LATAH COUNTY NEWS PARAGRAPHS

Clipped From The Columns of Neighboring Papers.

Troy News: Rev. I. N. Hughes returned home Monday from Leland where he has been assisting the pastor in a two week's revival meeting. The results of the efforts are most gratifying. Ninety-seven were reclaimed and converted and 89 of this number have all ready joined the church. Sunday morning 18 babies were baptized. Rev. Hughes states that audiences around the 200 mark attended the services. Will this village show up as well next month when meetings will be held here?

Genesee News: When pride leaves a community prosperity generally goes with it. We might keep this fact in mind in Genesee and make plans for a general clean-up and spruce-up when spring begins to open. The man who has no pride in his surroundings possesses little ambition to advance in life. For that reason he does not become one of those energetic boosters and producers who are the making of a community. Let us make 1922 a year of pride in our homes, and our people, and our agricultural and commercial activities. Pride may come before a fall but it is a fact that it also serves to keep many a fellow on his feet. It is not too early to begin to think if these things and plan ahead therefore he being ready when the time comes to do the work.

Juliaetta Record: The recent cold snap has furnished some fine ice from the Potlatch creek much of the ice being about eleven inches thick and of a very good grade. Jack Heacox, of the Heacox confectionery, has put up about 20 tons. William Fields, of the Juliaetta Meat Market, has stored about 32 tons, Tom Fox, Herb Millard and Fred Nye are putting up about 8 tons. They are using the ice house at the home of Mrs. M. A. Perryman for the purpose. None of these so far putting up ice intend to sell it in the summer, as we understand, but expect to keep it for their own use.

Deary Press: Henry Ford declares that he doesn't want Muscle Shoals for personal gain, which somehow does not sound exactly business-like. We have noticed that in all his past and present activities Mr. Ford has not overlooked the element of personal gain. If he would put the price of his justly famous "universals" down to fifty or sixty dollars a piece, his claims in the direction of philanthropy as regards Muscle Shoals would have greater weight.

Star-Mirror: While Latah county banks have been entirely free from burglaries or holdups during the epidemic of this sort of thing which has been sweeping the country for the past year or more, the bankers are not going to take any chances, if precaution means anything. At a meeting of bankers of the county held in this city with every bank represented excepting the two Genesee banks, the managers of which were unavoidably detained, it was voted to post a reward of $1000 for the capture, dead or alive, of any person, or persons, who may burglarize, or rob, through the holdup process, any bank in the county. In addition to this other precautions will be taken to guard the banks against the work of holdups.

The meeting was called by J. A. Harsh, president of the Deary State bank for the purpose of forming a county organization. The organization will include every banker in the county, and is formed for the mutual benefit of the banks. It will also have its social features. Officers elected for the first year are: J. A. Harsh, Deary, president; E. W. Porter, State Bank of Juliaetta, vice-president; Clarence Larsen, Troy State bank, secretary-treasurer. These men, with H. Mel-

Band Dance Tonight

The Band Dance and Basket Social will be held at the Fraternal Temple tonight (Friday). As an incentive for the ladies to bring baskets a prize will be awarded the one who brings the most attractive basket. The Kendrick Orchestra will furnish music for the occasion. The proper spirit will be for everyone to get behind the band boys and help make the dance and social a huge success. All net proceeds derived will be turned into the treasury of the band.

FACTS CONCERNING INCOME TAX REPORT

Returns May Show a Saving Over Those of 1920

In making out his income tax return for 1921, the average taxpayer will find a considerable saving in comparison with the amount of tax paid on the same income for 1920.

The exemptions provided by the revenue act of 1921 are $1,000 for single persons (the term including widows, widowers, divorcees, and persons separated from husband and wife by mutual agreement, $2,500 for married persons whose net income was $5,000 or less, and $2,000 for married persons whose net income was $5,000 or more. Under the revenue act of 1918 the personal exemption allowed a married person was $2,000, regardless of the amount of net income. The personal exemption allowed a married person applies also to the head of a family, man or woman who supports in one household one or more relatives by blood, marriage, or adoption.

