

Over The County

Julietta Record: Sam Gruell reports an Xmas gift of a black pullet with seven little chicks which came to his house Christmas morning. An investigation showed that the mother of the brood had hatched them in an old hen house across the alley from his home. The little chicks had followed their mother through the snow to the house where Mr. Gruell found them, apparently none the worse for wading through the snow. Mr. Gruell took them in and has provided food and a warm place for the mother and her baby chicks and hopes to be able to raise the entire brood.

Nez Perce Herald: It is noted that this community is participating in an unusual number of general social gatherings and dances this season and while this fact may give some the impressions that undue levity prevails and there is not proper consideration for the more serious matters in hand, we gather from close observation that in a large measure the rather excessive adherence to social play is to overcome any prevailing depression and shows the wholesome inclination toward smiles and optimism, rather than frowns and grouches. It's a mighty good sign when an individual, a crowd or a community maintains a happy demeanor in face of trial.

Deary Press: The homing instinct is greater at Christmas, perhaps, than at any other season of the year. This was brought to mind Saturday when we noted the large number of people who arrived on the train and were joyously met by parents, brothers, sisters or friends, and others who departed to spend Christmas with home folks in other towns or communities. We knew some of the arrivals—many we did not know. That shows how they have out grown us. When we consider that we have on our subscription list many whose birth we announced when we published the Troy News years ago, and who now have families of their own, we feel that we must be getting somewhat seasoned. That was nearly 30 years ago. Perhaps we may be pardoned for not recognizing animated young faces of some who greeted home folks here at Christmas time.

Star-Mirror: A meeting of poultry enthusiasts was held in Washburn & Wilson's Seed House, Wednesday night at 7:30 and it was definitely decided to hold a poultry show on January 19, 20, 21, 1922. The Moscow Poultry Association was organized to conduct this show and the following officers elected: R. E. Waldo, president; E. A. Cruver, vice-president and H. W. Hulbert, secretary-treasurer. A committee composed of W. J. Elder, R. T. Parkhurst and O. R. Gossett was elected to take charge of premiums and premium lists.

The last poultry show in Moscow was held in January 1918 under the auspices of the Panhandle Poultry association. During the war this association became inactive. The increased profits and great interest now taken in poultry have created more demand than ever before for knowledge of better poultry methods. The Moscow Poultry Association was organized to conduct a show to give those people about Moscow who are interested in the poultry industry an opportunity to learn more about it. If the enthusiasm and interest which was shown at the Tuesday night meeting is any indication, Moscow will see a real poultry show on the dates mentioned above.

A meeting of the Moscow Poultry Association will be held Saturday afternoon at 2:00 p. m. at the Washburn-Wilson building. All those interested in the poultry show are urged to attend this meeting.

Dr. Rothwell leaves for Spokane this morning where he expects to remain for some time. Since his attack of the gripe last fall his health hasn't been good and he is going to the city for a change and rest. He may be gone for the balance of the winter.

Leased Wagner's Garage

Leslie and Ernest Roberts closed a deal the first of the week for the lease of the concrete block garage, owned and recently managed by Adam Wagner. The new managers took possession the first of the year. Mr. Wagner has conducted the business very successfully for the past two years but decided to lease the building and sell the stock of automobile supplies, as he has other plans in view. Mr. Wagner is a splendid mechanic and had the implicit confidence of his customers while in business here.

Roberts Bros. will make good as proprietors of the "Kendrick Auto Co.," which will be the name of the garage. Leslie is a mechanical genius who is so intensely interested in auto mechanics that it is almost impossible for him to work at anything else. His brother, Ernest, has worked with him for some time and understands the main ideas of automobile repairing. He will do most of the office work and assist in the mechanical department during rush times. They will make it go.

Kendrick is now well equipped with automobile mechanics, there being a total of four in the two garages. Motorists will get good service and the best of treatment in Kendrick and with the present garage facilities and thoroughly competent mechanics, there is no good reason why any garage work in the Potlatch country should be taken away from Kendrick.

Hansons Entertain

Mr. and Mrs. Theo. Hanson entertained the members of the Circle Card Club and a number of friends, at a watch party at their home New Year's eve. It was one of the most enjoyable social affairs of the holidays and a thoroughly good time was spent by the assembled guests. The Club's favorite game of "500" was an interesting feature of the evening, and Walter Thomas was the successful competitor for the high score. Walter McCrea, Jr., also won a prize.

