Earthquake Damage Large

San Bernardina, Cal. Inventory of the damage of Sunday night's earthquake, completed tonight, show three persons injured and about $2,000 damage in the city of San Bernardino and $2,500 in Redlands.

Extensive damage, however, was done to the southern California hospital for the insane at Patton, six miles northeast, and the general hospital of San Bernardino county two miles northeast. A portion of the north wall of the institution fell out. Large cracks were opened in the walls. The buildings are 30 years old and three stories in height. It would cost half a million dollars to construct new quarters for the patients.

Between $4,000 and $8,000 damage was done at the general hospital of the county.

The removal of 519 patients from the state hospital for the insane at Patton was ordered today when it was discovered that damage to walls of a hospital building by the earthquake last night had rendered the structure unsafe for occupancy.