The exemption for dependents—a person who receives his chief support from the taxpayer and who is under 18 years of age or incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective—is increased from $200 to $400.

The act requires that a return be filed by every single person whose net income for 1921 was $1,000 or more, every married person whose net income was $2,000 or more, and by every person—single or married—whose gross income was $5,000 or more.

The requirements to file a return of gross income of $5,000 or more regardless of net income is a new provision. Net income is gross income less certain specified deductions for business expenses, losses, bad debts, etc., which are fully explained on the forms.

Returns must be filed by married couples whose combined net income for 1921, including that of dependent minor children, equaled or exceeded $2,000, or if the combined gross income equaled or exceeded $5,000.

The period for filing returns is from January 1 to March 15, 1922. Heavy penalties are provided for failure or "willful refusal" to file a return on time.

Form 1040A for incomes of $5,000 and less, and 1040 for incomes in excess of $5,000 may be obtained from the offices of collectors of internal revenue and branch offices. The tax may be paid in full at the time of filing the return, or in four equal installments, due on or before March 15, June 15, September 15, and December 15.

Cushman K. Davis of Juliaetta and Arlene Schneider of Myrtle, were united in marriage at the court house at Lewiston, Wednesday, Probate Judge Woelflen performing the ceremony.

guard, president of the First Trust & Saving Bank and J. S. Heckathorn, cashier of the First National bank, of this city, form the executive committee.

The next meeting of the association will be held at some Latah county town, yet to be decided upon.

LATAH COUNTY REPORTS ON NEAR EAST RELIEF

Chairman J. D. Davis Gives Interesting Details of Recent Campaign for Wheat

Below is given a detailed report by J. D. Davis, Latah county chairman of the Near East Relief, on the recent campaign for wheat for the sufferers of the Near East. The report is comprehensive, and not only shows what has been received and shipped, but also shows that Latah county communities have, as a rule, given generously toward this worthy cause.

In making out this report it is difficult to give exact data because of three facts: First: much money which should be credited as part of our quota is sent direct through church organizations. This can be corrected to a great extent by sending a telephone or written report of such gifts to the county chairman who will see that they are properly credited. Second: various communities in the county have directed gifts to the Spokane, office, eliminating some added expense and some time thereby. For all this we get due credit, in time, but it makes our reports a little out of date all the time. Third: some of the items we have given have a variable value as you see from the following report on our recent wheat campaign. Following is the number of sacks and amount of cash received from each town:

	Wheat	Beans	Cash
Juliaetta	52
Kendrick	25	20	$51.78
Troy	58	1
Genesee	49		$51.00
(8 sks at Spokane)
Moscow	144	3	$592.59
(1 sack at Palouse)

Totals 328 24 $695.37
(Less 9 sacks at Spokane and Palouse.)

The county committee, by the order from the northwest district office at Spokane, saved time and money by selling the wheat received, at 90c per bushel—No. 1 white club wheat basis—and by buying export flour at $4.10 per barrel.

The 319 sacks brought $692.50
Cash given 695.37

Total $1,327.87

Freight from Juliaetta, Kendrick, Troy to Moscow	$ 47.59
Telephone and telergaph Sacks used on 20 bbls. of flour from farmers and freight on 2 bags of beans from Harvard	4.05
1 bbl of flour donated by but not paid for by party 305 bbls. export flour at $4.10	4.48
Cash on hand in bank	4.10
	1,250.00
	17.25
Total	$1,327.87

Now, while this flour cost us only $1,250.00 from the mill, yet by adding the incident expense of freight, etc., the committee deems it fair that we have credit on a basis of $5.00 per bbl. The beans given represent credit at 4c per lb. The old clothes are credited at 75c per lb.

