

Over The County

Star-Mirror: Six bankers of Latah county in addition to representatives from the three Moscow banks, met here Monday afternoon to discuss the new system of personal property tax assessments on bank capital stock and bank surplus.

Practically all of the bank representatives appeared at the court house to examine the records, check up on their assessments and the assessments of the other banks.

Bankers would make no announcement of what action would be taken in regard to the announcement by the county commissioners that bank stock would be assessed at 66 and two-thirds per cent. The method of arriving at the assessment between the commissioners and the bankers themselves is at variance. Monday's meeting was designed to acquaint the bankers with the new system and to give the bankers an opportunity to decide on whether or not to protect the assessment.

Juliaetta Record: Asa Cook killed a duck Thanksgiving which had a small gold nugget in its crop. The duck was raised on the place, Mr. Cook says, and could have gotten hold of the gold nowhere else. After an examination of the nugget by J. M. Wisdom, who has spent much of his life in mining, he expressed the opinion that the nugget had come from some assay office and had doubtless been dropped by some one on Mr. Cook's place, perhaps in the early mining days. The sharp eye of the duck having detected it in its wandering about the place.

Genesee News: In connection with the recent accident in which W. H. Mervyn drove his automobile into a road grader, the road officials wish to make the statement that a grader has the right of way—no matter which way they may be going or upon which side of the road they may be and ask all to keep a sharp lookout for them.

Troy News: Early in the year Mrs. H. L. Cartwright, who made her first trial at raising turkeys, agreed to serve roast turkey to all in the community who bagged a coyote during the year. On Saturday November 26th she redeemed the promise and enjoyed a social time as well. The guests present were Victor Nelson and family, Roy Nelson, Joe Johnson, Axel Sammelson and "Uncle Jimmy" Lang.

The method generally used to bag the game was trapping and the "koy" killed at least a dozen coyotes since last January.

Will Survey Powel Hill

Mr. Oehler of the firm of Van Arsdol and Oehler of Lewiston will start a survey of the partly finished Powel grade first of next week to get it in shape so that the highway commissioners may let a contract for the completion of the grade. The surveying to be done will consist of securing a cross section.

Monday the highway commissioners viewed this piece of road and decided that the proper method to pursue in getting it completed was to let a contract. This will probably be done shortly after the survey is finished.

The road work on this grade and also the work on the mile strip of road northeast of town will be carried on at the same time.

Farm Bureau Meetings

Charles G. Stonebreaker of the national farm bureau federation, in company with County Agent Skuse of Nez Perce county, held meetings at Leland and Southwick Tuesday. The meeting at Leland was held in the afternoon at 1:30 and at Southwick in the evening at 7:30. The purpose of the meetings was to take up the matter of the county farm bureau uniting with the state and national federation. The idea of uniting with the state and national federation seems to be meeting with general favor.

Reports at the federation meeting showed that there are 967,272 paid up members belonging to the 1,468 county farm bureaus and 46 state farm bureau federations, all members of the American farm bureau federation. It was also reported that there are more than 500,000 additional members of the county and state farm bureaus who have not yet qualified for membership in the national organization. During the year 22,878 members were added.

It can thus be seen that there are about 1,500,000 farm bureau members in the United States and the membership is now growing at the rate of 50,000 a month, giving promise of reaching 2,000,000 in number by the close of the coming year. It is estimated that the efforts of the farm bureau federation have been instrumental in reducing railroad rates to the extent of $50,000,000. Five national conferences have been held for the purpose of promoting cooperation to shorten the farmers' road to market. Through the work of the "committee of 17" the United States Grain Growers has been organized, with 25,000 farmers and 600 elevators, with 50,000,000 bushels of grain under contract, this being only a beginning. It being expected by a year from now to have 150,000 members, representing 300,000,000 bushels of grain, or perhaps one-half the entire wheat crop of the United States.

Death of Indian Woman

Amos Williams, a Nez Perce Indian, was arrested in Lewiston this week charged with the death of his wife, a Yakima Indian. It is said that Williams became intoxicated and quarreled with his wife, striking her on the shoulder and knocking her down with such force that she died from the effects of her injuries.

Miss Woller is a great booster for her home town, if you don't believe it come and we'll prove that you won't have to leave Cameron to do your Christmas shopping.

The bootleggers were fined $250 each and given suspended jail sentences of 30 days.

