A Merry Christmas To All

Could Improve Our Town

After a field trip and a general observation of Kendrick the class in Civic Biology drew the conclusion that there are a number of ways in which the town could be improved.

Our town has many old buildings, vacant lots that are not well kept and have grown up to weeds, tumbled down fences, unmowed and unraked yards and alleys lined with "junk." The buildings are either unpainted or need paint, and yards that have no flowers or a green lawn to "set off" the pretty houses and the streets are covered with different kinds of trash.

Why not improve our town and make it a still more desirable place in which to live? We will suggest a few of the things that the citizens of Kendrick might do to improve our town.

For instance the old buildings should be torn down or destroyed. They do not help the appearance of our town at all. In fact old dilapidated buildings mar the good impression of strangers who judge our town critically.

The vacant lots also need special attention. The owner of these should have some one clean out all the weeds and garbage. Then on the following year we suggest the ground should be used for a garden or some other useful purpose. This would be more attractive and economical. The fences around these should be kept in repair and be more uniform.

It is not expensive to have and keep a good lawn and flowers, only a little care is necessary. Flowers help to create a love of a home and country. Why not have some? It does not do very much good to have a pretty lawn unless the back yard is clean and the house is well painted. We would advise that regularly a date should be set aside for a general clean up day for everyone.

Do you know your house will last much longer if it is painted often? Its appearance is better and therefore it would be for your own benefit that you paint it and fix it up. Do it now!

We cannot expect our town to advance if the alleys are filled with refuse and garbage. They must be clean. Trash is not alone unattractive but detrimental to the lives of the people.

The alleys should be kept as clean as a main street. Few people realize the appearance that our back yards and alleys give to strangers passing thru on the train because they must judge our town by the appearance of the littered alleys and back yards—will it stand a stranger's censure? The alleys of our town are in very poor condition and are used as a place to store garbage. They also are too narrow and dark which causes them to be muddy a greater percentage of the time. In the alleys behind some of the stores there are piles of ashes and cans that should be cleaned. The alleys could be greatly improved if a layer of gravel was placed on them and they should also be widened.

We think improvements could be made if the park was used more as a recreational center. By this we suggest swings and teeters for the children—also make it a place where farmers who came to shop in our town may stop and lunch in the coolness of the shade in the summer time. Make this old town a place for pleasure as well as business, this will bring more people into Kendrick and you will find your business increasing and improving. The trees in the park look bare and desolate in the winter. This could be remedied by the planting of evergreen trees. Also the trees that are dead should be replaced.

The streets are in good condition if kept clean and sanitary. If garbage cans were placed on the corner of each block, it would help to improve the sanitary conditions of our town.

The public welfare is always a matter to be regarded seriously and when it can be accomplished there should be an increased effort toward the promotion of the same. Now let every citizen of Kendrick get to work. Co-operation is what we need, you all know that one cannot do much, but if we all try Kendrick will be an ideal place in which to live. If each does his part "day by day in every way Kendrick will grow better and better."

This paper was written after taking an observation and field trip by the Civic Biology class and revised by the following committee: Edna Jones—Chairman, Beryl Harrison, Clarice Leith, Allie Moore, Harley Perryman, Daniel A. McClain, Instructor.

Mrs. G. G. Oldfield was a Pullman visitor Wednesday afternoon.

W. M. Buchanan

W. M. Buchanan, a pioneer of Juliaetta, passed away on Tuesday at Spokane, where he went for medical care. He was 55 years of age and is survived by his wife and two daughters, Mrs. Morgan, of Juliaetta, and Mrs. Moe of Spokane. Mr. Buchanan had been an Odd Fellow for more than 25 years and a Woodman of the World for about ten years. He had been a faithful member of the Baptist church for years and superintendent of the Sunday school at Juliaetta.

The body was taken to Moscow for burial and the funeral held Thursday afternoon at one o'clock from the Short chapel. Rev. Segsworth of Juliaetta, conducted the services.

Kendrick 47, Troy 20

The local high school boys won an easy victory from the Troy high school team last Friday night at Troy, by a score of 47 to 20. It was a better game than the score would indicate as a number of fast plays were made by both teams. Troy has some good individual players but the superior team work of the Kendrick boys was too much for them.

A return game will be played here Saturday (tomorrow) night, when Troy will endeavor to retrieve her fallen fortunes.

Dairy, Cattle Arrive

The carload of dairy cattle arrived from Oregon Wednesday on schedule time. They will be sold at public auction Saturday morning, beginning at 10 o'clock. The shipment consists of 22 head of which 7 are Holsteins, 14 Jerseys and 1 Guernsey. Two registered bulls will also be sold at this sale.

The sale will be in charge of Harry Cranke, who states that this will be the last carload shipped here this winter.

Oldfields Will Leave

The G. G. Oldfield family will move to Pullman the first of the year to make their home. Mr. Oldfield has accepted a very good position there, one that he couldn't afford to turn down. The many friends of the Oldfield family will regret to learn of their contemplated departure.

Lyceum Pleased

The second number of the lyceum course, Leake's Orchestra, held at the New Kendrick theatre last Saturday evening, was one of the best musical entertainments given in Kendrick in recent years. A more versatile group of musicians has seldom if ever before appeared here. The audience was not large but the numbers were much appreciated.

Road Boosters Meet Again

At the mass meeting on Cedar Creek ridge last Saturday, held for the purpose of discussing the new road project, sentiment was apparently in favor of putting over the project in the best manner possible. It was the consensus of opinion that by increasing the grade from 5 to 6 percent in a few places, several heavy fills could be eliminated and that by making the grade narrower along some of the heavy rock cuts a saving might be made. These few changes in the former plan would not materially injure the standard of the road.

Another meeting will be held tomorrow (Saturday) when it is thought definite action will be taken.

