

Wright-Henderson

A very pretty but quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of Ralph R. Wright, Sunday, June 3, at high noon, when their oldest daughter, Zelma, became the bride of Clarence Henderson, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Henderson, a prosperous farmer of the Southwick community.

The ceremony was performed by R. M. Wright, grandparent to the bride, in the presence of the immediate relatives of the bride and groom, and Milton Benjamin, who acted as best man. Miss Alvira Henderson, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid.

The bridal party entered the room to the strains of the wedding march, played by Mrs. R. R. Wright, and stood under an evergreen arch from which was suspended a huge wedding bell with streamers of pink and white.

Following the usual congratulations a delightful dinner was served to celebrate the happy occasion. The table was very pretty with bouquets of beautiful flowers. A pink and white wedding cake formed a pleasing center piece.

The bride was tastefully gowned in pink satin, trimmed with white overlace and wore a bouquet of pink and white flowers. The bridesmaids were dainty in the same delicate colors. The groom wore a suit of dark brown.

A rather unique part of the wedding as the fact that a grandparent performed the ceremony, while two other grandparents of the happy couple, A. Baker and Wm. J. Whiting, witnessed the marriage certificate.

The wedding date fell on the 13th birthday of the bride's little brother, so at the wedding feast his birthday cake was cut and added to the happiness of the occasion.

The bride and groom are popular young people of the Southwick community and have a host of friends who wish them happiness. They will make their home on the farm owned by the groom's father.

ADVISES USE OF NEWSPAPER

Roger W. Babson, one of the foremost, if not the foremost business statistician of the United States says:

"During the next few months local merchants should advertise. National manufacturers are utilizing the great power of advertising in the distribution of their products. The successful department store are also using larger space in the newspapers, but the smaller retailer has yet failed to advertise he should. Perhaps this is why he is small; one cannot tell. There surely is some reason why the people flock to one merchant and pass up another."

Work on State Highway

Deary Press: The highway district's machinery was moved last week to the east end of the state highway, near Helmer, and the work of building the road upon the state survey is being pushed as rapidly as conditions will permit. Ira Altig, who drives the tractor, states that barring no delay the road will be ready for travel in about three weeks. Highway District No. 4 has built their share of the road to the line a short distance west of Helmer.

When this stretch is finished it will give a level road between Deary and Bovill, and on through over state road to St. Maries in one direction and to Elk River in another. The Benson hill, for many years a menace to auto traffic, will become a memory. This section will have the best dirt roads in the county, where it has always heretofore had the worst. Tourists travel this summer will be heavy, but much more so hereafter because this year's tourists will advertise the roads far and wide.

Some Rain

Spokane has just experienced the greatest shower of rain in its history, with one exception, government records at the United States Weather office show. This record does not include some periods of heavy snow fall. Rain began to fall at eleven o'clock Thursday night, May 31. The government instrument showed and registered 1.91 inches up to five o'clock, Saturday evening, June 2, a continuous shower of 41 hours, with the exception of a brief interval just after midnight Saturday morning.

The only record exceeding this was on June 7, 1888, when 2.22 inches of rain fell. The details of that rainfall were destroyed along with all records of the office in the big fire of 1889, and the length of time covered is not known.

Hereafter the marshal will use a requisition when purchasing supplies for the town. This will give the marshal and finance committee a more accurate check on materials purchased.

HIGH MORTALITY OF CHICKS

Knowledge, Care and Good Judgment Required to Bring Little Fellows to Maturity.

There is no doubt about the statement that if the mortality among young chicks could be averted and the per cent that dies be brought to maturity, the poultry industry would be one of the largest, if not the largest.

Family of Sturdy Little Chicks, Well Cared For.

In the country. Thousands upon thousands die each year from improper attention to the youngsters after hatching, and thousands fail to hatch from inexperience in handling incubators. To begin with, all eggs should be tested before placing in an incubator or under hens. If this be done only good, strong germ eggs would be used, and those showing defects would be rejected and sent to market for table use. Special attention should be given incubators to see that the thermometer registers just right, and also note that you have the required moisture. Incubators should be started at 101 degrees, 102 second week, and if the hatch is good the thermometer will sometimes go as high as 105 degrees the third week. Those chicks which hatch on the night of the nineteenth day or early on the twentieth will be pretty apt to live, as they were good, strong, 100 per cent fertile eggs. Those that hatch later range in vitality from 50 per cent to 80 per cent. The 100 per cent birds thrive and mature to be standard weight. Those under that die beginning the third day, and sometimes string out for two or three months.

RAISING COLT BY HAND HARD WORK

Sometimes Necessary on Average Farm Where Mother Fails to Supply Milk Needed.

COW'S MILK IS SUBSTITUTE

When Not Rich in Butterfat It Should Be Diluted With About One-Fourth Fresh Water—Add Table-spoonful of Sugar.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Raising a colt by hand, sometimes necessary on the average farm when the mother fails to provide enough milk for the foal, is not a job for the careless and indifferent. On the other hand, says the United States Department of Agriculture, it requires patience, painstaking care, perseverance, judgment, and cleanliness.

