StarMirror: The Moscow Fish and Game association, by a unanimous vote at its recent meeting, has authorized the offering of a reward of $50 to anyone furnishing information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who killed three deer a few miles out of Kendrick. Announcement of the reward was made Monday by C. J. Hugo, chairman of the association's board of directors.

Members of the association look upon the killing of the three deer as a "cold blooded, heartless and inexcusable violation of the game laws." The evidence gathered by Game Warden Brooks shows that a person or persons killed one deer and disposed of the carcass. A buck was killed and left where he fell and a doe had her hip almost shot off. The doe was left to die. Game Warden Brooks was not immediately notified and as a result the animal suffered for 48 hours before being killed by Mr. Brooks upon his arrival at the scene of wanton killing.

In speaking of the affair Mr. Hugo on behalf of the association said:

"It has been a long time since such a wanton and cold-blooded violation of our game laws has occurred. It was not only a violation of the game law but a violation of every law of humanity and decency. The feeling of indignation is unusually strong. It is to be hoped that the person or persons who committed the offense will be quickly brought to trial and convicted."

Julietta Record W. C. Johns returned last week from Genesee where he has been for the past three weeks. He states that the snow in the Genesee country will average a foot deep and that the State highway was impassable on account of drifts in many places. Recently, however, the highway commissioners opened the road from Moscow to Lewiston, but the snowfall of the past week, it is reported, has again blocked the road and it will take till the last of this week to open it up to travel again.

Troy News: The revival meetings conducted at the Methodist church for the past three weeks were brought to a close Sunday evening. The meetings were a great success, especially those held last week. Much praise must be given Captain Rexroad for the success he attained. His untiring efforts, convincing talks and great personality won him a warm place in the hearts of Troy people, as was evidenced by the large crowds attending his services. Thirty-five were brought to the altar during these meetings and thirty additions were made to the church.

Deary Press: So far as further worry about flu in Deary is concerned, there is now cause for any. The town has had it, and is now completely over it. Discussing the situation here Dr. Faust said recently:

"You know how it is with a big burn in the woods or the slashing. The fire sweeps it as long as there is fuel to keep it going, but after it has consumed everything it dies out. That is the flu situation here. The conflagration struck us, attacked everyone who was susceptible and completely burned itself out. It has no more fuel to work on. So far as Deary is concerned it is the safest place in the country right now."

Many other towns are in the throes of the epidemic and some of them have it in violent form. It was mild here. The main trouble was nearly all of us had it at the same time.

School Notes

A "Carnival" will be given at the high school building on Friday evening, March 24th. Quite a number of stunts and entertainments will be provided and every man, woman and child is cordially invited to come and spend an enjoyable time (and their surplus money.) Do not bother to eat before coming, as there will be plenty of "Hot-dog sandwiches", popcorn, pink lemonade, pie, etc., left for you. Ladies, bring that pie you were going to have for supper and boys, don't forget to get into that big "Pie Eating Contest." Admission for men—a little loose change. For ladies—a pie.

The spelling contest for the grades was held in the high school auditorium, March 3rd. The individual average was as follows for the 3rd, 4th and 5th grades: Billy Wilmott 99½, Howard Dammarell 99½, Iva Johnson 98½, Jane McConnell 96½, Juanita Stanton 96, Lois Johnson 95½, Leora Aiken 92, George Atchison 90½, Robert Dammarell 90.

For the 6th, 7th and 8th grades: Dorothy Erickson 98½, Clarabel Moore 97½, Pansy Riley 97½, Lydia Rutt 95½, Margaret Brocke 95½, Mary Candler 95½, Hester Knepper 94½, Shirley Clem 93½, Carl Sparber 91½. Owing to the illness of Billy Wilmott, Howard Dammarell will represent the 3rd, 4th and 5th grades, and Dorothy Erickson will represent the higher grades at the annual county spelling contest held at Moscow, Saturday 18th.

The attendance in both the high school and the grades was very low the past week due to illness.

Miss Stewart and Miss Newkirk are absent from school the last part of this week because of illness.

Those neither absent or tardy from school in the second and third B grades during the past month are: Hellenia Schneider, Viola Schneider, Nona McAllister, David Gentry and Edna Bolon.

Nettie Mae McDowell, Elizabeth Carlson and William Holt were neither absent or tardy during the month of February.

Honorable mention should be made of the fact that Clarabel Moore has neither been absent or tardy during this school year.

Wants A Match

J. W. McIarnahan writes from Orofino that he would like to meet Ernest Miller here in a wrestling match at any time in the near future. He says he is ready for a match any time within two weeks notice. In his letter he said "I will be glad to appear before the fans in Kendrick and you can assure them if I should wrestle Miller there they will get a run for their money should he beat me."

