

Over The County

Genesee News: According to a report recently made Idaho has 823 inmates in her three asylums for the insane. It is hardly possible that that many out of a population of 431,866 can be insane.

David Burrell, state commissioner of public welfare is advocating a check of inmates sent from the different counties to ascertain how many are really insane and how many have been sent to these institutions by counties who want the state to take care of their old and feeble.

It is rather a poor advertisement for the state to have such a large per cent of her population in institutions for the feeble minded and Mr. Burrell is taking the right course when he intends to have many of them returned to the counties where they rightfully belong.

Julietta Record: Z. Lay, of this place, died early Monday morning at his home on Water street. Mr. Lay lived alone and had been in poor health for some time. During Sunday night he became quite ill and summoned some of the neighbors who remained with him till the early hours of the morning. Charles Talbott was the last to leave him about three o'clock when Mr. Lay said he felt better and believed he could go to sleep and would be all right the rest of the night. Mr. Talbott then went home and about 7 o'clock in the morning Mr. Talbott went over to see how he was and found that he had expired. Deceased was about 65 years old and has been a resident of Julietta for a number of years. He is survived by his wife and three children who are at Ellensburg, Wash., and a sister, Mrs. Mattie Grove, who resides here, also a brother and a sister who reside at outside points. The funeral was held Thursday at 11 o'clock from the U. B. church, Rev. John Carlson conducting the services. Interment was made in the village cemetery north of town.

Troy News: After working for several months in an effort to secure members, the Three-in-One Oil Company has finished its organization and will push work on its claims in the Sweet Grass country in Montana. The organization is the work of H. C. Stapleton of this city and I. W. Hanson, formerly of Kalispel, Montana, and now a resident of Moscow. Associated with them here are A. J. Flint, who becomes vice president; Dr. E. S. Peterson, treasurer, and G. C. Hoyt, who is legal advisor to the company. Mr. Hanson is president and Mr. Stapleton secretary. An active advertising campaign is now on and the company expects plenty of financial backing for its enterprise. Work on the well has been in progress for some time with excellent showings, and its prospects are such that the Troy men named, as well as others, have expressed their faith by getting into the company with their backing.

Deary Press: Farmers say that the winter grain is looking as fine as they have ever seen it on the eve of winter. Most of it has made a fine growth and the snow is affording it adequate protection. The ground is not frozen and is absorbing the snow water as fast as it melts. Since the timber has been removed the upper country gets the full benefit of the chinook winds, cold and sometimes unpleasant, but they melt the snow rapidly and it is doubtful if we will ever again have the rigorous winters of the old wilderness days.

Star-Mirror: There are five men now living in Latah county, who have lived here for 50 years and, so far as the Star-Mirror is able to learn, only five men. These men were together Thursday in Moscow, the dinner guests of J. L. Naylor, a tentfoot of only 45 years residence in the county, at the Moscow hotel. The guests of Mr. Naylor were Thomas Tierney, Murdock Cameron, William Frazier, William Tomer

Latah Bankers File Protests

All but two banks of Latah county filed protests Monday, against the assessments made against their personal property. The claim the bankers brought before the board of county commissioners, sitting as a board of equalization, was that they are assessed dollar for dollar on their capital stock and surplus while other property is assessed from 50 to 75 per cent of its actual value.

The county commissioners will take up each individual case and in an endeavor to ascertain whether the assessments are out of proportion.

The following bankers of the county appeared before the board:

E. W. Lutz of the Kendrick State Bank, G. E. Taber of the First Bank of Genesee, J. A. Harsh of the Latah County State Bank of Deary and the First State Bank of Bovill, Clarence Larson of the First Bank of Troy, Fred K. Bressler of Genesee Exchange Bank, M. E. McConnell of the Farmers Bank of Kendrick, H. Melgard of the First Trust and Savings Bank of Moscow, Harry Whittier of the Moscow State Bank, J. H. Bottjer of the Potlatch State Bank and J. S. Feckathorn of the First National Bank of Moscow.

Captured Auto Thief

Frank James John, alias Wm. Carl and Frank Thomas, the Indian who escaped from the sheriff at Arrow last week, was captured by John Ellenwood of the United States constabulary and Paul Ennis, special deputy, who found John at the home of an Indian by the name of Amos Williams, a rancher near Arrow. John was taken to Lewiston and from there to Spokane where he will be tried for stealing Dr. John E. Hoyt's car.

Will Join State Bureau

At a farm bureau meeting in Moscow, Tuesday afternoon, at which Charles B. Stonebreaker, of Independence, Iowa, representing the American Farm Bureau federation, was the principal speaker, it was decided by the Latah county organization to join the state and national federation. A campaign for members will be put on some time next month.

