The man, in these times, who goes to the city expecting to get a job, had better retrace his steps. A man who is willing to work will come nearer getting a job which will insure him comfortable winter quarters and good food, in the country just now than he will in the city. There are not a few farmers who would be willing to pay the right kind of a man a little money and furnish him good board and room to look after stock and do chores. This, it seems to us, would be much preferable to the park bench or bread line.—Star-Mirror.

This country has too many freak laws. Just think of it, a man was arrested in Missouri some time ago, for killing his mother-in-law.

The Chamber of Commerce of Missoula, Montana, offered one free admission to a movie picture theatre for every mail order catalogue turned in at the window. It was surprising the number of catalogues collected in this way and it no doubt helped to check the mail order business in that community.

Mr. Edison's busy mind is now predicting that in a hundred years from now poverty will be abolished, based probably on the expectation that all the people will then be thrifty and provident and serious-minded. There is no substantial reason to believe that this will be so. It is quite true that poverty is not so common or so hopeless as it used to be. Modern inventions have greatly increased production, and production is what the people live upon. The reason Russia is starving and freezing is because production has ceased in large areas. Famines were common in olden times because of low-scale production and inefficient distribution. The poor were perpetually poor in those days. It is not so now. The sober poor and the able-bodied poor can abolish their poverty under present conditions. But many refuse to save or to invest their savings. To abolish poverty it is necessary for all to keep for the future a part of what is earned in the present. It is not easy. A great many refuse to even try to do so. The number who are willing to live on bread and beans in order to build up a savings account is few. But there are some, everywhere and all the time. They abolish their poverty.—Lewiston Tribune.

It is estimated that the bees in this country gathered over 55 million pounds of honey last year. It would take one bee a long time to do this but when everybody works it's not such a big job.

The Italian bigamist who admitted having 5 wives undoubtedly realizes now that he made a big mistake, says an exchange.

The Art of Life.
The art of life is to keep step with the celestial orchestra that beats the measure of our career and gives the cue for our exits and our entrances. Why should we willingly miss anything, or be angry with folly, or in despair at any misadventure? In this world there should be none but gentle tears and fluttering tip-toe loves. It is a great carnival, and amongst these lights and shadows of comedy, these roses and vices of the playhouse, there is no abiding.—G. Santayana, in the Dial.

FOR MEN ONLY

By DR. WM. F. SNOW

VERY few people see, or use the expression "for men only" any more. As a phrase it has had a vicious past, and a long deferred ending. Often it served to lure gullible youth into a revelation of half truths or downright falsehoods at the hands of a "kindly quack" who warned against the secret evils besetting mankind, while taking a heavy toll in cash from his dupes. But the day of "old Doctors Skinner and Steal" is rapidly waning. The free museums of anatomical horrors are almost no more.

Today we know that the so-called secret facts for men, if sanely and truthfully told are, quite as properly, facts for women. When the United States government declared open war upon the venereal diseases and stressed the necessity of educating both men and women, hardly a word of protest was heard. The public was more than ready for the facts about these secret things so preciously guarded by the advertising medical charlatans "for men only." A great many people were justly wondering if these strictly male questions did not have a vital bearing on the wives and mothers and babies of America. Of course, some people knew the facts. But there was a vast proportion of the public totally unaware of the real conditions. That proportion of uninformed is being cut down. The country as a whole is coming to a realization that the single greatest health menace is a question affecting both men and women—that women, the present and future mothers of the race, are most vitally concerned because of the alarming and far-reaching effects of venereal infections among the members of their own sex.

A great deal of work is being done to dispel ignorance and to replace perverted facts with clear, concise information. Average men and women are genuinely glad. They are tired of the secrecy and mock modesty that have cost untold misery and unhappiness. They want the end of domestic tragedies due to the venereal disease. They are ready for a complete cleanup, and recognize that the Government has attempted the biggest health undertaking of the age.

The "American Plan" employed by the governmental and associated agencies includes educational measures regarding venereal diseases and social hygiene, the repression of commercialized prostitution, the provision of adequate medical treatment for the infected, and community recreation designed to offset those amusements which pander to the elements responsible for a large part of the spread of infections.

Industry has been particularly interested in the work to eliminate these diseases from our national life. Largely this is so because the infections are costing manufacturers many millions of dollars annually. Careful investigations have shown that men suffering from active infections are greatly reduced in efficiency and the labor turnover indirectly due to this cause is enormous.

Mr. Freeman Hammond, one of the most promising young artists of the platform, has made a most enviable reputation for himself during the past two seasons, through his intensely human little sketch "Second Childhood." It is said to be one of the finest and most artistic impersonations ever offered by any one. It will be given here in the near future when the Freeman Hammond Company appears.

Mr. Hammond's characterizations are splendidly done in his every effort. He works in costumes and grease paint and does every one of his characters with an ease and naturalness that is indicative of a wonderful art. With Mr. Hammond appear two clever assisting artists in dramatic and musical numbers.