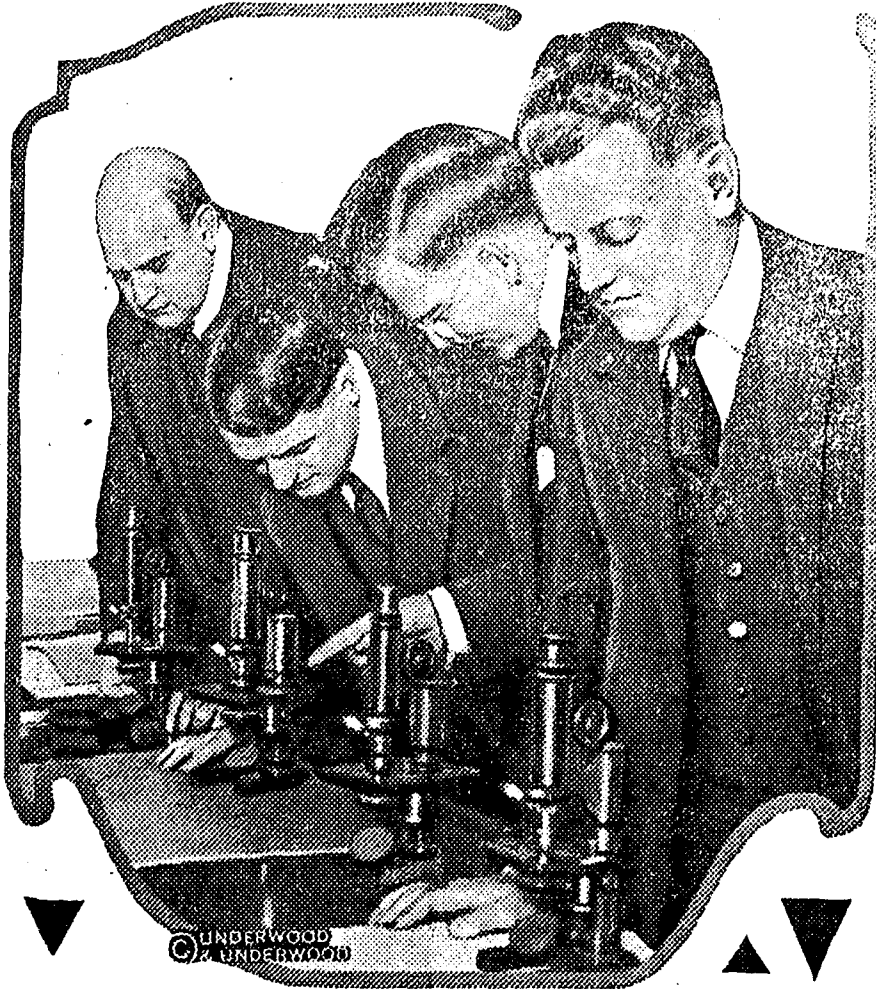

Troy Has New Postmaster

Last week J. O. McComb took up his new duties as postmaster of Troy. Mr. Harland is the retiring postmaster.

A number of communities will make a charge this season for the use of motor tourists camps, using the proceeds to improve the grounds and provide better service. Portland will charge 50 cents per night for each car. Spokane will make a charge and other communities will follow suit. It is predicted that by 1923 the obvious advantages of a small charge will be so thoroughly established that the "free camp" will be non-existent.

up the state highway between Moscow and Genesee and later heading for the top of the Lewiston hill, but on account of an accidental breakage of some part the big machine has been standing in a snowdrift for several days. The heavy snow and drifts of Monday night again blocked things up and the work is all to be done over again.

Chicago Spitters Fined and Taught

Authorities of Chicago are conducting a vigorous anti-spitting campaign in the effort to prevent the spread of the flu. Hundreds of men who carelessly spat on the sidewalks have been arrested, and, in addition to being fined, they are given microscopic views of the dangerous germs they have been emitting.

LaBole Acquitted

Francis LaBole was acquitted by the verdict of the jury in the district court Wednesday on a charge of having intoxicating liquor in his possession. The regular panel of the jury was exhausted and it was necessary to call a special venire of two men.

The jury as accepted was composed of A. H. Diddock, Henry Gertje, I. W. Stainaker, Thomas Culman, L. R. Ninneman, Wm. Bollinger, Herman Lohman, P. N. Williams, J. H. Gaut, George E. Ritz, Frank Clark and James Conley.

Witnesses for the state were I. C. Hattabaugh, before whom LaBole had a preliminary hearing at the time of his arrest, Marguerite Tyler of the Normal school, who made an analysis of the alleged intoxicating liquor, J. D. Foster of the state constabulary, who brought about the arrest of the defendant, E. H. Snow and Charles Summerfield.

Witnesses for the defense were Francis LaBole, Mrs. Gilmore, Thomas LaBole, Jeff Buckles and H. W. Hechtner. The case went to the jury at 4:30 o'clock. After being out 45 minutes they asked to come into court for further instruction which was given and after a further deliberation of 15 minutes they brought in a verdict of not guilty.

I. B. West was counsel for the defendant.—Lewiston Tribune.

Marshal Housley Resigns

At an adjourned meeting of the town council, held Wednesday evening of this week, Walter Housley tendered his resignation as marshal of Kendrick, to take effect April 1. His resignation was accepted by the board.

Mr. Housley gave as his reason for resigning that he wished to move back to his place at the lower end of town. He owns several acres of garden ground which requires more attention than he could give it while carrying on the duties of marshal. He has been a good officer and the board regretted to lose his valuable services.

After a short discussion the board selected Joe Gardner to fill the vacancy. Joe is a fine fellow and will no doubt fill the position in a most satisfactory manner. He should have the cooperation of every loyal citizen of the town in his work.

The railroad company is evidently preparing for high water in Kendrick. The banks of the creek along the right-of-way are being reinforced with riprapping to prevent the high water from washing out the tracks. Hundreds of tons of rock have been used for this purpose.

Dough Mixer Here

The new dough mixer for the local bakery arrived this week. It is quite an imposing piece of machinery and much larger than one would suppose. It weighs nearly a ton. It will be operated by an electric motor. Mr. Pearson expects to have it ready for business the latter part of this week.

By installing the dough mixer the bakery can be operated easily by one person, as it is a great time saver. Mr. Pearson says it will also be possible to get a better quality of bread by using the mixer. With this new piece of machinery installed the bakery is one of the best equipped in this section of the country and is a credit to the town.