The principal advantage gained by affiliating with the higher bodies is to gain representation at Washington.

and George W. Tomer. Four of these men located in what is now Latah county in 1871. The fifth, Thomas Tierney, located here in 1870. They came here when the Palouse country was covered with bunch grass, wild sunflowers and camas, giving the face of the country the appearance of a vast flower garden.

At that time, according to the story told by these pioneers, there were few roads in the Palouse country, the few settlers traveling for the most part over trails made by the Indians. They followed the most direct course and the easiest grades. There was no postoffice here, or anywhere near. The first postoffice was established one mile off what is now Moscow's Main street, March 19, 1873. The place was known as Paradise Valley and the postoffice bore that name. Vanison Craig was postmaster. The mail was then carried from Lewiston to Lone Pine on horse back and the settler paid 25 cents for the privilege of receiving a letter. They received very few, however, and the mail sack was easily carried behind a man on the hurricane deck of a cayuse. These five men are the only men now alive in Latah county who have lived in the county continuously for 50 years. Mr. Naylor, who has lived here 45 years, states to the Star-Mirror that he feels like a tenderfoot among these real pioneers; these men who, engaged in farming, as they were, contributed so largely to the early development of the Palouse country.

Robbed Long's Store

Last Saturday night at a late hour thieves broke into the store of N. B. Long & Sons and stole a large quantity of merchandise. The sheriff's office was notified and officers have been working on the case. No clues were left as to the identity of the thieves.

While a complete check was difficult to obtain, it is known that the following goods were taken: four suits, one overcoat, four mackinaws, a number of sweaters, two leather vests and for bolts of silk in addition to a number of smaller articles.

Dr. Otteraaen Here

Dr. Otteraaen was in Kendrick yesterday and made arrangements to move his household goods and office equipment here today. If the weather is favorable he will have his goods brought from Troy by auto truck. He has rented the McDowell house across the street from the Guy Hotel and will have his office rooms in his home until other rooms can be secured.

Dr. and Mrs. Otteraaen plan to locate here permanently and this community will be their home. They are the type of people who will make friends readily and they will be a most welcome addition to the social activities of the community. Mrs. Otteraaen is a graduate nurse and is a valuable assistant to the Doctor in his practice of medicine.

Dr. Otteraaen is a young man but has had a splendid medical education and in addition to this, three years city hospital experience, as well as considerable experience in the practice of medicine in the East. He is thoroughly up-to-date in his methods and is intensely interested in his profession. That he will be highly successful here is practically assured.

Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary

An all star cast from the Lewiston State Normal will present "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary" at the Grand Theatre in Kendrick, Saturday, December 17, under the auspices of the Kendrick schools. It will be a three-act comedy, full of fun and clever situations. Eleven accomplished artists make up the cast of this popular production. Wherever shown this fall, the play has met with most flattering success.

Prof. Daniel, stated this week that in order to secure a packed house, he has decided to put the price of adult tickets at 50 cents and children's tickets 35 cents.

This is the first time it has been possible to secure a date for this production, so the people of the community should feel fortunate in having an opportunity to see the play here. Tickets will be on sale by the students of the local schools about the middle of next week.

Potato King Coming

His work is along the lines of encouraging better and more profitable methods of potato growing, handling and marketing, as well as bringing before the people the advantage of co-operation and better farming methods generally.

Road Boosters to Lewiston

A large delegation of good roads boosters from Leland and Cameron went to Lewiston Monday to consult with the county commissioners relative to securing a part of the $400,000 road and bridge money, made available to the county by a recent bond issue. An additional sum to the amount of $150,000 was also secured by the county through federal and state aid.

The main result of the meeting was a decision to send a delegation to Boise to confer with the state highway department and with Governor Davis in an endeavor to secure a solution of a number of important matters that developed at the meeting. The final decision as to the disposal of county, state and federal money will probably be left with the Nez Perce county commissioners. R. B. Parks of Leland was selected a one of the delegates to go to Boise.

M. B. McConnell was transacting business in Moscow Monday.

The Bell Ringers

The Bell Ringers, supposedly a quartet, appeared here Tuesday evening according to schedule, except that the quartet had dwindled to a trio. One of the members of the company, the first tenor, became ill with pneumonia while at Bovill, so was unable to appear here. While it was very much of a disappointment to the large crowd present, it was an unavoidable circumstance that had to be overlooked.

