THE KENDRICK GAZETTE

VOLUME 31.

KENDRICK, LATAH COUNTY, IDAHO, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 23, 1921

NUMBER 51

Over The County

Star-Mirror: Al McKee, a former resident of Latah county, but now located at North Lapwai, was in Moscow Friday paying the taxes on his large Latah county holdings. Mr. McKee owns 2500 acres of choice land on Big Bear ridge and formerly farmed this land himself, but in recent years has had it leased and has been living at North Lapwai, where he also has extensive interests. His large fortune was amassed to a great extent through his farming operations in Latah county. He has for a number of years been one of the heavier individual taxpayers in Latah county.

While in Moscow Mr. McKee visited J. G. Gibson, whom he had known since boyhood. The first dollar that he ever earned, and which might be said to have been the foundation dollar for the fortune later accumulated, was paid him by Mr. Gibson, when the latter was carrying on farming operations in Whitman county, some 40 or more years ago.

Mr. McKee's aged father, who has passed the century mark by two years and is perhaps the oldest man in this part of the northwest, is making his home with him at Lapwai, and is enjoying fairly good health. He was one of the earliest pioneers of the west.

Genesee News: The Unontown section is working quite hard on the "powers that be" over at Colfax to have a hard road built east from Unontown to the state line to be met there by a like road, to form a connecting link between the Washington road and the Idaho state road, giving them an outlet to Genesee and Moscow.

It may be that they will have better luck in arousing their own county commissioners to their needs than did Lewiston, Genesee and Moscow, delegations from which places made many and frequent trips to Colfax to try and get few loads of gravel put on the "missing link." But it is said that all things come to those who wait, so have patience, brothers, have patience.

Juliaetta Record: Columbus Clark has just finished soliciting for Juliaetta's quota of 100 bushels of wheat to be sent to the starving Armenians. Mr. Clark was appointed by Chairman J. D. Davis of Moscow, to do the work in this community. He states that he found much sympathy with the movement and he met a hearty response everywhere, enabling him to secure the allotted amount and 10 bushels over in one day's soliciting, securing all told 110 bushels. Juliaetta, Mr. Clark has been informed by Chairman David, is the first place in the county to go over the top and he and Mr. Clark desire to thank the people of this community for their hearty co-operation in the matter.

Deary Press: The Potlatch Lumber company is planning a novel method of transporting some three or four million feet of timber from the school section near Park, P. O. The company has at considerable expense built a road some two and one half miles long, cutting out hills on good grades, and connecting with the new Helmer-Park road near P. A. Engel's farm. It is their plan to sleigh-haul the logs from the school section to the top of the grade on the south side of the Potlatch canyon, some three miles, with Caterpillar tractors. The descent of the grades will be attempted with horses, while the last stage of the journey, from the river to Camp 6 will be accomplished with tractors. The company has two ten-ton Caterpillar and two C. L. Best track-layers of about the same horse power. It is the intention to have the trac-

Two Good Games

The two best basket ball games of the season were played in the local gymnasium last Friday evening between the girls' and boys' teams of the Kooskia high school and the girls' and boys' teams of the Kendrick high school. The Kooskia boys won by a score of 25 to 20 and the Kendrick girls won by the close margin of 12 to 11.

The local boys deserve credit for the manner in which they held the Kooskia team to such a close score. The Kooskia boys were a splendid bunch of athletic fellows, averaging 152 pounds to the man, which is as heavy as the average college team. They played a fine game and the locals should have no regrets at the difference of five points in favor of the visitors, as the difference in weight between the two teams was so vastly in favor of Kooskia.

The girls' teams were so evenly matched that during the entire game there was seldom a difference of more than one point. It was a thrilling exhibition and terminated in a lucky finish for the Kendrick team. Miss Newland, one of the Kooskia forwards threw all of the baskets and one foul making the eleven points for her team.

The lineup of the boys' teams was as follows: Kendrick: Stanton, Flaig, Harris, Callison, Brocke, and substitute, Waide. Kooskia: Montgomery, Lycan, Kyle, Walker, Schroeder, English and substitute, Canfield.

Kendrick girls: Jones, D. Stanton, Hunt, Jarvis, Cox, and substitutes, J. Stanton and Bird. Kooskia girls: Newland, Newland, Cox, Dennison, Ranta, and substitute, Decker.

School Notes

The school is decidedly in need of the support of the towns people at their basket ball games. At the last games the school lost about $16.50. It not only helps to meet expenses but gives the teams greater confidence to know that a large crowd of folks are there expecting them to win.

A large crowd witnessed the play given by the Lewiston Normal Dramatic club, Saturday night. Receipts from the play were about $75.00, enabling the school to clear about $20.00.

The parents and patrons are invited to attend the Christmas program given by the grades and high school Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The little people will give the cantata "Christmas with the Old Woman in the Shoe" besides other interesting numbers given by other members of the school.

tors work in gangs, two at each end of the road, and two trips a day will be made with each machine. Special sleighs have been constructed at the company's machine shop at Camp 8, above Bovill. By an ingenious contrivance, a false tongue, the logs will not be transferred to horse sleighs. Instead the tractors will drop out and the wheel teams harnessed to the false tongue, will take their place, the exchange of motive power requiring only a few minutes, and the loads of logs are again on their way. Arriving at the river, the false tongues will be unfastened, the teams will go back to the top of the grade for the next load, and so on. As the empty sleighs are returned from the landing they will be released by the tractors at the river and taken to top of the grade by the horse teams. The only thing to start this merry-go-round is snow and without doubt we will soon have enough of snow and some to spare.

