizens with proper methods of living, the Red Cross carried its message of health into all parts of the country.

The work of the Red Cross during the war in its traditional field of nursing, furnishing the military and naval establishments of the nation with 19,877 nurses, is well known. And there are today 37,787 nurses registered with the American Red Cross and subject to call in emergency. During the fiscal year, 1,551 Red Cross nurses were accepted for assignment to Government service, 388 by the Army and Navy and 1,163 by the United States Public Health Service.

In addition to the nurses enrolled by the Red Cross for Government service, the Red Cross itself employed a total of 1,348 public health nurses in the United States and Europe. By far the greatest number was employed in the United States, 1,257, while 81 were in foreign service.

Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick classes, giving thorough instruction in the proper care of the sick in instances where the illness is not so serious as to require professional nursing care, during the fiscal year numbered 5,179. A statistical picture of the Red Cross operations in this field follows:

New classes formed during year	5,179
Classes completed during year	6,299
New students enrolled	101,008
Students completing course	73,432

What the Red Cross accomplished in giving proper instruction through its Nutrition Service is indicated by the following table:

New classes formed during year	142
Classes completed during year	186
New students enrolled	2,341
Students completing course	2,013

In addition to the above, a total of 22,006 children were given instruction in the proper selection and preparation of foods.

Through its 260 Health Centers, the Red Cross reached 90,252 persons. In these Health Centers, 4,015 health lectures were given and 780 health exhibits held.

In the United States last year, 75,432 persons were killed and 3,500,000 injured in industrial accidents. To prevent this enormous waste the Red Cross held 5,100 first aid classes with a total of 104,000 students enrolled.

EXERCISE FOR ADULTS

GEORGE J. FISHER, M. D.

THE history of man is that he has always been accustomed to vigorous bodily exercise. Consequently his muscles are numerous and large. About half the body weight is made up by the muscles. Thus they constitute a large part of his being. Furthermore, in his development the muscles came first. Heart, lungs, liver, nervous system, all came later. They came as a result of muscle contraction. When muscles were used in a greater variety of ways then there was need for richer blood, more elaborate digestion, and a nervous system to control them. Half the brain in fact is given over to the care of the muscles. Thus we see that muscles are exceedingly important organs. They are related to all the organs of the body. They are most closely connected with the nerves of the body and are very directly related to the brain. Well-toned, active muscles mean a good heart, strong lungs, good digestion, fine circulation, nervous control, and mental vigor. When the muscles get flabby and lose their tone the blood gets sluggish, the lungs lazy, the nerves jumpy, and the brain dull. You cannot neglect the muscles without feeling the results at many important points.

Now unfortunately most of our work today does not make sufficient demand upon our muscles. A great deal of it is done sitting still or standing still, and we were never made to sit still or stand still. We were made to be physically active. Most of the big muscles are quite closely related to the legs. We should concern ourselves with leg activity. Walking, slow running, leg bending, and body bending, and twisting from the hips are necessary. Note how quickly rapid walking or body bending affects our breathing, the heart rate, and if more prolonged, the digestion. Most of our ailments such as indigestion, short wind, dullness of the head, are due to muscle inactivity. Provide the activity and these will disappear. A brisk walk several times a day, indulgence in some favorite physical game once or twice a week, some muscle exercises in morning and evening, a daily sponge bath with a brisk rub will put most of us in excellent condition if practiced regularly. On the other hand to neglect this practice may result in a tendency toward sluggishness, occasional bilious attacks, chronic colds, increase of weight so characteristic now of mid-life, and shallow breathing.

Some of us too are in lines of work which tend to contract the chest, round the shoulders, bring the head forward, or push the lower part of the abdomen downward and forward, and thus lower the tone of muscles and the bodily organs which are closely related to them. In such cases exercises should be taken to counteract these conditions. All exercise should be taken with the head up, shoulders high, chest raised, and back slightly arched; when this is done it helps to keep the body in these positions.

People who may be in occupations which overexert certain parts should by relaxation rest the parts affected. Those who stand a great deal should lie down when resting with feet slightly elevated. Rubbing of the tired parts in the direction toward the heart after a hot bath of the parts followed by cold will relieve the tension and the fatigue.

Most adults need vigorous exercise of the muscles located between the shoulders and the knees. Those who wish a special set of exercises I should advise to secure a copy of the Boy Scout Handbook. The chapter on Health and Endurance contains a good drill for daily use.