Methodist Had Fine Supper

The annual bazaar and chicken dinner given by the ladies aid of the Methodist church last Saturday evening, was up to its usual standard in every way except that the attendance was not what it should have been. The chicken dinner was very good and the cost of fifty cents a plate represented a sacrifice to no one except the ladies who prepared the dinner. As has been well said, it doesn't require much sacrifice to pay 50 cents for a 75 cent chicken dinner.

The people of Kendrick and vicinity will have an opportunity Saturday, (tomorrow) night to witness the "Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary", at the Grand Theatre. Aunt Mary will be rejuvenated by a group of young college men and a popular young lady.

The play entitled "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary", will be presented by members of the Galiloh club of the Lewiston State Normal. It is a three act comedy full of amusing situations.

The play is being put on in Kendrick under the auspices of the local school. All proceeds above expenses will be turned into the treasury of the high school student organization. An admission of 50 cents and 35 cents will be charged.

The following press notice was clipped from the Tribune:

Members of the Galiloh club of the state normal school presented "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary" to a crowded and enthusiastic house last night at the normal gymnasium.

The character of Aunt Mary was well carried out by Marian Coburn. The trials, moods and eccentricities of the old lady, her tart temper and firm decisions brought forth repeated laughter. She was ably supported by her maid, Lucinda, in the person of Mary Russell.

Ray Potter as Aunt Mary's nephew, Jack, impersonated the college youth who has not yet learned the value of money, but his love for Betty turns him in the right direction and he is taken into a reliable firm.

The college chums, Charles Stidwell as Clover, and Will Carrick as Mitchell, were ever ready in the solution of difficulties.

Elizabeth Thomson as Betty and Emory Lathrop as her brother, Bob, displayed the spirit of genuine hospitality and good cheer.

Other members of the cast were Florence Miller, Virginia Nolan, Owen Pepple and Edgar Weekly, each of who presented admirable support.

Much interest in dramatics is being shown by the members of this club, and last night was the second of a series of plays which are scheduled for the school year.

He Knows What They Like

Webster —Man's Man

By PETER B. KYNE

Author of
"Cappy Ricks," "The Valley of the Giants," etc.

(Copyright, by Peter B. Kyne)

CHAPTER VII.—At New Orleans, while waiting for the steamer to Buenaventura, Webster saves the life of a young man who is attacked by two assassins. The youth leaves Webster without disclosing his identity.

CHAPTER VIII.—On the steamer Webster finds his stateroom occupied by a stranger who declares his intention of being his guest to Buenaventura. At first angered, Webster and the stranger, after a somewhat forcible argument, reach an amicable agreement. Webster recognizes him as the youth whose life he had saved the day before, though the other does not know Webster.

"I think," said John Stuart Webster, slowly, "that you're a good picker, Bill. She's my ideal of a fine young woman, and my advice to you is to marry her. I'll grub-stake you. Bill, this stiff collar is choking me; I wish you'd wait here while I go to my room and rustle up a soft one."

In the privacy of his room John Stuart Webster sat down on his bed and held his head in his hands, for he had just received a blow in the solar plexus and was still groggy. Presently, however, he pulled himself together and approaching the mirror looked long at his weather-beaten countenance.

"Too old," he murmured, "too old to be dreaming dreams."

He changed to a soft collar, and when he descended to the patio to join Billy once more he was, to all outward appearances, his usual unperturbed self, for his was one of those rare natures that can derive a certain comfort from the misery of self-sacrifice—and in that five minutes alone in his room John Stuart Webster had wrestled with the tragedy of his life and won.

He had resolved to give Billy the right of way on the highway to happiness.

In Mr. Webster's own whimsical phraseology, his clock had been fixed, on the instant he recognized in the object of his youthful partner's adoration the same winsome woman he had enthroned in his own secret castle of love. From that precise second Billy's preserve was as safe from encroachment by his friend as would be a bale of Confederate currency in an arm-steel vault on the three-thousand-foot level of a water-filled mine.

John Stuart Webster had unanimously resolved upon the course he should have pursued in the first place. He would investigate Billy's mining concession immediately; provided it should prove worth while, he would finance it and put the property on a paying basis; after which he would see to it that the very best doctors in the city of Buenaventura should inform Billy, unofficially and in the strictest confidence, that if he desired to preserve the life of Senor Juan Webster he should forthwith pack that rapidly disintegrating person off to a more salubrious climate.

Having made his decision, John Stuart Webster immediately took heart of hope and decided to lead trumps. Dolores rejoined them for a siesta after luncheon.

Webster leaned over and slapped Billy Geary's knees affectionately.

"Well, Bill, you saffron-colored old wreck, how long do you suppose it will take for you to pick up enough strength and courage to do some active mining? I'm anxious to get that property on a paying basis, so I can get out of the country."