That pictured halo o'er the Saviour's head
No shepherd saw, no wisdom's men beheld;
'Tis but a fancy, cunningly bespread
By loving art, that thus His glory spelled.

Yet no mere idle fancy aureoled
With peace the Child born to this troubled sphere,
More than the myrrh, and frankincense, and gold
The painter in his vision pictured here:

For this small peace must ever greater grow
Till all the world shall bend beneath its bow.

Kendrick Has Street Car

Schnurfer & Deobald have a window exhibit that has attracted considerable attention, particularly during the evening. They built a circular track about 8 feet in diameter, with heavy copper wire, then constructed a little motor car carrying its own lighting equipment. The track is connected with a storage battery and when the "juice" is turned on the car is lighted up and runs in a very leisurely manner around on the track. It took the united efforts and a week's time on the part of Otto and Herman Schnurfer, Ted Deobald and Elmer Bechtol to perfect this little motor system.

For Near East Relief

In the drive for food and funds for the relief of the starving people of Europe, the citizens of Kendrick and vicinity donated 20 sacks of beans and 25 sacks of wheat. A. Wilmot collected $51.78 in cash. This community oversubscribed its quota.

Death of Henry Roberts

News reached here Wednesday of the death of Henry Roberts at his home in Nampa, Idaho. He had been failing in health for some time so his death was not entirely unexpected. Members of his family were called to Nampa last week because of his critical condition.

Henry Roberts was one of the pioneer residents of American ridge, having located here about 35 years ago. Four years ago he and his family moved to Nampa where they made their home.

He is survived by his wife, six daughters, Odessa, Ada, Daisy, Vina, Christina and Freda; three sons, Ralph, Jack and Paul; two brothers, Stephen of Juliaetta and John of Spokane.

Riggin Sold Home

According to the county records George Riggin sold his home in Kendrick recently to Frank LaBolle. The reported consideration is said to be $1,000.

Parks Bought Hunter Place

R. B. Parks closed a deal this week for the purchase of the Katherine Hunter place, known as the old Webster place on Potlatch ridge. The farm consists of 175 acres of fine farm land and is located in the Fairview neighborhood. The consideration is reported to have been $20,500.

In adding this farm to his other land holdings, Mr. Parks is now the owner of nearly 500 acres of splendid Potlatch land and is one of the largest land owners on Potlatch ridge.

Rejuvenated Aunt Mary

Aunt Mary was successfully rejuvenated here last Saturday night by eleven students from the Lewiston State Normal school. The performance was greeted by a large and interested audience. Miss Marian Coburn, as Aunt Mary, was easily the star of the cast, as she carried out her part very nicely.

The proceeds, over and above expenses, amounted to about $20. This amount just a little more than offset the deficit in expense money for the basketball games the night before, played between the Kooskia and Kendrick teams.

Bear Ridge Social

The need for a larger hall on Big Bear ridge was clearly indicated last Saturday evening at the basket social. The school house was so crowded there was scarcely standing room. The same condition has been experienced on Bear ridge at nearly all of the public gatherings and was the origin of the movement to build a community hall.

A literary program full of interest was given in the early part of the evening. This was followed by an auction sale of baskets which brought very attractive prices. The net proceeds from the sale of refreshments totaled $80.22. This money will be used to help defray the expense of putting up the new hall, which is now under construction.

After refreshments were disposed of in the usual manner, games and a social good time followed. A feature of the evening was a number of selections by the Bear ridge orchestra.

Masonic Lodge Officers

At the first regular meeting in December of Kendrick Lodge No. 26, A. F. & A. M., the following officers were elected: Worshipful master, E. W. Lutz; senior warden, M. O. Raby; junior warden, George L. Carlson; treasurer, E. H. Dammarell; secretary, M. B. McConnell; senior deacon, Leo C. Raaberg; junior deacon, Lester Crocker; senior steward, Manfred Nutt; junior steward, N. M. Talbot; chaplain, E. Buchanan; tyler, N. Brocke; marshal, J. C. Hamil.

Officers Get More Booze

Sheriff John L. Woody, Deputy Sheriff Summerfield, of Latah county, and J. D. Foster of the state constabulary, raided the home of Frank LaBolle, about a mile northeast of Kendrick, Tuesday night, and discovered two barrels of mash and a small quantity of liquor. LaBolle was placed under arrest and taken to Lewiston where he was arraigned in the justice court before Judge I. C. Hattabaugh. His hearing was set for January 4. He was placed under $1,000 bonds which he furnished.

Assessing Bank Capital

Latah county commissioners late Monday afternoon announced that the order of December 8 fixing the assessment on bank capital stock and bank surplus at 66 and two-thirds percent of the full value would remain unchanged as the action of the county board of equalization on the personal property tax roll. This action was taken following a hearing Monday at which representatives of the three Moscow banks and the Bank of Juliaetta were present to protest against the order of December 8.

It is understood that the bankers will appeal to the courts from the county commissioners' order.

