

Latah County News Paragraphs

Items of interest Taken From Neighboring Papers

While there may be some few changes in the program as made, the main events will be carried out as scheduled and it is expected that Genesee will see one of the largest crowds that has assembled here since the days of the horse show when people came for many miles to have a good time—and they always had it, too.

Genesee this year is departing from the set rule for such entertainments and the business men and others interested in Genesee have very generously subscribed to a fund for the purpose of putting on a celebration, bucking contest and baseball game that will be absolutely free to the public. It has always been customary to charge admission fees to witness a ball game and bucking contest, but these are to be yours just for the coming, and it is the desire of the business interests that every one be free to avail themselves of this hospitality.—Genesee News.

Those who took the postmaster's examination at Moscow last Saturday were Mrs. Emory Olson, Mrs. Axel Granlund, Mrs. Texas Bogar, Mrs. D. Stevens and E. G. Ogden, five in all. These examinations were held under executive order and do not come under the ordinary civil service rules. A day or so prior to the examination notification was received that the Deary office had been returned to the fourth class for the reason that the receipts for the year ending December 31, 1923 were below $1,500. Whether the executive examinations will suffice under these circumstances or where a regular civil service examination will be called, in order to have a postmaster appointed, is not known at this time, no advice to this effect having been received.—Deary Press.

L. W. Wells, of the firm of Young & Wells of Spokane, fruit buyers and shippers, was in Moscow Saturday making arrangements to open the company's packing house here to take care of the cherry crop which is ripening rapidly. The company has rented the old Star Transfer company barn near the inland depot, and will have it open to receive cherries next Thursday, June 26, according to present plans.

Young & Wells bought practically the entire cherry crop in the Moscow territory last year, paying to local growers more than $24,000. Mr. Wells anticipates that the tonnage will not be quite so great this year as last, but states that the crop will bring more money to the community than last year, because of the higher price. The prevailing price last season was six cents a pound, and Mr. Wells states that the price this season will not be less than eight cents, and may run higher than that figure, Bings and Lamberts are the principal varieties. There was no demand for the Royal Annes last season, but the company has secured a market for this season, and expects to ship some two carloads of Royal Annes from here. The Royal Annes will probably bring five cents a pound.—Star-Mirror.

Tom Blevins and Velma Ameling each won a box of candy last Saturday, given by the new confectionery for the best name for the new firm. Tom handed in the name of "Brocke Bros." While Velma proposed "As you Like It." Both names were adopted and the firm name is now "Brocke Bros." with the slogan below "As You Like It."

Bailey, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Bailey to Miss Josephine Marden of West Los Angeles, an only daughter of the Chief of Police of West Los Angeles. The many friends and acquaintances of Curtis wish him much happiness and prosperity in the future.

Potlatch Beans A Money Crop

Importance Now Being Fully Recognized

The importance of beans as a money crop in the central Idaho region, is causing farmers to grow them more extensively each year, according to E. W. Eaves of the Vollmer-Clearwater company says the Tribune. The acreage is doubled this year over last year, Mr. Eaves states, there being an estimated acreage of 10,000 acres for central Idaho.

"Beans are for the most part raised in the Potlatch country, the Nezperce and Gifford prairies, and along the Clearwater river," said Mr. Eaves. "Farmers seem to be quite satisfied with the prices received for their beans, and in times past, they have made very large profits. Prices last season ranged from 3 cents to 4 1-2 cents net to the farmer. At the present time, with little or no demand, they are quoted at 3 to 4 cents a pound. I look for prices this year to be about the same as last season.

"Several reasons contribute to my belief that beans will remain about the same in price this year as last. The California shortage is the only factor that might have a tendency to raise the price, while the country faces a fairly large carry over from Michigan and good crops there this year. Very good white beans have been coming into this country from Japan and this has, and will keep the prices on the same level.

"Many inquiries have come to us this year, from dealers to which we market our beans, for the Great Northern bean. This is a new bean which has been on the market for the past five years, and has been grown largely in Montana and south Idaho on irrigated lands. These beans are much preferred to any other variety of bean in the retail markets on account of their superior flavor, for this reason, they usually command about a half cent a pound premium over the common variety.

"The Great Northern bean, from all I can learn, yields much heavier than other varieties, and I understand their preference in the market also comes from the fact that they will cook much quicker. These beans have been grown in the central Idaho district to some extent, and I believe farmers interested in the cultivation of beans should investigate this bean before another year and plan to plant some of them. I predict that within ten years, the Great Northern bean will supplant the present type of beans, almost entirely, in the United States."

A sign in front of a store read: "B4 U buy pants, come in and see ours." He went in and there wasn't a confounded salesman in the place so he bought a fan and walked out.—Ex.

Return From Eastern Trip

Visited Chicago and Points in Minnesota

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mielke of Cameron returned last Saturday from a visit at their old home in Minnesota and with their son, Henry in Chicago. Henry is in the internal revenue service and is making rapid progress in his work, having received a number of substantial promotions since entering the service a few years ago.