Had Good Shooting Match

The shooting match here Tuesday under the management of Roberts & Manly proved to be an interesting event. There were a number of exceedingly good shots at the match and good targets were the result. Henry Peters of Cameron had to drop out early in the game as he got his limit of three birds in short order. He is a crack shot and if allowed to shoot all day would have had most of the turkeys.

Norla Catlison and Percy Ware each shot three times and got a turkey every time, which was the record for the day. The match was held in the town park and was well attended.

Death of Judge Scales

Judge Wallace N. Scales passed away at Portland Sunday night at 8 o'clock, death resulting from a form of chronic heart disease. He and Mrs. Scales went to Portland last fall where he had since been under the care of a specialist, but recently little hope was held out for his recovery.

Judge Scales came to Idaho county 30 years ago and until elevated to the bench of the district court for the tenth judicial district, his home was in Grangeville. His practice and his acquaintance extended throughout the central Idaho region and his pleasant manners and personality won for him the love and high esteem of all who knew him.

Masons Elect Officers

The local Masons elected officers last Thursday night as follows: M. B. McConnell, Worshipful Master; R. D. Newton, Senior Warden; Lester Crocker, Junior Warden; M. O. Raby, Treasurer; E. T. Long, Secretary. The appointive officers were as follows: George Davidson, Senior Deacon; Frank Housel, Junior Deacon; C. S. Biddison and N. M. Talbott, Stewards; H. P. Hull, Chaplain; J. C. Hamil, Marshal; N. Brocke, Tyler.

They tell of a young married artist in Washington Square who has a predilection for talking in his sleep. Several times recently he mentioned the name of "Irene," and his spouse questioned him about it.

"Oh, that," said he, thinking fast, "is the name of a horse." Several days later when he came home he asked his wife the news of the day. "Nothing exciting happened," she said, "except your horse called you up twice."

Mrs. Sarah J. Hartinger

Mrs. Sarah J. Hartinger, better known in this locality as Grandma Hartinger died at the home of her grandson, Wesley, near Leland, Sunday night, December 16, after a brief illness. Funeral services were held Tuesday morning at the Methodist church at Leland, Rev. Kelley having charge of the service. Burial was made in the Cameron cemetery.

Sarah J. Woodward was born in Jackson County, Ohio, May 17, 1832. She was married to Peter Hartinger and in 1868 moved to Boise, Idaho, where she resided 2 years and then located on Potlatch ridge, which has since been her home. She was one of the first 12 settlers of the Potlatch ridge country.

Over a year ago she bought property in Kendrick and lived here one winter, afterward returning to the home of her grandson near Leland.

Mrs. Hartinger was the mother of four children, two of them dying in infancy. The other two, John and Will, both died a number of years ago. She is survived by three grandchildren: Mrs. K. G. Reeder of Spokane; Wesley of Leland and Arthur of Colfax, Wash.

Harland-Gladen

Deary Press: Otto H. Gladen, well known here as an energetic and estimable young man, and Miss Grace Harland, of Troy, were married in Spokane last Friday and will make their home in Coeur d'Alene, where the groom is employed in a confectionery store. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Manford Harland, pioneers of American Ridge, and is a popular and accomplished young lady. Mr. Gladen is the youngest son of Mrs. Emma Gladen of Deary. He is a veteran of the World War, having served in the U. S. Navy. The Press joins with hosts of friends in wishing the happy couple a long and happy matrimonial voyage.

Popular Young Lady Contest

The popular lady contest which has been going on at the New Kendrick Theater will end tomorrow night. There has been considerable interest aroused over the result as the two highest have but a few votes difference. The result of the contest will be announced at the theater tomorrow night after the three judges have canvassed the ballot.

Crescent Clippings

Mrs. James Kyle went to Spokane, Monday and returned Wednesday.

Considerable work has been done on the telephone line running from Crescent to Southwick, lately. We are assured by Lineman Frank Meyers of better service. A telephone meeting is to be held at the Golden Rule school house, Saturday morning at which, among other questions, the connecting with the six-o line out of Kendrick will be discussed.

Herman Long is home for the holidays.

Mrs. Ida Carey, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Souders and small son, are visiting at the Frank Souders, Sr., home.

One of the best movies yet was enjoyed by a large crowd at the Crescent school house last Saturday evening. The serial "Timber Queen" is proving quite an attraction.

Mrs. Wm. Kauder made a short stay at home, but took Mr. Kauder back to Southwick, Tuesday, for an indefinite stay.

Xmas will soon be here. Father and son wonder what they'll get. Why not something in the smoking line, so they can enjoy the long winter evenings.

How Not to Take Cold

Some persons are subject to frequent colds, while others seldom, if ever, have a cold. You will find that the latter take good care of themselves. They take a shower or cold sponge bath every day in a warm room, avoid over heated rooms, sleep with a window open or partly open, avoid excesses, over bathing, becoming over heated and then chilled and getting the feet wet. Then, when they feel the first indication of a cold, they take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy without delay and it is soon over.

Calves to Develop Well Must Have Sanitary Pens

If calves are to remain healthy and develop perfectly they must not only be correctly fed but must have sanitary quarters when in the stable. Recent investigations have shown that lack of sunlight is a powerful contributory cause of rickets in all young animals. Direct sunshine kills germs and, therefore, lessens the liability to scours and other calfhood ailments. Calf pens are too often dark, damp, dirty and badly ventilated. Foul bedding is even more common and is equally detrimental.

Dairyman Should Know Every Cow in His Herd

No dairy cow has ever produced her maximum unless her feeder knew her. Knowing her means more than simply calling her by name and reciting the names of her ancestors. It means understanding her every need, desire and condition. By means of a pair of scales, a Babcock testing outfit and a little work, every dairyman could know what each cow in his herd produces, and thus have a sound basis on which to feed and judge the individual merits of each cow in his herd.