The formal order in regard to fixing the assessments on the capital stock and bank surplus of the First National bank of Moscow, the Moscow State bank, the First Trust and Savings bank of Moscow and the First bank of Juliaetta, was drafted by the commissioners Tuesday afternoon. Up to a late hour Tuesday afternoon the order had not been completed but it is expected that the final order would be announced Wednesday.

Representatives of the four banks filed written answers in which they contend that their property assessments are not in proportion to the 40 to 50 percent assessments on other classes of property.

The board in its order of December 8 found that property of the county is assessed at 66 and two-thirds percent of its actual value. Proceeding under that finding they equalized the bank assessments on the 66 and two-thirds percent assessment. The question in regard to bank stock and surplus assessments hinges, however, according to opinions expressed on the deductions from the assessment of the banks' real estate holdings and banking house furniture and fixtures.

Commissioners met informally Tuesday morning to discuss the matter and Tuesday afternoon they were at work drafting the order and fixing the assessments of the four banks. The order will fix the personal assessment of each of the banks.

The claim of the Moscow State Bank for reduction on 320 acres of land was rejected and claims on two other pieces of real estate were allowed. This leaves their assessment at $8,547 or $34.19 a share. Bank of Juliaetta's claim for reduction on certain city property was rejected, leaving their assessment at $9,872, or $65 81 per share.

The commissioners rejected a claim of the First National bank of Moscow for deduction on a piece of real estate and allowed a reduction on the $2250 of federal reserve stock. The First National's stock assessment is now at $15,749 or $31.50 per share.

The First Trust and Savings bank of Moscow had a claim for reduction on a house and lot rejected, leaving its assessment at $29,057 or $29.06 per share.

The Genesee Exchange bank was granted a reduction for $1157 in federal reserve stock, bringing its assessment to 17,730 or $70.92 per share.

Robbed Culesac Bank

The First Bank of Culesac was robbed early Wednesday morning and silver taken to the amount of $731. Entrance was gained to the vault by removing the dial on the combination with a cold chisel. Strong boxes in the vault were rifled, but the exact amount of the loss is not known, but is estimated will reach $1,000. The loss of cash was fully covered by insurance. It is thought the yeggs got away in a car.

Taking Desperate Chances

It is true that many contract severe colds and recover from them without taking any precaution or treatment, and a knowledge of this fact leads others take their chances instead of giving their colds the needed attention. It should be borne in mind that every cold weakens the lungs, lowers the vitality, makes the system less able to withstand each succeeding attack and paves the way for the more serious disease. Can you afford to take such desperate chances when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, famous for its cures of bad colds may be had for a trifle.—Adv.

Webster =Man's Man

By PETER B. KYNE

Author of "Cappy Ricks," "The Valley of the Giants," etc.

(Copyright, by Peter B. Kyne)

CHAPTER VIII.—On the steamer Webster finds his stateroom occupied by a stranger who declares his intention of being his guest to Buenaventura. At first angered, Webster and the stranger, after a somewhat forcible argument, reach an amicable agreement. Webster recognizes him as the youth whose life he had saved the day before, though the other does not know Webster.

CHAPTER IX.—Arriving at Sobrante, Geary welcomes Webster and is instrumental in helping his friend's "quest" ashore. The latter is known to Webster as "Andrew Bowers." Geary houses him at Mother Jenks'. Webster gets the idea that Geary and Dolores are in love, and with the intention of giving Geary every chance he smilingly contradicts the girl's statement that they have met before.

Aloud he said: "So you wanted to study me in repose? Why waste your time? I am never in repose."

"Feminine curiosity, Mr. Webster. Billy has talked so much of you that I wanted to see if you measured up to the specifications. Just let me have your hand, and I'll tell you all about yourself."

"Is there any charge?"
"Yes, a nominal one. However, I guarantee a truthful reading; if, when I am through, you are not wholly satisfied, you do not have to pay the price. Is that a satisfactory arrangement?"

"Right as a fox," he declared, and held out his great calloused hand. He thrilled as she took it in both of hers, so soft and beautiful, and flattened it out, palm upward, on her knee. "A fine, large, useful hand," she commented musingly. "The callouses indicate recent hard manual toil with a pick and shovel; despite your recent efforts with soap and brush and pumice-stone; there still remain evidence of some foreign matter ingrained in those callous spots. This line indicates that you are very brave, gentle, and courteous. You are quick and firm in your decisions, but not always right, because your actions are governed by your heart instead of your head. Once you have made a decision, you are reckless of the consequences. Your lifeline tells me you are close to fifty-three years of age—"

"Seeress, you're shooting high and to the right," he interrupted, for he did not relish that jab about his age. "I'll have you know I was forty years old last month, and that I can still do a hundred yards in twelve seconds flat—in my working clothes."

"Well, don't feel peeved about it, Mr. Webster. I am not infallible; the best you can hope for from me is a high percentage of hits, even if I did shoot high and to the right that time. In point of worldly experience you're a hundred and six years old but I lopped off fifty per cent. to be on the safe side. To continue: You are of an extremely chivalrous nature—particularly toward young ladies traveling without chaperons; you are kind, affectionate, generous to a fault, something of a spendthrift. One may safely depend upon you to do the unexpected. Your matrimonial line is unbroken, proving you have never married, although right here the line is somewhat dim and frayed." She looked up at him suddenly. "You haven't been in love, have you?" She queried with childlike insouciance. "In love—and disappointed?"

