SAVING MONEY

Through Force of Habit---

We all find it hard to save money until we have "developed the habit." Everyone knows that if we do a thing once or twice it becomes a habit—we do it unconsciously.

The habit of saving money is not hard to acquire, as thousands of successful men and women will testify, but there must be a desire to get the habit.

Better than a gift of money is the gift of making money. A large part of that is the habit of saving, because it provides capital with which to work.

START NOW, and "develop the habit" of saving money—Save a definite amount each week, but START NOW.

PUBLIC SALE OF FINE

DAIRY COWS

TO BE HELD IN KENDRICK

Saturday, Dec. 22

SALE BEGINS 10 O'CLOCK

After considerable time spent I have secured a consignment of real cows and heifers from the following farmers of the Willamette Valley: E. B. McKinney, H. Mchugh, Ed Derry, R. O. Applegate and A. Fillpott. I will sell them at Public Auction without reserve.

22 Head Consisting of

7 Holsteins, fresh and springers; 14 Jerseys, fresh and springers; 1 Guernsey due March 3; also 1 registered bull calf with a wonderful record behind him; also registered Jersey bull 2 1-2 years old from U. of I. herd, with papers.

This will be the last car of cows I can get as they are scarce property. With milk at $3.00 a hundred and butter fat at 51 cents the farmer can't afford to sell his grain and hay. By this method you pay your bills monthly and have an income all the time.

Both the Farmers Bank and the Kendrick State Bank will extend time to their customers to buy these cows. See your banker before the sale.

These cattle will arrive in Kendrick on Wednesday 19th and the barns are open to prospective buyers. Terms are cash so make arrangements with your banker before the sale.

Iowa Testing Law Aids Fight on Tuberculosis
One of the most encouraging factors in the fight against cattle tuberculosis, according to those in charge of the eradication work for the United States Department of Agriculture, is the activity of state legislatures in passing laws to facilitate the widespread testing of cattle in specified areas, a branch of the work which in the last few years has become of greater importance than the testing of individual herds at random. A state law which contains many points of excellence is that passed last spring by the Iowa legislature.

Briefly, this Iowa law provides that on petition of 51 per cent of the owners of breeding cattle in a county, the livestock sanitary authority of the state must proceed to eradicate tuberculosis from the county as provided in the law. Or the same result may be accomplished in another way: Upon petition of 15 per cent of the voters a proposal to eradicate the disease must be submitted at the next general election to levy a 3-mill tax upon all property to help supply funds for the purpose, these funds, together with those from the state and federal governments, to be used largely for paying for animals slaughtered. When 75 per cent of the owners of breeding cattle petition for county testing, all of the herds in the county must be tested and a fine and jail sentence are provided as penalty for those who refuse to submit their animals to the test.

In case the county 3-mill levy and the state and federal funds are insufficient to pay indemnities, the law provides for a tax of 25 cents a head on all cattle and 5 cents a head on all hogs in the county.

University Farm Tests Rations for Baby Beef

About two hundred Minnesota cattle raisers at University farm recently had an opportunity to see six lots of pure bred Shorthorn steer calves, ten calves to each lot, which had been fed different rations for 217 days. They were also given the records in gains made by the various lots of calves. Farmers everywhere will be interested in the results of the experiments. The rations fed were as follows:

Lot 1—Shelled corn, 60 per cent; whole oats, 20 per cent; linseed oil meal, 10 per cent; corn silage and clover hay.

Lot 2—Ground shelled corn, 60 per cent; ground oats, 20 per cent; linseed oil meal, 10 per cent; corn silage and clover hay.

Lot 3—Limited grain ration for the first half of the feeding period, corn silage and clover hay.

Lot 4—Ground ear corn, 90 per cent; linseed oil meal, 10 per cent; corn silage and clover hay.
Lot 5—Ground shelled corn, 66 2-3 per cent; ground oats, 33 1-3 per cent; corn silage and clover hay. (No protein supplement.)

Lot 6—Ground shelled corn, 66 2-3 per cent; ground oats, 33 1-3 per cent; clover hay. (No silage and no protein supplement.)