Happy With Her Christmas Gifts

By ELEANOR KING

Young Singer's Yuletide Songs Assured Her of Training for Opera

"HELLO, Esther, beat me home tonight."

"Yes, by ten minutes. My, but some folks are slow," she said laughingly. "Where have you been, Mary?"

"It's a rather long story," replied Mary, as she removed her wraps, hanging them in the one and only little clothes closet the boarding house room afforded. This was already filled to the bursting point, needless to add.

"Do you remember my speaking of a Miss Young?"

Esther nodded in assent. "I met her when I was a stenographer at the settlement house, you know. She tells me she is still in that work. I think it so queer that I should meet her like this after our conversation last night. Now, Miss Esther, I am coming to the point: You recollect saying that you were so blue because it was almost Christmas and you had no home to go to, no money to give to make some one happy, and you couldn't go to see George because you hadn't the railroad fare! Well—and Mary paused for breath—"now, here is your chance to show how much you meant all this. Mrs. Young was telling me her troubles."

"Oh, Mary, how awful!" and Esther burst out laughing as she threw her arms about Mary and gave her a hug. "You old dear!"

"She said," proceeded Mary, as though nothing had happened, "she was giving a big entertainment for her settlement folks—Christmas eve. She was having a hard time getting artists. It seems that there are so many of these things going on that there aren't artists enough to supply the demand. Now you know."

"Yes, she wants me to sing, I suppose, but I am horribly out of practice. I—"

"Oh, hush! I never knew it to fall. That is what they all start out with. I took the liberty to tell her you would be glad to do it, so—"

"I surely will do my best. I will begin to practice this very night. I will see Mrs. Young tomorrow about the songs she wants me to sing. Do you suppose George would come down to hear me sing, and then maybe stay over for Christmas?"

It was the night of the entertainment and the girls were putting the finishing touches to their dressing when

Esther suddenly broke the silence. "I think it is so queer that I didn't receive any answer from George. He might at least have told me he couldn't come."

Everything was excitement and noise in the large hall of the settlement house, where people of all nationalities were crowding in. The program began at the hour stated. Before long Esther heard her name announced and stepped onto the platform with her pianist.

Gazing at the audience, while she awaited the pianist, her wandering glance fell upon a familiar face. It could not be, but yet, in recognition, he smiled. It was George!

"The old dear," and then, in the same breath, she murmured, "Oh, God, I thank thee for the power of breath, the desire to live with which you have invested me, and, dear Lord, for George!"

She threw back her head with an exalted air. George was going to hear her sing. She must do more than her best.

Never did she sing with such spirit and vigor. She seemed truly inspired. Her cup of joy was full. The burst of applause which met her ears showed the thorough appreciation of her audience for her efforts.

She couldn't get to George fast enough after the entertainment. Meeting, they both seemed perfectly oblivious of the crowds about them as he gathered her in his arms.

"Esther, you were simply divine. Your voice was wonderful. I never heard you sing like that before." Some one tapped him on the arm. It was Mary.

"Dut, George," said Esther, wriggling out of his grasp, realizing that they were creating quite a scene. "Why didn't you tell me you were coming?"

"Didn't you get my telegram with all the good news in it? Well, listen, then," George said, excitedly. "I brought my boss along. He has heard so much about your voice—Mr. Williamson, meet Miss Esther Hislop and her friend, Miss Mary Rorer, Mr. Williamson. He is very interested in your voice—in fact, he has a proposition to put before you."

Esther slipped her arm about Mary and put her other arm through George's. She needed support.

"My idea was this," began Mr. Williamson, "for me to send you to New York for training for a year or so; being near my place of business, you could report often as to your progress."

"And I will be near George, too," thought Esther. But, aloud, she said, "I will have to take Mary. She is my inspiration always. I couldn't do without her."

"Then," proceeded Mr. Williamson, "I want to send you abroad and finish you off as an opera singer."

Meat From Dairy Herd.

Bulls that are no longer desired in the herd for various reasons make up a part of the meat from dairy cattle. They are seldom suitable for dressed beef.

Increase of Butterfat Is Not Made by Feeding

According to experimental work that has been done, the percentage of fat in milk cannot be increased by feeding. The milk of each individual cow seems to have a fixed composition that is natural to her. True, the richness of the milk may be increased or decreased for a short time if the cow's digestive system is disturbed by sickness or improper feeding, but will return to the normal test in a short time. The quantity of milk may easily vary with feeding, consequently the total pounds of butterfat would be increased without a variation in the test. By having a cow in high flesh at the time of freshening, the test may be raised for a time, the supposition being that the body fat is drawn upon, but it only lasts for a short time, when the test returns to the point peculiar to the individual.

PERRYMAN'S CONFECTIONERY

"Shall I dance for you?" asked the Snow Fairy politely.

"Oh, yes!" beseeched the children.

Up jumped the white little person, and in the twinkling of an eye she had begun. The children never saw such dancing in their lives. Never!

The Snow Fairy prouetted on top of the clock; she whirled like a crystal prism. She jumped down and made a low bow to a china shepherdess, and then the shepherdess threw away her crook and danced with the fairy. Away they went, whirling and hobbling and turning and dipping. They jumped over vases; they peeked out behind pictures, they fairly flew through the air until you could not tell which was the Snow Fairy and which the china shepherdess.

Jerry and Sally clapped their hands and laughed until they could laugh no longer. They forgot all about parties and new slippers and making snow-men.

Then the strangest thing happened. They could not see the Snow Fairy at all. She wasn't there, and if you'll believe me, the china shepherdess was standing stiffly in her old spot as though she'd never had a thought of moving in her life.