He nodded, for he could not trust himself to speak.
"How sad!" she cooed sympathetically. "Did she marry another, or did she die?"

"She—she—yes, she died."
"Cauliflower tongue, to all probability, carried her off, poor thing! However, to your fortune: You are naturally truthful and would not make a deliberate misstatement of fact unless you had a very potent reason for it. You have a strong sense of sportsmanship, and when fairly defeated, whether in a battle of fists or a battle of wits, you never hold a grudge, which is one of the very nicest characteristics a man can have—"

"Or a woman," he suggested feebly.
"Quite right. Few women have a sense of sportsmanship. You stand a very good chance of becoming a millionaire in Sobrante, but you must beware of a dark man who has crossed your path—"

"Which one?" Webster queried mirthfully. "All coons look alike to me—Greasers also."

"Mere patter of our profession, Mr. Webster," she admitted, "tossed in to build up the mystery element and stimulate wisdom. Fortune awaited you in the United States, but you put it behind you, at the call of friendship, for a fortune in Sobrante. Now you have reconsidered that foolish action and at this moment you are contemplating sending a cablegram to a fat old man who waddles when he walks, recalling your decision not to accept a certain proposition of a business nature. However, you are too late. The fat old man with the waddle has made other arrangements, and if you want to make money, you'll remain in Sobrante. I think that is all, Mr. Webster."

He was gazing at her with an expression composed of equal parts of awe, amazement, consternation, adoration, and blank stupidity.

"Well," she queried innocently, "to

"Did I Put It Over?"

quote Billy's colloquial style: did I put it over?"

"You did very well for an amateur, but I'm a doubling Thomas. About this fat old man who waddles when he walks: a really topnotch palmist could tell me his name."

"Well, I'm only an amateur, but still I think I might, to quote Billy again, make a stab at it. Do you care to bet me about ten dollars I cannot give you the fat party's initials—all three of them?"

He gazed at her owlishly. She was the most perfectly amazing girl he had ever met; he was certain she would win the ten dollars from him, but then it was worth ten dollars to know for a certainty whether she was perfect or possessed of a slight flaw; so he silently drew forth a wallet that would have choked a cow and skinned off a ten-dollar gold certificate of the United States of America.

"I'm game," he mumbled.

"The fat gentleman's initials are B. P. J."

"By the twelve apostles, Peter, Simon—"

"Don't blaspheme, Mr. Webster."

He stood up and shook himself.

"When you order the tea," he said very distinctly, "please have mine cold. I need a brace after that. Take the ten. You've won it."

"Thanks, ever so much," she answered in a matter-of-fact tone, and tucked the bill inside her shirtwaist.

"I am a very poor woman, and—'Every little bit added to what you've got makes just a little bit more,'" she caroled, swaying her lithe, beautiful body and snapping her fingers like a cabaret dancer.

He could have grinned with the futility of his overwhelming desire for her; it even occurred to him what a shame it was to waste a marvel like her on a callow young pup like Billy, who had fought so many deadly skirmishes with Dan Cupid that a post-impresionistic painting of the Geary heart must resemble a pincushion. Then he remembered that this was an ungenerous, a traitorous thought, and that he had not paid the lady her fee.

"Well, what's the tariff?" he asked.

"You really feel that I have earned a professional's fee?"

"Beyond a doubt."

"Since you have taken Billy away from me this evening, I shall make you take Billy's place this evening. After dinner you shall hire an open victoria with two little white horses and drive me around the Malecon. There is a hand concert to-night."

"If it's the last act of my wicked life!" he promised fervently. Strange to relate, in that ecstatic moment no thought of Billy Geary marred the perfect serenity of what promised to be the most perfectly serene night in history.

They were seated at the tiny tea table when the sound of feet crunching the little shell-paved path through the patio caused Webster and Dolores to turn their heads simultaneously. Coming toward them was an individual who wore upon a head of flaming red a disreputable, conical-crowned straw sombrero; a soiled cotton camisa with the tails flowing free of his equally soiled khaki trousers, and sandals of the kind known as alparagates—made from the tough fibre of a plant of the cactus family and worn only by the very lowliest peons—completed his singular attire.

"One of Billy's friends and another reason why he has no social standing," Dolores whispered. "I believe he's going to speak to us."

Such evidently appeared to be the man's intention. He came to the edge of the veranda, swept his ruin of a hat from his red head and bowed with Castilian expansiveness.

"Yer pardon, Miss, for appearin' before you."

She smiled her forgiveness to what Webster now perceived to be an alcoholic wreck. He was about to dismiss the fellow with scant ceremony, when Dolores, with that rich sense of almost masculine humor—a humor that was distinctly American—said sweetly:

"Mr. Webster, shake hands with Don Juan Cafetero, bon vivant and man about town. Don Juan, permit me to present Mr. Webster, from somewhere in the United States. Mr. Webster is a mining partner of our mutual friend Mr. William Geary."

A long, sad descent into the Pit had, however, imbued Don Juan with a sense of his degradation; he was in the presence of a superior, and he acknowledged the introduction with a respectful inclination of his head.

"Tis you I've called to see, Mither Webster, sor," he explained.

"Very well, old-timer. In what way can I be of service to you?"

"Tis the other way around, sor, if ye please, an' for that same there's no charge, seein' ye're the partner, av that fine, kind gentleman, Mither Geary. Did ye, whilst in New Orleans, have d'alings wit' a short, stout spiggoty wit' a puckered scar under his right eye?"