SOWING TURNIPS TO FOLLOW VEGETABLES

No Better Crop to Utilize Vacant Spaces in Gardens.

They Are Useful for the Table, and to a Limited Extent Will Supply Place of Potatoes—Reasonably Rich Soil Needed.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

As a crop to utilize garden space after early vegetables have been harvested, nothing is better than turnips. Turnips should be planted in most parts of the country about July 25, but in the extreme South as late as the last of August and can be left in the ground until after several light frosts or all winter in the South. They are useful as a table vegetable, and to a limited extent, will supply the place of potatoes. It is the general opinion of specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture that the American public could consume many more turnips than it does, a fact of particular interest this year when there seems every indication of a curtailed potato crop.

For field sowing, turnips are usually broadcasted. The particular requirement is a reasonably rich soil finely raked and leveled off to avoid water collecting in pools. The seed should be sowed sparingly. One homely rule is to take the quantity which seems sufficient and divide it in half. After the seeds have been scattered on the surface of the ground, they should be raked in. This may be done by dragging a piece of brush over the ground. The surface should be well smoothed. It is a good plan to sow turnips just after a rain, giving them opportunity to sprout before a crust forms. After sowing, they will need little attention until harvest.

Condemned.

Well, we are all condemned as Victor Hugo says; we are all under sentence of death, but with a sort of indefinite reprieve... we have an interval, and then our place knows us no more. Some spend this interval in listlessness, some in high passions, the wisest, at least among "the children of this world," in art and song.—Walter Pater, in The Renaissance.

GRAIN OF SUPERIOR QUALITY IN DEMAND

Frequent Use of Cleaning Equipment Is Profitable.

Financial Loss Caused by Presence of Impurities, Foreign Matter or High Moisture Content—Elevator Not at Fault.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

While equipment for cleaning and conditioning grain is expensive, country elevators will find that its use frequently improves the quality of the grain and increases its market value, say specialists of the bureau of markets, United States Department of Agriculture. Sometimes grain comes to the elevator in poor condition, often being dirty, dusty, or with high moisture content, and unless the quality is improved by cleaning or drying the grain cannot be disposed of advantageously.

Moreover, grain containing impurities, foreign matter, or a high moisture content is quite likely to become hot in transit, which greatly reduces its value and frequently results in serious financial loss. If the elevator is not provided with suitable equipment for this process, such grain must be shipped in the condition in which it is received.

The farmer should not place all responsibility for cleaning grain on the elevator, it is believed. It should be remembered that elevator managers do not pay grain prices for the dirt and water found in a farmer's grain. The price should be established by taking into consideration the necessary expense of placing the grain in marketable condition. The farmer who delivers clean, dry, sound grain should receive a premium over the

CANDLE AND GRADE ALL EGGS

Department of Agriculture Endeavoring to Teach Women Best Ways of Marketing.

Farm women frequently have entire charge of the marketing of eggs, butter and poultry. In some states they form what are called "egg circles" for marketing their eggs in large quantities. The eggs are collected regularly by one of the members or by some one hired by the circle. Efforts are being made by marketing agents of the United States Department of Agriculture to teach these farm women the value of properly candling and grading the eggs so that only the best are marketed.

BANTAMS INTEREST CHILDREN

Few of Small Fowls Keep Young People Out of Mischief and Teach Them to Like Poultry.

Bantams are very interesting to children, and even if it does not pay in dollars and cents to keep a small flock of bantams yet many families have found a few of these small fowls useful to interest the children, keep them out of mischief and teach them to like poultry.

Effects of Sun Spots.

Magnetic storms manifest themselves by their effect on electrical apparatus and are visible as the aurora polaris. Because such storms frequently coincide with sun spots, it is believed that the atmosphere of the earth is in some way ionized by the sun. The sun spots are believed to shoot huge charges into space as a shotgun discharge shot. When the earth gets into the path of such a bombardment we have auroral displays and other magnetic disturbances.—Youth's Companion.

CHAPTER II.—At Denver Webster receives a letter from Billy Geary, his closest friend. Geary urges him to come to Sobranite, Central America, to finance and develop a mining claim. He decides to go.

CHAPTER III.—Dolores Ruey, the young woman Webster befriended, and who has made a deep impression on him, as he has on her, is also on the way to Sobranite.