"Dear me!" said Sally rubbing her eyes.

"Dear me!" said Jerry, rubbing his. Mother came in soon after that. She stood smiling down upon them.

"Both you children were sound asleep on your stools when I was in here before. Do come and have something good to eat. I have a little party all ready for you."

And Sally and Jerry never said a word about the Snow Fairy. But they were as cheerful as cherubs the rest of the day.

Likeness of the Dearest Woman in the World, a Christmas Gift to Lonesome Son

IT WAS the first year he had ever been away from home and he was a full-grown man. Other years he had been near enough to go back home for Christmas; but now his work had sent him across the continent and he couldn't possibly manage the trip.

He had some excellent new friends and he was going to have Christmas dinner with them. And the family from home had sent a beautiful Christmas box—every member of the family had sent a present.

It had been tied with holly and red ribbon and he had opened it Christmas Eve.

But now it was Christmas morning and he was just a little bit homesick.

Yes, just a little bit—perhaps it was more than a little bit!

And then came the postman's ring. He had received all his presents, cards, too, from his friends at home who would not send presents, but who had remembered him.

Yes, he had been very fortunate. The homesickness he felt was only natural. And then he opened the small package which the postman's ring had brought to him.

It was a photograph of his mother, and it arrived on Christmas day.

And under it was a little note, just a few words of love and devotion and a Christmas greeting.

He felt better already! For, even though there must at times be separations, he had so wonderful a home and mother that even though they were apart actually their thoughts and spirits were as close together as though they were not separated.

It was an excellent photograph of his mother, too. What a perfect Christmas morning gift!

To Produce Winter Eggs Give Pullets Good Care

"Finishing the pullets" means getting the young stock in a condition which will allow them to go through the winter in good health, produce a good number of eggs and develop a resistance against disease, says W. H. Allen, extension poultry specialist, New Jersey agricultural experiment station.

The pullet is allowed to reach its maximum growth before it is permitted to lay eggs. In Leghorns this will occur when they are about five months old, and with the dual purpose breeds, such as Rhode Island Red and Plymouth Rock, it will take at least a month longer. The lighter breeds, such as the Leghorns, should weigh at least three pounds at time of conditioning, and the heavier breeds, like the Rhode Island Red, should weigh from four to four and a half pounds.

The ration used in conditioning a flock consists largely of fattening foods, such as corn, wheat, oats and their by-products, with as little animal protein as possible. A good scratch feed consists of equal parts of cracked corn and wheat. This is fed twice a day, approximately six to eight pounds per 100 birds at each feeding.

A good mash for this period is two parts of wheat bran, two parts of corn meal, two parts of ground oats, two parts of nour middlings, and one part of meat scrap. This mash is kept before the pullets at all times. One hundred growing pullets eat five to ten pounds of it a day.

The conditioning period takes approximately a month, two weeks on the range and two weeks in the laying quarters. As soon as the pullets show signs of laying on the range, they are housed, and the same feed continued for two weeks before changing to a laying ration.

When the pullets are housed they need just as much green feed and exercise as if still on the range.

Oyster shells are kept where the birds can always get them.

Find Sulphur Practical Remedy for Poultry Ills

The argument of some poultrymen that sulphur is harmful to fowls in wet weather is declared by N. W. Sanborn, poultry specialist of the Florida college of agriculture, to be a mistaken idea. In fact, the birds that have been given sulphur in their feed for some time are better able to stand long wet periods than they otherwise would be.

The primary purpose for which sulphur is recommended is to modify the attacks of sorehead, according to Dr. Sanborn. Sorehead—a disease of poultry that is similar to measles which affect children, in that it never attacks the same bird more than once—is considered one of the very worst troubles with which the Florida poultryman has to contend. Some states, after conducting experimental tests with a number of remedies, have advocated the inoculation of the poultry with a serum. However, Florida has never conducted any such tests, but its specialists have learned that sulphur is a practical remedy.

Dr. Sanborn recommends that the sulphur equal 1 per cent of the mash, with which it should be mixed. It is particularly recommended for growing chickens, serving not only to modify the disease but also as a food. The sorehead attacks are only mild when sulphur is fed because the chicken's body and system are kept in a strong, healthy condition.

Provides "Pasture" for Fleas.

The United States Department of Agriculture maintains laboratories on a farm near Washington where dogs are kept to provide "pasture" for fleas; chickens infested with lice and mites provide means for testing various powders and dips; cockroaches are raised in large numbers; bedbugs are grown on guinea pigs and rats and now the public supplies insects in abundance when the department makes known what it wants in the line of experimental material.

The Snow Fairy

By Martha B. Thomas

DON'T suppose two noses were ever pressed more forlornly against a window-glass than those belonging to Jerry and Sally. If you were to look at them from the outside, in their front yard, for instance, they would not seem like noses at all; you would say that Jerry and Sally had small, white pears on their faces, and pretty squashed pears at that! This is what a window-glass does to two children who have the whooping cough and are standing as closely as possible against the nearest thing to getting out—a window.

Jerry dug his fists down into his pockets and looked as cross as a bear. Sally blinked very fast to keep the tears from rolling down her cheeks, and her two pigtalls quivered unhappily.

"We'll miss the party and the games and the goodies . . . and everything!" she wailed.

"I don't care about the old party!" declared Jerry scornfully. "What I want is to get out and make a snow-man. Look at all this perfectly good snow going to waste! I call it a shame!" And you would have thought by his tone that all blizzards were invented for the express purpose of giving little boys the opportunity of playing in it.