Latah County credit from July 1, 1921 to January 1, 1922, for cash, flour, beans and old clothes are as follows:

Harvard	$ 30.00
Juliaetta	119.87
Kendrick	197.34
Troy	139.34
Genesee	209.27
Bovill	52.75
Potlatch	62.00
Moscow	2,512.43

Total $3,323.00

Our county was apportioned $2,750.00. Since we have more than raised our quota for the year without considering the amounts not sent or reported to us direct, it is the belief of the committee that all charitable effort for the balance of the year should be directed toward the relief of other than Near East Needs.

However, bear in mind that the Near East problem will be here for us again next year. Children don't grow up in a year or two or even 5 years. Be ready by saving old clothes and by putting aside a sack or so of good wheat for 1922-23 relief.

J. D. DAVIS,
Chairman County Committee.

Find Still in Moscow

Star-Mirror: Mr. and Mrs. A. I. Miller and Henry Vanderwalker are under arrest on liquor charges as the result of a joint raid by Moscow city and Latah county peace officers on Miller's home at 922 South Washington street at 10 o'clock Monday morning. One of the largest stills ever taken in Latah county, a complete 40-gallon still, 16 gallons of moonshine liquor, and seven barrels of corn mash, were taken in evidence.

Information leading to the arrest was furnished by Chief of Police Grant Robbins and in company with Deputy Sheriff Charles Summerfield the Miller home was searched. On the second floor was found the complete still all set up but not in operation and a three-burner oil stove along with the other evidence of "moonshining" activity.

School Notes

Those receiving Health Crusade badges in the lower grades are: Blanch Aiken, Carl Erickson, Gladys Reece, Burneda Cummings, William Holt, Hazel Reid, Dorothy Candler, Opal Reece, Nellie Crocker.

All the pupils in the first and second grades who have been absent for the past two weeks on account of illness are back in school with the exception of Blanch Aiken, who is still ill.

The A division of the first grade have finished three primers and one first reader and are ready to take up a new reader.

The second and third grades are nicely started in their new reading books. This makes the third book for both grades this term.

Boy Badly Burned

The youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Bigham of American ridge was badly scalded Monday morning while his mother was doing the washing. The boy was sitting near the washing machine when Mrs. Bigham poured a boiler full of hot water into the machine. The stopper came out, allowing the hot water to run over the boy's shoulder, side and chest. The little fellow was brought to Kendrick for medical attention and is getting along very nicely at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Bigham. While the burns were very painful they were not deep enough to prove dangerous.

David Carson Hamil

David Carson Hamil passed away at the home of his son, J. C. Hamil, Wednesday evening, death being due to paralysis and old age. If he had lived 12 day longer he would have reached the age of 90 years. For a number of years he has made his home with his son, his wife having preceded him in death several years ago. The body will be shipped today to his old home at Washington, Iowa, for burial.

Annual W. O. W. Meeting

There will be an open meeting of White Pine Camp No. 204, W. O. W., at the Fraternal Temple, Tuesday evening, January 31. A most interesting program will be given, one number of which consists of a negro minstrel. Musical numbers will also be attractive features, and the refreshments are always good.

At this meeting, the Lodge will be visited by the deputy grand consul, E. P. Martin.

Bear Ridge Dance Success

About two hundred people from the surrounding country attended the dance last Friday night at the Community Hall on Big Bear ridge, several sleigh loads going from Kendrick. Music was furnished by the Kendrick Orchestra. Everyone pronounced the affair a grand success. It was the first dance held in the new hall. One of the pleasing features of the evening was the splendid lunch served by the dance committee.

COLUMBUS CLARK CANCELS CONTRACT

On Account of Ill Health He Won't Undertake Work

In an article from the Tribune correspondent, appearing in Sunday's Tribune, and also from the Juliaetta correspondent of the Star-Mirror in Monday's issue, a statement appeared to the effect that the report in the Kendrick Gazette stating that a contract had been let by the Kendrick Highway District to Columbus Clark for the completion of the Powell hill grade, for the sum of $2,000, is denied. The zealous correspondent gave no information concerning the source of the denial but simply stated that the report "is denied".