John Stuart Webster suddenly sat up straight and gazed upon the lost son of Erin with grave interest. "Yes," he replied. "I seem to recall such a man."

"Tis none av me business, sor, but would ye mind tellin' me just what ye did to that spiggoty?"

"Why, to begin, last Sunday mornin' I interrupted this pucker-eyed fellow and a pop-eyed friend of his while engaged in an attempt to assassinate a white, inoffensive stranger. The following day, at the gangplank of the steamer, we met again; he poked his nose into my business, so I squeezed his nose until he cried; right before everybody I did it, Don Juan, and to add insult to injury, I plucked a few hairs from his rat's moustache—one hair per each pluck."

"I'd a notion ye did somethin' to him, sor. Now, thin, listen to me: I'm not much to look at, but I'm white. I'm an attachay, av ye might say, av Ignatz Leber—him that do have the import an' export house at the Ind av the Calle San Rosario, forinst the bay. Also he do have charge av the cable office, an' whin I'm sober enough, I deliver cablegrams for Leber. Now, then, ye'll recall we had a bit av a shower to-day at noon?"

Dolores and Webster nodded. Don Juan, after glancing cautiously around, lowered his voice and continued: "I was deliverin' a cablegram for Leber, an' me course took me past the palace gate—which, be the same token, has sinitry-boxes both inside an' out, wan on each side av the gate. The sinitry was not visible as I came along, an' what wit' the shower comin' as suddin' as that, an' me wit' a wardrobe that's not so extensive I can afford to get it wet, I shtopped into wan av the outside sinitry-boxes till the rain should be over, an' what wit' a drink av aguardiente I'd took to brace me for the thrip, an' the mimory av auld times, I fell asleep."

"Dear knows how long I sat there napping; all I know is that I was awakened by the sound av three men talkin, at the gate, an' divil a word did they say but what I heard. They were talkin' in Spanish, but I undherstood thin well enough. 'He's at the Hotel Mateo,' says wan voice, 'an' his name is Webster—Jawn Webster. He's an American, an' a big, savage-lookin' lad at that, so take me advice an' be careful. Do ye two keep an eye on him wherever he goes, an' if he should shtep out at night an' wander t'rough a dark street, do ye two see to it that he's put where he'll not interfere again in Don Felipe's affairs. No damn' gringo—beggin' yer pardon, Miss—can interfere in the wurk av the Intelligence bureau at a time like this, in addition to insultin' our honored chief, wit'out the necessity av bein' measured for a coffin.' 'Si, mi general,' says another lad, an' 'To be sure, mi general,' says a thirrd; an' wit' that the general, bad cess to him, went back to the palace an' the other two walked on up the calle an' away from the sinitry-box."

for Destitute; Milk Cans
Become Tin Cups.

The accompanying photograph of a bright Near East youngster, clothed in a Walla Walla, Washington flour sack, is strikingly significant of what aid given by the people of this northwest has meant to the sufferers from homelessness and want in Asia Minor, and to what far distant points Northwest products have gone on their errands of mercy.

This picture was snapped at Erivan, capital of Armenia, by Dr. Sherman L. Divine, 722 Peyton building, Spokane, during his recent trip as northwest chairman of the Near East Relief, to investigate conditions in the heart of that country, Southern Russia and Bible lands. It is in that vast region of famine, disease and death, that the Near East Relief, backed by publicly subscribed funds, is battling to save the remnants of once powerful races from final extinction by starvation, and training the orphans for self-support.

With other big supplies of flour, purchased with Northwestern contributions from the mills of Washington, Idaho, Utah and Montana, the original content of the sack in the picture was dispatched to Armenia several months ago. There, with milk from the condensaries of these same districts, and with other Northwest food, it helped to save this little fellow and thousands of others like him, who were nearly dead of hunger.

A reminder of Northwest philanthropy—a once-starving boy in the heart of Armenia, clothed in a Walla Walla flour sack.

Then, while the milk tins were fashioned by the rescued children into cups for the orphanages, hospitals and clinics of Near East Relief, the flour sacks became their own new "spring suits." It was a simple operation, requiring only the cutting and hemming of a hole in the bottom for the head to stick through; cutting off the corners and sewing meal sack sleeves to them. Rather breezy and not very stylish, but warmer and far better in every way than the filthy rags in which they were found starving in the streets.

"In our orphanages we now have about 120,000 little boys and girls who would have died of hunger and exposure exposure long ago but for America's timely aid, much of which has come from out here in the Northwest," states Dr. Divine.

"Outside, without food and without even so much as a flour sack to protect them from the biting blasts of winter, there are more than 200,000 others, just as worthy, pleading at our orphanage doors for admission—crying for something to eat, something to wear. We must have more funds, more food, more clothes if we are to save them."

MAY CONTRIBUTE WHEAT FROM CREDIT IN POOL

Members of the Northwest Wheat Growers' Association, who have already received an advance on wheat delivered to the Association, will be allowed further credit to aid the Near East Relief wheat campaign, according to George C. Jewett, the general manager. "We will recognize any reasonable order directing us to deliver from a member's wheat such amount as they wish to give to Near East Relief," says Mr. Jewett. "Such delivery will not come in conflict in any respect with the amount heretofore advanced, but will be handled in the manner of deductions from final payments."