Cow's milk furnishes a logical substitute for mare's milk, but as the composition is somewhat different, certain changes or modifications are necessary in order that the supplied diet be not too dissimilar from the natural. The following table gives the average composition of the two kinds of milk:

	Water	Protein	Fat	Sugar	Ash
Cow's milk	87.17	2.55	5.69	4.88	0.71
Mare's milk	87.78	1.19	1.21	5.67	.36

Mixture Favored for Colt.

Milk from as fresh a cow as possible and which is not rich in butterfat should be diluted about one-fourth with fresh water. A table-spoonful of sugar and about three teaspoonfuls of linewater should be added for each pint. This mixture should be supplied to the colt at about body temperature. A bottle with a rubber nipple, or even a finger of a kid glove with a fair-sized hole in it fitted over the end of a spout of a vessel, such as a teapot, will serve as a convenient utensil in getting the foal to take the milk. If the finger of a kid glove is used it should be clean. At first about one-half a cupful of milk should be given every hour, the quantity to be increased slightly and the intervals to be lengthened gradually as the foal grows older. In about two months skimmed milk may be substituted for whole milk, and in addition, one of the following rations should be fed: One part flaxseed meal, one part bran; or two parts ground oats, one part cornmeal, and one-half part flaxseed meal; or two parts bran, two parts cornmeal, and one part of meal.

feed a double handful a day to start with, and increase the amount gradually.

Keep Utensils Clean.

The vessel in which the milk is supplied should be scalded thoroughly each time it is used. Unclean receptacles for the milk and irregular intervals for feeding likely will cause scours. The quarters should be very clean and the orphaned foal should have company of some kind. Another foal is desirable, but even a calf is better than no company. A grassy paddock with abundant shade, fresh water, and protection from flies increase the orphan's chance of proper development.

ECONOMICAL FEED FOR SOWS

If Abundance of Pasture is Available Animals Can Be Fed Cheaply During Summer.

A brood sow, from the time she is bred until she farrows, can be fed a very economical ration during the summer time if an abundance of alfalfa or other good pasture is available and she can be fed almost as cheaply during the winter season if part of her ration consists of a good quality of alfalfa hay. Such a sow can be wintered on one pound of corn per hundredweight daily if the grain is supplemented with all the alfalfa hay she can eat. In the corn belt this is probably the most economical ration a man can use, especially at the present price of corn.

BOWEL TROUBLES OF CHICKS

Prevention by Using Eggs From Non-infected Flock is Wisest Course for Poultryman.

There is no cure for bacillary white diarrhea in chicks. The only remedy is prevention by setting eggs from non-infected flocks. Sanitation will help control an outbreak. Chicks will be kept from picking up infected droppings by keeping the incubator dark from the time the chicks are hatched until they are removed to the brooder. Separating the chicks into small lots will help and frequent cleaning and disinfecting of the quarters are important.

DUST-BATH DESTROYS PESTS

Lice and Mites Are More Troublesome in Wet Weather—Wood Ashes Are Satisfactory.

Lice and mites are more troublesome in the flock in damp weather for the reason that no dust can be found. If wet weather prevents your chickens from getting a dust bath, place a box in a dry place. Use clean wood ashes if no dust is obtainable. Coal ashes with the cinders screened out will answer. Add a small amount of insect powder to the ashes.

FEEDING POTATOES TO STOCK

When Fed to Hogs They Should Be Cooked and Only Moderate Amount Given.

Potatoes are a good succulent food when fed raw to cattle, sheep, horses or poultry. If fed to hogs they should be cooked. But only a moderate amount should be fed. It would not do to try and make potatoes half the ration for calves or other stock. They contain too much water for that. They should be fed in moderate amounts in connection with the hay and grain. It would probably not be advisable to feed more than ten pounds per day to each calf.

Out-Flapping The Flapper

GRACE CRISTIE, the "Rhythmic Dancer," is a California girl. Rhythmic, but not exactly classical! She represents various "types" in her dances, or rather, as this picture hints, she caricatures them. She uses masks to help her. The audience never sees her own face. In the photograph above she's giving her idea of an ultra-modern flapper. Miss Cristie is just back from Paris and London, where she created a sensation.

The Home of The Soul

In older times, it was believed that the seat of the soul was the stomach, most likely for the reason that a man is never so completely used up as when his stomach is out of order. For the cure of ordinary stomach troubles, there is nothing quite so prompt and satisfactory as Chamberlain's Tablets. They strengthen the stomach and enable it to perform its functions naturally. Give them a trial. They only cost a quarter.

Why Suffer from Rheumatism

Do you know that nine out of every ten cases of rheumatism are simply rheumatism of the muscles or chronic rheumatism, neither of which require any internal treatment? The pain may be relieved by applying Chamberlain's Liniment, which makes sleep and rest possible, and that certainly means a great deal to any one afflicted with rheumatism.