Mrs. Elvira Henderson

Mrs. Elvira Henderson was born in Macoupi County, Illinois, April 27, 1874. She was married to Safety M. Henderson, February 27, 1873. Died March 8, 1922, at the age of 74 years, 10 months and 11 days. To this union, were born two children, J. W. Henderson and Mrs. John Draper, both of Southwick, Idaho. Grandma Henderson had been a Christian since a little girl, and at the time of her death was a faithful member of the United Brethren church at Southwick, Idaho. Her children say that they cannot remember the time when there was not a family altar in the home.

Her husband preceded her to the better world in the month of December, 1916. She leaves to mourn her loss besides the son and daughter, a sister in Kansas City, Mo., and ten grand children. The services were conducted by the writer, G. W. Benjamin. The remains were laid to rest in the Southwick cemetery.

Jesus while our hearts are bleeding Ore the spoils that death has won, We would at this solemn meeting Calmly say, Thy will be done.

By thy hand the boon was given, Thou hast taken but thine own; Lord of earth and God of heaven, Evermore Thy will be done.

Bridge at Agatha

At a meeting of the Nez Perce county commissioners at Lewiston, Tuesday, it was decided to locate the new $38,000 bridge across the Clearwater at Agatha. There was considerable discussion whether the bridge should be built at Lenore or Agatha the latter point finally being selected.

The Okoke Klootelman Club met at the home of Mrs. Ralph Knepper Wednesday evening.

A Cougar Hunt

Five cougar at $50 each, three coyotes and one bobcat at $2.50 each together with probable sale of the five cougar hides at $25 each, making a total of $385, is the haul of a fifteen day hunt on the North Fork of the Clearwater river by Phil Schooler, formerly of Genesee, now residing near Big Island. Mr. Schooler arrived in Orofino, Friday evening, March 4, and applied at Sheriff Jewell's office Saturday for bounty on his killing. Particulars of the trip as given out by Mr. Schooler follow:

"February 14 I crossed the North Fork at Maiden Island and hunted up the south side to Jim Smith's at Big Island. I was joined there by Milton Higgins a lad from Kansas, who had no experience in the woods and who was very anxious to see a real live cougar in a tree.

"Deer were very plentiful around the island and were in good condition considering the time of year. Seeing no sign of a cougar we moved on up the river, each carrying a piece of canvas, a little grub and less dishes, hunting both sides as we went. There were plenty of deer as far as Silver creek, but none from there on up to John Larson's, a distance of about ten miles.

"At Portage Riffle we caught a large trout measuring about three feet long, weighing between six and seven pounds, which lasted us and the dog four meals.

"We rested one day at Larson's and caught 55 trout, after which with replenished grub supply, we moved on up the river, accompanied by Mr. Larson. We called on Charlie Smith, who has lived on the North Fork for twenty odd years, and found him in good health, although he had recently had a narrow escape from drowning. While crossing the river the ice gave way and he had a very difficult time with the aid only of an axe which he carried in pulling himself back up on the ice and was badly chilled before he could get a fire built.

"At Salmon creek about ten miles above Larson's we saw the first cougar tracks. We followed them up Salmon creek ridge and contrary to their custom, found that there were four of the animals in a bunch. When we jumped them they separated and I put the only dog we had, "Old Jack," on the trail of the largest one which proved to be a wise old tom and instead of climbing a tree he took straight to the river and crossed, leaving the dog and I to climb back up the mountain and try another. The second one, a female, was soon treed by the dog and shot by Higgins. As it was nearly dark we took our packs to McKinnon's cabin for the night. Returning to the tracks early the next morning we soon had the second cougar in a tree and killed. In the afternoon we picked up the track of the tom, who came back across the river, and turned Jack loose, but the cougar recrossed and got away. On the third morning Larson went back after provisions while Higgins and I took up the hunt.

"We found that the tom was on our side of the river once more and with the fourth one of the bunch. I turned Jack loose on the female's trail and as she circled hurried across, leaving Higgins behind with the gun. As I was going through a patch of brush with my head down I heard the snow crunch and the panting of the cougar and as I looked up she was right in front of me coming my way. I yelled "Kamrad" and as she turned aside I hit her with my walking stick. The dog treed both her and the tom and we got them both that day.

"We hunted on up the river and followed the trail of our fifth cougar three days before Jack finally treed him. He covered a lot of country and killed four deer and one elk in those three days.

"Our provisions being low by this time we went back down the river to Big Island, where Higgins stopped, and I came on out to Orofino. Bert Decker's pack train brot the

UNIVERSITY COW BREAKS RECORD

"Idaho Violet" Has High Butterfat Record.

Idaho Violet Pasch Ormsby 337-275, a Holstein cow owned by the University of Idaho has recently finished a record of 21,739.3 pounds of milk and 805.91 pounds of butterfat, equivalent to 1007.4 pounds of butter, in 365 days, thereby breaking the state record for all ages and all breeds. This is her second record of over 1000 pounds of butter as she captured the state record last year with a total of 21,399.0 pounds of milk and 800.97 pounds of butterfat. The latter record stood until broken by herself.

Idaho Violet Pasch Ormsby was bred and raised by the University of Idaho, being born on September 19, 1912. She freshened for the first time on April 11, 1915, presenting a heifer calf. Since then she has been a persistent producer and regular breeder. Since April, 1915, she has produced a total of 99,097.9 pounds of milk and 3,781.14 pounds of butterfat, equivalent to 4,537.36 pounds of butter, an average of 19,819.54 pounds of milk and 754.23 pounds of butterfat.