Mrs. Hanson, assisted by Miss Mable Eichner, served dainty refreshments consisting of fruit salad, chicken sandwiches, nut sherbet, cake and coffee. After dinner mints were served in hand made roses, which looked very pretty in their various colors.

Estes Moscow Postmaster

According to a telegram from Congressman Burton L. French, received at Moscow last week, Homer E. Estes, present county auditor, will be the next postmaster of Moscow. Following is a copy of the telegram:

"The civil service commission advises the post office department of the eligible list for postmaster at Moscow contains the names of Estes, Morgareidge and Sudderth, in the order named. I am recommending the appointment of Estes." Eight Moscow men took the examination for the postmastership.

Nez Perce County Agent's Report

County Agent Waldo W. Skuse Writes Interesting Summary of Farm Bureau Work

According to the report of Waldo W. Skuse, county agricultural agent, division of the University of Idaho, under which his work comes, together with the cooperation of the Nez Perce county farm bureau, has meant to Nez Perce county a total of $70,299 added income to the farmers of the county which would not otherwise have been secured, while in addition to that total there has been much accomplished toward the betterment of agriculture that it is impossible to place a money value upon.

To accomplish this the county agent worked 312 days, specialists from the university spent 59 days, community committees gave 126 days of their time, 40 demonstrations were held and attended by a total of 887 persons, 267 farm visits were made, 859 office calls were taken care of, 1185 personal letters were written, institutes were held with a total attendance of 167, the grand total of all meetings held during the year was 83 with a total attendance of 2250, 26 articles on agricultural subjects were written by the county agent for publication in newspapers, 40 articles were written by the county agent for publication in the Farm Bureau News and 5 articles were written by specialists for publication in the same paper, 33 kinds of circular letters were written going to 2,081 persons, while various questionnaires were answered for federal authorities and private concerns.

The work was divided into eight projects as follows: Crop report and farm accounts, crops and rotations, livestock improvement, grain standardization, pest control, smut control, weed control and miscellaneous.

Following is a condensed, detailed statement of the value of the different project work.

Livestock Improvement.

Two high class purebred Jersey bull calves from the Waikiki Farm north of Spokane were secured as gifts to two dairy farmers on the basis of their being used in the community for a period of five years. They were valued at $100 each. On the pig club work $900 was for 18 purebred Duroc Jersey and Poland-China sows furnished by Armour & Co. paid for the sows. They were due to farrow soon after the boys received them and in return for the gift of the sows the boys returned the first and third best gilts from the resultant litters and kept the balance of the litters. The boys won $172 in prizes at the Lewiston-Clarkston fair, and $365 at the Western Royal Livestock show at Spokane, $300 of which was the cost of the trip to Chicago International Livestock show won by one of the boys of the Lapwai Pig club. He was the champion pig club boy for Northern Idaho and eastern Washington. The profit on pork grown by the boys was $497 on the basis of 72 animals left out of the litters for their own, averaging 200 lbs. in weight and sold for a price of $3.45 a hundred pounds above cost of production. These figures total $1,934 for the pig club work.

Approximately 250 head of dairy cattle were tested for tuberculosis and 10 reactors were found which were disposed of. A value of $75 was placed on these cows, a total of $750. More than half of the county testing for tuberculosis was postponed till December or January. Poultry culled out and disposed of was 4,600 birds at $1 each, as this amount was saved by disposing of the culls and represented what was saved on feed by marketing at the time they were culled instead of when they would ordinarily have been marketed. Flocks totaling 14,256 birds were affected by feeding methods of a greatly improved character which at the very lowest estimate increased the yearly production per hen more than a dozen eggs a year. However, only a dozen eggs per hen per year was taken and a value of 30 cents a dozen taken. This gives $4.277 for increased egg production. The return of livestock thus totals $11,761.

Pest Control.