"Mary Randall's going to wear her new pink dress and her slippers!" sniffed Sally, "and I have a red dress and new slippers to-o-o!" This last thought was almost too much, and one large tear did manage to tumble over and down her cheek." Jerry pretended not to see it. Perhaps he was having trouble with his own eyes, though of course boys never cry, not even when tomorrow's Christmas and everything is spoiled because of whooping cough. "Mother said we should have to have a party by ourselves and make believe that lots of people came to it," said Sally.

Jerry grunted. He didn't care much for this make-believe stuff—too sissified. "Let's sit down in front of the open fire," suggested Sally, "and tell stories. I'm tired of looking out of the window. Perhaps something nice will happen; who can tell?"

So the two children settled themselves in front of the fire. They drew up two low stools and they each sat with their elbows on their knees and their chins in their hands. It was very warm and cosy. The logs crackled and sputtered as though they were doing their best to cheer other people up, and the dancing flames had a regular parade up and down the wood. It was late afternoon and growing a little dark.

Suddenly Sally's pigtalls stuck out straight behind her in surprise.

"What's that?" she whispered, and her eyes were big as saucers.

"Where?" asked Jerry, a little startled too.

"I saw something white flit in at the door!"

"So did I."

The children looked cautiously around. Nothing was to be seen.

Just an ordinary room, a bright fire and two children in front of it.

"Punny—" mused Sally.

There was the faintest rustle by the clock on the mantel. It sounded like snowflakes talking together.

"There! I heard something again!" said Sally.

Both children stared at the clock, for that was where the sound came from.

It was quite dark by this time, except for the light from the logs, so it was natural that Jerry and Sally did not do that with a Snow Fairy; she'd melt all to pieces in your fingers, and then where would you be?

"I have come to pay you a little call," laughed the fairy, "because I like to talk with children who are ill and can't go out. I just came from a house down the street where a baby is cutting a tooth. Such a cunning baby! I played hide and seek under its chin, and you should have heard him gurgle! He forgot all about that tooth that was making so much fuss about coming through. I left him kicking up his heels and crowing like a young rooster."

Away They Went.

Sally and Jerry laughed.

Your Last Chance, Tonight And Tomorrow

Are the last nights of the Popularity Contest at the New Kendrick Theater. The Gold Wrist Watch will be awarded to the young lady having the largest number of votes after the show tomorrow night. The contest is very interesting now as there is only 70 votes difference between the leaders in the contest. There are some 15,000 votes outstanding which will undoubtedly be cast tomorrow night. Who will they be cast for? It is impossible to even guess who will win, as it will be so close.

if you want a seat. It is expected there will be a large crowd there tomorrow night.

"Where the New Things Are Newest"

New Publication Gives Practical Information

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
The raising of dairy calves, beginning with the cow before the calf is born and carrying the young stock along to two years of age, is the subject of a recent Farmers' Bulletin, No. 1336, Feeding and Management of Dairy Calves and Young Dairy Stock, now ready for distribution by the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington D. C.

The new bulletin is full of practical information covering all the essentials in the production of good dairy animals for breeding and milk production. It includes chapters on feeding before birth, weaning the calf, teaching to drink, cleanliness, pasteurization of milk for feeding, quantity and quality of milk fed, frequency of feeding, roughage for calves, grain feed, milk substitutes, quarters, stanchions, prevention of horns, water and salt, marking calves for identification, diseases, and several chapters on the feeding and management of young stock beyond the calf age. The bulletin may be had free of charge by writing to the department as long as the supply lasts.

Pointers for Selection of Improved Dairy Cow

One or two signs tell a good cow. In a poor cow the thigh runs down straight, so there is no place between the thigh and the udder on one side and the tail on the other. There should be plenty of daylight between the udder and the tail. One of the best ways to tell what kind of a cow you have is by her temperament. A good dairy type has a sharp spine, and sharp hip bones. A good cow has a large wedge-shaped stomach.

POULTRY

When Pullets Begin to

Lay Get Them Into Coop

Experienced poultrymen have found that if pullets are allowed to remain very long on the range after starting to lay, the change to winter houses is sure to check them and may cause a fall molt.

Cornell backs them in saying that as soon as the first eggs are found on the range, at least a third or a fourth of the best-developed birds should be placed in winter quarters.

When the remaining birds show maturity, they should be put in winter quarters also.

A thorough cleaning and disinfecting of the houses and pens in which the pullets are to live is advocated. This is especially true if the birds that formerly occupied the building have been diseased or have had worms. Artificial lights should not be used on pullets until they have had a chance to respond to normal conditions. If they do not respond quickly enough, or if neck molt starts, then light can be used with good effect.

Many flocks of pullets take cold after their removal to winter quarters because they are kept in tightly closed houses. All windows and curtains in the front of the houses should be wide open night and day until really cold weather sets in. Even in the middle of the winter, the cloth curtains should not be entirely closed.

Lack of ventilation causes dampness in the houses and this, in turn, results in colds and roup.

Emden-Toulouse Cross Is

Favored for Holidays

The cross of the African gander with common geese is considered excellent. This mating gives larger goslings than common stock, and they make an attractive carcass when picked. The Rhode Island experiment station made some experimental crosses of geese. The results are:

"The Emden-Toulouse would appear to be the best all-around cross for general purposes for both early and late markets, and especially for the production of large geese for the Christmas and New Year's markets. They are large, hardy and, when dressed, present a fine appearance. The Emden-African cross seems to be next in desirability, and if goslings are sold early in the summer, or before they are eight weeks old, this cross would be preferable to all others. The Emden-White China cross picked the easiest of these crosses, the birds were white when dressed and, although small, presented the most attractive appearance."

Intestinal Worms Very

Harmful to Iowa Fowls

Many Iowa flocks are being ruined through the prevalence of intestinal worms, according to R. T. Parkhurst, poultryman with the extension division of Iowa State college. Such worms cause nonproduction, lack of growth and oftentimes death, besides making the birds susceptible to other poultry ailments.