"Why, Johnny," the amazed Billy declared, "I thought you would stay and help run the mine."

"Indeed! Well, why do you suppose I spent so much time teaching you how to run a mine, you young idiot, if not against just such a time as this? You found this concession and tied it up; I'll finance it and help you get everything started; but after that, I'm through, and you can manage it on salary and name the salary yourself. You have a greater interest in this country than I, William; and so with your kind permission we'll hike up to that concession tomorrow and give it the double-O; then, if I can O. K. the property, we'll cable for the machinery I ordered just before I left Denver, and get busy. We ought to have our first clean-up within ninety days."

"Gosh, but you're in a hurry," Billy murmured. He disliked exceedingly the thought of having his courtship interrupted on a minute's notice.

"You know me, son, I'm a hustler on the job," Webster reminded him, brutally; "so the sooner you start, the sooner you can get back and accumulate more malaria. What accommodations have you up there?"

"None, Jack."

"Then you had better get some, Billy. I think you told me we have to take horses at San Miguel de Padua to ride in to the mine." Billy nodded. "Then you had better buy a tent and bedding for both of us, ship the stuff up to San Miguel de Padua, go up with it and engage horses, a good cook, and a couple of reliable mozos. When you have everything ready telegraph me and I'll come up."

"Why can't you come up with me?" Billy demanded.

"I have to see a man, and write some letters and send a cablegram and wait for an answer. I may have to loaf around here for two or three days. By the way, what did you do for that friend I sent to you with the letter of introduction?"

"Exactly what you told me to do, Johnny."

"Where is he now?"

"At El Buen Amigo—the same place where I'm living."

"All right. When you get back to your hostelry, you might tell my friend I shall expect him over to dine with me this evening, if he can manage it."

For an hour they discussed various subjects; then Billy, declaring the siesta was almost over and the shops reopening as a consequence, announced his intention of doing his shopping, said good-bye to Dolores and Webster, and lugubriously departed on the business in hand.

"Why are you in such a hurry, Mr. Webster?" Dolores demanded. "You haven't been in Buenaventura six hours until you've managed to make me perfectly miserable."

"I'm terribly sorry. I didn't mean to."

"Didn't you know Billy Geary is my personal property?"

"No, but I suspected he might be. Bill's generous that way. He never hesitates to give himself to a charming woman."

"This was a case of mutual self-defense. Billy hasn't any standing socially, you know. When old Mrs. General Maldonado lectured me (the dear, aristocratic soul conceived it to be her duty) on the impropriety of appearing on the Malecon with Billy and my guardian, who happens to be Billy's landlady, I tried to explain our American brand of democracy, but failed. So I haven't been invited anywhere since, and life would have been very dull without Billy. He has been a dear—and you have taken him away."

Webster laughed. "Well, be patient, Miss Rucy, and I'll give him back to you with considerable more money than he will require for your joint comfort. Billy in financial distress is a joy forever, but Billy in a top hat and a frock coat on the sunny side of Easy street will be absolutely irresistible."

"He's a darling. Ever since my arrival he has dedicated his life to keeping me amused." She rose. "Despite your wickedness, Mr. Webster, I am going to be good to you. Billy and I always have five o'clock tea here in the veranda. Would you care to come to my tea-party?"

"Nothing could give me greater pleasure," he assured her.

She nodded brightly to him. "I'm going to run up to my room and put some powder on my nose," she explained.

"But you'll return before five o'clock?" Webster was amazed to hear himself plead.

"You do not deserve such consideration, but I'll come back in about twenty minutes," she answered and left him.

As Webster viewed the situation, his decision to see as little as possible of Dolores during his brief stay in Sobranite was a wise one. The less he saw of her (he told himself), the better for his peace of mind, for he was forty years old, and he had never loved before. For him this fever that burned in his blood, this delicious agony that throbbled in his heart—and all on the very ghost of provocation—were so many danger-signals, heralds of that grand passion which, coming to a man of forty, generally lasts him the remainder of his natural existence.

Webster was forced to admit he was afraid of himself. His was the rapidly disappearing code of the old unfettered West, that a man shall never betray his friend in thought, word, or deed. To John Stuart Webster any crime against friendship was the most heinous in all the calendar of human frailty; even to dream of slipping into Billy's shoes now would be monstrous; yet Webster knew he could not afford a test of strength between his ancient friendship for Billy and the masculine desire for a perfect mate. Remained then but one course:

"I must run like a road-runner," was the way Webster expressed it.

CHAPTER X.