Net returns was $41,934, divided into savings on squirrels killed on private lands, $30,643, and on public lands, $11,300. There were 45,600 acres of private land treated. It has been found by carefully conducted experiments by the Washington Experiment station that each squirrel eats and otherwise prevents from ripening .84 bushel of wheat a year. While there were many squirrels kill the past year of work of the extension treated yet we desire to be very conservative in this estimate and therefore took it that only one squirrel per acre was killed, which at the rate of .84 bushel of wheat per acre saved and wheat valued at 80 cents, which is below what most farmers sold at, we have the figure for the wheat saved on private land as $30,643 and for public land $11,300. Through the efforts of this office all the free poisoning of public lands with the cooperation of the biological survey office was accomplished. The biological assistant spent several days in the county working with the assistance of community committees and other interested farmers at placing the poison on public land. Much of the land was gone over three times.

Crops and Rotations.

Net returns that could actually be measured this year were $10,900. The Lewiston Orchards community of 4,200 acres is principally in fruit trees. Humus is deficient. There is not enough irrigation water. Accordingly a plan for getting a large amount of cover and green manure crops was worked out with leading orchardists. Last year there were not more than 50 acres of such crops in the orchards as a total, while this year as a result of the campaign there were 1,000 acres of such crop, consisting of peas, hairy vetch and sweet clover. This has been regarded as quite a remarkable achievement locally. It is greater than would seem for fully half of the acreage of the community is controlled and operated by non-residents who would naturally not have the interest that the actual residents would have. It means the revolutionizing of orchard practice, from clean cultivation to an adequate use of humus making crops. From experiments on growing truck crops it is stated that a green manure crop turned under gives results equal to an application of five tons of barnyard manure an acre. Figuring manure at as low a price as $2 a ton we thus have a value of $10 an acre for the green manure crop, or $10,900 total benefit this year.

Grain Standardization.

The net return was $5,654 by the work on certified wheat. There were 367 acres of certified wheat grown this year. While in most cases the certified wheat outyielded the common wheat of the same variety growing alongside of it approximately 10 bushels per acre yet the increased yield due to the certified wheat was taken as only five bushels per acre and the wheat so grown was sold at a premium of 25 cents above the market price for use as seed. The total yield was 12,745 bushels and this would make the premium just indicated figure $3,136, while the value of the increased yield of five bushels per acre on 367 acres with wheat at 80 cents, less than it was sold for at the time, would come to $1,468. There were 207 acres of Jenkins Club and 29 acres each of Turkey Red, Forty Fold and Kanred.

Crop Reports and Farm Accounts.

The net return of this project is nominally taken as $41, for there were 41 account books distributed and they must have at least been worth a dollar a piece to the men by having kept them, for the fact that in this form the farmer's accounts was acceptable to the internal revenue people, if for no other reason. This project this year has suffered by the time being devoted mainly to other projects. The way to have found the real value of keeping the farm account books would have been to have found what practices were changed in the farm plan and the savings resulting therefrom, as these matters would be brought to the farmer's attention by studying the account book entries. It is hoped that this project can be developed next year as it is really very important in spite of the fact that there is not much general interest in keeping farm accounts. The crop reports part of this project so far has never meant more than interesting farmers in studying crop reports and thus sell to better advantage. This matter also is worthy of much attention and development.

Weed Control.

No value has been placed on the work of this project as apparently it is impossible to do this. The work is yet incomplete. A country-wide series of tests in one to three places in each community has been conducted as to the efficiency of sodium arsenite as a means of eradicating root stock weeds. The test is incomplete and varies a great deal. Our tests have brought inquiries from all over the United States. We have been working on wild morning glory, Canada thistle, and blue lettuce. In some places one application of the spray seemed to kill the plants for a couple of months, while in others three and four sprays have apparently weakened them about three fourths of their strength, so to speak. The work will be carefully continued next year, when it is hoped we can reach conclusions.

Incidentally the worst weed in the United States, perennial sow thistle was discovered on one farm. This is being held under control by ordinary means till we learn what we can accomplish with the arsenite. We are not using it on this patch as it covers about half an acre and is in an orchard where hogs run. As it is they keep it right down to the surface of the ground. This farm is near a large canyon separating two farming communities. It was fortunate that we discovered it, as had it once been allowed to set seed and get a foothold in the canyon it would have been of enormous damage to a very large farming area.

Smut Control.