The three members of the company did their best to put on an entertaining program for the evening, and although laboring under a heavy handicap they managed fairly well. The second tenor handled both tenor parts in the bell ringing numbers.

The next lyceum entertainment, the DeMarco-Astrup Entertainers, will appear here on Monday, January 23.

School Notes

Elizabeth Carlson is the only pupil in the primary room who has been neither absent nor tardy during the three months of school.

George Clem is back in school after a three week's absence caused by sickness.

Absences on account of chicken-pox have been reported by the third and fourth grade room.

The rooms of the lower grades are being artistically decorated for the holiday season. Decorations are being made by the children in their handwork classes.

The basket ball games of last Friday night proved to be very interesting in spite of the fact that they were one sided. The boys' game was won by a score of 44 to 14. Julietta boys being overcome by the superior training and better team work of the Kendrick boys. The Orofino girls lost by a score of 6 to 24 due largely to the handicap of size and the habit of playing boys' rules which caused them to make many errors in guarding. This week-end both the boys' and girls' teams leave for out of town games. Friday night they play a doubleheader with Peck boys and girls and on Saturday with Orofino. Both teams are in good condition and are expected to render a good account of themselves even tho in strange territory.

The Cheap Skates

Cheap skates are men whose idle lives no sane results are giving, who loaf and argue while their wives attempt to earn the living. While men of vim and merit chase around in high endeavor, cheap skates sit in the market place and thresh stale themes forever. They play cheap games for cheaper stakes in points where skates assemble and talk of toil with hoes and rakes will make them flinch and tremble. Cheap skates are men who never pay unless through writ of judgement; their promises of yesterday but show what bunk and fudge meant. They spoil their standoff at the start, they mangle and behead it, and now there is no store or mart where they can buy on credit. Their children have to blush for shame, their wives, as well, are blushing, while they, to play a checker game, through dark are rushing. Cheap skates are chaps who have no pride, who'd rather loaf than laor, and smile when charity's supplied by some more thrifty neighbor. Cheap skates will borrow book or hen, and never bring them back again unless the peelers make them. Cheap skates abound in every town and rank not with its glories; they hold the shady benches down and tell the shady stories.—Walt Mason.

Rev. Gibbs Will Preach

A country editor recently disposed of his business and gave as his excuse for selling out that every time he made a mistake in the paper it made him so nervous he couldn't sleep nights. If the average country publisher were similarly affected by errors in his sheet, a severe case of nervous prostration would be lurking around the corner every time the paper came off the press, and his nights would be long, wakeful vigils. The philosophy of a country editor is that if he makes a mistake in one issue of his paper, he must comfort himself with the thought that the next issue will, in all probability, contain a worse one.

A goose is all right for Thanksgiving, a turkey proper for Christmas but it takes a chicken to make a happy New Year's Eve.

If the money that is being put into the building of war vessels could be diverted to road building projects, sums would be made available that would cause the recent 75 million dollar federal aid appropriation look like "chicken feed" from the baby's bank. The money spent on roads these days is startling, in a way, but as a nation we spend many times more money than this every year maintaining a navy, and take it as a matter of course. It seems that only recently have the nations of the world become aware of the utter waste of keeping up their navies.

More than 27,000 motor vehicles, mostly trucks, have been distributed by the U. S. Department of Agriculture among the various states for road building purposes. Highway districts that have voted bonds and applied for federal aid have been able to secure these motor vehicles free of charge from the government. They are a part of the war materials originally intended for use in France.

An exchange says that formerly mother used to worry for fear the children would get hurt by explosions in the chemistry class, but now she is more concerned about father's home brew blowing up.

The Christmas spirit is making itself known earlier this year than is usually the case. Let us hope that people are making a special effort to have the best Christmas that they have ever enjoyed. It is not necessary to have an extravagant Christmas in order to make it a happy one. Useful gifts should take the place of the usual foolish extravagances.

DIG POTATOES WHEN SOIL IS QUITE DRY

Tubers Are Matured When Vines Begin to Drop Off.

Care Should Be Taken to Avoid Spear-ing or Cutting Them—Store in Cool, Dry and Well Ventilated Cellar or Pit.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Potatoes require 90 to 100 days after planting before any will be ready for use. The tubers are not fully matured until after the vines die, or at least ripen and shed most of their foliage. Late potatoes in the Northern and Northeastern states are frequently caught by frost before the vines ripen, so should be dug just about the time frost first strikes them. Potatoes should be dug when the soil is reasonably dry, so that it will not adhere to them. A spading fork or a potato hook is best for digging them and great care should be taken to avoid spearing or cutting them in digging. Only a small quantity should be turned out at once, as they will become sunburned if exposed more than an hour or two. Store potatoes in a cool, dry place where they will get plenty of ventilation and be in the dark. Potatoes must not be allowed to freeze either before they are dug or while in storage. A good, cool, well-ventilated cellar or storm cellar forms a suitable storage place for potatoes and under proper conditions will keep through the winter and into the early summer. Another method is to bury the potatoes in a pit outdoors and cover them so that frost cannot get to them.