Dolores had been gone an hour before Webster roused from his bitter introspection sufficiently to glance at his watch. "Hum-m-m!" he grunted disapprovingly.

"Oh, I've been here fully half an hour," Dolores' voice assured him. He turned guiltily and found her leaning against the jamb in a doorway behind him and farther down the veranda. She was gazing at him with that calm, impersonal yet vitally interested glance that had so captivated him the first time he saw her. "Are you quite finished talking to yourself and fighting imaginary enemies? If so, you might talk to me for a change; I'll even disagree with you on any subject, if opposition will make you any happier."

He rose and indicated the chair. "Please sit down, Miss Rucy. You are altogether disconcerting—too confoundedly smart. I fear I'm going to be afraid of you until I know you better."

She shrugged adorably and took the proffered chair. "That's the Latin in her—that shrug," Webster thought. "I wonder what other mixtures go to make up that perfect whole."

Santa Claus' Books

WHEN the evening shadows gather and the time is eight o'clock
You can hear, if you will listen, Mr.
Sand Man's gentle knock.
Then you'd better hustle lively—time your evening prayers were said
And each boy and girl well tucked in their cozy, downy little beds.
For when Mr. Sand Man's knocking sounds the signal, you may know Santa Claus is closely watching from his palace built of snow.
And the children that are naughty and don't mind their ma's and pa's
Get their names down in the "Bad Book"
that is kept by Santa Claus.
Boys who never split the kindling, and the girls who always cry
When they're asked to wash the dishes—
Santa Claus has got his eye
On such boys and girls, and watches with a sad and sorry look
As he writes each name in sorrow on the pages of his book.
And the girl who never hurries, but lets mamma do the work,
And the boy who's always scheming all his little chores to shirk—
They may think no one pays notice when they don't help ma's and pa's
But their names are on the "Bad Book"
that is kept by Santa Claus.
But old Santa keeps a "Good Book"—it's the bestest book of all.
Where he writes the names of children who are prompt at duty's call,

Merry Christmas

Best of All Holidays

TAKING it all in all, it may be safely asserted that Christmas is the merriest and the best of all holidays, and one which is likely to be observed for ages yet to come. Nations may rise and fall, new beliefs and religions may sweep away the old, but that would seem, indeed, a dreary and empty year which brought no merry Christmas in its annual round. May old Father Time long spare his holiday to mankind to gladden the hearts of all with its coming, and may each Christmas be still merrier than the last.

And call all our neighbors together,
And when they appear
Let us make them such cheer
As will keep out the wind and the weather.

CHRISTMAS IN 1621

Rebuke Administered to New England Observers of Day.

Young Men Who Had Arrived on Little Ship Fortune Reprimanded for Festivities.

IT WAS in 1621 that Governor Bradford was called upon to administer a rebuke to some of the young men of the New England colony who had just come over on the little ship Fortune, and who wanted to celebrate the holiday, the Detroit News recalls. Puritanism brought over with it in the May flower the anti-Christmas feeling, and when the group of lusty youngsters attempted to observe the day they were sharply criticized by the colony.

The men were called out to work that day as on other days, but the newcomers declared it against their consciences to work on Christmas day. The governor left them and led away the rest of the workers. But when he returned at noon the young men were in the street at play—some pitching the bar and some playing stool ball. He took away their implements and told them it was against his conscience that they should play while others worked, and that they could observe the day within doors, but there should be no reveling in the streets.

On the day in question a tree was chopped down and dragged into one of the rough cabins where it was trimmed with cranberries and popcorn, while the young people feasted their eyes on its beauties. These "revels" were frowned upon by the majority of the colonists and in 1659 the general court of Massachusetts enacted a law that made any person observing Christmas day liable to a fine of "five shillings." The law was repealed in 1861.

Placecards.

Next after decorating the table comes the question of placecards. These may be as simple or as elaborate as you like, but you really should have them! You might cut white cardboard into small round pieces. Give each an irregularly outlined border of green and at the top of this little make-believe Christmas wreath punch a small hole, through it draw red baby ribbon, and tie in a bow. The name is written in the center.

Summary of County Agents Annual Report

ORGANIZATION
Twenty-four communities of Latah County are organized for Farm Bureau work. The 24 communities have adopted an average of five different lines of work, so that a total of 120 local projects were adopted for the past year. One hundred nine farmers lead these 120 local lines of work, some men leading two projects. Lines of work taken up in each community were determined by the sources of income in that community, the aim being to work on projects that were of greatest local importance. Farmers of each community decided upon the work for that community and selected their local leaders. The county program of work is a composite of the community programs.