Crediting at $6.30 per hundred the gains on hogs which were kept in the lots with cattle, the profits shown by the feeding experiment were: Lot 1, $18.92 per head; lot 2, $15.97; lot 3, $5.69; lot 4, $13.30; lot 5, $13.61; lot 6, $13.10.

No Difference Between Lard and Bacon Types

Little difference between lard and bacon types of swine was noted in a test recently conducted at the Manitoba Agricultural college in Canada in which Poland Chinas and Yorkshires were compared as to gains and production costs. Pigs of each breed were fed a ration of equal parts of barley, oats and shorts for a period of 140 days. Corn was substituted for barley during part of the test.

The Poland Chinas made 100 pounds of gain on 415 pounds of feed and the Yorkshires made 100 pounds on 426 pounds of feed. On the Canadian market, which pays a premium for choice bacon hogs, the Yorkshires sold for $9.90 per hundred pounds and the Poland Chinas brought $9.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

Trucking and hauling about of feeds is not required by a silo.

Scrubs can multiply just as fast as pure breeds, but they never get the right answer.

It is a good plan to place oil in a hog oiler so that the animals may grease themselves.

The first few weeks after weaning is a critical time in a pig's life. Proper care and management will mean profit.

The age at which to wean depends upon the size and vigor of the pigs, and the feeds and their amounts available.

Hogs have their ups and downs like everything else. Don't be discouraged because hogs happen to be low. They will come back as sure as fate—and possibly sooner than you think.

Ropiness in Milk Caused by Growth of Bacteria

A roppy or slimy condition of milk, sometimes noticeable after the milk has stood several hours, is caused by the growth of a certain class of bacteria which gain entrance after the milk is drawn.

Though probably not more injurious than ordinary sour milk, this condition is especially troublesome, as the bacteria are passed along through vessels and otherwise to other milk and even to the dairies of an entire community.

The remedy is thorough washing and sterilizing of everything that in any way comes in contact with the milk. Chlorinated lime, or bleaching powder, at the rate of 12 or 16 ounces to the 100 gallons of water is recommended by the dairy department of the Ohio experiment station as a safe and effective disinfectant.

A Timely Suggestion
This is the season of the year when the prudent and careful housewife replenishes her supply of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is almost certain to be needed before the winter is over and results are much more prompt and satisfactory when it is kept at hand and given as soon as the first indication of a cold appears and before it has become settled in the system. There is no danger in giving it to children as it contains no opium or other harmful drug.

When "Old Kris" Does the Job

Presents Were at the Wrong Door

By CHRISTOPHER G. HAZARD

Postman's Mistake Resulted in a Happy Christmas for the Peters Families. WHO can tell what is on the other side of a door? This one fronted on a pleasant street and seemed to invite one into a happy home. Its plate said that P. Peters lived there, and the door mat said "Welcome." But Mrs. Peters and the children would have been rather dismayed that winter day had visitors rung the door bell, for things were not quite all right with the Peters family. The cuckoo, from his perch in the clock, announced the hours with his customary cheerfulness and polite how, but failed to dissipate the atmosphere of gloom that seemed to fill the house like a fog. The voice in the kitchen, ordinarily of a jolly character, had sunk into a minor key and sent out a sort of S. O. S. message in the words of the old song:

"Moon run down to de settin' ob de sun And de sun refuse to shine."

The sunset in the Peters' home had been caused by the cutting off of their supply train. Three months had passed without word or remittance from the head of the family. This added the perils of poverty to the pains of absence and made the Christmas outlook decidedly shady. Young Peters added to his mother's anxiety by remarking that his dad's business trip must have been hit by a submarine or something, while his sister intensified the situation by wondering aloud if they would ever see him again.

Both of these auguries, so unsuited to Christmas Eve, were interrupted, however, by the arrival of the parcel postman and the deposit of an immense and promising package, bearing in large letters a direction to Mrs. P. Peters. With no clue as to the sender the family naturally concluded the various and valuable assortment that was revealed to investigation to be an evidence of fatherly consideration and the advance agent of the returning traveler. Joy came out with all the other things, and cheer took the place of chagrin.