(Chapter IV Continued)

For two months he had existed entirely because of the leniency of Mother Jenks in the matter of credit. He could not pay her cash, devoutly as he hoped to do some day, and he considered it of the most vital importance that in the interim he should somehow survive. Therefore, in lieu of cash he paid her compliments, which she snatched up greedily.

An inventive genius was Billy. He never employed the same defensive tactics two days in succession, and when personal flattery threatened to fall him, a large crayon reproduction of the late Henry Jenks, which hung over the back bar, was a never-failing source of inspiration.

This was the "sainted 'Enery" previously referred to by Mother Jenks.
He had been a sergeant in Her Britanic Majesty's Royal Horse artillery, and upon retiring to the reserve had harkened to a proposition to emigrate to Sobranite and accept a commission
as colonel of artillery with the government forces then in the throes of a revolutionary attack. The rebels had triumphed, and as a result 'Enery had been sent via the customary expeditious route; whereupon his wife had had recourse to her early profession of barmaid, and El Buen Amigo had resulted.

However, let us return to our sheeps, as Mr. Geary would have expressed it. Seemingly the effect of Billy's compliment was instantly evident, for Mother Jenks set out two glasses and a bottle.

"I know yer a trifier, Willy Geary," she simpered, "but if I do s'y it as shouldn't, I was accounted as 'and-some a barmaid as you'd find in Bristol town. I've lost my good looks, what with grief an' worritin' since rosin' my sainted 'Enery, but I was
'andsome once."

"I can well believe it, Mother—since you are handsome still! For my part," he continued confidentially, as with shaking hand he filled his brandy-glass, "you'll excuse this drunkard's drink, Mother, but I need it; I had the shakes again last night—for my part,
I prefer the full-blown rose to the bud."

Mother Jenks fluttered like a debutante as she poured her drink. They touched glasses, caloused worldlings that they were.

He tossed off his drink. It warmed and strengthened him, after his night
of chills and fever, and brazenly he returned to the attack.

"Changing the subject from feminine grace and charm to manly strength and virtue, I've been marking lately
the resolute poise of your martyred husband's head on his fine military shoulders. There was a man, if I may judge from his photograph, that would fight a wildcat."

"Oh, m'bye 'e wouldn't!" Mother
Jenks hastened to declare. "You know,
Willy, I was present w'en they shot
'im, a-waltin' to claim 'is body. 'E kisses me good-bye, an' says 'e: 'Brace up, ol' girl. Remember your 'usband's been a sergeant in 'Er Majesty's Royal 'Orse artillery, an' don't let the bloody blighters see yer cry.' Then 'e walks out front, with 'is fine straight back to the wall, draws a circle on 'is blue tunic with white chalk an' says:
'Shoot at that, yer yellow-bellied bonders, an' be d—d to yer!'"

"To be the widow of such a gallant son of Mars," Billy declared, "is a greater honor than being the wife of a duke. Ah, Mother," he added with a note of genuine gratitude and sincerity, "you've been awfully good to me. I don't know what I'd have done without you." He laid his hand on her fat arm. "Mother, one of these days I'll get mine, and when I do I'm going to stake you to a nice little pub back in Bristol."

She smiled at him with motherly tenderness and shook her head. In a concrete niche in the mortuary of the Catedral de la Vera Cruz the bones of her sainted 'Enery reposed, and when her hour came she would lie beside him.

"Yer a sweet boy, Willy," she told him, "an' I'd trust yer for double the score, s'help me. 'Eving knows I
'aven't much, but wot I 'ave I shares freely with them I likes."

Mother Jenks preceded him into the shady side of the veranda, where ordinarily she was wont to breakfast in solitary state. Her table was set for two this morning, however. Billy flipped an adventurous cockroach off
the table and fell to with fine appetite.

He was dallying with a special brew
of coffee, with condensed milk in it,
when the Jamaica negro entered from the cantina to announce Don Juan Cafetero with a cablegram.

"A cablegram!" Mother Jenks cried.
"Gord's truth! I'll wager the pub it's for you, Willy, Bob"—turning to the negro, and addressing him in her own private brand of Spanish—"give Don Juan a drink, if 'e 'asn't helped 'imself while yer back is turned, an' bring the cablegram 'ere."

Within the minute Bob returned with a long yellow envelope, which he handed Mother Jenks. Without so much as a glance at the superscrip-tion, she handed it to Billy Geary, who tore it open and read:

"Los Angeles, Cal., U. S. A., August 16, 1918.