Little has been done along the line of this project this year but from the sending out of some records to be kept as to date of seeding, soil treat-

Had to Dismiss School

The sewer pipe leading from the school house to the main in the street became clogged Tuesday morning and it was necessary to dismiss school until Thursday morning. It took a long time to locate the trouble as the lateral crossing the school yard was buried so deeply under the frozen ground, it took some time to uncover it.

Charles McKeever and several helpers worked at the trouble and finally located it. Mr. McKeever and P. G. Candler put in straight time, with only two hours sleep, from Tuesday morning until 9 o'clock Wednesday night. It was found that the roots of the poplar trees had grown into the pipe thru the joints, plugging it in such a manner that they could not be dislodged. The tile was replaced with steel pipe so that there would be no like trouble in the future.

Surveying Road

Mr. Oehler of the firm of Van-Ardsol & Oehler of Lewiston, brot a party of surveyors here Wednesday morning to finish the survey on the strip of road between the Bear Creek bridge and the mouth of Waundcheer gulch. This work was finished Wednesday morning and the survey started on the grade around Powell hill. The highway commissioners are anxious to get the survey finished as they wish to let a contract immediately for the building of a good, wide grade around this hill, not to exceed 5 percent. This will eliminate the barrier that has existed between the two towns and will be the beginning of a new road, connecting the two places.

The commissioners are positive that the stretch of road north of town will be put on a good grade and surfaced and much of the road between Kendrick and Hamill Hill will be completed in the spring.

Bought Kendrick Residence

Amos Moore closed a deal last week for the purchase of the A. W. Jones cottage, located just back of the school house. Mr. Moore bought the property so that his children might have a convenient location while attending school in Kendrick. G. F. Walker engineered the deal.

Basket Ball Tonight

There will be a basket ball game between the boys' high school teams of Kamiah and Kendrick. There will also be a game between two girls' teams. Games will be played at the local gymnasium and will start at 7:30 sharp.

Gifts to Children's Home

The members of the Sunshine Club of Kendrick sent a number of very pretty aprons to the Children's Home at Lewiston for Christmas gifts. The matron of the home wrote to the Club in part as follows: "The aprons sent by your Club were received for Christmas. They are very beautifully made and so welcome at this time. We have 41 children in school and a number at home under school age. The children had a happy Christmas, so many kind friends remembered them, but among our gifts yours was one of the most needed and acceptable."

ment, etc., studies may be made. Also we have given considerable publicity to the best recommended method for treating grain and many farmers are following it. However, natural conditions influence results so greatly that many farmers are inclined to make their calculations on the basis of only a few factors, when many more should have been considered. We started a test this fall in cooperation with the plant disease specialist of the University on the new copper carbonate dust treatment, which was tried in the green houses of the California, Oregon, Washington and Idaho experiment stations this past season. It is said to offer considerable promise. This next season will give the first field tests.

Births Exceed Deaths

Idaho birth rate for 1921 is almost exactly three times the death rate for the same year, according to a report completed Wednesday by the bureau of vital statistics in the office of the state medical adviser and published in the Idaho Statesman. The total number of births for the year was 11,437, while a total of 3878 persons died in the same time.

Statistics for December show there were 1694 births reported as against 573 deaths. Males lead in the month for the number of births with a total of 867. They also maintained a lead in the number of deaths in both the month and the year, but the difference between the number of girl and boy births for the year is smaller than the difference between the number of male deaths in 1921 was 2241 and of female 1637.

The color of all children born in December in the state was white and the report shows that there were only two colored births reported during the whole year. There were 13 pairs of twins born during December out of the 1694 births reported. Stillborn children totaled 34 and two were premature. Five were illegitimate. Children born of foreign parents totaled 175 in December.

Eighty-nine pairs of twins were reported during the year out of the total of more than 11,000. Illegitimate children totaled 37 and stillborn and premature together totaled 263. Those of foreign born parentage in 1921 totaled 1053.

$107,500 Foreclosure Suit

What is probably the largest foreclosure suit ever filed in the district court in Nez Perce county was filed yesterday when Wm. Lambie brot suit against S. A. Daugherty and wife, Arthur Grover and wife and the Tammany Oil company for the recovery of $107,500 alleged to be due on certain promissory notes given in payment for 760 acres of land in the Tammany section, says the Lewiston Tribune. Tannahill and Leeper are attorneys for the plaintiff.