Farther up the street and behind a door bearing the name of Paul Peters there was another household that was not as sunny as it should have been. A letter had come—a bundle had failed to come. The letter a program of delight, the bundle a disappointment. Uncle Joshua had known their wants by a marvelous instinct, but where was the bundle? Alas! the other things were as nothing for the lack of it and Christmas morning dawned upon discontent.

But before the morning had quite disappeared Fred came rushing in with the news that he had seen that Peters boy in the next block with a sled bearing the same name as the one mentioned by Uncle Joshua. "I didn't know there was a Peters boy in the next block," said his mother; "I'll go down and see if they can tell us anything about our bundle."

They could, and the mystery was very easily solved by the explanation of the postman at the wrong door, making a very pardonable mistake. An explanation that led indeed to a redistribution of gifts and also to a discovery of relationships, for the Peters' families found each other out, as less than a block apart in family ties and friendliness. A discovery that was the very best Christmas gift that they could have had and which led them to think that the wrong door was all right after all.

It proved a way out for the P. Peterses and a way in for the Paul Peterses until Pa Peters of the first part put in an appearance through it in time for New Year's with such an account of himself and his adventures as proved highly satisfactory to all the combined hopes and plans of all the Peterses.

Good Cows Will Always Pay Biggest Dividend

Just because a poor milk-producing cow pays you a return, do not conclude that scrubs pay. This is an unusually productive year for dairy cows, and with cheap feed you should make money on any sort of animal. Good cows will pay you a still greater return.

Watch Cream Separator to Conserve Butterfat

Many farmers are losing considerable butterfat because their separators fall to skim clean, say dairy experts at Iowa State college. Reports received from over the state show that skim milk often has from one-sixth to one-fourth per cent fat in it. This could be saved by adjusting the cream screw on the separator. Cream that tests high will keep longer and grade higher than that which contains considerable skim milk.

How Not to Take Cold

Some persons are subject to frequent colds, while others seldom, if ever, have a cold. You will find that the latter take good care of themselves. They take a shower or cold sponge bath every day in a warm room, avoid over heated rooms, sleep with a window open or partly open, avoid excesses, over eating, booming over heated and then chilled and getting the feet wet. Then, when they feel the first indication of a cold, they take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy without delay and it is soon over.

Energetic Fowls Found to Be Best Egg Layers

"The fowl that lays during the winter is the one that lays best during the summer months," says Annabelle Campbell, poultry specialist in the office of extension work with women, Minnesota university. "The fowl that lays best under adverse conditions is the one that also, after a short rest, produces during the winter, rests for a short time and then comes into laying in the spring and continues laying during the summer months until fall. The best fowls in the flock are those that require the least amount of rest."

Grooming Work Horses Will Improve Condition

The old proverb, "Grooming is half the feeding," as applied to the farm work horses, still holds true in every sense of the word. The sweat glands of the horse eliminate in 24 hours an amount of waste material nearly equal to that excreted from the digestive tract. If these glands become clogged by sweat particles and dirt, a very important waste channel is closed and the neglect of thorough grooming is bound to show up somewhere.

Production of Turkeys Decreasing Every Year

The production of turkeys seems to decrease yearly. Perhaps this is due to the increase in the production of capons. Certain it is that capons are much easier to raise, and there are many people who will tell you that they like capon meat better than that of the turkey. Little has ever been done in the way of raising turkeys in confinement. When it has been tried the results have been discouraging. Capons, on the other hand, can be raised successfully in this manner.

71,000 Owners

MANY people believe that the railroads of this country are owned by a few wealthy individuals. This is not true.

A railroad more than any other kind of business represents a multitude of owners. For example, 71,000 different individuals and corporations own Northern Pacific securities.

The outstanding bonds, amounting to $321,466,500, are distributed among 33,000 owners, an average of $9,741 for each.

There are 38,000 different holders of stock representing total par value $248,000,000, the average holding being 65 shares, worth at present market price less than $4,000.

20,612 individuals hold from 1 to 19 shares.

Chamberlain's Tablets Have Done
Her a World of Good.

"Chamberlain's Tablets have done me a world of good," writes Mrs. Ella L. Button, Kirksville, N. Y. "I have recommended them to a number of my friends and all who have used them praise them highly." When troubled with indigestion or constipation, give them a trial and realize for yourself what an excellent medicine it is.