Birds affected with worms will become thin, despite a good appetite, and after a while grow listless and dull. This is especially the case where overcrowding occurs, as with a large flock and a small poultry house.

The best method to get rid of these worms is to feed the chickens a tonic made from 12 quarts of mash, either dry or wet, mixed with one pound of epsom salts and one pound of dry sulphur. Give them daily for three or four days all they will clean up in ten or fifteen minutes.

It is a good plan to see that all refuse is removed from the quarters and sanitary conditions are provided.

Thoroughly Clean House

Before Severe Weather

The hen-house should be thoroughly cleaned, disinfected and made tight before the cold weather sets in. If the house has a dirt floor, it is well to remove three or four inches of dirt from the top and to replace this material with dry gravel or sand. On cement or wooden floors four or five inches of fresh straw or litter may be thrown down after the floor has been cleaned.

Production of Holiday

Turkeys Is on Decline

Every year dozens of old-time turkey raisers drop out of the game and the production of holiday birds continues to decrease. This means that it is a good time to go into the business of producing turkeys if there is plenty of range where the birds can get plenty of feed and will not be killed by predatory animals. Fall is the time of year to search for good foundation stock before the turkeys are all put into fattening pens and sold.

Contagious Fowl Cholera.

Is Easily Distributed

Fowl cholera is a germ disease which is very fatal, says Harry Embleton, head of the poultry department of the Oklahoma A. and M. college. A fowl showing no symptoms of the trouble may be found dead under the roost the next morning. All affected birds do not go in this way. Some may linger a few days, showing a great thirst, due to fever, also a loss of appetite. The bowels will appear very loose

FARM LIVE STOCK

Draft Work Horse Quite Necessary on All Farms

Of recent years horse breeding has gradually been abandoned on many farms, with the natural result of a serious decrease in horse stocks throughout the country. Widespread advertising of farm tractors and trucks, high prices of feed and the belief that cheap horses could readily be obtained from the ranch country, all have had their effect in lessening horse-breeding activity. The automobile has practically driven the light horse off the roads of the country, but everywhere heavy horses, as heretofore, are doing the major part of the work on farms and in the woods, while many of them are still being used for short-haul work in the cities.

The time has come, in our opinion, actively to resume the breeding of heavy draft horses for farm work purposes, says a writer in Successful Farmer. A recent investigation in Illinois showed that not over one brood mare in five has of recent years produced a foal. At that rate it will take over 27 years to replace the horses now in use in that state, and they are fast being retired on account of old age, unsoundness, or other causes. The same thing is true in other great farming states.

Over 20,000,000 horses and mules are still needed for work purposes in America in spite of the competition of farm tractors and trucks, and should some deadly, infectious disease run riot through the country, an instant dearth of work horses will have to be faced. Abandonment of horse breeding is having a like but gradual effect in that direction.

While horse-breeding operations have practically been at a standstill, horses needed to replace those retired for one reason or another have come from the range country of the west, but high freight rates and prevailing low prices have about stopped the source of supply. We now learn that range horses are a drug on the market where they are raised, and are being "unloaded" as quickly, as possible. It is even suggested that they should be slaughtered to furnish horse meat for sale in the cities. It is also true that first-class, pure bred draft stallions never were so scarce as at the present time.

Plainly, therefore, it will be necessary again to breed every sound, suitable, individually excellent and efficient brood mare the coming spring, and each of them, so far as possible, should be mated with a high-class, prepotent pure bred stallion. Unless this is done a famine of good work horses is bound to occur before long, and prices in consequence threaten to be prohibitive.

Satisfactory Remedies to Control Hog Vermin

The following remedies, any of which will prove satisfactory, are suggested by V. L. Starkey, chief of animal husbandry, South Carolina A. and M. college, in answer to inquiries from farmers on this subject.

1. Crude Oil Treatment.—This is the most widely used treatment for hog lice. It should be applied to the hogs by pouring it down the back and rubbing it over the entire body, taking pains to see that the head and ears are well covered. One application of crude oil, provided it is thorough, will eliminate hog lice. Of course, in all cases it is necessary to clean up the hog houses and sleeping places and disinfect them with the same preparation.

2. Coal Tar Products.—By taking an ordinary coal tar preparation, you may be able to control hog lice. As in the case of crude oil, the application of this material should be thorough. When a coal tar preparation is used it is necessary to repeat the treatment in ten days, because the lice are killed, but the nits are not.

3. Oil, From Garages.—Oil from garages which has been drained from the motors has been used very satisfactorily to control hog lice. However, some of the oil which is obtained from garages has a great deal more kerosene in it than others and when this is the case it sometimes blisters.

Oils are also beneficial in laying dust, which is almost as injurious to hogs as lice.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

Calves, pigs and lambs that make their owners the most profit are sired by pure bred sires.

The price of wool and mutton makes a flock of sheep an attractive proposition to the man who understands sheep.

His First Christmas

Jacques' Christmas

By Eleanor E. King

A BLIZZARD was brewing. Little cutting pieces of snow were being blown in whirls around corners and down the street. Huddled down in his coat stood a newsboy of some eight or nine years. His face was drawn with the cold and he beat his hands against his sides to keep them warm.

Last-minute Christmas shoppers, hurrying along to get their various errands done, gave no thought to the little fellow who pestered them with his papers. He ought to have known better when they had so many things to think about.

"Yeh, all the news—the latest news. Won't cha buy one, mister? I only have a couple more." He looked up, pleadingly into the face of a passer-by.

"Sorry, sonny," smiled the man, "got one here now that I probably won't ever get a chance to read—so busy," and he hurried along his way.

The rush of pedestrians subsided a moment. The boy singled out a young woman, as he said, "She looks kind. I'll try her."