During her life she has dropped five calves, two bulls and three heifers, all of which are in the University herd at the present time. Both her sons were first in their classes at the 1921 Pacific International Live Stock show and one was senior champion at the 1921 Western Royal Livestock Show at Spokane. Her oldest daughter was senior champion at the Spokane Interstate Fair last year and her yearling daughter won second prize in her class at the same show. Her oldest daughter has a record of 18,367.8 pounds of milk and 574.63 pounds of butterfat at four years and nine months of age. Another daughter has a record of 14,358.6 pounds of milk and 509.5 pounds of butterfat at three years and two months of age. Thus we see that "Violet" is not only a great producer but she is a great reproducer as shown by the production records of her daughters and the show ring of both her sons and daughters.

She is also a great show animal, being grand champion female at the Western Royal Livestock Show in 1921. The University herd will eventually be built around this family. In addition to her usefulness as a producer, breeder and show animal she has been used for instructing nearly two thousand Idaho students in dairy cattle judging. "Old Violet" as she is affectionately known by former students and many Holstein breeders of the state is probably the best known cow in the state.

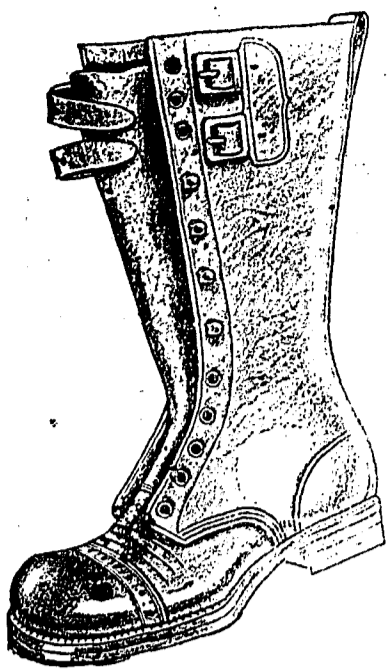

Flu Ban Lifted

The flu ban which was placed on the schools and all public gatherings last week, was lifted Sunday. School started Monday and public gatherings are again allowed as usual. The ban was put on because of the large number of flu cases in and around Kendrick. Most all of these have recovered and but few new cases reported this week. While the epidemic is generally conceded to be in a mild form those who have had it are not at all anxious to meet up with a severe case of it.

hides from the island. On this trip we saw literally thousands of deer and a good many elk, all of which, considering the depth of the snow, were in good shape but are an easy prey for cougar and coyote. We noticed four carcasses of deer which had been killed by coyotes. Rabbits are numerous this year and furnish a portion of the food of these animals but with conditions at their best, numberless deer and elk are slaughtered by these blood-thirsty varmints.—Clearwater Republican.

It is all well enough for those who have never had it to call it la grippe or a severe cold, etc. It's all bunk to call it anything but "flu", because flu it is. It's worse than smallpox—we have had both. When you get over smallpox you feel fine but after the flu you feel worse.

So much agitation to weed out useless state officials so that state expenditures will be decreased will probably result in the next legislature adding a few more to the present lengthy list.

One of the principal topics of conversation these days is the weather. The bad feature of present conditions is that we are having typical March weather in March. This country is used to a better brand of weather than we have had so far this month. It is more firmly impressed upon us every year we live in the Potlatch that the most uncertain thing we have is the weather—never two seasons alike and something new every year.

The best way to get rid of a grouch is to work it off.

Miss Elsie Darby, who has been ill, is much improved.

Mrs. Holt is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hunt.

Mr. France and W. Jennings were Kendrick visitors last week.

Mrs. J. H. Hunt and son, Rayme, spent last week at Deary and Bovill.

Mrs. Ida McAllister was home for a few days during "flu vacation" in Kendrick schools.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Zimmerman are moving into the Arlie Allen house next to the sawmill, this week.

Gertrude Hunt returned to Kendrick Sunday, to resume her school work.

The Dick Winegardner family are out again after a siege of "flu".

Leland Items

News in and around Leland is rather scarce, except snow and "flu" which seem to absorb time and place, but the "flu" is abating and the snow is going slowly, altho the days are lovely as the sun shines like real spring.

We have had a great deal of sickness, but reports are that conditions are improving.

Dr. Seeley is the busiest man on the ridge; he is on the go all the time and the people say he is fine. We are truly glad to have him among us, both as a man and as a physician, and his good wife seems to be an equal yokel-fellow in her place.

Among the sick are the entire families of Edd Flesman, George Flesman, John Evans, T. H. Daugherty, Amel Peters, Jas. McVicars and many others, but all are reported improving.

Mrs. J. A. Hall, who went to Spokane more than three weeks ago and who underwent a serious operation on February 24th, is improving rapidly and we expect her home soon and we hope, greatly improved in health. Rev. Hall stayed with her 8 days, but is now home. Rev. Carlton and Corkill cared for the church in his absence.

Rev. C. L. McCausland spent Saturday and Sunday at Leland, where he held the 3rd quarterly conference and preached three times.

Business moves as usual, except Hugh Parks is moving to his new location where he and his wife set up a home for themselves, they are the kind of young people we like to have make their home among us.

METHODIST CHURCH.