At a regular meeting of Kendrick Highway District, held Saturday, January 14, Mr. Clark appeared before the board of commissioners and agreed to undertake the completion of the grade around Powell hill for the sum of $2,000. All the stipulations concerning the contract were agreed upon but were not "reduced to writing", this detail being left for completion some time during the following week. While the contract was still in the verbal stage, nevertheless it was unquestionably a contract. Last week a members of the board of highway commissioners received a letter from Mr. Clark in which he stated that on account of ill health he would not be able to fulfill the terms of the contract. Under these conditions the commissioners felt the excuse was sufficient to annul the existing contract, so a new contract was entered into with A. W. Jones who has agreed to finish the grade for $2,000 and will begin work as soon as the weather permits.

Following is the version of the affair from the pen of the Juliaetta correspondent of the Star-Mirror: A statement first appearing in the Kendrick Gazette, which has since been given wide publicity to the effect that a contract had been let to Columbus Clark of Juliaetta for the completion of the work on the Powell grade, between Juliaetta and Kendrick for $2,000 has been denied.

As county commissioner of Latah county, working under a salary the question arose as to whether Mr. Clark would be permitted under the law to take a contract from a highway district. At least Mr. Clark has not yet signed the contract, though tender of the contract was made to him by the commissioners of the highway district.

Mail Your Ballots

The ballots are not being returned by the Legion members as fast as the executive committee would like to have them. As the time for voting is limited there should be no further delay in mailing the ballots. Those who do not wish to continue their membership would confer a favor on the local committee by stating their reasons, or if they haven't the membership fee at this time their membership will be paid by the local past and the amount may then be paid the legion by the members at a later date if this is requested.

E. H. Damngarell and Rev. Pickering went to Spokane, Thursday, to attend a Methodist conference.

NEW THEATRE FOR KENDRICK

Stock Company Incorporated Tuesday Night.

According to plans outlined at a meeting of stockholders of the Kendrick Theatre Co., held last Tuesday night, Kendrick will soon have one of the best equipped and most up-to-date theaters of any town of its size in the state. The required amount of stock to complete the building and equip it, has been sold and the company incorporated.

For the past two months there has been a plan on foot to purchase the building next to the Kendrick State Bank, formerly used as a garage, have it rebuilt and used as a community hall and picture theatre. The idea has been gradually gaining in favor and at the meeting held Tuesday night everyone present was enthusiastic to see the plan carried out. Twenty-five hundred dollars in cash was subscribed for stock and G. G. Oldfield of Spokane agreed to put in his up-to-date theatre equipment, which is now at Cheney, Wash., and take stock for the appraised value of the equipment. The company is being incorporated for $5,000.

Tuesday night plans were submitted, giving a general outline of the building as it will appear when remodeled. The plans call for a new stucco front, sloping concrete floor, stucco walls and ceiling, glass enclosed ticket booth, a stage 18x16 feet and other minor details. The building, when completed, will be easily heated and well ventilated, and will be large enough for all purposes for which it is intended.

The theater equipment which Mr. Oldfield has, consists of opera chairs, lighting fixtures, ventilating system, motor-driven picture machine, piano, etc. It is practically new and will furnish the building in a manner worthy of the entire plan.

At the meeting of stockholders Tuesday night the incorporation papers were signed and directors elected as follows: A. Wilmot, Jody Long, G. G. Oldfield, E. W. Lutz and Ralph B. Knepper. Mr. Oldfield is expected here next week and at that time the directors will be in a position to let the contract for the remodeling of the building, bids having already been received. The work will be rushed as fast as possible and it is fully expected that by April 1, the theater will be ready for business.

Mr. Oldfield will lease the building and equipment from the Theater Co., and will conduct a first class picture house. He has had considerable experience along this line and those who know him feel that his success is practically assured.