PEST CONTROL
The chief work on the pest control project in 1921 was a continuation of the campaign against the Columbian ground squirrel started in 1920, and practically the same methods were used in both years. All of the 24 organized communities of the county adopted this project as a part of their work for 1921. Chief results of the campaign were as follows:

1. General squirrel control meetings were held in 22 communities, with a total attendance of 386.
2. The best way to mix poison bait was demonstrated in 22 communities.
3. Poisoning supplies were sold at cost in 24 communities and the use of poison thereby increased. 1626 ounces of strychnine and 514 ounces of saccharine were sold to 557 farmers.
4. Monday was set as poisoning day in each of the 24 organized communities, with the understanding that if the weather were bad on Monday the first fair day thereafter should be poisoning day. People generally poisoned on this day and thereby concerted the attack on the squirrel.
5. Two sections of state school land were poisoned over by the county agent and farmers adjoining the land, with poison furnished by the state and prepared by the county agent.
6. Sixty committeemen nominated at squirrel control meetings were later appointed by the Board of County Commissioners to act as local inspectors or supervisors, and enforced the Idaho rodent control law in the eighteen communities which asked to have the law enforced.
7. Loss from the work of ground squirrels was reduced to practically nothing in most of the communities, and loss was very small in the county as a whole.

WHEAT IMPROVEMENT
Wheat improvement was adopted as a project for 1921 by 15 communities. The main objects of the wheat improvement project are to show the importance of growing a limited number of pure varieties of wheat; determine the best varieties of both spring and fall grain for each section; provide pure seed of these varieties and aid in the dissemination of the seed in the sections where such seed is most in demand; and conduct other demonstrations that may lead to more profitable production of wheat.

Following is a summary of the work accomplished during 1921 on the wheat improvement project:

1. (a) Variety test plots grown on Big Bear Ridge showed the following yields per acre:
Jenkins Club 30.2; Little Club 25.0; Turkey Red 20.8; and Red Russian 18.7 bushels.
- (b) New test plots were started in Farmington, Pine Grove (2), and Cedar Creek communities.
2. (a) Sixty-six fields in 16 communities were given the standing grain inspection for certification of seed by either Prof. R. K. Bonnett or Prof. H. W. Hulbert, acting as special assistants to the State Pure Seed Commissioner, and the county agent. Forty-eight of these fields, with a total of 1640 acres, passed this preliminary inspection. Thirty-nine fields, with a total of 1239 acres, passed the final inspection and wheat from these was certified as seed. All of the wheat which passed inspection, excepting one small field of Kanred, one of Wash. Hybrid No. 128, and one of Coppel, with a total of 33 acres, was of the Jenkins Club variety. Approximately 40,000 bushels of certified seed was produced in the county this year.
- (b) Forty-five farmers have purchased a total of 5939 bushels of certified seed from farmers and dealers, and all farmers producing pure seed have planted increased acreages with this seed.
- (c) Pure seed has gone into practically every community in the county.
- (d) Approximately 10,000 acres were planted with certified seed during the fall of 1921.
3. Certified Forty Fold seed wheat was planted in one community to get a start of good seed.
4. Certified Wash. Hybrid No. 128 was introduced into two communities.
5. Certified Jenkins Club was introduced into ten communities where there was no pure seed.
6. Twenty-two demonstrations were started to show the advantages of the bluestone-lime dip treatment for smut control as compared with the straight bluestone treatment. One demonstration using copper carbonate to control smut was started, making a total of 23 demonstrations of better seed treatment.
7. The farm bureau gave a silver cup at the Troy Fair for the best exhibit of certified Jenkins Club seed wheat. There were thirteen exhibits in competition and this exhibit did much toward stimulating interest in better seed.
8. Farmers who planted certified Jenkins Club seed wheat in the fall of 1920 report that wheat grown from that seed outyielded their crop from ordinary Jenkins seed by an average of from 5 to 7 bushels per acre.