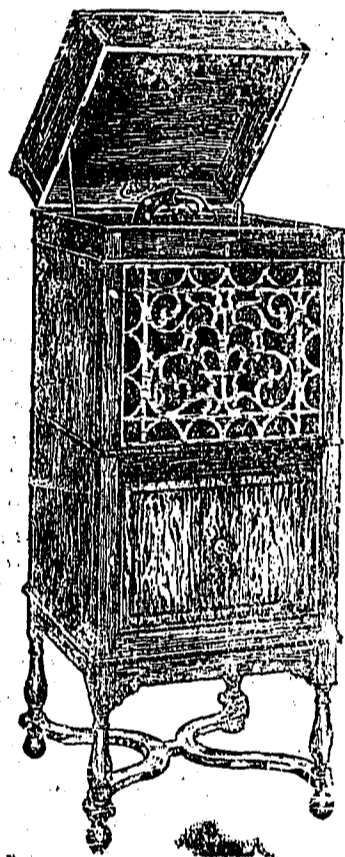

C. A. Pickering, Minister.

There will be preaching both morning and evening at Kendrick, March 19th.

Let us not permit our church to take as long to convalesce from the effects of the flu as some of the other patients, but all get back into working form immediately.

If you want to see the Sunday School Superintendent smile, be in your seats promptly by ten o'clock. Can we not make the attendance, this coming Sunday, 100 per cent?

CHAPTER XIII.—Dolores tells Webster that Billy Geary had asked her to marry him and that she had refused. Amazed, but entirely misunderstanding the situation, he accepts the explanation. He explains to Dolores how her brother has laid his plans for the overthrow of Sarros. Webster and Ricardo have a final understanding.

CHAPTER XIV.—The morning of the revolution Webster takes Dolores aboard the American steamer Estrella, where she can remain in safety. As an American citizen he believes it his duty to take no part in the conflict. "Afterward, after being in the thick of it, returns to the ship to tell Webster of the progress of the revolution, which presages an early victory for the forces of Ricardo Rucy.

"Me on the fringes av a fight?" sputtered Don Juan, amazed and outraged. "Take shame for yerself, sor. There was niver the likes av me hung around the fringes av a fight, an' well ye know it."

"I'm amazed that you even remembered your instructions," Webster rasped at him.

"Sure, our division had cleaned up nicely an' I had nothin' else to do, God bless ye. They were besiegin' the palace when I left, an' small chance av takin' it for a couple av hours; what fightin' there was on the outside was street shootin'—an' not to me likin'."

"Is it quite safe to bring Miss Rucy ashore, John?"

"'Tis safe enough at the Hotel Mateo. We have the city for half a mile beyant, in the rear av them—an' they're not fightin' to get to the bay. The guards an' some av the Fifteenth Infantry regiment are in the palace an' the cuartel close by, an' them that we failed to get in the arsenal have jined them. But the bulk av the Sarros army is thryin' to break through to the south an' west, to get to the hills. D'ye mind the spur track that runs in a semi-circle around the city? Well, them, the rebels are behind the embankment, takin' it aisy. Have no worry, sor. When we've took the palace we'll move on an' drive the vagabones from behind up to that railroad embankment, where General Rucy can bid them the time av day."

Webster turned to Dolores. "Do you wish to go ashore?"

She nodded, her flashing eyes bent in admiration upon the gory, grimy Don Juan Cafetero, for she was half Irish, and in that amazing meeting she knew the outcast for one of her blood. "I think my brother will sleep in his father's old room tonight," she murmured softly. "And I would sleep in mine."

They followed Don Juan down the gangway to the launch and sped back to the city. The door of Leber's warehouse stood wide open; within was a litter of greasy rags and broken packing cases, with Leber, quite mystified, sitting on a keg of nails and staring curiously at it all.

Guided by Don Juan Cafetero, Webster and Dolores, passed on up the Calle San Rosario. Occasionally a bullet, fired two or three miles to the west, droned lazily overhead or dropped with a sharp metallic sound on the corrugated-iron roofs of a building. At the hotel the proprietor alone was in evidence, seated behind the desk smoking in profound indifference.

In response to Webster's eager inquiries for the latest news from the front, the placid fellow shrugged and murmured: "Quien sabe?" Evidently for him such stirring scenes had long since lost their novelty; the bloom was off the peach, as it were.

Webster went upstairs and helped himself to another automatic and several spare clips of shells which he had left in his trunk. On his return to the lobby, Dolores saw what a very nearsighted person, indeed, would have seen—to wit: that he was not pleased to remain in the hotel and with the spirit of adventure strong within him was desirous of progressing still farther toward the firing, in the hope of eliciting some favorable news as to the progress of the fight. She realized, however, that he would do his duty and remain with her in the hotel; so she said gayly:

"Suppose we walk out a little farther, Caliph. Many of the side streets will be as safe and peaceful as one could desire, and if warfare should develop in our vicinity we can step in to some house."

"I do not like to have you run the slightest risk—" he began, but she pooh-poohed him into silence, took him by the arm with a great air of camaraderie, and declared they should go forth to adventure—but cautiously.

Webster glanced at Don Juan. "We can go a half or three quarters av a mile out the Calle San Rosario, sor," the Irishman answered. "After that 'twill not be a pleasant sight for the young laddy—an' there may be some shootin'. Squads av the government troops took refuge in the houses an' took to snipin'." "Twill be show wurk roundin' the last av them up. Even after the fight is over, there'll be scatterin' shootin' scrapes all av the night long, I'm thinkin'."

"At the slightest danger we'll turn back," Webster announced, and with Don Juan Cafetero scouting the way a block in advance they progressed slowly toward the center of the disturbance.