"Henrietta Wilkins, Calle de Concordia, No. 18, Buenaventura, 'Sobrante, C. A.

"Leaving today to visit you. Will cable from New Orleans exact date
of arrival.

DOLORES."

The shadow of deep disappointment
settled over Billy's face as he read.
Mother Jenks noted it instantly.

"Wot's 'e got to s'y, Willy?" she demanded.

"It isn't a he. It's a she," Billy replied. "Besides, the cablegram isn't for me at all. It's for one Henrietta Wilkins, Calle de Concordia, No. 18,
and who the devil Henrietta Wilkins may be is a mystery to me. Ever have any boarder by that name, Mother?"

Mother Jenks' red face had gone white. "Henrietta Wilkins was my maiden nym, Willy," she confessed soberly, "an' there's only one human as 'ad cable me or write me by that
nym. Gord, Willy, wot's 'appened?"

"I'll read it to you, Mother."

Billy read the message aloud, and when he had finished, to his amazement, Mother Jenks laid her hand on the table and began to weep.

CHAPTER V.

Without quite realizing why he did so, Billy decided that fear and not grief was at the bottom of the good creature's distress, and in his awkward, masculine way he placed his arm around Mother Jenks' shoulders, stook her gently, and bade her remember that chaos might come and go again, but he, the said William Geary, would remain her true and steadfast friend in any and all emergencies that might occur.

"Gor' bless yer heart, Willy," Mother Jenks sniffed. "I dunno wot in 'ell yer ever goin' to think o' me w'en I tell wot I've been up to this past fifteen year."

"Whatever you've been up to, Mother,
it was a kind and charitable deed
—of that much I am certain," Billy replied loftily and—to his own surprise—sincerely.

"As Gord is my judge, Willy, it started out that w'y," moaned Mother Jenks, and she squeezed Billy's hand
as if from that yellow, shivering member she would draw aid and comfort.
"Er nym is Dolores Ruey. 'Er father was Don Ricardo Ruey, president av
this blasted 'ell on earth w'en 'e an' my sainted 'Enery first come to Buenaventura. 'E was too good for government on the square, an' they couldn't understand, all along o'

'avin' been kicked an' cuffed by a long line of bloody rotters. It was Don Ricardo as gives my sainted 'Enery 'is commission as colonel in the artillery.

"You've 'eard me tell," Mother Jenks continued, "wot the rebels got

'art a dozen 'American gunners—ne-serters from the navy—an' blew
'Enery's battery to bits; 'ow the government forces fell back upon Buena-ventura, an' as 'ow w'en the dorgs begun to wonder if they mightn't lose,
they quit by the 'undreds an' went over to the rebel side, leavin' Don Ricardo an' 'Enery an' m'bye fifty o'
the gentry in the palace. In course they fought to a finish; 'ristocrats, all of them, they 'ad to die fightin' or facin' a firin' squad."

Billy nodded. He had heard the tale before, including the recital of the sainted 'Enery's gallant dash from the blazing palace in an effort to save Don Ricardo's only child, a girl of seven,
and of his capture and subsequent execution.

"That ended the revolution," Mother Jenks continued. "But 'ere's somethin' I've never told a livin' soul.
Shortly before 'Enery was hexecuted,
'e told me where 'e'd 'id the youngster
—in a culvert, out on the Malecon; so I 'ired a four-wheeler an' went out an' rescued the pore-lamb. I 'id 'er until the arrival o' the next fruit steamer, w'en I shipped 'er to New Orleans in care o' the stewardess. Hi 'ad 'er put in the Catholic convent there, for as 'Enery said: 'Henrietta, keep an eye on the little nipper, an' do yer damndest to see she's raised a liddy.
'Er father was a gentleman, an' you never want to forget 'e made you Mrs.
Colonel Jenks.' So Hi've made a liddy out o' her, Willy; education, plannin'
lessons, paintin', singin', an' deportment. After she graduated from the convent, I 'ad her take a course in the University o' California—New Orleans wasn't 'ealthy for 'er, an' she needed a change o' climate—an' for the last two years she's been teachin'
in the 'igh school in Los Angeles."

"And you haven't seen her in all these years?" Geary demanded.

