It has been said that character is bounded on the north by industry, on the east by integrity, on the south by morality and on the west by sobriety. But there is nothing to indicate that Idaho political conventions will be held on that kind of an island.—Caldwell News.

We are glad that women don't care much for guns and hunting. The only thing a woman can hit with any degree of accuracy is a man.

Good cows and good roads will make Potlatch farmers more money than anything else.

A year ago or so a movement was started by the Kendrick commercial club to have a change made in rural route No. 1, which goes over American ridge. It isn't a standard route and it is located over the worst grades on the ridge. It could easily be made to serve 15 or 20 more families than it now does by locating it over more favorable roads. If the post-office department knew the actual condition of the route it would very likely be abandoned. No one seems to know why it should be continued in its present location when it could be made to serve the ridge better over different roads.

A Missouri editor wants to know who loses all the fault that is found.

William Allen White: So many weeks, days are set apart for calling the attention of the public to various good, indifferent causes that the plan, as a propaganda medium, is losing its effectiveness. Yet in the year's calendar, a few of these weeks stand out as worthy of attention. Among them is children's book week—the week in which librarians, teachers give especial study to the matter of books for children. To teach a child to love books is to give him a precious gift. It is a gift he can never lose—it will grow with use. Love of books is an insurance against boredom; frequently an insurance against loneliness. Giving a child the right books to read—books his comprehension, his range of interest—will do a lot to create a love for books. It is the child who does not care for reading who needs his reading most carefully supervised, to keep his interest alive. The natural-born bookworm, turned loose to browse, usually can be trusted to work out his own salvation.

Expected Gifts Listed

In China, a betrothal takes the form of a bridal contract, and a category of expected wedding presents is solemnly inserted in the contract that binds the engagement; but the Chinese would very much resent having this stipulation considered a "price." In Japan, it is the custom for the bride to give gifts to the bridegroom's family—and there are many other interesting forms of intra-marital exchange of presents.

RADIO FOR XMAS

What More Acceptable Gift Can You Give Your Family For Christmas?

Radio wipes out the boundaries of any farm, bridging the miles which separate the farmer from the city and bringing the whole world to the farmer at a turn of the dial.

Radio destroys isolation. Radio carries not only entertainment but news-information and education, putting the farmer as closely in touch with things as if he dwelt in a hundred cities at once.

Entertainment in the way of music and singing is but part of radio's service to the farmer. It is the news paper, text book and information bulletin combined and blended with the speed of the telegraph and the convenience of the telephone.

These things make it important that the receiving sets used on farms be fully adequate in their possibilities. They need not be expensive, but they must be capable of clear, undisturbed reception over a wide range.