The complaint alleges that besides the principal of $107,500 there is also due and owing interest to the amount of $2,626.25, insurance premium amounting to $145.10, unpaid taxes amounting to $1,294.78; attorney fees to the amount of $7,500 are asked.

The Tammany Oil company is interested in the action only to the extent that it holds a lease which it acquired from the other defendants on the land.

LaBolle Case to Court

Frank LaBolle, who was arrested recently by Sheriff John L. Woody, Deputy Sheriff Summerfield and J. D. Foster of the state constabulary on a charge of having intoxicating liquor in his possession, had his preliminary hearing before the probate judge at Lewiston, Wednesday. Evidence showed that the officers had seized half a gallon of moonshine in a jar and half a pint in a bottle found at LaBolle's a mile north of Kendrick across the line in Nez Perce county. No evidence was offered by the defendant. His case will be tried at the next session of the district court. He furnished bail to the amount of $1000 and was released.

Liquor on Reservation

Jesse Rich was arrested last Monday night by Indian Policeman Corbett Lawyer and John Ellenwood and taken before U. S. Commissioner Eugene O'Neill at Lewiston on the charge of having intoxicating liquor on the Reservation. He was placed under $750 bonds which he failed to furnish, so was remanded to the custody of the sheriff and is now in the county jail at Lewiston. His case will come up before the federal court at Moscow in May.

It might be well to warn the public that when coming into Kendrick after night it is best to follow the rough and rugged road, better known as Kendrick's main stem. If you follow the "bright lights" you will find yourself in the alley paralleling Main Street. This is Kendrick's new "white way" which was ordered lighted by the town council, the better to observe the approach of midnight prowlers, safe crackers, burglars and any other miscreants who have violent intentions against the property of Kendrick citizens. The new system of lights is a material addition to the appearance of the town, which has heretofore been none too brilliantly lighted.

The appointment of Homer E. Estes to the postmastership of Moscow by Burton L. French, will result in the resignation of the best county auditor in the state. Harry Thatcher, deputy auditor, has been in the office for many years and is thoroughly familiar with the work, which is a fortunate circumstance for the general welfare of the county government.

Taking Desperate Chances

It is true that many contract severe colds and recover from them without taking any precaution or treatment, and a knowledge of this fact leads others take their chances instead of giving their colds the needed attention. It should be borne in mind that every cold weakens the lungs, lowers the vitality, makes the system less able to withstand each succeeding attack and paves the way for the more serious disease. Can you afford to take such desperate chances when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, famous for its cures of bad colds may be had for a trifle.—Adv.

Webster —Man's Man

By PETER B. KYNE

Author of
"Cappy Ricks," "The Valley of the Giants," etc.

(Copyright, by Peter B. Kyne)

CHAPTER IX.—Arriving at Sobrante, Geary welcomed Webster and is instrumental in helping his friend's "quest" ashore. The latter is known to Webster as "Andrew Bowers." Geary houses him at Mother Jenks'. Webster gets the idea that Geary and Dolores are in love, and with the intention of giving Geary every chance he smilingly contradicts the girl's statement that they have met before.

CHAPTER X.—Webster receives a warning conveyed by "Don Juan Cafetero," really John J. Cafferty, Irishman of good qualities fallen through overindulgence in liquor, that there is a plot to assassinate him. Webster makes a firm friend of Cafferty. Later the American is insulted by a Sobrantean army officer and publicly ridicules him. A challenge to a duel is accepted under such stern conditions that the Sobranteans withdraw it.

"I am Mr. Webster," he announced, "—Mr. Geary's friend from the United States."

Mother Jenks, having heard of him, was of course profoundly flustered to meet this toff who so carelessly wired his down-and-out friends pesos oro in lots of a thousand. Cordially she invited him within to stow a peg of her best, which invitation Mr. Webster promptly accepted.

"To your beautiful eyes," Webster toasted her. "And now would you mind leading me to the quarters of Billy's friend Mr. Bowers?"

She shuffled away, to return presently with the news that Mr. Bowers was in his room and would be delighted to receive Mr. Webster. Mother Jenks led Webster to the door, knocked, announced him and discreetly withdrew.

"My dear Webster!" cried Andrew Bowers enthusiastically, and he drew his late fellow-passenger into the room. Webster observed that Andrew was not alone. "I want to see you privately," he said. "Didn't know you had company, or I wouldn't have intruded."