Following is a list of stockholders of the company: Theo Hanson, Martin Thomas, E. E. Bechtol, G. F. Walker, Ralph Knepper, Frank Ellis, Walter Thomas, Jody Long, A. Wilmot, Harold Thomas, Louis Pearson, Walter Bigham, B. N. Emmett, E. W. Lutz, E. P. Atchison, G. G. Oldfield, Frank Chamberlain, Leo C. Raaberg, A. K. Carlson, R. D. Newton, Schupfer & Deobald and Leslie Roberts.

The Lyceum Entertainment

The third number of the lyceum course appeared here last Monday evening. Only two people, the DeMarco-Aistrup Entertainers, were in the company, but it was by far the best of the three numbers of this season's course. In fact, it was the only one of the three that might be termed satisfactory.

The guarantors, thirteen in number, are now making good a deficit of a little more than $100. There is still one more number in the course, which will be a home talent production of some kind. The proceeds from this entertainment ought, in a large measure, to make up the deficit occasioned by the three entertainments that were given by "paid talent".

for it, nearly $5,000 in cash would be left in the community, which is quite an item in these days of scarce money. Cash paid for coal goes out of the community. Coal is also one of the very few commodities that has recently taken an advance in price, while nearly all other commodities are getting cheaper.

XHanded in: Take one reckless natural born fool, 2 or 3 drinks of bad liquor, a fast high-powered motor car, soak the fool in liquor—place him in the car and let him go. After due time remove the wreckage, place in black, satin-lined box, garnish with cut flowers.

Farming has its drawbacks, but farmers can at least comfort themselves with the thought that they don't have to pay any lyceum course deficits.

Frank S. Ragen, tax expert of Rockford, Illinois, stated last week that some of the big mail order houses are beating the government out of millions of dollars in legitimate taxes annually and making the farmer and householder bear the burden. He said that Sears, Roebuck & Co. have an admitted valuation of $153,000,000 while they are assessed at only $3,000,000. It is stated that if the proper amount of taxes were collected from mail order houses in Illinois alone, for the past fifteen years, it would take care of the state's sixty million dollar road program, for which the people are being taxed.

Signs of Spring: Moscow and Pullman are again starting their annual building of a surfaced road between the two towns.

Taking Desperate Chances

It is true that many contract severe colds and recover from them without taking any precaution or treatment, and a knowledge of this fact leads others take their chances instead of giving their colds the needed attention. It should be borne in mind that every cold weakens the lungs, lowers the vitality, makes the system less able to withstand each succeeding attack and paves the way for the more serious disease. Can you afford to take such desperate chances when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, famous for its cures of bad colds may be had for a trifle.—Adv.

Ford says that 80 cents of every dollar raised by taxation is spent in payment of interest. According to his figures it will take $5 worth of tax money to pay $1 worth of government indebtedness. Or, in other words, a mile of federal road that costs $20,000 to build, will cost the government $100,000 by the time it is paid. We don't believe it!

XMotor signs recording the number of miles to the nearest hospital have been found effective in New York state. It has a sinister suggestiveness that is not lost on the motorist. As he puts mile after mile between him and the hospital, he reflects how inconvenient an accident would be.

The man who sits down and waits for good times to return, will have a big handicap to make up in the race against his competitor who is always rustling business.

If one hundred families in Kendrick would each use six cords of wood a year, paying $8.00 a cord

There is very little travel these days. Both east and west bound passenger trains going thru Kendrick are hauling mostly vacant seats. If railroad companies would sell passenger fares on the credit system, the way stores sell merchandise, and carry the accounts on their books for a year or maybe two years, the empty seats would all be occupied and extra coaches would have to be put on to handle the traffic.

In a published statement by John Robertson, state tax specialist, he shows that the cost to taxpayers of state government for Idaho in 1913 was $10,108,801.49. In 1920 it was $24,511,336.48, an increase of $14,624,534.99, or 143 per cent. During the same period the valuation of the state increased 17.5 per cent; the population showed an increase of 20.8 per cent; taxes increased 139 per cent and the public bonded indebtedness increased 289 per cent. This isn't very good advertising for Governor Davis' commission form of government or his "taxless state".

