SAME OLD STORY BUT A GOOD ONE.

Mrs. Mahala Burns, Savanna, Mo., relates an experience, the like of which has happened in almost every neighborhood in this country, and has been told and related by thousands of others, as follows: "I used a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and diarrhoea Remedy about nine years ago and it cured me of flux (dysentery). I had another attack of the same complaint three or four years ago and a few doses of this remedy cured me. I have recommended it to dozens of people since I first used it and shall continue to do so for I know it is a quick and positive cure for bowel troubles.

Subscription $1.50 a year.

He was one of the few remaining old-time darkies. He had finished the odd jobs for which he had been employed, and, hat in hand, appeared at the back door.

Kendrick Gazette—Galley 2

"How much is it, uncle?" he was asked.

"Yo' say how much? Jest whatever yo' all say, misses."

"Oh, but I'd rather you would say how much," the lady of the house replied.

"Yas, ma'am! But, ma'am, Ah'd rather hab de seventy-five cents yo' all would gimme dan de fifty cents Ah'd charge yo' all."

From his backyard frog ranch near Oshkosh, Wis., Emil Neuenfeldt ships 2 million frog legs a year and maintains an office in Chicago. The ranch is a plot of ground 70 by 100 feet. The frogs are kept in concrete trenches 50 feet long and 6 feet wide in running water. The frogs are caught in nearby streams and ponds. The cold water in the tanks makes them hibernate and the frog chorus doesn't sing. When an order is received the required number of frogs are scooped from the trench and placed in a tank of water charged with electricity. This kills the frogs, straightens out their legs and makes amputation easy. If a freak farm pays it pays well.

Wheat farmers who have stuck obstinately to the crop get little sympathy from the Breeders' Gazette. In a recent issue it said:

"The price of wheat is the subject of widespread discussion. It is working its way into politics for political purposes. It has recently accomplished political results in Minnesota. Less than 7 percent of the value of farm crops and live stock last year was represented by the American wheat crop. That percentage had seldom been higher than seven. The existing furor over the price of cereal, however, has apparently led some uninformed or misinformed business men and others to believe that the financial stability and future of this country are dependent upon the price which farmers obtain for wheat. Where wheat is the one and practically only cash crop grown—as it is in large areas in the Northwest and West—specialized wheat farmers have been for several years and still are in dire straits, many of them being desperate and insolvent. Their unfortunate predicament cannot be charged altogether, to a demoralized wheat market following the class of the war; it is clearly attributable, in part, to the unsound, unsafe and always speculative kind of farming in which they are engaged on impoverished soils in regions handicapped by an unfavorable climate.

"The man who makes wheat his chief, if not his only cash crop, whether in the wheatbelt or elsewhere, is a gambler. He is sure to 'lose' much oftener and much more than he 'wins.' America can never be made safe for the one-crop farmer. He will always be 'in hot water,'—and in politics. His extremity will always be the political demagogue's opportunity to be elected to an office.

"Farmers who are most concerned about the price of wheat constitute but a small percentage of the total number of farmers in this country. Many men who practice diversified farming grow wheat every year, and, of course, are desirous of securing a profitable price for it, but they grow other crops and raise and feed live stock, so that 'if they lose on wheat,' or fail to make a whelming majority of American land owners are neither specialists nor wheat farmers. All classes of farmers have been affected by the agricultural depression, but the specialist or one-crop class have been hit the hardest, and was the least able to survive the shock. The rest—and particularly the stock farmers who grow more kinds of crops than any other class—are slowly 'getting on their feet.' So money on it, they have marketable 'eggs' in other baskets, and consequently can remain in business without the aid of political miracle performers. Specialized wheat farmers may be bent broken, or 'busted,' but the overlong as mixed farming, with its foundation based upon improved live stock, continues to increase, as it has been rapidly increasing in recent years, American agriculture cannot be 'ruined' by low prices for wheat."