"Well, I knew I had company, didn't I? Come in, you crazy fellow, and meet some good friends of mine who are very anxious to meet you." He turned to a tall, handsome, scholarly looking man of about forty, whose features, dress and manner of wearing his whiskers proclaimed him a personage. "Dr. Eliseo Pacheco, I have the honor to present Mr. John S. Webster, the American gentleman of whom you have heard me speak."

Doctor Pacheco promptly leaped to his feet and bowed with ostentatious reverence then suddenly, with Latin impulsiveness, he advanced upon Webster, swept aside the latter's outstretched hand, clasped John Stuart Webster in fraternal embrace, and to the old sour-dough's inexpressible horror, kissed him upon the right cheek—after which he backed off, bowed once more, and said in Spanish:

"Sir, my life is yours."
"It is well he gave it to you before you took it," Andrew said in English, and he laughed, noting Webster's confusion. "And this gentleman is Colonel Pablo Caraveo."

"Thunder, I'm in for it again," Webster thought—and he was, for the amiable colonel embraced Webster and kissed his left cheek before turning to Andrew.

"You will convey to our guest, in English, Don Ricardo, assurances of my profound happiness in meeting him," he said in Spanish.

"The Colonel says you're all to the mustard," Andrew at once interpreted merrily.

"Rather a liberal translation," Webster retorted in Spanish, whereat Colonel Caraveo sprang up and clapped his hands in delight.

"Your happiness, my dear Colonel," Webster continued, "is extravagant grief compared with my delight in meeting a Sobrantean gentleman who has no desire to skewer me." He turned to Andrew. "While introductions are in order, old son, suppose you complete the job and introduce yourself. I'm always suspicious of a man with an alias."

"Then behold the death of that impudent fellow Andrew Bowers, late valet de chambre to this eminent mining engineer and prince of gentlemen, Mr. John Stuart Webster. Doctor Pacheco, will you be good enough to perform the operation?"

"This gentleman," said the doctor, laying his hand on Andrew's shoulder, "is Don Ricardo Lutz Rucy, a gentleman, a patriot, and the future president of our unhappy country."

Webster put his hands on the young man's shoulders. "Ricardo, my son," he asked earnestly, "do you think you could give me some little hint of the approximate date on which you will assume office? By the nine gods of war, I never wanted a friend at court so badly as I want one tonight."

Webster sat down and helped himself from a box of cigars he found on Ricardo's bureau. "I feel I am among friends at last," he announced between preliminary puffs "so listen while I spin a strange tale. I've been the picture of bad luck ever since I started for this infernal—this wonderful country of yours. In New Orleans I took a Sunday morning stroll in Jackson square and came across two men trying to knife another. In the interest of common decency I interferred and won a sweeping victory, but to my amazement the prospective corpse took to his heels and advised me to do the same.

Ricardo Rucy sprang for John Stuart Webster. "By George," he said in English. "I'm going to hug you, too. I really ought to kiss you, because I'm that man you saved from assassination, but—too long in the U. S. A. I suppose; I've lost the customs of my country."

"Get out," yelled Webster, fending him off. "By the way, Ricardo—I'm going to call you Rick for short—do you happen to have any relatives in this country?"

"Yes, a number of second and third cousins."

"Coming down on the steamer, I didn't like to appear curious, but all the time I wanted to ask you one question."

"Ask it now."

"Are you a Sobrantean?"

"I was born in this country and raised here until I was fourteen."

"But you're—why, hang it, you're not a Latin?"

"No, I'm a mixture, with Latin predominating. My forebears were pure Castilians from Madrid, and crossed the Western ocean in caravels. It's been a matter of pride with the house of Rucy to keep the breed pure, but despite all precautions, the family tree has been grafted once with a Scotch thistle, twice with the lily of France, and once with the shamrock of Ireland. My mother was an Irish woman."