The Rag Dolls Christmas

HERE was once a very, very old rag doll who lived in a nursery. She was so old that she had seen all the children grow up—the boy who wore trowsers now, the girl who had her hair done in braids, the middle-sized child who had so often left the rag doll out in the garden at night. There was only the baby left—bless his pink toes!

But the rag doll was very, very old, and one beautiful Christmas time she began to show her age.

Her hair had been combed so much that it had come out dreadfully, and her nose, from a great deal of kissing, was entirely gone. Her pretty pink cheeks had been washed away when the boy tried to teach her to swim in the bath tub, and all her clothes were very untidy indeed.

The baby never noticed all these things, but the toys did; they all made the most unkind remarks to the rag doll the day before Christmas.

"Look at your dirty face," said the large French doll. "You'll be put in the attic to-night. That's where the old dolls go." "Look at your dress," said the jumping jack. "It is all torn. I wouldn't walk across the nursery floor with you."

"Did you ever see such thin hair?" asked the hobby horse. "I thought my tail was thin, but it isn't to be compared with that!"

But just then the nursery door opened, and the Christmas Angel came in. You could be perfectly sure that it was the Christmas Angel even if she did have on a gingham apron, because her face shone so through the dark.

"The French doll must go up to the attic," said the Christmas Angel. "There is a more beautiful new best doll coming."

"Why, the Jack-in-the-box has forgotten how to jump."

You see the Jack-in-the-box had been so excited about the rag doll's dress that he had broken his spring.

"The Jack-in-the-box must go up to the attic, too," said the Christmas Angel.

Then she went over to the hobby-horse.

"Poor, old hobby-horse!" she said. "Your leg is very badly broken. I will take you up to the attic until you can be mended."

"There," the Christmas Angel said at last, "the nursery is all tidy, and ready for new toys—but, dear me, what's this? Why, it is the little rag doll!"

"Oh, please, do I have to go to the attic, too?" said the rag doll. "It's very cold there, and I know the best doll will have the chimney corner for herself—and I don't want the mice to gnaw my toes!"

"Why, you dear old thing!" said the Christmas Angel. "You're the same rag doll that I used to play with when I was little. You go to the attic? Why, I just guess not! We couldn't get along without you in the nursery. You do need a little mending, but I am going to sew you, and then you shall sit on the very treetop of the Christmas tree."

The Christmas Angel lighted one of the Christmas candles so that she could see to sew. Then she took the rag doll in her lap and opened her workbag and set to work.

First she stuffed the rag doll's insides with plenty of cotton so she could sit up. Then she sewed her toes and put new little white stockings and black shoes on her feet. She took a piece of clean, white cloth and covered the rag doll's dirty face, and painted in blue eyes and a smiling red mouth and vermilion cheeks. She sewed on a new yellow wig; and then she made a pink and white checked gingham dress with puffed sleeves, and a white apron with strings to keep the dress clean, and a pink-and-white checked sunbonnet to tie under the rag doll's chin and keep her hair tidy.

"I think you will do now, you dear old thing," said the Christmas Angel. So it came Christmas morning, and there on the treetop of the tree sat the rag doll quite made over. The children thought her really the most beautiful of all the Christmas things. As for the rag doll herself—why, all the pleasure of her old days was as nothing to the happiness that was hers now. —Carolyn S. Bailey, in Kindergarten Review.

The Call of Christmas

Unto us a Child is born;
In your hearts, while joys abound,
Christians on this blessed morn,
Let a place for Him be found;
His dear Name is in the greetings
Friends with friends exchange today;
Let not gifts or festive meetings
Steal from Him your thoughts away.

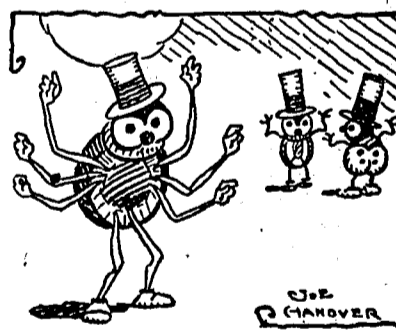

Unto us a Son is given,
God's Eternal only Son;
Bonds of Sin by Him are riven;
Grace for man by Him is won;
He in love becomes our Brother,
Virgin-born of Adam's race;
Truth and mercy meet each other;
Righteousness and peace embrace.

Unto us a Child is born;
Unto us a Son is given;
Church and home with boughs adorn,
From our hearts all ill be driven;
Go we forth with joy to meet Him,
In His temples here below,
As the Shepherds went to greet Him,
Nigh two thousand years ago.

—MARY ANN THOMPSON.

Chestnuts Stewed in Gravy.
Roll the large chestnuts for ten minutes, take them out, shell and peel them, having care to break them as little as possible. Skim and strain the liquor in which the giblets were boiled, season it to taste with salt and pepper, and to a pint of it add a tablespoonful of browned flour rubbed smooth with a teaspoonful of butter. In this gravy place the peeled chestnuts and let them simmer ten or fifteen minutes at the side of the stove. Serve as a vegetable.—The Delicatour.

There is a better thing than the observance of Christmas day, and that is keeping Christmas.—Henry Van Dyke.

A man with a speedy car can sometimes distance a speed cop, but the undertaker may eventually overtake him.