SOME EGG SHIPPING 'DON'TS'

Department of Agriculture Offers Few Practical Hints for Benefit of Poultrymen.

Here are some "don'ts" offered by the United States Department of Agriculture that many times mean the difference between a loss or a profit in shipping carload eggs:

Don't waste time and labor by using cheap cases; time and labor are precious.

Don't save pennies by buying poor fillers and flats when you lose dollars in broken eggs. The saving of one egg would pay for the extra cost of a set of No. 1 fillers.

Don't nail braces to sides of car against an incomplete top layer; they seldom hold in place and often are the cause of damage. They injure the efficiency of the car insulation. The use of small under-case braces will prevent all of this.

Don't waste ice and refrigeration by stowing the load so as to make air circulation in the car impossible.

Don't tie up your money in freight claims because of a loose load. Tie up the load and leave the money loose to work again.

NEEDS OF GROWING ANIMALS

Pigs Thrive Better on Ear Corn and Green Alfalfa Than on Chopped and Ground Feeds.

Ear corn and green alfalfa meet the needs of growing pigs better, and at less cost, than chopped alfalfa and ground cob and cornmeal. The alfalfa stems and cob meal are better suited to the needs of sheep or cattle. They can handle more fibrous, indigestible matter than pigs.

MOST SATISFACTORY ALFALFA FERTILIZER

Well-Rotted Barnyard Manure, Free From Weeds, Is Best.

It Gives Best Results If Applied to Soil Before Plowing in Order That It May Become Thoroughly Incorporated.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Well-rotted barnyard manure which is comparatively free from weeds is the most satisfactory fertilizer for fall-sown alfalfa, according to specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. It should be spread on the land before plowing, in order that it may become thoroughly incorporated with the soil. Good results also follow from heavy applications to the preceding crop.

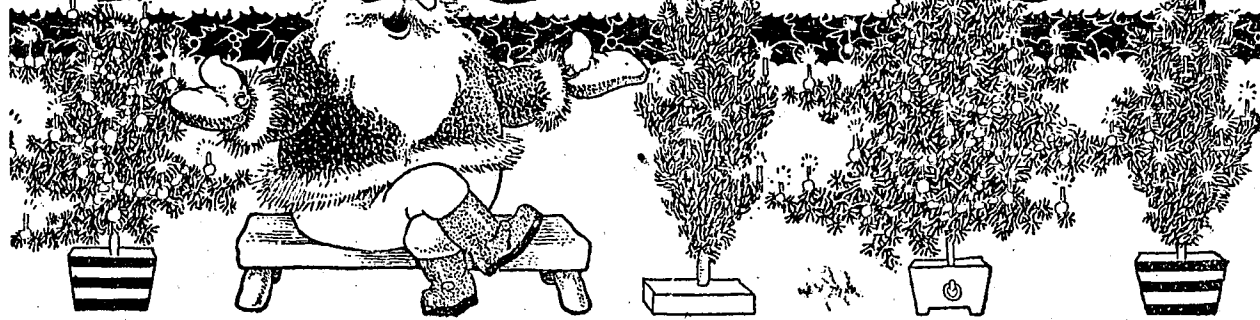

If the manure is not available, a liberal application of commercial fertilizers rich in phosphoric acid should be made. The percentage of nitrogen may be low, but some nitrogen should be supplied for the use of the young plants before they become inoculated and are able to secure their supply from the air. On most clay soils heavy applications of potash have not been profitable. A combination which has been commonly recommended is muriate of potash 75 to 100

Taking Desperate Chances

It is true that many contract severe colds and recover from them without taking any precaution or treatment, and a knowledge of this fact leads others take their chances instead of giving their colds the needed attention. It should be borne in mind that every cold weakens the lungs, lowers the vitality, makes the system less able to withstand each succeeding attack and paves the way for the more serious disease. Can you afford to take such desperate chances when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, famous for its cures of bad colds may be had for a trifle.—Adv.

Nearly one-third of the words in the English language are of Latin origin. Anglo-Saxon was spoken in England until the coming of William the Conqueror, in 1066. With the Norman invasion came the introduction of French into the English language. Several thousand of the French words were Latin with a few alterations. Later a still larger number of Latin words were introduced into the English language.