Webster —Man's Man

By PETER B. KYNE

Author of
"Cappy Ricks," "The Valley of the Giants," etc.

(Copyright, by Peter B. Kyne)

CHAPTER X.—Webster receives a warning conveyed by "Don Juan Cafetero," really John J. Cafferty, Irishman of good qualities fallen through overindulgence in liquor, that there is a plot to assassinate him. Webster makes a firm friend of Cafferty. Later, the American is insulted by a Sobrantean army officer and publicly ridiculed him. A challenge to a duel is accepted under such stern conditions that the Sobranteans withdraw it.

CHAPTER XI.—Webster secretly visits "Andrew Bowers" at Mother Jenks'. He learns that "Bowers" is Ricardo Ruey, son of the assassinated president, brother of Dolores (whom he believes dead), and that a revolution is contemplated. Next morning he tells Dolores that her brother, of whom she has no recollection, is in the country, projecting the overthrow of President Sarron. Very much in love with the girl, but believing that her affection has been bestowed on Geary, Webster leaves to investigate the mine which he has come to finance.

"What a selfish, unsocial program!" she reflected. "I wonder if it will occur to him to come down here once in a while and take me for a drive on the Malecon and talk to me to keep me from dying of ennui before I meet Ricardo. I'll wait and see if he suggests it."

However, for reasons best known to himself and the reader, Mr. Webster made no such interesting suggestion; so she decided that while he was tremendously nice, he was, nevertheless, a very queer man and thoroughly exasperating.

Just before the train pulled out John Stuart Webster took Dolores' hand. "Good-by, Seeress," he said very soberly. "The trail forks here for the first time—possibly the last, although I'll try to be on hand to make good on my promise to present you to your brother the day he occupies the palace. However, if I shouldn't be in town that day, just go up and introduce yourself to him. It's been wonderful to have met you and known you, even for such a brief period. I shall never forget you and the remarkable 24 hours just passed."

"I shall not soon forget them myself, Caliph—nor you," she added. "Haven't you been a busy little cup of tea, Caliph! Within 24 hours after landing, you have changed your mind three times, lost the best job in the world, had your fortune told, been marked for slaughter, acquired a new-found friend and commenced actively and with extraordinarily good results the work of reforming him, soused a gentleman in the fountain, spurned another with the tip of your boot, rode with me around the Malecon and listened to the band concert, bundled poor Billy off to San Miguel de Padua, discovered my brother presumed to be dead, and received a reprieve from your enemies, while they perfect new plans for destroying you. Really, you are quite a Caliph."

"Oh, there's a dash of speed in the old horse yet, Miss Ruey," he assured her laughingly. "Now listen; don't tell anybody about your brother, and don't tell Billy about my adventures since he left for San Miguel de Padua."

"But I'm not liable to see Billy—" "Yes, you are—extremely liable. I'm going to send him back to you as soon as I can spare him, because I know you'll be lonesome and bored to death in this lonesome town, and Bill is a bully good company. And I don't want you to tell him about the mess I'm in, because it would only worry him; he can't aid me, and the knowledge that I was in any danger, real or fancied, would be sufficient to cause him to rebel against my plans for his honeymoon—for his vacation. He'd insist on sticking around to protect me." He looked down at her little hand where it rested in his, so big and brown and hard; with his free hand he patted her hand paternally. "Good-by, Seeress," he said again; and turning to the steps, he leaped aboard just as the train started to move out of the station.

"God—good-by—Caliph," she called mournfully. Then to herself: "Bless his heart, he did remember I'd be terribly lonesome, after all. He isn't a bit queer, but oh, dear, he is so exasperating. I could bump his kind old head against a wall!" She turned her back on the train, fearful that from where he clung on the steps he could, even at that distance, see the sudden rush of tears that blinded her. However, Don Juan Cafetero, with his rubicund nose to the window of the last coach, did see them—saw her grope toward the carriage waiting to take her back to the hotel.