The remark is often made that there is just as much booze in the country now as there was during the day of the saloon. If this is true, why does the price stick around $20 a gallon?

An exchange says that hell hath no fury like a Georgia senator who has learned that a negro has been hanged somewhere besides in the South.

The question arises, will it be proper to say merry Christmas on Sunday or on Monday?

If the average business man these days does as much "crabbing" at home as he does down town in business hours, it's a clear case "there's no place like home," for his wife.

To our notion the inspired composition of the year is the one printed of a prominent suffragette that "she was born and grew to manhood in New Jersey."

Most anybody is old enough to look back to the time when a fellow's chances of "keepin' company" with a girl depended largely upon the quality of his team of horses and a rubber tired buggy. Now one must be a motorist to win, but it doesn't matter so much as to the make of car; anything from a jitney on up will do if you are not too stingy with your gas.

THE YULETIDE FLAME

Spark in Hearts of People Cannot Be Quenched.

All Have Desire to Make Fellowmen Happy by Gift or Words of Greeting.

NEITHER hatred, nor envy, nor deceit, nor all the legions of ugly human passions that assail the heart, nor rancor between individuals, nor national lust for power, can extinguish it. They may dim but they can not quench the spark in the heart of man which impels him, as every waning year brings the Christmas, to try to make a few of his fellowmen a little happier. Often it is by the method of the gift, perhaps something that costs hundreds of dollars, maybe only a penny card bearing an inscription of good cheer. Frequently it is something intangible, the whole-souled word of greeting to the old lady in a shawl who sells you your paper, or the smile of comradeship which you give the conductor who punches your ticket, or the elevator man who takes you up to your office (fellow workers all). It is not giving that counts, not the bestowal of something valued in dollars and cents, the transference of something from your hand to another's. That is a purely mechanical process, which may or may not create happiness. No; it is the longing to give, the desire to be the cause of another's happiness.

To wish to help others is the oldest passion in the world—even a little older than the impulse to overcome others. And it is the deathless passion as well. It needs no Christmas day to keep it alight, but as long as Christmas continues, to provide fuel to make the flame of good fellowship burn brighter, that day will continue to be the richest 24 hours in all the year.

CHRISTMAS TOKENS. OF LOVE.

WHEN any uncertainty exists let us give a token of love, or friendship, or human kindness, something that, while expressing these things will, at least, be harmless. Let it be something that does not last—that brings the meaning and vanishes—something that never will know the indignity of the top shelf of the spare room closet!

A knock at a friend's door on Christmas morning and the clasp of a hand do this. A growing plant does it—but, most of all, thou beside me, singing in the wilderness—the personal revelation does it. Suppose a letter came on Christmas morning, to say— not "you are perfectly dear to have sent me a spoon box." but "I want you to know that your patience, or courage, or tenderness, during this last year, will help me to live more bravely and courageously and lovingly this next year!" What a Christmas present the receipt of such a letter would be to any one of us! What a Christmas present for any one of us to send to the human heart that has given us courage for the burden and heat of the day!—Indianapolis News.

Open Air Schools Raise Standard of Health Among Children and Prevent Tuberculosis

It is a far cry from the little red school house with the red-hot cylindrical stove and tightly closed windows to the present-day open-air school. The difference marks the progress which has been made in understanding tuberculosis and the way in which it can be prevented and successfully treated.

Fresh air and plenty of it has been found to be the best preventive of, as well as cure for tuberculosis, when combined with sufficient rest and good food. Children are provided with warm outdoor clothing and hot lunches and gain in surprising fashion, meanwhile continuing their school work. Idaho hopes to have an open-air school before another Christmas season.

How Not to Take Cold

Some persons are subject to frequent colds, while others seldom, if ever, have a cold. You will find that the latter take good care of themselves. They take a shower or cold sponge bath every day in a warm room, avoid over heated rooms, sleep with a window open or partly open, avoid excesses, over eating, becoming over heated and then chilled and getting the feet wet. Then, when they feel the first indication of a cold, they take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy without delay and it is soon over.

Distributing the Gifts

GOING to the post-office is a jolly method of distribution. Paste-board and brown paper, aided by judicious grouping of chairs and tables, easily transform a room into a post-office, and a wisely selected postmaster may make the collection of mail an occasion of much merriment. Have general delivery and lock boxes, and at the general delivery window see that each person is properly identified.

A Christmas hunt is always exciting. The clue, given at the breakfast table, is written on a slip of paper in some such words as these: "Pass the parlor, shun the hall, seek the summer kitchen wall." In that vicinity the gift will be found, wrapped and addressed. It adds to the fun if the directions lead first to other rhymes, three or four being followed up before the hidden treasure is found.

The cobweb party is not new, but is always good sport and is especially adapted to Christmas festivities. The tangled threads may lead to the laden tree or to the bulging stocking hanging from the mantel-shelf.

Still another hunt takes the form of a polar expedition and is great sport in the country when there is snow enough for it. Immediately after breakfast the entire party sets out for a walk. When they turn toward home, the host or someone selected as guide informs them that supplies are hidden along the way in various caches and they will do well to look out for them. Each cache is merely a mound of snow covering lightly a quantity of gift packages, securely wrapped. There need be only three or four mounds and the gifts should be divided promiscuously among them. If the walk has been long, the first cache to be found—that is, the one farthest from home—may hide a box of cookies, which will be hailed joyfully and will make the gifts in the next cache an even greater surprise.