CAUSE FOR UNTHRIFTY PIGS

Dr. Evvard of Iowa Station Suggests That Round Worms May Be at Bottom of Trouble.

When young pigs are not doing well, it may be that round worms are the cause of their unthriftiness. A 100-pound shote at the Iowa experiment station was very unthrifty. It was killed and examined. John M. Evvard, in charge of swine feeding work, says that in one-half foot of that hog's intestine there were 83 worms that weighed two-fifths of a pound.

To prevent such conditions, keep the pigs growing. Feed well. Keep the lots clean and free from rubbish. Drain the pastures and lots. For emergency cases use santolin and calomel, about five to ten grains each for a 100-pound pig, or 7½ to 15 grains each for a 200 to 300-pound pig. It may also be well to allow free access to such conditions as air-slaked lime, charcoal, slack coal, powdered sulphur, glauber's salts and common salt, these being allowed free choice style, each being placed in a separate compartment of a self feeder.

HORSE SHORTAGE IS FEARED

Secretary Dinsmore of Horse Association Says Demand for Draft Animal Is Strong.

Reporting the fact that citizens of Denver recently rejected an ordinance which, if passed, would have made it a horseless city, Wayne Dinsmore, secretary of the Horse Association of America, says in a recent communication received by the animal husbandry division at University farm:

"We need more good draft horses. The demand for them is stronger and prices are higher than at any time in history, and unless everything possible is done to bring about horse breeding we will have a shortage in coming years which will materially increase the cost of production and transportation."

FURNISH FOALS WITH GRAIN

When Pastures Begin to Dry Up Young Animals Must Have Feed for Best Development.

As the pastures commence to dry up the proper development of the foal calls for the feeding of a little grain in order to maintain the milk fat and keep the foal developing to the best advantage. Colts that belong to working mares should have a separate feed box and receive a little grain each time the mother is fed. Those on pasture should be provided with a creep where grain can be kept available for the foal at all times. If these methods are followed the colt will continue to gain and will not shrink when weaning time comes.

WHITEWASH RECIPE IS GOOD

One of Cheapest and Most Lasting Wood Coverings Is Quite Easy to Manufacture.

Government whitewash is one of the cheapest and most lasting wood coverings and protectors. It is simple to make. Take a half bushel of lime and slack with warm water, keeping it covered. Strain through cheesecloth, and add eight quarts of salt, previously dissolved in warm water. Next stir in three pounds of ground rice, boiled to a thin paste, and stirred in boiling hot. Then add a half pound of plaster of paris, previously dissolved with a pound of glue, over a slow fire. Last, five gallons of hot water. Stir thoroughly and let stand for three days. Apply while hot. An application to fences, trees and unpainted outbuildings will add $500 to the selling value of a farm, and sell it quicker.

DOES THE ENGINE KNOCK?

By DR. CHARLES F. BOLDUAN

IT WAS a prospect to make the heart glad. Sixty miles an hour and miles of open road ahead! To Jones sitting beside the driver the car appeared almost to fly, so swiftly and smoothly did it speed along. And yet Murdock seemed dissatisfied. His face wore an anxious, puzzled frown. Now and again he would bow his head to one side and listen to the hum of the engine; then he would cut out the muffler and for a few moments let the engine snort like a racer. Now he retarded the spark; next advanced it as high as it would go. Still the frown persisted. Finally, miles out in the country Murdock threw out the clutch, stopped the car, and got out. "What now," queried Jones, "she seems to be doing fine."

"Maybe you think so, but I know better. Don't you hear the knock?" Jones could hear nothing, despite Murdock's careful attempts to help him distinguish the knock. He was inclined to regard it all as imaginary. However he watched Murdock with interest open up the pet cocks to "blow out the soot."

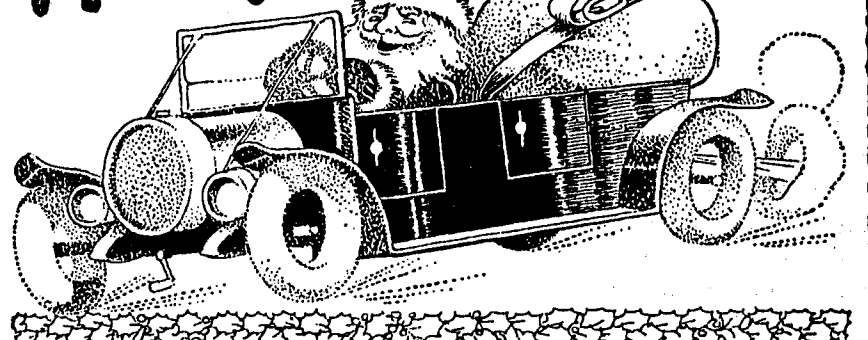

"All right; hop in. I'll fix her up when I get home. It's that poor gas we're getting these days, and she's filled up with carbon."