GUINEAS FAVOR FREE RANGE

Fowls Can Be Depended Upon to Pick Up Considerable Portion of Their Food.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Most guinea raisers allow their breeding stock free range of the entire farm at all times, and this helps to keep the birds strong and vigorous. During the winter the breeders should have been fed a grain mixture of corn, wheat and oats twice a day, and where no green feed was available, vegetables, such as potatoes, turnips, beets and cabbage. Animal feed is essential to best results and can be supplied by feeding meat scrap or skimmed milk. Given free range, where the supply of natural feed during the winter and early spring are ample, as it usually is in the southern portion of the United States, the guineas can be left to pick up a considerable part of their feed, say poultry specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. Free access to grit, charcoal, and oyster shell is necessary throughout the breeding season. Avoid having the breeders too fat, but keep them in good, firm flesh.

Like quail and most other wild birds, guinea fowls in their wild state mate in pairs, and this tendency prevails among domesticated guineas, also, provided the males and females are equal in number. As the breeding season approaches, one pair after another separates from the remainder of the flock and ranges off in the fields in search of a suitable nesting place. Once mated this way, the male usually remains with his mate throughout the laying season, standing guard somewhere near the nest while the hen is laying, and ready to warn her of any approaching danger.

However, it is not necessary to mate them in pairs under domestic conditions to secure fertile eggs, and most breeders keep but one male for every three or four females. When mated in this way the hens are more apt to lay near home, and several usually lay in the same nest, thus making it much easier to find the nests and gather the eggs.

While guineas can be kept in the best breeding condition upon free range, still they can be confined, if necessary, and satisfactory results obtained. One extensive guinea raiser has confined as many as 45 hens and 15 males in an acre pen throughout the breeding and laying season and been successful. This pen is inclosed with a wire fence five feet high, and the birds are prevented from flying over by clipping the flight feathers of one wing. Within the pen is a grass pasture with bushes here and there where the hens make their nests by scratching out a bowl-shaped hollow in the ground. The winters being severe, a roosting shed is provided, having a cleated board reaching from the floor to the roosts for the wing-clipped birds to walk up.

GEESE GOOD GRAZING STOCK

Fowls Play Important Part in Utilizing Waste Grain About Stables and Feeding Pens.

Geese have an important part in the endless war on waste. They are in a class with chickens in utilizing waste grain about stables and feeding pens. In a larger measure than chickens or any other kind of poultry they are a grazing stock, getting their living in large part from the ordinary grasses of the pastures, say poultry specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. When it is considered that the demand for geese is steady, and extended over almost the whole year, not confined to holidays, as in the case of turkeys, that geese excel all other poultry as producers of fat, the importance of geese in the poultry scheme is realized.

STUDY DEMANDS OF MARKETS

Poultryman Should Learn How, Where and When to Dispose of Products to Advantage.

A large part of the profit in poultry keeping often depends upon the proper marketing of the products, and the producer should study the market demands as to how, where and when to dispose of the products to the best advantage.

DAIRY FACTS

RECORDS OF GREAT BENEFIT

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Tabulation of the yearly records of 38,532 cow-testing association cows has brought to light much valuable information on the relations between milk and butterfat production, butterfat test, income over cost of feed, and other factors, say specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. The average milk production per cow was 5,980 pounds; butterfat, 246 pounds; butterfat test, 4.11 per cent; income over cost of feed, $55.69; returns for $1 expended for feed, $2.11.

The records show that in those associations where the work has been continued for a long period the production has generally increased from year to year. As production increased, the income over cost of feed increased rapidly, and for each increase of 50 pounds in butterfat there was an increase of $15 in income over cost of feed.

Cows that freshened in the fall produced more milk and butterfat and greater average income over cost of feed than those which freshened in the spring or summer. Large cows excelled small cows of the same breed in production of milk and butterfat and in income over cost of feed. As the butterfat test increased, the average production of butterfat advanced and the average production of milk declined.

These records also indicate that cows remain in the herd an average of about 4.7 years.

GLEANINGS

Ed Metzger of Grandview, Wash., arrived Thursday to visit friends on Pollatch ridge.

Mrs. L. K. Dahlgren of Texas ridge returned home from Clarkston where she visited at the J. D. Carman home. Mr. and Mrs. Carman are the proud parents of a 13 pound son.

Sam Bigham writes from Seattle that John Roberts is visiting there, also Mr. and Mrs. Normyle and Dr. Ed Watts. Mr. Bigham expects to be on the move for the next year or two.

P. S. Dunkle returned to Lewiston Thursday afternoon after visiting his son, A. V. Dunkle.

Mr. Snyder of Culdesac arrived this week to visit his son, Ray.

Prunes raised in the Walla Walla section this year brought growers $50 per ton. The fruit was retailed to consumers in the east on a basis of $250 per ton.