"Not a look, Willy. She's been after me ever since she graduated from the convent to let her come 'ome an'
visit me, but Hi've told 'er to wylte—
that I'd be comin' soon to visit her.
An' now, s'help me, she won't wait no longer; she's comin' to visit me! Gor', Willy, she's on her w'y!"

"So this cablegram would indicate," Geary observed. "Nevertheless, Mother,
I'm at a loss to know why you should feel so cut up over the impending visit."

There was real fear in Mother
Jenks' tear-dimmed eyes. "I cawn't let 'er see me," she wailed. "I wasn't this w'y w'en my sainted 'Enery hentrasted the lamb to me; it wasn't until awfter they hexecuted 'Enery that I commenced to slip—an' now look at me. Look at me, Willy Geary; look at me, I s'y. Wot do yer see? 'Aw, don't tell me I'm young an' 'andsome,
for I know wot I am. I'm a frowsy, drunken, disreputable baggage, with no education or nothink. All along, never since she learned to write me a letter, I've been 'Henrietta Wilkins to 'er, an' Mother Jenks to every beachcombin' beggar in the Caribbean tropics. I've lied to 'er, Willy. I've wrote 'er as 'ow 'er fawther, before 'e died, give me enough money to hedu-cate 'er like a liddy—"

Again Mother Jenks' grief overcame
her. "Gor', Willy, I ain't respectable.
She's comin' to see me—an' I cawn't let 'er. She mustn't know 'ow I got the money for 'er education—sellin'
'ell-fire to a pack of rotten dorgs an'
consortin' with the scum of this stinkin-'ole! Oh, Willy, you've got to 'elp me. I cawn't 'ave 'er comin' to El Buen Amigo to see me, an' I cawn't ruin 'er reputation by callin' on 'er in public at the 'Otel Mateo. Oh, Gor', Willy, Mother's come a cropper."

Willy agreed with her. He patted
the sinful gray head of his landlady
and waited for her to regain her composure; the while he racked his agile brain for a feasible plan to fit the emergency.

"She's been picturin' me in 'er mind
all these years, Willy—picturin' a fraud," wailed Mother Jenks. "If she sees me now, wot a shock she'll get,
pore sweetheart—an' 'er the spittin'
himage of a hangel. And oh, Willy, while she don't remember wot I looked like, think o' the shock if she meets me! In 'er lawst letter she said as 'ow I was the only hanchor she had in life. Ho, yes. A sweet-lookin' hanchor I am—an' Hi was 'opin' to die before she found hout. I've got a hanuerism in my 'eart, Willy, so the surgeon on the mail boat tells me, an'
w'en I go, I'll go like—that!" Mother Jenks snapped her cigarette-stained fingers. "I'm fifty-seven, Willy, an'
since my sainted 'Enery passed away,
I 'ayen't been no bloomin' hangel."

She wrung her hands. "Oh, w'y in 'ell couldn't them harteries 'ave bustled in time to save my lamb the 'umflatin' knowledge that she's be'oldin' to the likes o' me for wot she's got—an' 'ow
I got it for 'er."

Billy Geary had a bright idea.
"Well," he said, "why not die—temporarily—if you feel that way about it? You could come back from the grave after she's gone."

But Mother Jenks shook her head.
"No," she declared. "While Dolores is self-supportin' now, still, if anythink
'appened an' she was to need 'elp,
'elp is somethin' no ghost can give.
Think again, Willy. Gor, lad, w're's yer brains?"

To Remove Lead in a Gunbarrel.
Chemically pure and strong nitric acid will dissolve the lead and not attack the metal of a gunbarrel unless the acid becomes diluted with a little water. To remove the acid, pour all of it out and wipe the gun dry with a rag soaked in olive or cotton seed oil. Do not get the acid on the hands or clothing. If, by chance, this happens, wash it off immediately with water and then with some weak alkali.

RAILROAD PLAN TO GET RATES DOWN

Propose to Reduce Wages and Return All Saving By Reduction in Charges.

FULL TEXT OF PROPOSAL

Statement by Thomas DeWitt Cuyler, Chairman of the Association of Railway Executives, on the Situation.

Following a meeting in Chicago, October 14, 1921, of the presidents of nearly all the leading railroads in the country, Mr. Thomas DeWitt Cuyler, chairman of the Association of Railway Executives, made the following statement:

At a meeting of the Association of Railway Executives today, it was determined by the railroads of the United States, to seek to bring about a reduction in rates, and as a means to that end to seek a reduction in present railroad wages which have compelled maintenance of the present rates.