When they returned from the ride, the engine, in Jones' opinion still performing well, Murdock at once got to work, opened up the cylinders. Sure enough, they were choked with carbon, and Jones realized that Murdock had not been mistaken in the knock. He also understood why it was that Murdock's car gave such good service even after five years of hard use, while his own car had long since gone to the scrap heap, after only three years' use.

How often do we not encounter instances in which some friend or acquaintance whom we thought in the best of health dies suddenly or has a serious breakdown. In almost all cases inquiry would show that he had neglected that warning "knock," or like Jones, had failed to appreciate it. Let us not be too ready to criticize, for the early warning symptoms are usually so slight that often they can be detected only by a qualified physician, after a very careful examination. A little irregularity in the heart beat, a slight thickening of the arteries, an occasional trace of albumin in the urine, some shortness of breath on exertion, a slight cough, peculiar attacks of sick headache—these are some of the symptoms so readily overlooked or disregarded as of no serious significance.

Just as the careful motorist has his engine looked over from time to time so all of us who value our health should have a qualified physician look us over thoroughly at least once each year. Even though we may feel we are in the best of health, such an examination may disclose some beginning trouble. Most serious ailments, later on incurable, can be successfully controlled if taken in time. Give your body a square deal. It is a wonderful mechanism, but requires decent care and attention. See the doctor today.

WEBSTER
-MAN'S MAN
by Peter B. Kyne
Author of "Cappy Ricks," "The Valley of the Giants," Etc.

CHAPTER VII.—At New Orleans, while waiting for the steamer to Buenaventura, Webster saves the life of a young man who is attacked by two assassins. The youth leaves Webster without disclosing his identity.

CHAPTER VIII.—On the steamer Webster finds his stateroom occupied by a stranger who declares his intention of being his guest to Buenaventura. At first angered, Webster and the stranger, after a somewhat forcible argument, reach an amicable agreement. Webster recognizes him as the youth whose life he had saved the day before, though the other does not know Webster.

"That You, Bill?" He Shouted.

CHAPTER IX.
Prior to leaving New Orleans, Webster had cabled Billy Geary that he was taking passage on La Estrellita and stating the approximate date of his arrival at San Buenaventura—which information descended upon that young man with something of the charm of a gentle rainfall over a hitherto arid district. He had been seeing Dolores Ruey at least once a day ever since her return to Soabrate. He was quick, therefore, to seize upon Webster's cablegram as an excuse to call upon Dolores and explain the mystery surrounding his friend's nonappearance.

"Well, Dolores," he began, in his excitement calling her by her first name for the first time, "I've heard from Jack Webster."

"What's the news, Bill?" Dolores inquired. From the first day of their acquaintance she had been growing increasingly fond of Geary; for nearly a week she had been desirous of calling him Bill, which is a comfortable name and, to Dolores' way of thinking, a peculiarly appropriate cognomen for such a distinctly American young man. At mention of the beloved word he glanced down at her pleasantly.

"Thank you," he said, "I'm glad you got around to it finally. Those that love me always call me Bill."

"You called me Dolores."

"I move we make it unanimous. I'm a foe to formality."

"Second the motion, Bill. So am I—when I care to be—and in our case your formality is spoiling our comradeship. And now, with reference to the extraordinary Senor Webster—"

"Why, the poor old horse has been down with ptomaine poisoning. They carried him off the train at St. Louis and stood him on his head and pumped him out, and just did manage to cancel his order for a new tombstone. He says he's feeding regularly again and has booked passage on La Estrellita, so we can look for him on the next steamer arriving."

"Oh, the poor fellow!" Dolores murmured—so fervently that Billy was on the point of hurling his heart at her feet on the instant.

The thousand dollars Webster had cabled Billy "for a road-stake" had been dwindling rapidly under the stimulus of one continuous opportunity to spend the same in a quarter where it was calculated to bring the most joy. Mr. Geary was absolutely bogged in the quagmire of his first love affair; but until his mining concession should amply justify an avowal of his passion, an instinctive sense of the eternal fitness of things reminded Billy of the old proverb that a closed mouth catches no flies. And in the meantime (such is the optimism of youth) he decided there was no need for worry, for when a girl calls a fellow Bill, when she tells him he's a scout and doesn't care a whoop for any society except his—caramba! it's great!