LIVESTOCK IMPROVEMENTS
Practically all of the people of Latah County are interested in some type of livestock to a limited degree, while a few farmers are especially interested in one or more classes of livestock. It has been hard to get the farmers in any one community to unite on any definite livestock program. However, during the past season, most of the people of this county were interested in the eradication of tuberculosis in cattle. Nineteen communities of the county adopted tuberculin testing of cattle as a project for 1921. Dr. A. R. Mahan was stationed at Moscow by the state and federal bureaus of animal industry cooperating, to do testing in this and other northern Idaho counties. He tested approximately 1,000 cattle in ten communities, most of these being in cooperation with the Farm Bureau. (The exact number tested was never reported to the county agent by Dr. Mahan.) Cattle were tested in Moscow, Pine Grove, Blaine, and Little Potlatch communities. There are still fifteen communities where the farmers want their cattle tested. Owners of over 2,000 cattle have their animals signed up and are waiting for a veterinarian to do the testing. The county agent and the local project leaders have aroused the interest and have had the cattle signed up for the test. Thus they have done all that they can do and are now waiting for the state and federal authorities to send a veterinarian to finish the work.

Palouse community standardized on the Duroc Jersey and Chester White breeds of hogs and good boars of these breeds are available in that community.

WEED CONTROL
Weed control was adopted as a project in fifteen communities of the county this year. Different goals were set in different communities but the principal objects in adopting the project were to study control methods of the noxious weeds of Latah County; conduct excursions and demonstrations and in other ways disseminate information as to the best ways of killing noxious weeds; create a greater popular interest in weed control; and assist the members of the Board of County Commissioners in their attempt to control the weeds of the county. Following is the summary of the principal work of the year on this project.

1. Eight weed control excursions were conducted. These reached nine communities and were attended by 172 people. All learned to identify all our noxious-weeds and prevention and control methods were discussed.
2. Seventeen farmers demonstrated the use of sodium arsenite as a poison spray to control bindweed, or wild morning glory.
3. Sixteen farmers used this spray on Canada thistle.
4. Results indicate that these weeds can be effectively controlled, and probably eradicated, by this spray at a very reasonable cost.
5. The clean cultivation demonstration started in 1920 on bindweed was continued in 1921 with negative results.
6. Demonstrations show that alfalfa will control bindweed by keeping it smothered down.
7. Weed specimens were identified for 10 different farmers. The number of specimens sent indicates greater interest in the weed problem.
8. Much interest has been aroused in the control of noxious weeds and farmers of different communities have indicated that they will ask the County Commissioners to appoint weed control committeemen in various communities during the coming year.

POULTRY IMPROVEMENT
Five communities of Latah County adopted poultry improvement as a part of their cooperative extension work for 1921. The miscellaneous work done in the county during 1920 by Fren Moore, poultry specialist of the Extension Division, is largely responsible for the adoption of this project in the county. The object of the poultry improvement project is to improve the farm flocks of Latah County; demonstrate better feeding and housing; and make the farm flock pay. A brief summary of the work on this project follows:

1. Five culling demonstrations were held with an attendance of 125 people. Committeemen report that approximately 6000 hens have been examined by the specialist, committeemen and farmers and that approximately 50 per cent of these were culled.
2. Fifty farmers are using improved feeding methods.
3. Eleven flocks were mated in the fall of 1921.
4. Thirteen farmers were furnished sets for the keeping of poultry records.
5. An outstanding cockerel was secured for one flock that needed a new male bird.
6. Farmers are improving their flocks as rapidly as practicable and are disposing of the "boarder" hens.

POTATO IMPROVEMENT
D. Stevens, of Deary, planted one-half acre of potatoes with certified Idaho Rural seed secured from Kootenai County thru the county agent. This plot was inspected during the season and the potatoes declared eligible for certification. Mr. Stevens will keep and plant all the seed that was produced on this plot this year. Other farmers of Deary community plan on purchasing Idaho Rural seed during the present winter. They hope to be able to ship at least one carload of certified seed from that community in the fall of 1922.

LAND CLEARING
Land clearing was adopted as a project by the Harvard community with two principal lines of work in mind.

1. Develop a direct producer-to-consumer market for wood.
 2. Purchase stumping powder cooperatively.
- Not much headway was made in developing the producer-to-consumer market as there were very few purchasers in a position to buy a carload of wood. Most of the work done was on the purchase of blasting materials. A summary of work on this project follows:
1. Seven tons of 20 per cent stumping powder was purchased by Harvard and Princeton communities cooperating, at a saving of approximately 5 cents per pound, under the leadership of Wm. Hensen of Harvard. The saving on this shipment was approximately $700.00.
 2. One carload of 24,000 pounds of picric acid was purchased by the farmers of the county thru the county agent and the agricultural college. Orders of 100 farmers made up the total carload order, so that the average amount purchased per farmer was 240 pounds. Ten communities were represented by the 100 buyers. The picric acid cost $12.80 per cwt., while 40 per cent dynamite was costing $24.60 and stumping powder costing $22.50 to $23.00. Thus the saving was approximately $10.00 per case of 100 lbs., or $2100.00.