The last cache to be reached may be the centerpiece on the dining table. Here it should be of cotton glittering with diamond dust, with the pole rising from the middle of it, a fat, squatly pole with a jolly Santa Claus atop.

Small gifts may be concealed in a Jack Horner pie, brought to the table when dinner is finished. Choose a deep, round pan of a size to fit the number of the party and put into it the presents, each daintily wrapped and marked with the name of the one to receive it.

To a far-away relative may be sent the kiddies' latest photo (it may be only a snapshot if it be well taken) accompanied by a little verse after this sort:

We're very small, but we want to send
To our Auntie far away,
Some love, and a kiss, with a happy wish
For a Merry Christmas Day.

The DAY DREAMS of the OLD FOLKS AT CHRISTMAS

By Frank L. Stanton

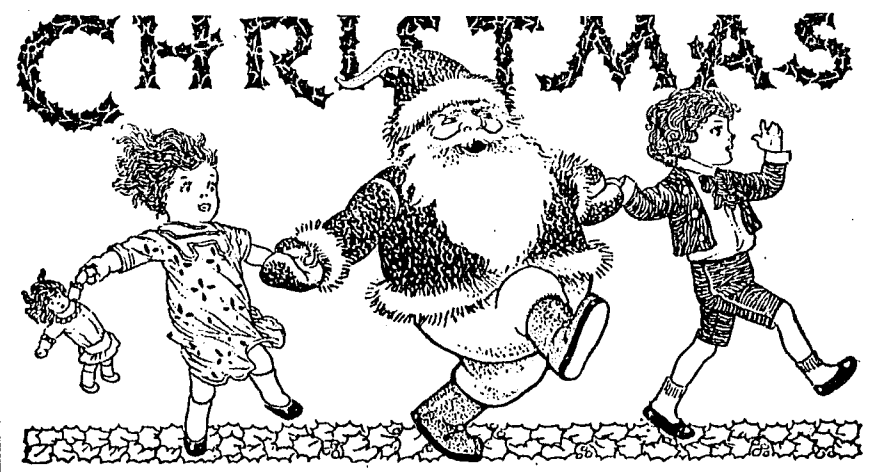

Old folks, too, like Christmas; Grandfather, sitting there,
Feels sad if he's forgotten 'cause he's in his chimney-chair;
He says he's thinkin' of the days that he no more will see,
When he was just a little boy—a Christmas boy—like me.

He listens to the fire—for it's always talkin' so,
And then it is he calls to mind his good times long ago
When the Christmas wind was whistlin' through the cold and frosty nights
And children dreamed of Christmas bells and watched for Christmas lights.

He doesn't seem to hear at all the noise the children make,
For when he sits the stillest there he's dreamin' wide awake!
But mother—then she tells us to all run right out and play,
For old folks hear sweet music when they're dreamin' day by day.

And then Grandmother—SHE comes in and sits beside him there,
And puts her hand in his, and says sweet words he loves to hear;
But what they are she'd never tell to mother or to you;
She knows that he is dreamin', for she dreams the same dreams, too.

So Christmas comes to old folks, and it's then they love to know
The children don't forget 'em, though they lived so long ago!
An' they say the sweetest present of all sweet things and fair
Is a kiss on Christmas mornin', when we climb their chimney-chair.

Christmas Tree Sunday

The Epworth League of the Methodist church announced Thursday that a community Christmas tree would be held at the church Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. There will be candy for the little folks and while an elaborate program has not been prepared, there will be some good musical numbers and a jolly good time for everyone. You are cordially invited to attend.

Cleansing the Saucepan.

Here is a simple but most successful method of cleansing a saucepan in which milk has been boiled. After pouring out the boiling milk, quickly replace the lid before the steam has time to escape, and allow the saucepan to cool before taking it off again. Then put the pan in cold water to soak. It can be cleaned quickly and easily.

To insure a healthy action of the bowels, correct disorders of liver, take two of Chamberlain's Tablets immediately after supper. They will not only cause a gentle movement of the bowels, without unpleasant effects, but banish that dull, stupid feeling, that often accompanies constipation.—Adv.

Willing Helpers

Christmas Day

Back to childhood, and with hearts open to happiness let us greet the Morn—'tis Christmas Day.

Heaven directed your coming
And Earth gazed from afar,
Then Wise Men saw your meaning
Blessed Bethlehem Star.

High above the cauldron wherein seethed all the masses of materialities affecting the destinies of Man, the Star of Bethlehem held by the Angel of Love, cast upon the Earth the glorious Light that never has disappeared. Its beams announced God's Greatest Gift—they have remained to shed their radiance upon the happiness that girdles the Earth today.

We will do all that is possible, to help you in this the last minute of shopping before Christmas.

This is the store of bargains where your dollars buy more.

We wish you all a very Merry Christmas.

Store closed all day Monday

Merry Christmas, Folks

And in the mean time don't forget
Furniture is the Logical Gift

It need not be a big massive article, the following articles would be very suitable:

Rocking chairs, sewing rockers, bed room chairs, dressing table stools, foot stools, small rugs, gas lamps, hand bags, phonograph records, high chairs, Kiddie Kars, doll beds.

Why not the gift supreme for the whole family—an Edison Phonograph.