An application will be made immediately to the United States railroad labor board for a reduction in wages of train service employees sufficient to remove the remainder of the increases made by the labor board's decision of July 20, 1920 (which would involve a further reduction of approximately ten per cent), and for a reduction in the wages of all other classes of railroad labor to the going rate for such labor in several territories where the carriers operate.

To Reduce Rates as Wages Go Down.

The foregoing action is upon the understanding that concurrently with such reduction in wages the benefit of the reduction thus obtained shall, with the concurrence of the interstate commerce commission, be passed on to the public in the reduction of existing railroad rates, except in so far as this reduction shall have been made in the meantime.

The managements have decided upon this course in view of their realization of the fact that the wheels of industrial activity have been closed down to a point which brings depression and distress to the entire public, and that something must be done to start them again in operation. The situation which confronts the railroads is extremely critical. The railroads in 1920 realized a net railway operating income of about $62,000,000, upon a property investment of over $19,000,000,000, and even this amount of sixty-two millions included back mail pay for prior years received from the government of approximately $64,000,000, thus showing, when the operations of that year alone are considered, an actual deficit before making any allowance for either interest or dividends.

The year ended in serious depression in all branches of industry, and in marked reductions of the market demand for and the prices of basic commodities, resulting in a very serious falling off in the volume of traffic.

Roads Forced to Defer Maintenance. In this situation, a policy of the "most rigid economy and of postponing and cutting to the bone the upkeep of the properties was adopted by the railroads. This was at the price of neglecting and for the time, deferring work which must hereafter and in the near future be done and paid for. This is illustrated by the fact that, as of September 15, 1921, over 16 per cent or 374,431 in number, of the freight cars of the carriers were in bad order and needing repairs, as against a normal of bad order cars of not more than 160,000, as is further illustrated by the deferred and inadequate maintenance of other equipment and of roadway and structures.

Even under those conditions, and with this large bill charged up against the future—which must soon be provided for and paid if the carriers are to perform, successfully, their transportation duties—the result of operations for the first eight months of this year, the latest available figures, has been at a rate of net railway operating income, before providing for interest or dividends, amounting to only 2.6 per cent per annum on the valuation of the carrier properties made by the interstate commerce commission in the recent rate case, an amount not sufficient to pay the interest on their outstanding bonds.

Roads Earnings Far Below Reasonable Returns.

It is manifest from this showing, that the rate of return of 5 1/2 or 6 per cent for the first two years after March 1, 1920, fixed in the transportation act as a minimum reasonable return upon railroad investment, has not been even approximated, much less reached; and that the present high rates accordingly are not due to any statutory guarantee of earnings for there is no such guarantee.

In analyzing the expenses which have largely brought about this situation, it becomes evident that by far the largest contributing cause is the labor cost.

Today the railroads pay out to labor approximately 60 cents on the dollar they receive for transportation services, whereas in 1916, 40 cents on the dollar went to labor.

On the first day of January, 1917, when the government took charge of wages through the Adamson act, the labor cost of the railroads had not exceeded the sum of about $1,468,000,000 annually. In 1920, when governmental authority made the last wage increase, the labor cost of the railroads was about $3,698,000,000 annually, or, if continued throughout the year instead of for the eight months during which the wage increases were in effect the labor cost, on an annual basis, would have been largely in excess of $3,900,000,000.

An increase, since the government took charge of railroad wages in the Adamson act of approximately $2,450,000,000 annually.

In the light of these figures, it is manifest that the recent reduction of wages authorized by the labor board, estimated at from 10 to 12 per cent in no sense meets or solves the problem of labor costs and in no way makes it possible for the railroads to afford a reduction in their revenues.

Thousands of Rates Already Reduced. Indeed, during the past year there have been between four and five thousand individual reductions in freight rates. On some railroads the reductions in rates have amounted to more than the reductions in wages so far made, and on many other railroads the reductions in wages allowed no net return on operations, but merely provided against the further accumulation of a deficit.