Soon they passed a horse dead in the middle of the street; a little farther on one of the machine-gun company, a lank Texan, sat on the curb rolling a cigarette with his left hand. He had a bullet through his right shoulder and another through the calf of his leg and had received no first aid attention; the flies were bothering him considerably and he was cursing softly and fluently, like the ex-mule-skinner he was.

Farther on another white invader lay face down in the gutter; for him the fight had ended almost ere it had begun. In the next block half a dozen sandal-footed Sobranteans, in the blue and red-trimmed uniform of the Guardia Civil, lay sprawled in uncouth attitudes, where the first blast of a machine gun had caught them as they rushed out of the police station to repel the advancing mercenaries.

Seeing that the main street of the city would assume even a more grisly aspect the longer they followed it, Don Juan led Webster and Dolores a couple of blocks down a cross street and turned out into the Calle de Hernandez, parallel to the Calle San Rosario. There had been no shooting in this street, apparently; as they proceeded nor even a stray bullet whined down the silent calle.

Four blocks from the government palace they found the narrow sidewalks of this quiet street lined with wounded from both sides, with a doctor and half a dozen of Ricardo's hired fighters ministering to them; as they threaded their way between the recumbent figures they came upon Mother Jenks, brandy bottle and glass in hand, "doing her bit."

"Hah! So here you are, my lamb," she greeted Dolores. "Right-o. Just where yer ought to be, Gor! bless yer sweet face. Let these poor misfortunate lads see that the sister o' the new president ain't too proud to care for 'em. 'Ere, lass. 'Old up the 'ead o' this young cockerel with the 'ole in 'is neck. 'Ere, lad. Tyke a brace now! 'Ere's some o' your own people, not a lot o' bloomin' yeller bellies, come to put something else in yer neck—something that'll stimulate yer."

The "young cockerel," a blond youth of scarce 20 summers, twisted his head and grinned up at Dolores as she knelt beside him to lift him up. "Here, here, sister," he mumbled, "you'll get that white dress dirty. Never mind me. It's just a flesh wound, only my neck has got stiff and I'm weak from loss of blood."

Mother Jenks winked at Webster as she set a glass of brandy to the stricken adventurer's lips. "Give me a bit o' the white meat, as my sainted 'Enery used to s'y," she murmured complacently.

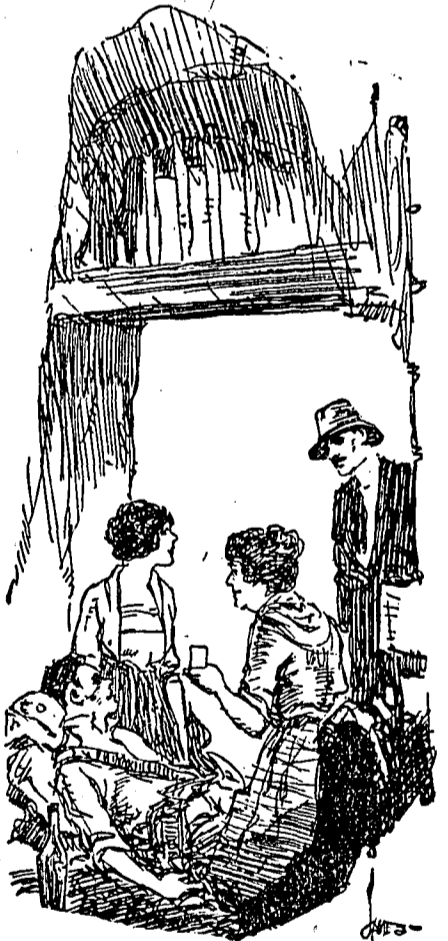

Dolores looked up at Webster. "I'll stay here," she said simply. "I've found a job helping Mother Jenks. You and Don Juan may run along if you wish. I know you're as curious as children."

They were. It would have been impossible for any man with red corpuscles in his blood to harken to the shooting and shouts only three city blocks distant without yearning to see the fight itself.

"I'll return in 15 minutes, at the latest," he promised her, and with Don Juan Cafetero, who had helped himself to a rifle and bayonet from one of the wounded, he turned the corner into the next street which they followed west through a block plentifully sprinkled with the dead of both factions.

Don Juan led the way through an alley in the rear of the Catedral de la Santa Cruz to the door of the sacristy; as he placed his hand on the latch three rifle bullets struck around them, showering them with fragments of falling adobe.

"There's a house party in the neighborhood," yelled Don Juan and darted into the church, with Webster at his heels, just in time to escape another fusillade. They walked through the sacristy and passed through a door into the great cathedral, with its high, carved, gothic-arched ceiling. Through the thick-closed doors of the main entrance, lost in the dimness of space out in front, the sounds of the battle half a block away seemed very distant, indeed.

They passed the altar and Don Juan genuflected and crossed himself reverently. "I'll be after makin' me confession," he whispered to Webster. "Wait for me, sor."

He leaned his rifle against the altar railing, crossed the church and touched lightly on the shoulder a monk kneeling in prayer before the altar of the Virgin; the latter bent his head while Don Juan whispered; then he rose and both went into the confessional, while Webster found a bench along the wall and waited.

Presently Don Juan came forth, knelt on the red-tiled floor and prayed—something, Webster suspected, he had not done for quite a while. And when he had finished his supplication and procured his rifle, Webster joined him, the monk unholied the door and from the quiet of the house of God they passed out into the street and the tumult of hell.

"I've been close to death this day," Don Juan explained, "an' the day is not done. Be the same token, tis long since I'd made me last confession; sure, until you picked me out av the mire, sor, 'tis little thought I had for the hereafter."