Mr. Mielke stated that farming conditions in the part of Minnesota which he visited, were not very encouraging this year. The season is unusually late and the ground very dry. Corn was but 3 or 4 inches high when he left and other crops in proportion. He said crops looked better here than in any country from Minnesota this way.

Mr. and Mrs. Mielke were away a month and were glad to get back. They said the Potlatch never looked so good to them.

While in Minnesota they saw some fine potatoes and asked their friends if they raised them there. They said: "No, those came from Idaho." Mr. Mielke said: "Those are fine apples you raise in this country." They said: "No, those came from Yakima, Wash." They were building an $8,000 barn on the farm which Mr. Mielke used to own. He asked them where they got their lumber and the answer was: "It came from Idaho and costs us $204 a thousand for No. 1 flooring and $54 for common dimension."

Mr. Mielke thinks the farmers in that part of Minnesota are 50 years behind Potlatchers.

Pure Bred Bulls of Great Value

Sires of Quality Are Needed to Maintain and Increase Dairy Production.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A tabulation has just been completed by the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture, in which the records of 384 grade daughters of pure bred dairy bulls were compared with the records of their dams. The average yearly butterfat production of the dams was 309 pounds, and that of the daughters 313 pounds. The daughters excelled the dams with a margin of only 4 pounds of butterfat a year, but the fact that they excelled such high-producing dams at all speaks very well for the class of pure bred dairy bulls that is being used in the cow-testing association herds from which these records came. In this connection, estimates show that the average butterfat production of milk cows in the United States is only 180 pounds annually.

Records in Groups.
The records of the dams were arranged in five groups according to production of butterfat. These five groups averaged 100, 200, 300, 400 and 500 pounds, respectively. The daughters of the first or 100-pound group produced 74 pounds more butterfat than their dams. The daughters of the second group produced 55 pounds more butterfat than their dams. The daughters of the third group produced 9 pounds more butterfat than their dams. The daughters of the fourth group produced 26 pounds less butterfat than their dams. The daughters of the fifth or last group produced 86 pounds less butterfat than their dams.

Pure Breds Needed.
From these figures we may conclude that good pure bred bulls are needed for every dairy herd and that pure bred bulls selected from very high producing ancestry are required when the production records of the dams are above 300 pounds of butterfat a year. As the average production of herds advance, better and still better bulls are needed to maintain and to increase production.

New Bulletin Describes Several Hog Operations

Castration of hogs under various conditions is described in detail in a new Farmers' Bulletin, No. 1357, by S. S. Buckley, just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. Besides giving directions for the ordinary operation, the bulletin gives the procedure for ridgelings, for spaying sows, and for operating on ruptured pigs. A number of illustrations help to make the methods easily understood.

In the case of males the operation of castration improves the quality of the meat and prevents the development of undesirable odors as well as doing away with the danger of indiscriminate breeding in the herd. Spaying is no longer practiced to any great extent as it has little influence on the quality of the meat. It is recommended that whenever possible the operation be done at an early age, preferably early enough so that the wounds will be healed before the pigs are weaned. It may be done at any season of the year, but on clear, cool days if the best results are to be obtained.

Copies of the bulletin may be obtained without cost, as long as the supply lasts, by addressing the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Improving Live Stock by Using Pure Bred Sires

The number of persons in the United States co-operating in live stock improvement by the use of pure bred sires exclusively for all classes of live stock kept passed the 13,000 mark during March, according to records of the United States Department of Agriculture. This list of persons represents ownership of more than a million and a half animals and fowls used for breeding purposes, and includes breeders in all parts of the country. Each person co-operating with state extension workers and the United States Department of Agriculture by signing enrollment blanks in the better-sires drive receives a suitable certificate, and also, when requested, a lithographed sign, "Pure bred sires exclusively used on this farm."

High Value of Milk for Increasing Yield of Eggs

Milk fed to laying hens brings better returns than when fed to hogs, according to Purdue university. Returns at that station show that the increase in egg production gives a return of $1.82 to $5 per hundred pounds of milk fed to hens. Feeding of protein to hens will usually increase the egg production of a hen about 100 eggs per year as compared to hens that do not receive a protein supplement.

Milk cannot be compared with other forms of animal protein such as meat scraps and tankage wholly on the protein basis, since its palatability, ease of digestibility, and general availability on the farm must be given consideration.

For chicks, milk is almost a necessity since most people can raise chicks easier and better and with less mortality when given as a liquid diet.

POULTRY

LITTLE CHICKS NEED CAREFUL ATTENTION

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The artificial method of brooding chickens consists in supplying, artificially, heat as nearly as possible like that furnished by the hen under natural conditions. The temperature of a hen is about 103 degrees F., but as hens seldom sit closely on chickens, the latter do not receive this degree of heat. Hens adapt their methods of brooding to conditions, such as outside temperature, size of the chickens, and wet weather, and the operator of an artificial brooder must meet these conditions as nearly as he can. Some of the most important faults in the management of brooders are overcrowding and lack of ventilation and the failure of chickens to get sufficient exercise. The brooder should supply the proper temperature, be readily adapted to meet the changes in weather conditions, be easy to clean, and be well ventilated.