3. Farmers who never before purchased blasting powder, ordered picric acid and have started clearing land. The order of picric acid is leading to a larger purchase of commercial powders and to more cleared land in Latah County.

4. Two demonstrations of the use of picric acid were conducted by Prof. G. R. McDole under the auspices of the county extension service. Fifty-two farmers, representing eight of the 10 communities purchasing picric acid, attended these and declared picric acid fully equal to dynamite or stumping powder for blasting stumps.

CROP REPORTING
Thirteen communities adopted crop reporting as a project for 1921, and thirteen crop reporters were selected. The object was to cooperate with other counties and farm bureaus of the state and nation in supplying adequate and accurate crop reports, in cooperation with the United States Department of Agriculture. The thirteen men selected were well distributed over the county, so that the reports sent in were representative of the conditions in the county. The reporters all sent in their reports regularly and Julius H. Jacobson, who has charge of federal crop reporting work in Idaho, states that Latah County reports were all that could be asked.

MISCELLANEOUS
Under the term "Miscellaneous" is including work that was done during the season but which was not in connection with any of the regularly adopted projects. The summary of the miscellaneous work done during 1921 is as follows:

1. Two farm management schools were held with an attendance of 46 farmers.
2. A mass meeting of farmers was held in Moscow to hear the report of Mr. George Stevers, county leader of wheat improvement project, on National Grain Marketing conference held in Chicago.
3. A cooperative experiment was started by A. N. Rogstad, of Big Bear Ridge, to determine the effect of plowing under varying growths of alfalfa, with varying treatments of land plaster, on subsequent wheat crops.
4. A field of Little Marvel peas at Avon was inspected and certified as seed.
5. Farm visits were made by the county agent to give advice on the control of garden insects, and a news article on this matter was printed in all the papers of the county.
6. The work of a mustard-eating aphid was studied and brought to the attention of the scientists of the experiment station. The aphid eats yellow mustard and is increasing each year in the Genesee community.
7. Three dress forms classes were conducted under the direction of Miss Ada B. Erwin, of the Home Economics staff of the Extension Division. Fifty-three women attended the three meetings and 16 dress forms were made. Materials for 11 additional forms were purchased previous to the classes and the forms will be made by ladies attending the classes.
8. Two pressure canners were purchased in Palouse community thru the county agent and these served as demonstrations in the community. The superiority of the pressure canner over the wash boiler for canning vegetables and meats has been demonstrated.
9. A faker selling poultry supplies at exorbitant prices was exposed and left the county.
10. Latah County exhibits were collected and shipped to the 1921 Idaho State Seed Show and to the International Hay and Grain Show by the county agent.

There is no reason why a creamery couldn't be made to pay in Kendrick. There is a big territory here that would no doubt supply sufficient cream to keep a properly conducted creamery busy the year round. For many years Moscow had a hard struggle to keep a creamery that could compete with outside points, but the right man came along and started an independent plant of his own. He now has one of the finest creameries in the Inland Empire, valued at $25,000. A good man who understand the business could make a creamery prosper here. The building is all ready for occupancy.

One nice feature of a suspended jail sentence is that the length of it has no terrors for the man under sentence.

Taking Desperate Chances

It is true that many contract. severe colds and recover from them without taking any precaution or treatment, and a knowledge of this fact leads others take their chances instead of giving their colds the needed attention. It should be borne in mind that every cold weakens the lungs, lowers the vitality, makes the system less able to withstand each succeeding attack and paves the way for the more serious disease. Can you afford to take such desperate chances when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, famous for its cures of bad colds may be had for a trifle.—Adv.

Christmas Games

MISTLETOE. Hang it up. Form a circle. A slipper is required. Also a nice, slippery floor. The first player slides the slipper. He tries to land it under the mistletoe. If he fails another makes the attempt. If he succeeds there is a lively scramble. It concerns the young lady toward whom the slipper points. She must seize it and get away before caught. Then the guests are given humorous gifts (previously wrapped), and are admitted (one at a time) to the Christmas room to deposit them in the stockings.

Another jolly game is played with Christmas stockings, a number of which are previously hung up.

These are placed in a separate room and the name of the person for whom each is intended is concealed upon it.

Another Christmas stocking game calls for a huge stocking of tough tissue paper filled with toys of all kinds. Each guest is blindfolded, given a light rod or cane, turned three times around and told to hit the bag. The first to break the stocking gives the signal for a general scramble, each guest being supposed to get one of the trinkets or souvenirs thus scattered.