A wireless from Webster warned Billy of the former's imminent arrival. Just before sunset Billy and Dolores, riding along the Malecon, sighted a blur of smoke far out to sea—a blur that grew and grew until they could make out the graceful white hull of La Estrellita, before the swift tropic night descended and the lights of the great vessel shimmered across the harbor.

"Too late to clear quarantine tonight," Billy mourned, as he and Dolores rode back to her hotel. "All the same, I'm going to borrow the launch of my good friend Leber and his protegee Don Juan Cafetero, and go out to the steamer tonight. I can leave to a little way from the steamer and welcome the old rascal, anyhow."

Fortunately, good little Leber consented to Billy's request, and Don Juan Cafetero was sober enough to turn the engine over and run the launch. From the deck of the steamer Webster, smoking his post-prandial cigar, caught sight of the launch's red and green sidelights chugging through the inky blackness; as the little craft slid up to within a cable's length of the steamer and hove to, something told Webster that Billy Geary would soon be paging him. He edged over to the rail.

"That you, Bill?" he shouted.

"Hey! Jack, old pal!" Billy's delighted voice answered him.

"I knew you'd come, Billy boy."

"I knew you'd know it, Johnny. Can't come aboard, you know, until the ship clears, but I can lie off here and say hello. How is your internal mechanism?"

then a stentorian voice shouted from the steamer. "Hey, you! In the launch, there. Not so close. Back off."

Don Juan kicked the launch back fifty feet. "That will do!" the voice called again.

"Hello!" Billy soliloquized. "That's Jack Webster's voice. Wonder what he's up to. I thought he acted strangely—preferring medicine to me the minute I hailed him!"

While he was considering the matter, a voice behind him said very softly and indistinctly, like a man with a harp:

"Mr. Geary, will you be good enough to back your launch a couple of hundred feet? When I'm certain I can't be seen from the steamer, I'll come aboard."

Billy turned, and in the dim light of his binnacle lamp observed a beautiful pair of white hands grasping the gunwale on the starboard quarter. He peered over and made out the head and shoulders of a man.

"All right," he replied in a low voice. "Hang where you are, and you'll be clear of the propeller."

He signaled Don Juan, who backed swiftly away, while Billy doused the binnacle lamp.

"That'll do," the thick voice said presently. "Bear a hand, friend, and I'll climb over."

He came, as naked as Mercury, sprawled on his belly in the cockpit, opened his mouth, spat out a compact little roll of tinfoil, opened it and drew out a ball of paper which he flattened out on the floor of the cockpit and handed to Billy.

"Thank you," he said, very courteously and distinctly now. "My credentials, Mr. Geary, if you please."

Billy relighted the lamp and read:

"Dear Billy:

"I do not know the bearer from Adam's off ox; all I know about him is that he has all the outward marks of a gentleman, the courage of a bear-cat, a sense of humor and a head for which the presidents of Soabrate will gladly pay a considerable number of pesos oro. Don't give up the head, because I like it and we do not need the money—yet. Take him ashore without anybody knowing it; hide him, clothe him, feed him—then forget all about him."

"Ever thine,
"J. S. WEBSTER."

"Kick the boat ahead again, Cafetero," Billy ordered quietly. He turned to the late arrival. "Mr. Man, your credentials are all in apple-pie order. Do you happen to know that this bay is swarming with man-eating sharks?"

The man raised a fine, strong, youthful face and grinned at him. "Hobson's choice, Mr. Geary," he replied. "Afloat or ashore, the sharks are after me. Sir, I am your debtor." He crawled into the cabin and stretched out on the settee as John Stuart Webster's voice came floating across the dark waters.

"Everything well with you, Billy?"

"All is lovely, Jack, and the goose honsks high. By the way, that friend of yours called with his letter of introduction. I took care of him."

"Thanks, I suppose you'll call for me in that launch tomorrow morning?"

"Surest thing you know, Jack. Good night, old top."

"Good-night, Billy."

Don Juan Cafetero swung the launch and headed back for the city. At Leber's little dock Billy stepped ashore, while Don Juan backed out into the dark bay again in order to avoid inquisitive visitors. Billy hastened to El Buen Amigo and returned presently with a bundle of clothes; at an agreed signal Don Juan kicked the launch into the dock again and Billy went aboard.

"Hat, shirt, necktie, duck suit, white socks and shoes," he whispered. "Climb into them, stranger."

Once more the launch backed out in the bay, where Webster's protegee dressed at his leisure, and Billy handed Don Juan a couple of pesos.