"Yeh—all the latest news—just out—won't cha buy one, please, lady? I only have a few."

She opened her purse and started to hunt for the money.

"I've just got to sell these papers out early tonight, 'cause it's my last chance to buy that doll. You know, my little sister, they say, isn't very well, and the only thing she says she wants is an orange for Christmas, but I know better." He paused for breath.

She Opened Her Purse.

"She wants a doll, but she thinks she can't ask for it 'cause we haven't money for dolls. I have, though," he said promptly. "I've been watching a doll in one of the windows here. I'm going by tonight and get it."

"What is your name, son?"

"Jacques and my sister's—ma petite soeur—Marthe."

"Zshack?—What a queer—"

"No; it isn't," he said, anticipating what she was going to say. "My mother is French. Those names are beautiful—to us," he added after a pause.

"Where do you live, Jacques?"

"Sixty-nine Kensington Square. Top floor, back two rooms. I've got that down pat now, haven't I?"

"Yes, you won't get lost right soon," she replied as she put her arm around him, and gave him a gentle tap on the shoulder. "Merry Christmas, Jacques," and she was on her way. She stopped a little way down the street, however, wrote something down, then hurried on.

Another half hour found Jacques hugging an orange and a little doll under his coat as he trudged along home. When he opened the door a little voice started chanting, "Frere Jacques, Frere Jacques—you're late tonight."

"Yes, Marthe. Today I was talking to Santa on the corner, and he said he was awfully busy. He doubted if he would get all around this year."

"Oh!" said Marthe in a disappointed tone.

Jacques' mother was sewing busily upon a garment she was intent upon finishing. Tomorrow was Christmas, and no sewing was going to be left over to bother her.

His Mother Was Just as Excited as He.

Marthe's bedtime came, and Jacques fixed his presents in preparation for the morrow. He had found a Christmas tree branch in the street, and this he made into a little tree under which he placed his gifts.

Christmas morning dawned brightly in the little French home. Jacques' surprise was complete, for Marthe went into raptures over the tree and her presents. She alternately hugged and kissed her doll, keeping up a constant chatter to it in French. The orange and a few other presents that she had found under the tree she put on the shelf, so that she could admire them while she rocked her doll.

Jacques had had his surprise, too—"Give and it shall be given unto you"—for his two packets under the tree had grown to be six or seven.

"Mother," he said, "I think I will have to try my new mittens and see exactly how warm they are." So saying, he slipped into his coat and pushed on the door. What ailed it? Was it frozen shut, stuck, or what was the matter?

With his mother's help the door was opened. To their surprise they found that a huge pile of packages had been the cause of their trouble.

Jacques gave a cry of delight as he pounced upon the bundles. His mother was just as excited as he, as she helped carry in the stuff.

Then followed one of the happiest hours the family had ever known—whole two-dozen oranges and all sorts of wholesome food. Jacques' mother fairly wept with joy.

Santa remembered us after all, mother," said little Jacques, "and he left this note on one of my presents. Look, mother, it says:—"

"I hope you will always be as thoughtful of your sister, Jacques. A Merry Christmas and a Bright and Happy New Year."

"SANTA CLAUS."

Plan to Prevent Moist

Mash From Packing Hard

An excellent way to prevent moist mash from packing into an indigestible mass in the crop of the hen is by adding short-cut alfalfa or clover hay to the mixture. This sort of food may compose as much as 20 to 25 per cent of the mash by bulk in most cases. The most essential thing in this case is that the hay be leafy and cut in quite short lengths. Before mixing with the mash, first soak the hay in a bucket of water for several hours.

Subscription $1.50 a year.

It's too bad congress doesn't take some action concerning the cheap postage rates on "propaganda" sent through the mails in such unlimited quantities. It is safe to say that more than half the mail now handled by postal clerks is propaganda, pure and simple. Something to boost somebody's interests and to take up the time of the busy business man. Look at your next mail and see if it isn't about half propaganda of some kind; something to help the other fellow make money.

Practically every automobile factory now has a department which does nothing but mail out propaganda to the newspapers in an endeavor to secure free advertising. Even our state colleges and other institutions of learning have organized departments for the purpose of trying to work the newspapers for free advertising. Every newspaper man's mail is full of these letters, some from motor factories, some from colleges, and lately even some of the state governmental departments have gotten on to the scheme and are rushing into the mails in an effort to help furnish the newspaper man with "copy," none of which will help him to meet his payroll and his monthly bills, but all boosting the other fellow's game.

The newspaper man's entire stock in trade is the advertising space he has to sell. Every issue of his paper costs him good hard money. If he does not sell enough of his space to advertisers to pay his bills, and net him a profit he will not long be in the newspaper business. His paper bills, his rent, his taxes, his payroll must be met just like that of every other business man and he must sell enough of his stock in trade to pay them, just as the merchant must sell his stock over the counter.

But all the propagandists all over the country seem to go on the theory that the editor is extremely in need of something to "fill up" with so they very graciously send him columns and columns of stuff boosting their game and give him the privilege of publishing it free of charge without asking anybody's consent. A good stiff postage rate on such stuff would lighten the burdens of the postal employes and save the editor the bother of constantly having to empty his overflowing waste basket.

A. Wilnot handed us the following story last week: "How one editor got rich." He started writing at an early age and, by dint of hard effort, retired, when 69, with a comfortable bank account of $50,000. His success was achieved entirely by his conscientious efforts to give constructive ideas in his writings, by loyalty and honesty, by his thorough belief in hard work; and, oh yes, by a rich uncle who died and left him $49,994.37.

We might add that the above story does not apply to the Gazette editor because we have no rich uncle.

The Land of Christmas Trees

By Grace May North
in Youth's Companion

I'd like to find the country where trees of Christmas grow; It ought to be a pine wood with rainbows all aglow. And if I had a basket, I'm sure that Santa'd say, "Just pick as many presents as you can take away!"