Chief Skookum Wal-I-Hee, the venerable chief of the Klickitat Indians predicts a long, hard winter, basing his opinion on observations of animals and birds, which, he declares, are preparing for severe and long sustained cold weather.

A dance will be given at the Fraternal Temple in Kendrick Thanksgiving night, November 24.

Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Johnson and family of Clarkston spent Sunday at the E. P. Atchison home.

According to a report from the state auditor's office it costs practically a million dollars a month to run the State of Idaho. About five-sixths of this expense is for highways and education.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sheets of Clarkston, Wash., visited at the O. E. MacPherson home Sunday.

Roy L. Black, attorney general for Idaho, states that in spite of the ruling of the United States treasury department allowing beer and light wines to be sold in this country, Idaho will remain totally dry. The only states affected by the treasury department's order are those which had no prohibition laws before the enactment of the Volstead bill and have not since passed any.

Will Pemberton spent the first of the week in Kendrick visiting his mother.

Mr. LeQuire of Lewiston was in Kendrick Tuesday. He stated that as soon as the Continental Oil Co. could get a clear title to its lots here, work would be started to install the oil station. He thought it would be but a short time until the court would pass on the title and this being the case the station would be in operation sometime this winter. The big oil tanks have been at Lewiston for nearly a year ready to be installed here.

A dance will be held at Leland Friday, the night after Thanksgiving. It will be a masquerade dance and a Lewiston orchestra will furnish the music.

Harry Fowler, C. G. Compton, A. Onstott and Frank Ellis returned last Saturday from their hunting trip below Big Island. The supposition is that they came home empty handed as they had no trophies of any kind to indicate that they had killed any game. They report a fine time even if they didn't get anything.

Ben Callison and Ernest Roberts returned from a hunting trip in the Three Bear country. They have a different story to tell from that of the average deer hunter; this fall, as Ben killed a big buck. He got the deer the second day out. He was sitting on a log resting, just before dusk. When he saw the deer it was walking toward him, with its nose on the ground. Just as the deer looked up, Ben fired, and shot him through the head. Ben says it is the largest, fattest deer he has ever killed.

According to an announcement sent out by Dean Iddings of the department of agriculture of the University of Idaho, the Union Pacific railroad company will give 36 scholarships to students who are ambitious to attend the state university. One scholarship will be given for each county through which the Union Pacific line passes. The scholarships are valued at $75. The student will also get free transportation to attend school, over any of the company's lines.

Otto Eichner of American ridge was taken to a Moscow hospital yesterday morning, suffering with a slight attack of pneumonia.

Crescent News

Mrs. Jennings, Mrs. Long and Mrs. Winegardner were Cedar ridge school visitors last Friday.

Rayme Hunt is in Kendrick this week, taking care of Mr. Holt.

We were very much grieved to hear of the death of our dear friend and neighbor, Mrs. Darby. Our deepest sympathy is extended to the family in their sorrow.

The County superintendent, Miss Skattaboe, paid a visit to the Cedar ridge and Crescent schools while on the ridge Monday and Tuesday.

Crescent school opened this week with Miss Adeline Hupp as teacher. We are very glad to have the young lady in our midst.

The teacher and pupils of Cedar ridge school extend a cordial invitation to the public, to attend the Thanksgiving program and Pie Social to be given at the school house Wednesday evening, November 23, at 8:00 p. m. Come.

THE FITTING OF GLASSES A SCIENCE

Do you want a doctor who is a graduate from a school of optometry, who has had years of experience, and who is a licensed physician to examine your eyes?

It is not eyesight too precious to trust to inexperienced practitioners, those traveling over the country, having no reliable, established or well equipped office, which you may visit or communicate with at any time?

We offer you all of this, and more. We have the largest and best equipped Optical and Treatment offices in Spokane, occupying the entire front of the sixth floor of the Exchange National Bank building. Two treatment rooms, two refracting rooms, optical laboratory, and large comfortable waiting room. Three experienced, registered specialists and a nurse at your service.

Dr. A. E. Jones, President and only authorized representative of the Jones' Optical Co. will be in your city in about four weeks. Buy direct and save money.

Wandering Gems.

I have observed that butterflies—very broad-winged and magnificent butterflies—frequently come on board of the salt-ship, where I am at work. What have these bright strangers to do on Long wharf, where there are no flowers nor any green thing—nothing but brick storehouses, stone piers, black ships, and the bustle of tollsome men, who neither look up to the blue sky, nor take note of these wandering gems of the air?—Hawthorne.

Chamberlain's Tablets Have Done Her a World of Good
"Chamberlain's Tablets have done me a world of good," writes Mrs. Ella L. Button, Kirkville, N. Y. "I have recommended them to a number of my friends and all who have used them praise them highly." When troubled with indigestion or constipation, give them a trial and realize for yourself what an excellent medicine it is.—Adv.

Good Health
If you would enjoy good health, keep your bowels regular. No one can reasonably hope to feel well, when constipated. When needed, take Chamberlain's Tablets. They are mild and gentle.—Adv.