From their place they could see a dozen or more of Ricardo's hired fighters crouched under the shelter of the palace walls across the street. "I think we'll be safer there," Webster cried, as a couple of bullets struck the stone steps at their feet and ricocheted against the cathedral door. "That rifle of yours is making you a marked man, Don Juan."

They ran across the street and joined the men under the palace wall. "What's this?" Don Juan demanded briskly. "Have ye not shumoked them out yet?"

"Noddings doing," a young German answered. "Der chief has sent word dot we shall not artilery use on der palace. Men all around it we haf, mit a machine gun commanding each gate; most of der boys have chust moved out west in der rear of der government troops."

"Then," Don Juan declared with conviction, "there'll be no fighting here to speak av, until later." "Der is plenty of choy huntin' snipers, mein friend. Der houses hereabouts vos filled mit dem."

"I'll have no cat fights in mine," Don Juan retorted. "Come wit' me, so, an' we'll be in at the death out beyant at the railroad embankment."

"Too late," Webster answered, for on the instant to the west the crackle of rifle and machine gun fire interluded with the staccato barks of a Maxim-Vickers broke out, swelling almost immediately to a steady outpouring of sound. "We'll stay here where we're safe for the finals. When General Rucy has cleaned up out there he'll come here to take command."

For half an hour the sounds of a brisk engagement to the west did not slacken; then with disconcerting suddenness the uproar died away fully 50 per cent.

"They're going in with the bayonet and machetes," somebody who knew remarked inconspicuously. "Wait and you'll hear the cheering."

They waited fully ten minutes, but presently, as the firing gradually died away, they heard it, faint and indistinguishable at first, but gradually coming nearer. And presently the trapped men in the palace heard it, too. "Viva Rucy! Viva! Viva Rucy!"

"All over but the shouting," Don Juan remarked disgustedly. "The lads in the palace will surrender now. Sure General Rucy was right after all. For why should he shoot holes in the house he's goin' to live in, an' where, be the same token, he gives a dinner party this night?"

"I'm glad the end is in sight," Webster replied. "We have no interest in this revolution, John, and it isn't up to us to horn in on the play; yet if it went against the Rucy faction, I fear we'd be forced into active service in spite of ourselves. There is such a thing as fighting to save one's skin, you know."

Don Juan laughed pleasantly. "What a shame we missed the row out beyant at the railroad embankment," he declared.

"I wish you'd kept out of it, Don Juan. What business had you in the fight at the cuartel? Suppose you'd been killed?"

"Small loss!" Don Juan retorted. "I should have mourned you nevertheless, John."

"Would you that same?" Don Juan's buttermilk eyes lighted with affection and pleasure. "Would it put a pang in the heart of you, sor, to see me stretched?"

"Yes, it would, John. You're a wild, impulsive, lunatic, worthless Irishman, but there's a broad vein of pay ore in you, and I want you to live until I can develop it. When Mr. Geary returns to operate the mine, he'll need a foreman he can trust."

"And do you trust me, sor?"

"I do indeed, John. By the way, you never gave me your word of honor to cut out red liquor for keeps. Up till today I've had to watch you—and I don't want to do that. It isn't dignified for either of us, and from today on you must be a man of a mouse. If you prove yourself a man, I want you in my business; if you prove yourself a mouse, somebody else may have you. How about you John? The cantinas will be open tonight, and fire water will be free to the soldiers of the new republic. Must I watch you tonight?"

Don Juan shook his reckless red head. "I'll never let a drop of liquor cross my lips without your permission, sor," he promised simply. "I am the man and you are the master."

"We'll shake hands on that!" After the western habit of validating all verbal agreements with a hand shake, Webster thrust his hand out to his man, who took it in both of his and held it for half a minute. He wanted to speak, but couldn't; he could only bow his head as his eyes clouded with the tears of his appreciation. "Ah, sor," he blurted presently, "I'd die for ye an' welcome the chanst."

A wild yell of alarm broke out in the next block, at the north gate of the palace; there was a sudden flurry of rifle fire and cries of "Here they come! Stop them! Stop them! They're breaking out!"

Without awaiting orders the hired fighters along the wall—some 15 of them—leaped out into the street, forming a skirmish line, just as a troop of cavalry, with drawn sabers, swept around the corner and charged upon the devoted little line. "Sarros must be thryin' to make his get-away," Don Juan Cafetero remarked coolly, and emptied a saddle. "They threw open the big palace gate, an' the guards are clearin' a way for him to the bay." He emptied another saddle.

Watch for the Opening Date of the New Kendrick Theater

GLEANINGS

Lester and Dell Green went to Wenatchee, Tuesday, where they expect to secure employment.

W. J. Westover of Clarkston was in Kendrick the first of the week on business.

Babe Callison arrived, Monday, from Moscow to visit her father on American ridge. The Ursuline Academy closed this week on account of the fact that a number of the teachers had the flu.

Herman Wegner of Asotin visited his parents in Kendrick over the week end.

Joe Frucht of Lepee was transacting business in Kendrick the first of the week.

While driving back from the Cedar Creek country last week Dr. Otteraaen saw twenty deer in one bunch. He was close enough to take a picture of them. There are more deer along the Potlatch than have been seen in this country for years.

John Florence of Clarkston was visiting friends in Kendrick last Saturday.

Bob Shumalter didn't get his Gazette last Saturday so in a card to us he said "We would rather miss the Spokane Review than the Kendrick Gazette", all of which we appreciate most highly.

