IS HE A LIAR

"Is the Newspaper Man a Liar?" asks the Osborn, Kan., Farmer in a headline, then goes on to explain: "If the average newspaper man is a liar, he generally lies to protect his community. If a boy goes out into the world, gets into trouble, the home newspaper says he was a good boy until he got away, got into bad company. If the towns tightwad who hugged his pennies to his bosom in life dies, the newspaper throws the mantle of charity over him, says he hated wastefulness, that his hate for useless spending made him over-careful for his investments, his charities. If the town gossip dies, he carefully avoids referring to her outstanding weakness, tells how she visited the sick, afflicted, saying she was a good neighbor. If the home team goes away from home, gets whipped, the home town paper editor tells the unsuspecting world that the team was made of second-string players. The editor isn't a liar from choice. The truth struggles in his manly breast, the same as it does in the village preacher, but the pride of his community makes him lie to save the local pride of the town. Its a great life if you don't weaken!"

Editor McCreary of the Genesee News is offering a prize of $1.00 to the person bringing the largest hen's egg to his office within the next 60 days. If the News rounds up a larger egg than the one laid by N. E. Walker's White Wyandotte hen, which measured 6 3/8 by 8 inches we'll take a back seat for Genesee or enter an ostrich in the contest.

A good roads booster isn't the man who opposes a road project just because it isn't to be built past his place. Locating a satisfactory road is one of the hardest problems and usually causes the most strife. When the location is finally made, as a usual thing, most everyone is satisfied.

It costs more per quart for a man to drink himself to death but it doesn't take as many quarts as it used to.

A suggestion was made at the commercial club meeting Tuesday night to adopt the slogan "Try Kendrick First". The idea is to have it printed on stickers which will be placed on merchandise and parcel post packages. The slogan will also be printed on letterheads, envelopes, checks, etc. The idea met with favor and will probably be adopted by most of the business men, who feel that before a customer decides to send away for merchandise he should at least give his local firms an opportunity to quote prices and compare goods.

Moscow has evidently had experiences similar to those of Kooskia. The University City has enacted an ordinance providing a daily license fee to be paid by "Temporary merchants" who, according to the ordinance, are those chaps who make a house to house solicitation in the sale of goods. The provisions do not, however, include persons selling products of the farm, garden or dairy, nor commercial traveling salesmen selling to retail stores.

Retail dealers in some other places have a habit of sending solicitors here to get orders for goods that are filled and the goods sent to the buyers by express or parcel post. Fair treatment of our local merchants would suggest the propriety of our Village Board's taking action in the same way that Moscow has for the protection of the interest of her retailers—Kooskia Mountainer.

The Kendrick Commercial Club made a commendable decision at the last meeting concerning the question of a celebration here July Fourth. The members decided that before taking any action along this line it would be no more than fair to ascertain if any of the other towns nearby wished to put on a celebration. Kendrick has no desire to monopolize Fourth of July celebrations and if any of the neighboring towns are contemplating a celebration they may have a clear field so far as Kendrick is concerned. The Club appointed a committee to communicate with the other towns in this territory so that a definite decision may be reached at the next meeting as to whether Kendrick will or will not celebrate.

Judging by the increasing number of cream cans being shipped at the local depot every day, the dairy business is gaining ground in this community at a very satisfactory rate. Enough cream is shipped from the Potlatch country to operate a small creamery profitably. But with creameries at Lewiston, Moscow and Spokane the competition along that line is very keen.

Farmer Organizations Doing Large Business

More Than $2,000,000,000 Worth Done During 1923.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) More than two billion dollars of business was done by farmer business organizations in 1923, according to estimates made by the United States Department of Agriculture. The estimates are based upon reports from 6,689 organizations which did a total business of $1,200,000,000. Reports have been received from 8,318 associations and additional reports are yet to come in from approximately 2,000 organizations.

Of the 8,318 organizations reporting, approximately 90 per cent were primarily engaged in selling farm products, and about 10 per cent in the collective purchasing of farm supplies. Grain marketing organizations comprised more than 30 per cent of the associations; dairy products 22 per cent; live stock 14 per cent, and fruits and vegetables 11 per cent.

Two thousand six hundred grain organizations did a total business estimated at $490,000,000; 1,841 dairy products organizations a total business of $300,000,000; 1,182 live stock shipping associations a business of $220,000,000, and 956 fruit and vegetable associations a business of $280,000,000. Seventy-eight cotton co-operatives did $100,000,000, and 14 tobacco organizations $132,000,000.

Improvement Association Against Imported Seeds

The International Crop Improvement association, which is composed of 17 state crop improvement associations, went on record at its fifth annual meeting held in Chicago as being in favor of national legislation against imported alfalfa and clover seeds.

Protein Usually Lacking in Ration for Poultry

The most popular ration being fed by the farmers who are feeding a balanced ration is known as the Purdue standard laying ration. The scratch feed consists of ten pounds of corn, ten pounds of wheat and five pounds of oats. The mash is a mixture of five pounds of bran, five pounds of shorts and three pounds of high grade tankage. Plenty of grit, oyster shells, succulent feeds and water are kept before the hens at all times. The unbalanced rations which are being fed to some of the flocks consist of corn and wheat; corn, wheat and bran; wheat and bran; wheat; and corn. The principal thing lacking in the unbalanced rations is an animal protein. The hen manufactures eggs from the feed that is given to her. The number of eggs she will lay depends upon the kind and amount of feed she receives. She cannot maintain her body and manufacture a large number of eggs from feeds which do not contain the proper kind and amount of nutrients.

Eggs for Hatching Must Be From Healthy Stock

Good eggs are the foundation of good hatches. The best incubator in the world can't hatch bad eggs. Make sure the eggs you set come from healthy stock kept under sanitary conditions; then select only those of normal size and shape, free from imperfections of shell.

Eggs for hatching should be as fresh as possible—not over ten days or two weeks old—and they should be gathered three times a day in cold weather to prevent chilling—then kept in a room of steady temperature at fifty to sixty degrees.

When an egg tests fertile at the end of the first week of incubation, it doesn't necessarily mean a chick. Beginners often blame the incubator when the real fault may be that the eggs are too old. Or they may have been subjected to rough handling or kept in too cold or too warm a temperature. In such cases the germ will start, but hasn't the strength to complete the process.

Things to Remember in Keeping Farm Accounts

Three things should be kept in mind in keeping farm accounts. First, enter every expense or receipt item. Second, enter each item in its proper place—expenses on the left hand pages and receipts on the right hand pages. Third, make the entry clear and complete so that you can tell exactly what it is when you refer to it later and have forgotten the details and possibly the entire transaction.