Chickens are usually left in the incubator from 24 to 36 hours after hatching, without feeding, before they are removed to the brooder, which should have been in operation for three or four days at the proper temperature for receiving chickens. A beginner, says the United States Department of Agriculture, should try this brooding system carefully before he uses it. After being placed in the brooder the chickens can be given feed and water. Subsequent loss in chickens is frequently due to chilling received while taking them from the incubator to the brooder. In cool or cold weather they should be moved in a covered basket or other receptacle.

Brooder houses should have from 1/4 to 2 inches of sand, dry dirt, cut clover, or chaff spread over the floor and in the brooder pen. The hovers should be cleaned frequently, as cleanliness is essential in raising chickens successfully.

When chickens are first put into the brooder they should be confined under or around the hover by placing a board or wire frame a few inches outside. The fence or guard should be moved farther and farther away from the hover and discarded entirely when the chickens are three or four days old or when they have learned to return to the source of the heat. Young chickens should be closely watched to see that they do not huddle or get chilled. They should be allowed to run on the ground whenever the weather is favorable, as they do much better than when kept continuously on cement or board floors.

Practical Suggestions for Getting Clean Eggs

The increasing number of graded eggs that are shipped makes it necessary that every practicable means be employed to keep eggs clean. The greatest help, outside of clean straw on the floor and in the nests, is a screen shutting the hens off the roosts during the day. A screen made of poultry netting is lowered in the morning and remains down until time for the hens to go to roost. Cleaning the dropping boards daily will not help so much as the use of one of these screens.

An added advantage is the fact that a hen on the floor is encouraged to activity. The hens that spend any great portion of their time on the roosts are fit subjects for colds and roup.

The practice of placing perches a foot or so above the dropping boards leads to soiled feet, soiled perches and soiled eggs. The hens, instead of walking on the perches, walk on the dropping boards and their feet become badly soiled.

Gathering eggs twice daily is also a help in producing cleaner eggs. By all means supply a plentiful number of nests. Eggs laid on the floor are invariably soiled. A nest may have eight or ten clean eggs in it and the entire number may be soiled by the hen laying the next egg.

Bulletin Discusses Brooding of Chicks

Success Depends on Skill and Care of Operator.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

On poultry farms one of the most difficult operations is the brooding of chicks, says the United States Department of Agriculture in a recent Farmers' Bulletin, "Natural and Artificial Brooding of Chickens," a revised edition by Alfred R. Lee. The bulletin considers in detail the brooding of chickens with hens and with artificial brooders. Attention is given to all the different kinds of equipment, such as brood coops, hovers, brooders and brooding systems, correct temperatures, care of purchased day-old chicks, feeding young chickens, toe punching and banding.

According to this bulletin, the successful brooding of chickens depends on the skill and care of the operator as well as the use of good vigorous chickens, which are free from disease. Poultry raisers are cautioned particularly against the danger of overfeeding, lack of exercise, overcrowding, overheating, and too little heat. The beginner cannot expect definite rules to carry him through to success, but he will find information which will enable him to know when there is something wrong and suggestions as to what sort of corrective is needed.

This bulletin, No. 1876, is a revision of and supersedes Farmers' Bulletin No. 624, and may be obtained free of charge, as long as the supply lasts, by addressing the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Incubators should be of good construction and run where drafts, sudden temperature changes and direct sunlight cannot reach them.

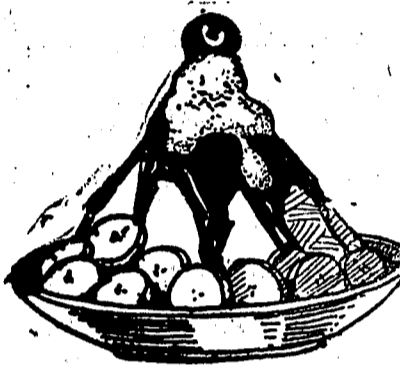

Baby chicks hatched out during April must receive the best kind of food to keep them growing, for it will take a little pushing to mature them before winter.

Burning Cornstalks and Straw Is Wasting Humus

Gradually farming prosperity has moved from east to west. No soil can long stand such wasteful methods as burning cornstalks and straw. Ash is a good fertilizer, to be sure, especially for potato land, but humus is wasted when plant substance is burned. Soils are more in need of humus than of ash, especially in the old farming sections.

One can buy fertilizer to supply the soil with the elements found in ashes, but one cannot afford to buy humus. That must be grown and worked into the soil. Humus makes the soil retain its proper working consistency. It helps hold moisture in a drought. It prevents soil from baking hard. Nothing can take the place of humus. Work the straw and cornstalks into the soil.