"Remember, John," he cautioned the bibulous one as they tied up for the night, "nothing unusual happened tonight."

"Divil a thing, Mither Geary. Thank you, sor," the Gaelic wreck replied blithely and disappeared in the darkness, leaving Billy to guide the stranger to El Buen Amigo, where he was taken into the confidence of Mother Jenks and, on Billy's guarantee of the board bill, furnished with a room and left to his own devices.

John Stuart Webster came down the gangplank into Leber's launch hard at the heels of the port doctor.

"You young horse thief," he cried, affectionately. "I believe it's the custom down this way for men to kiss each other. Well, dispense with that, but by—" He folded Billy in a paternal embrace, then held him at arm's length and looked him over.

"Lord, son," he said, "you're as thin as a snake. I'll have to feed you up."

As they sped toward the landing, he looked Billy over once more. "I have it," he declared. "You need a change of climate to get rid of that malaria. Just show me this little old mining claim of yours, Bill, and then hike for God's country. Three months up there will put you right again, and by the time you get back, we'll be about ready to weigh the first cleanup."

Billy shook his head. "I'd like to mighty well, Jack," he replied, "but I just can't."

"Huh! I suppose you don't think I'm equal to the task of straightening out this concession of yours and making a hummer out of it, eh?"

The young fellow looked across at him sheepishly. "Mine?" he jeered. "Who's talking about a mine. I'm thinking of a girl!"

"Oh!"

"Some girl, Johnny."

"I hope she's not some parrakeet," Webster bantered. "Have you looked up her pedigree?"

"Ah-h-h!" Billy spat over the side in sheer disgust. "This is an American girl—born here, but white—raised in the U. S. A. I've only known her three weeks, but—ah!" And Billy kissed his hand into space.

"Well, I'm glad I find you so happy, boy. When do you pull off the wedding?"

"Oh," said Billy, "that's premature, Jack. I haven't asked her. How could I until I'm able to support her?"

"Look here, son," Webster replied, "don't you go to work and be the kind of fool I was. You get married and take a chance. A man ought to marry young, Bill. Hang the odds. I know what's good for you."

At the hotel Billy sent a note to Dolores, apprising her that John Stuart Webster had arrived—and would she be good enough to receive them?

Miss Ruey would be that gracious. She was waiting for them in the veranda just off the patio, outwardly calm, but inwardly a foment of conflicting emotions. As they approached she affected not to see them and turning, glanced in the opposite direction; nor did she move her head until Billy's voice, speaking at her elbow, said:

"Well, Dolores, here's my old Jack-partner waiting to be introduced. Jack, permit me to present Miss Dolores Ruey."

She turned her face and rose graciously, marking with secret triumph the light of recognition that leaped to his eyes, hovered there the hundredth part of a second and departed, leaving those keen, quizzical blue orbs appraising her in the most natural manner imaginable. Webster bowed.

"It is a great happiness to meet you, Miss Ruey," he said gravely.

Dolores gave him her hand. "You have doubtless forgotten, Mr. Webster, but I think we have met before."

"Indeed!" John Stuart Webster murmured interestedly. "So stupid of me not to remember. Where did we meet?"

"He has a profound sense of humor," she soliloquized. "He's going to force me into the open. Oh, dear, I'm helpless." Aloud she said: "On the train in Death valley last month, Mr. Webster."

Webster shook his head slowly, as if mystified. "I fear you're mistaken, Miss Ruey. I wasn't on the train in Death valley last month. I was in Denver—so you must have met some other Mr. Webster."

She flushed furiously. "I didn't think I could be mistaken," she answered a trifle coldly.

"It is my misfortune that you were," he replied graciously. "Certainly, had we met at that time, I should not have failed to recognize you now. Somehow, Miss Ruey, I never have any luck."

She was completely outgeneraled, and having the good sense to realize it, submitted gracefully. "He's perfectly horrible," she told herself, "but at least he can lie like a gentleman—and I always did like that kind of man."

So they chatted on the veranda until luncheon was announced and Dolores left them to go to her room.

"Well?" Billy queried the moment she was out of earshot. "What do you think, Johnny?"

The "New Edison"

Would surely be a great companion to have around during these long winter evenings. Just think of being able to make your own choice of the world's finest music and song, for your own evening's entertainment in your own home.

The purchase price of a New Edison, would amount to probably 3 cents per day if spread out over the period of time in use. Don't you think this is very reasonable for so wonderful a musical instrument?

We will gladly make very reasonable terms on a New Edison if you wish.

By the way, why not let the New Edison be a Christmas present for the whole family this year?