How Not to Take Cold

Some persons are subject to frequent colds, while others seldom, if ever, have a cold. You will find that the latter take good care of themselves. They take a shower or cold sponge bath every day in a warm room, avoid over heated rooms, sleep with a window open or partly open, avoid excesses, over eating, becoming over heated and then chilled and getting the feet wet. Then, when they feel the first indication of a cold, they take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy without delay and it is soon over.

Early Christmas Morning

FOUR little feet patter on the floor,
Two angel-soft heads peep in at the door,
Hear the merry laughter o'er the chimney's roar,
Early Christmas morning.

Two little stockings full of sweets and toys,
Everything so charming for little girls and boys,
How could they help, then, making such a dreadful noise
Early Christmas morning?

Down beside the stockings many gifts were spread,
Dollies, drums, a cradle, and a brand new sled;
"Haven't we too many?" little Nellie said,
Early Christmas morning.

Four little bare feet on the sidewalk cold,
Two little faces with want and hunger old,
Peeping through the window where those gifts were laid,
Early Christmas morning.

"Yes," says John to Nellie, as he spies the two,
"We've so many presents—tell you what we'll do I'll give half of mine away. Now, dear Nell, will you?"
Early Christmas morning.

Two little hungry ones into the house were called,
Favors heaped upon them till they stood enthralled,
"Was not this the angels' song, 'Peace, goodwill to all!'"
Early Christmas morning? — Mary B. Fick

Decorate the Christmas Package

EVERY one when sending a Christmas gift desires it to appear as attractive as possible. When we receive a gift nicely wrapped with tissue paper and decorated with pretty Christmas seals, there is an added pleasure. This is especially so when we realize that the sender has spent time and cleverness to give this little touch of personal thoughtfulness.

Many varieties of Christmas seals may be purchased, but a little originality will not come amiss even in these small details.

There are seals for the outside package and the heading to be used on the note paper, conveying the good wishes of the giver, or on the little card of greeting. These two in each set match. This gives another touch of the unusual, which is always sought after.

Have a piece of carbon paper, place it over the note paper, card or seal, and on top of this one of the designs. Carefully trace with a sharp pencil the entire outline. An exact duplicate of the design will be found on the note paper or seal ready for tinting. This may be easily done with water colors or wax crayons. Poinsettia should be colored a warm, bright red, with yellow centers and dark green stems.

Holly, the special emblem of this season, has berries of vivid, fiery red and glossy leaves of dark green.

A dainty basket of forget-me-nots would be pretty colored yellow, the flowers a faint light blue and the bow-knot of pale pink. Now we have the mystic sign of the holidays, borrowed from the Druids, the mistletoe. The berries of this plant are a pearly white and the leaves a yellowish green.

Spend a little extra time giving the Christmas gift this novel decoration, and the pleasure it affords will never cause you to regret having done so.

Economy is to be considered at Christmas time. Our purse-strings have been stretched to the breaking point purchasing gifts for relatives and friends. To put this fascinating bit of handwork upon the Christmas package costs comparatively nothing, aside from the time you spend doing it. This fact counts very little when we add to the enjoyment of others.

These few suggestions will probably cause endless ideas for the Christmas package to present themselves to you. Make your gifts radiate the holiday spirit; give this little bit of personality and attractiveness to as small a thing as the Christmas seal.

religion it was one of the most movable of feasts, being often confounded with the Epiphany and celebrated by the eastern churches in April and May. In the Fourth century the urgency of St. Cyril of Jerusalem obtained from Pope Julius I. an order for an investigation to be made concerning the day of Christ's nativity. The result of the inquiry, made by theologians of the East and the West, was an agreement upon the twenty-fifth of December.

As told in the gospel of St. Luke, Christ was born in the night. Therefore, divine service is performed on the night of December 24-25. It is the custom in Roman Catholic churches to usher in Christmas day by the celebration of three masses, one at midnight, the second at early dawn, and the third in the morning. This custom dates from the sixth century.

Preparatory to Christmas the bells are rung at midnight throughout England and the continent. After the solemn celebration of the mass in the churches of the continent, which are magnificently adorned for the festival, it is customary for the worshippers to partake of a collation.

Good judgment means buying useful and substantial gifts this Christmas.

Furniture is the logical gift. It need not be a big massive article, the following articles would be very suitable:

Rocking chairs, sewing rockers, bed room chairs, dressing table stools, foot stools, small rugs, gas lamps, hand bags, phonograph records, high chairs, Kiddie Kars, doll beds.

Why not the gift supreme for the whole family — an Edison Phonograph.