"You alibi yourself perfectly, Ricardo, and my curiosity is appeased. Permit me to continue my tale," he added in Spanish, and forthwith he related with humorous detail his adventure at the gangplank of the steamer that had borne him and Ricardo Rucy south. Ricardo interrupted him. "We know all about that, friend Webster, and we knew the two delightful gentlemen had been told off to get you—unofficially. The Sobrantean revolutionary junta has headquarters in New Orleans. It is composed of political exiles, for Sarros, the present dictator of Sobrante, rules with an iron hand, and has a cute little habit of railroading his enemies to the cemetery via the treason charge and the firing squad. He killed my father, who was the best president this benighted country ever had, and I consider it my Christian duty to avenge my father and a patriotic duty to take up the task he left unfinished—the task of making over my country."

"In Sobrante, as in most of the countries in Central America, there are two distinct classes of people—the aristocrats and peons—and the aristocrat fattens on the peon, as he has had a habit of doing since Adam. We haven't any middle class to stand as a buffer between the two—which makes it a sad proposition. My father was an idealist and a dreamer and he dreamed of reform in government and a solution of the agrarian problem which confronts all Latin-America. He trusted one Pablo Sarros, an educated peon, who had commanded the government forces under the regime my father overthrew. My tender-hearted parent discovered that Sarros was plotting to overthrow him; but instead of having him shot, he merely removed him from command. Sarros gathered a handful of bandits, joined the old government forces my father had conquered, hired a couple dozen Yankee artillerymen and—he won out. My father was captured and executed; the palace was burned, and my sister perished in the flames. I'm here to pay off the score."

"A worthy ambition! So you organized the revolutionary junta in New Orleans, eh?"

Ricardo nodded. "Word of it reached Sarros, and he sent his brother Raoul, chief of the intelligence bureau, to investigate and report. As fast as he reported, Colonel Caraveo reported to me. My father's son possesses a name to conjure with. Consequently it was to the interest of the Sarros administration that I be eliminated. They watched every boat; hence my scheme for eluding their vigilance—which, thanks to you, worked like a charm."
"But," Webster complained, "I'm not sitting in the game at all, and yet I'm caught between the upper and nether millstones."

"That is easy to explain. You interferred that morning in Jackson square; then Raoul Sarros met you going aboard the steamer for Buenaventura and you manhandled him, and naturally, putting two and two together, he has concluded that you are not only his personal enemy but also a friend and protector of mine and consequently an enemy of the state."

"And as a consequence I'm marked for slaughter?"

"It would be well, my friend," Doctor Pacheco suggested, "to return to the United States until after Ricardo and his friends have eliminated your Nemesis."

"How soon will that happy event transpire?"

"In about sixty days we hope to be ready to strike, Mr. Webster."

Colonel Caraveo cleared his throat. "I understand from Ricardo that you and another American are interested in a mining concession, Mr. Webster."

Webster nodded.

"Is this a concession from a private landholder or did your friend secure it from the Sarros government?"

"From the government. We pay ten per cent. royalty, on a ninety-nine-year lease, and that's all I know about it. I have never seen the property, and my object in coming was to examine it and, if satisfied, finance the project."

"If you will return to your hotel, my dear sir," Colonel Caraveo suggested, "and remain there until noon tomorrow, I feel confident I can guarantee you immunity from attack thereafter. I have a plan to influence my associates in the intelligence office."

"Bully for you, Colonel. Give me sixty days in which to operate, and I'll have finished my job in Sobrante and gotten out of it before that gang of cut-throats wakes up to the fact that I'm gone. I thank you, sir."

"The least we can do, since you have saved Ricardo's life and rendered our cause a great service, is to save your life." Colonel Caraveo replied.

"This is more comfort than I had hoped for when I came here, gentlemen. I am very grateful, I assure you. Of course this little revolution you're cooking up is no affair of mine, and I trust I need not assure you that your confidence is quite safe with me."

Last week Wade Keene traded his meadow ranch near Avon to Hiram Alber for a quarter section of land on Big Bear ridge, recently owned by Emil Russell. Mr. Keene received a money consideration in the trade. The land near Avon comprised a good hay ranch, while the Bear ridge land is a fine Potlatch farm.

How Not to Take Cold

Some persons are subject to frequent colds, while others seldom, if ever, have a cold. You will find that the latter take good care of themselves. They take a shower or cold sponge bath every day in a warm room, avoid over heated rooms, sleep with a window open or partly open, avoid excesses, over eating, becoming over heated and then chilled and getting the feet wet. Then, when they feel the first indication of a cold, they take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy without delay and it is soon over.