Two Kamiah men recently killed 9 cougars in the upper Clearwater country. A man arrived in Orofino last week with five cougar pelts. These 14 cougar would have killed more deer in the mountains this spring than all the hunters that will go out next fall and winter.

P. L. Orcutt of Moscow was transacting business in Kendrick last week.

A. V. Dunkle was a Lewiston visitor the first of the week.

Mrs. Elbert Kuykendal, who was taken to a Lewiston hospital Wednesday of last week, returned home Tuesday afternoon. She was accompanied home by her husband. The friends of the Kuykendals will be glad to learn that she is very much improved in health.

The bank statements of the three Moscow banks show them to have total deposits aggregating over 2 1/2 millions, which is surely a good showing for this time of year.

The Circle Card Club spent a very pleasant evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Rogers Tuesday night. Dainty refreshments were served.

Work on the new theatre is progressing in a most satisfactory manner. The cold weather has delayed the plastering and cement work to some extent, but the lathing, excavating, wiring and work on the stage has been carried on without interruption. It will probably be the latter part of next month before the building is completed and the fixtures installed.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Hull have had rather a severe time with the flu. For a few days last week Mr. Hull was in a critical condition, but they are now both recovering.

George Davidson was a Moscow visitor, Wednesday.

Herman Schupfer heard the wireless station at High River, Alberta, one night this week. He also can distinguish wireless messages as far south and east as Denver.

W. M. McCrea was out of the store this week on account of the flu. He is recovering rapidly.

Mrs. C. C. Blackburn is slowly recovering from pneumonia. She was able to sit up for a while Wednesday, the first time for several days.

John Dammarell went to Gifford on business, Wednesday.

The local Legion post has a number of American flags for disposal among the country schools in the vicinity of Kendrick. These flags may be had by applying to Tom Long or George Carlson. Five nice flags were given to the Kendrick schools by the Legion.

T. H. Sturdevant went to Lewiston Wednesday to attend a meeting of I. O. O. F. secretaries to be held there Thursday.

Al McKee of Lapwai was transacting business in Kendrick this week.

Dean Wright of Agatha was in Kendrick on business Wednesday.

The town council met in adjourned session at the city hall Wednesday evening with all councilmen present. Nothing but general routine business was transacted.

William Dilly, carrier on route No. 2 out of Kendrick, was unable to take the mail out Thursday on account of illness. His substitute, P. G. Candler also had flu in his family and couldn't go. Mr. Dilly went to Moscow Thursday afternoon.

Ira Bolton went to Lewiston Thursday afternoon. He has been suffering with appendicitis and may have to undergo an operation.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Brooks of Lewiston spent Sunday at the home of their daughter, Mrs. E. W. Lutz.

Ira Bolton and Don McCrea were talking baseball this week. This is the surest sign of spring that has so far appeared on the horizon. Indications are that Kendrick will have a fast ball team this season.

John Kite took his daughter, Mildred, and son, John, to Lewiston Wednesday, where they underwent an operation for the removal of their tonsils. They returned home Thursday.

Oscar Thomas of Moscow visited relatives in Kendrick Thursday.

Mrs. J. H. Kelley returned Thursday afternoon from a business trip to Lewiston.

Jesse Hoffman sold four Shorthorn yearlings last week to George Holbrook. They brought $60 apiece and averaged 940 pounds each. Mr. Holbrook said the four head were some of the finest stock he had ever shipped from this territory.

L. E. Brooks, deputy state game warden, was in Kendrick the first of the week on business. Mr. Brooks said that old fishing licenses expire April 1 at which time the fishing season will be closed for two months. He expects to stock Latah county streams heavily this spring, particularly at Elk River and above the forks of the Potlatch.

Southwick News

The funeral service of Grandma Henderson was held at the U. B. church, Friday at one o'clock, after which the remains were laid to rest in the Southwick cemetery.

Mrs. Ritchel is reported very sick, and Mr. Ritchel is reported to be improving.

Little James Smith is quite sick with pneumonia fever.

Mr. and Mrs. Daughtry are both reported ill with la grippe or flu.

Revival meetings were closed Thursday night on account of so much sickness.

Lee Kirk, who has been helping Roy Southwick, for the past year, is helping his brother-in-law, Homer Hayward.

George Ziemann returned to Kendrick, Monday, after a week's visit at home.

We have deep snow on the ground around Southwick.

Henry Jones left for Lewiston last week.

R. M. Wright, who has been sick with the flu, is able to be out again. Clair Reece has been quite ill.

Frank Holmes is visiting relatives in Southwick.

Big Bear Ridge

Raleigh Hughes departed for St. Maries, Monday, to attend his father's funeral.

Mrs. Amos Moore spent last week in Kendrick with her daughters, Misses Alta, Allie and Claribel.

The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Newman, who has been seriously ill, is slowly recovering.

Misses Agnes, Opal and Dorothy Jones spent last week at home.

Miss Helen Slind returned home Monday, having spent several weeks with her sister, Mrs. H. Dalberg in Deary.

Miss Inez Johnson resumed her school duties at Rimrock, Tuesday.

Mrs. White of Lewiston spent last week at the A. N. Rogstad home.

Ole Lien returned home from Moscow last week, having served as juror on the district court.

Preaching services at the Lutheran church, Sunday, March 19th at 11 a. m.

Miss Bessie Morey is recovering from an operation caused by an ulcerated tooth. She recently returned home from the Gritman Hospital in Moscow.

C. J. Munson of Moscow was a visitor at the Ole Lien home the first of the week.

Charles Riggle spent the week end at his home in Kendrick.

Will Dalberg, the Watkins man, recently canvassed the ridge.