The point is often made that agriculture and other industries are also suffering the same immediate difficulties as the railroads, why, therefore, do not the railroads take their medicine like anybody else? The answer lies in several facts:

1.—The railroads were not permitted, as were other industries, to make charges during the years of prosperity, making possible the accumulation of a surplus to tide them over the present extreme adversity. According to the reports of the interstate-commerce commission the rate of return on property investment of the railroads of the United States for the past several years has been as follows:

RATE OF RETURN EARNED BY THE RAILROADS OF THE
UNITED STATES ON THEIR PROPERTY INVESTMENT:

1912	4.84%
1913	5.15%
1914	4.17%
1915	4.20%
1916 (Fiscal Year)	5.90%
1916 (Calendar Year)	6.16%
1917	5.26%
1918	3.51%
1919	2.46%
1920	0.32%

It will thus be noted that during the years when other industries were making very large profits, when the prices of farm products and the wages of labor were soaring to unheard of heights, the earnings upon railroad investment in the United States were held within very narrow limits and that they have during the past four years progressively declined.

The Roads Handicapped More Than Other Business.

2.—The railroads are responsible to the public for providing adequate transportation. Their charges are limited by public authority, and they are in very large respects (notably for labor) compelled to spend money on a basis fixed by public authority. The margin within which they are permitted to earn a return upon their investment or to offer inducements to attract new capital for extensions and betterments is extremely limited. However much the railroads might desire, therefore, to reduce their charges in times of depression, it will be perceived that the limitations surrounding their action do not permit them to give effect to broad and elastic policies which might very properly govern other lines of business not thus restricted.

It has been urged upon the railroads that a reduction in rates will stimulate traffic and that increased traffic will protect the carriers from the loss incident to a reduction in rates. The railroad managements cannot disguise from themselves that this suggestion is merely conjectural and that an adverse result of the experiment would be disastrous not only to the railroads, but to the public, whose supreme need is adequate transportation. Consequently the railroad management cannot feel justified in placing these instrumentalities, so essential to the public welfare, at the hazard of such an experiment based solely upon such a conjecture.

Farmers Especially Need Lower Rates.

It is evident, however, that existing transportation charges bear in many cases a disproportionate relationship to the prices at which commodities can be sold in the market and that existing labor and other costs of transportation thus imposed upon industry and agriculture generally a burden greater than they should bear. This is especially true of agriculture. The railroad managements are feeling sensitive to and sympathetic with the distressing situation and desire to do everything to assist in relieving it that is compatible with their duty to furnish transportation which the public must have.

At the moment railroads in many cases are paying 40 cents an hour for unskilled labor when similar labor is working alongside the railroad and can easily be obtained by them at 20 cents an hour. The railroads of the country paid in 1920 a total of considerably over $1,300,000,000 to unskilled labor alone. However desirable it may be to pay this or that schedule of wages, it is obvious that it cannot be paid out of railroad earnings, unless the industries which use the railroads are capable of meeting such charges.

The railroads, and through them the people generally, are also hampered in their efforts to economize by a schedule of working rules and conditions now in force as heritage from the period of federal control and upheld by the railroad labor board.

These conditions are expensive, un-economic and unnecessary from the point of view of railroad operation and extremely burdensome on the public, which pays the bill. This schedule of wages and of working conditions prevents the railroads from dealing equitably with their labor costs in accordance with rapidly changing conditions and the great variety of local considerations which ought to control wages in different parts of the country. The railroads are seeking to have these rules and working conditions abrogated.

The railroads will seek a reduction in wages now proposed, by first requesting the sanction of the railroad labor board. The railroads will proceed with all possible dispatch, and as soon as the railroad labor board shall have given its assent to the reduction of wages the general reduction in rates will be put into effect.

Miss Edith Boyd, Will Hechtner, John Vincent, Mr. and Mrs. John Carlton, Miss Edna Flesman, Mrs. Mary McCall and sons, all spent a very pleasant day, Sunday, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilken.

Donald McCrea returned the first of the week from Alaska, where he has spent the past year and a half. He had some great experiences, particularly along the line of hunting and fishing. He saw many Kodiak bears in their native haunts and he and his party were more than once forced to take to the trees to escape from them. One bear killed by Lt. Chase weighed 1500 pounds. Donald expects to spend the winter here and will help his father in the hardware store. Walter is expected home from Kentucky, Sunday. He will also spend the winter here with his parents. The boys, under the supervision of Mr. McCrea, are going to make some substantial improvements in the store.

Worth-While Americans. Americanism is loyalty to American institutions and the only loyalty which is worth while is a loyalty which expresses itself in service and sacrifice. There is great need to remember that the quality of our citizenship is determined by the quality of the character of citizens.—From the Churchman.