"Why, shure, the poor darlint's cryin'," he reflected. "Be the Great Gun an Athlone! Shure I 'ought all along 'twas Billy Geary she had her eye on—God love him! An' he the same token, didn't she tell me I was to shay sober an' take care av Mishter Webster. Hah-hah-a! Well! I'll say nothin' an' I'll be neutral, but—but—but—"

From which it may be inferred that romance was not yet burned out of Don Juan's Gaelic soul. He would be "neutral," but—but—but—he reserved the right to butt in!

CHAPTER XII.

Arrived at San Miguel de Padua about midnight, Webster found the climate temperate, in fact, decidedly cool. Billy was waiting for them and was properly amazed, but not scandalized when Don Juan Cafetero, abusing the station hands in a horrible hodgepodge of English and Spanish, superintended the landing of the baggage on the platform.

"I had to bring him with me," Webster explained. "I'm going to wean him, and after that baby quits crying for his bottle, believe me, Bill, we'll have the prince of a foreman for our mine. Quite a character, is Don Juan, when you dig down into him."

"Dig far enough into that ruin and you'll find fire crackers," Billy admitted. "However, John, I'm afraid he won't explode. The powder's damp. How did you leave Dolores?"

"Fit as a fiddle, Bill."

"How does she stack up on better acquaintance, Johnny?"

"She's a skookum lass. She sent her love and I promised to send you back to her P. D. Q. So don't bother me with talk about her. You'll see her again in a week or ten days, I hope."

"No? Is that so, Johnny? Bully for you, you old vampus cat. Tell Don Juan to steer you over to the Globo de Oro. He knows the place. I've got to go and hire a mule or some other quadruped for Don Juan if we're to avoid a late start in the morning. Good night, old fellow."

They were up at daybreak, and with three heavily laden pack mules in charge of two semi-naked mozos, while the cook joggled comfortably along on his big splay feet in the rear, they set out for Billy's concession.

For 30 miles they followed the highway, and then debouched to the southwest along a neglected road just wide enough to accommodate the clumsy ox carts of the peasants. The country was sparsely settled and evidently given over to stock raising.

Darkness had descended on the valley by the time they had pitched camp at the claim. They were up at dawn the following morning, however, and immediately after breakfast Jack Webster went to his duffle bag and brought forth a dozen little canvas sacks and a prospector's hammer.

"Now then, William, my son," he announced, "light the lantern and we'll see if you've forgotten all I taught you about mining."

They clambered up the dump to a point where two light steel rails projected over the edge. On top of the dump, lying beside the rails, were two small, rusty, steel ore cars; the rails led from the edge of the dump to the mouth of a tunnel in the hillside and disappeared therein.

Webster stood a moment, looking around him. "How did you happen to locate this ledge?" he demanded.

"Was it grass root stuff, with an outcropping here at the foot of the hill? No, of course, it wasn't. You haven't enough ore on the dump. What the devil were you driving at?"

"Only a small portion of that dump is mine, Jack, and I didn't locate the ground originally. I came into this valley from the south, and as I worked up the range, I found a bald spot close to the top of the hill, and a gallovs frame over an abandoned shaft. Naturally, I went down the shaft to see why it had been abandoned. To my surprise, I found a 12-foot vein of free-milling ore, on a contact between andesite and Siurian limestone. The ledge stood straight up and down, which seemed to argue great depth."

"Somebody had found an outcropping on top of that hill," Webster declared with conviction, "and sunk a shaft on the vein to open it up and determine its width and direction. And what did you do, Bill?"

"I got my transit and ran a line from the shaft on the hill, following the direction in which the ledge was running, and marked out the exact point toward the base of the hill where I would start my tunnel to cut the ledge. To my surprise, I discovered my predecessor had selected that identical spot. So I verified my calculations and then sat down to think it over. I remembered that frequent and violent earthquakes occur in this country, and it seemed to me a reasonable hypothesis to blame some ancient and particularly violent seismic disturbance, which had faulted the vein and set it over a considerable distance. According to my calculation, that other man should have cut the vein at 83 feet—yet he had gone on 102 before quitting. So I got half a dozen peons and drove ahead 19 feet on the other fellow's tunnel; and by Heck, Johnny, I cut the vein!"