A Successful Dinner. "Was your dinner a success?" "Yes, indeed. All the people we didn't invite to it are now wishing they were there."

D.W. GRIFFITH'S 'ONE EXCITING NIGHT'

Love

The soft, surprising thrill! That surges to a great tide of happiness, when true! That lurches to a destructive bolt of passion, greedy, devouring—if false!

Laughter

That brings the flush of happiness to the pale face of Life! When people laugh, Heaven smiles.

Mystery

The stealthy things of life! Peeping here! Peering there! Secrets! Now a healthy fascination! Now an absorbing puzzle! What more intriguing?

Thrills

The throb with the thrill! The heart stirring with the mind! Awakening, quickening, punching, pounding thrills that scatter worries! Wipe out weary trifles. Make life fresh again!

An Emotional Hurricane

D. W. Griffith's great mystery picture is warm with Love; rollicking with Laughter; tense with Mystery; throbbing with Thrills.

And the Storm Scene Climax

All the furies of Nature as if plucked from the skies and transfixed on the screen. The lashing tempest, whipping winds, shredding lightning bolts, lift you—grip you—hold you.

When Dreams Come True

"For Christ the Lord is Born!"

By MARTHA B. THOMAS

Star of Bethlehem Outshone All at Conference of the Heavenly Bodies

IT WAS Christmas Eve, and the stars were holding a conference.

They could not leave their places in the sky, because it was against the law of night, so they managed to talk by ray-dio! That is, each star sent a ray toward a certain spot, where all the other rays were shining, and this made the conference!

"Star talk"! Words of light! It was a very bright and busy time.

The largest stars did the most talking; they had a good deal to say about the way they shone when the moon was away.

"We are not only beautiful to look at," they declared, "but we help folks to get about on dark nights. The earth folks like to look at us, and wonder about us. We are very important!" If stars could swell with pride, these stars would have burst.

When they had talked very hard for about an hour, a small, slender shaft of light twinkled into their midst.

"Who are you?" came a chorus of shining voices.

"I am the Star of Bethlehem," was the answer.

The other stars had never heard of her. They were inclined to hush her up. But there was something, so sweet, so penetrating, so beautiful in her light that they were constrained to give heed.

"What is your history?" then demanded the largest and oldest star.

The Star of Bethlehem quivered with a clear radiance which seemed to have all the colors of the rainbow.

"An angel with a torch came and lighted me the very first Christmas Eve. I shone with a special luster and guided many people to the manger in Bethlehem, where the Christ Child lay with his Mother Mary. Shepherds saw me while they were watching their sheep on the hillside. And other angels of blinding beauty sang near me. They played on golden harps. The sky shone with a heavenly glory. There has never been a night so wonderful."

The other stars listened with awe.

Before this sweet, compelling light they felt silent and humble.

Then, for an instant, there came an incomparable brilliance. The Star of Bethlehem blazed in indescribable beauty. And faint and far came the music of harps and singing "For Christ the Lord is born!"

POOR THING

Plum, Pudding—Alas for the good old days of brandy sauce!

Christmas Eve

THE frost is bright, The lamps shine white Along the city streets tonight; The people throng Those streets alone, With here a jest and there a song.

Can they not hear Where, faint yet clear, Across the night-winds, drawing near, Strange music swells Of camel-bells, While rich and deep the incense smells?

Too blind they are To watch from far The rising of the Sacred Star; Too quick and loud, The hastening crowd, To pause before a Manger, bowed.

O hearts of men, Grow soft again! Miracles happen now as when On Mary's side The Savior smiled: Christ lives in every new-born child!

Successful Poultryman Picks Choicest Fowls

The poultry raiser who does best is almost always the one who carefully picks out each year only his choicest specimens and breeds from these exclusively. As a natural result, his flocks become better and better each year. By the same token the man who is breeding for heavy egg-production should pick out his very best layers to be used as breeders, and in the course of a few generations the habit of prolificacy will become firmly established in this family.

"It isn't what we have but what we enjoy, that counts."

A Timely Suggestion
This is the season of the year when the prudent and careful housewife replenishes her supply of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is almost certain to be needed before the winter is over and results are much more prompt and satisfactory when it is kept at hand and given as soon as the first indication of a cold appears and before it has become settled in the system. There is no danger in giving it to children as it contains no opium or other harmful drug.

Amateur Motorist.
No one can feel that he has become habituated to motoring so long as he secretly congratulates himself that he is still alive after the joy ride.

Jaws of Live.
Many a married man feels that the jaws of death are preferable to the jaws of life.

Kinfolk Useful.
Kinfolk are useful in many ways. They are the only people who feel justified in speaking to one about his personal habits.

A Cheering Paradox.
A lot of our experiences don't end happy; yet they end, happily.—Boston Transcript.

The Three Wise Men brought gold, frankincense and myrrh which was to signify that they were ready to sacrifice a part of their earthly possessions and that it was a time for joyous thanksgiving. Down through the ages and upon each anniversary of this occasion civilization has been exchanging gifts in appreciation of their friendships toward each other and the kindly spirit which such an act manifests. And so it is a custom crowned by Christian intuitiveness which brings light, joy and happiness to everyone who will receive it. But do not forget the little folks for Christmas is their day. Hopeless Task to Raise Young and Old Together

Some place it is stated that it is unwise to put new wine in old bottles. A modern version would be that it is unwise to put young chicks in quarters occupied by mature stock. It is almost a hopeless task to raise young and old together. The conditions are not sanitary, the chicks are badly infested with lice, and the hens get first chance at the feed. The chicks get trampled under foot and what few live don't grow because they have little opportunity to eat.