"Bully boy! And then?"

"I drifted ten feet on the vein, and the ore suddenly gave out. It stopped just like that, proving I'd come to the upper end of the vein where it had faulted; so I just worked up and around, stooping and sinking a winze here and there, until just about the time my cash reserve was getting pretty low I picked up the true vein and opened it up for the full width. Come in, and I'll show you."

They entered the tunnel, to the signal dismay of dozens of large bats. When they reached the vein, Webster broke off samples of the ore every three or four feet, crawled after Billy up through the stope and back to the true vein, from the face of which he also took numerous samples; then he crawled out into the sunshine again, hot, dirty, and perspiring.

"Billy, you'll be a real miner yet; see if you won't," was all the praise he tendered his youthful partner, standing beside him in anticipation of a compliment, as Webster got out his portable assay outfit.

For three days Webster worked, determining the values of each sample, only to find that his assays confirmed Billy's. "You were right, son," he finally announced. "This mine is a humdinger and no mistake; if you and I live ten years we'll be worth $10,000,000 between us—maybe more."

Billy's jaundiced eyes glowed hungrily. "We'll put in a hundred stamps—"

"Well, we'll try ten for a starter," Webster interrupted dryly, "and add more as the mine pays its way. It's the sweetest mining proposition on earth—only, like all high-class goods, it has one flaw when you examine it closely."

"You're crazy," Billy challenged. "Name the flaw!"

"Sarron!" Webster replied smilingly. "That scoundrel makes a gamble out of an otherwise sure thing. However," he added, recalling the note received from Ricardo Ruey just before his departure from Buenaventura and reflecting that to be forewarned is to be forearmed, "we'll accept the gamble. That rascal can't live forever, and he may be eliminated before he causes us any trouble."

"What will it cost us to get this mine on a paying basis, Johnny?"

"Well, back home, I'd figure on spending at least $100,000; but I dare say, taking into consideration the low cost of labor in Sobrante and the raw, natural resources of power and timber right on the ground, we ought to put this deal over for $50,000 at the outside. Praise be, I have cash enough to do the trick without calling in any help, and such being the case, we'll not waste any time but hop to the job in a hurry and make the fur fly."

"Right, Jack. What's the program?"

"Well, first off, son, I'm not going to stay in this country and lose myself managing this mine. That's your job, because you're young and unimportant in your profession and have the ability to get away with the job. You can afford to spend the next 15 years here, but I cannot. I can only afford to come down here every couple of years and relieve you for a vacation."

"That's the way I figured it, Jack."

"All right then, Bill, let us start in by giving you your first vacation. If you're going to dig in here and make the fur fly, you've got to be in tip-top physical condition—and you are thin and gaunted and full of chills and fever. Just before I left Buenaventura I cashed a draft for $5,000 on my letter of credit at the Banco Nacional, and placed it to the credit of your account there."

"Tomorrow morning you will take your horse, one pack mule, and one mozo and ride for San Miguel de Padua, where you will take the train for Buenaventura. In Buenaventura you may do what you please, but if I were you, boy, I'd try to get married and go back to the U. S. A. for my honeymoon. And when I finally hit a town that contained some regular doctors I'd let them paw me over and rebabbit me and overhaul my bearings and put me in such nice running order I'd be firing on all 12 cylinders at once."

How Not to Take Cold

Some persons are subject to frequent colds, while others seldom, if ever, have a cold. You will find that the latter take good care of themselves. They take a shower or cold sponge bath every day in a warm room, avoid over heated rooms, sleep with a window open or partly open, avoid excesses, over eating, becoming over heated and then chilled and getting the feet wet. Then, when they feel the first indication of a cold, they take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy without delay and it is soon over.
