Grading Nearly Finished

It is reported that the grading on the highway from the Latah county line to Arrow Junction, is finished with the exception of about three quarters of a mile. On account of the wet weather work had to be stopped on this project some time ago. Grading will start again soon as weather permits in the spring. Surfacing will also start in the early spring. It is now a question of but a few months until Kendrick will be connected with Lewiston by a surfaced highway.

Specialists Write on Subjects of Interest

Agronomy

Many eastern states have recognized the importance of maintaining the fertility of the soil and vegetable matter content so that leases are now drawn requiring the renter to keep a certain per cent of the farm seeded to red clover, and alfalfa. Why not avoid such drastic measures in southern Idaho by promoting a permanent type of agriculture through use of livestock and good workable rotations, so that our soil will never get into the condition that the older communities have reached?—H. W. Hulbert.

Dairying

If the animals are not dehorned as calves it is better to wait until they are at least two years old as younger animals may develop scars later in life. For animals advanced in age a meat saw should usually be used since a clipper may crush the horn. The clipper is quicker but a saw tends to cause less bleeding.—F. W. Atkeson.

In The Home

Malnutrition leads to physical and mental disability. It paves the way for every ill known to poor districts in cities, but is found in homes of wealth and in country neighborhoods where food of the right kind abounds. Malnutrition is a lowerer physical condition brought about thru faulty or insufficient diet, thru bad health habit, or thru effects and disease.—Marion M. Hepworth.

Has 19 Kids

Chauncey Compton is in the goat business on quite a large scale. He has 16 goats and recently 9 of this number had 23 kids, 19 of them now living. He expects to raise 30 or more this season. The milk goats sell readily at $45 apiece. Some of them give 5 quarts a day. They require very little feed, their principal diet consisting of bean straw. Chauncey is making his goat herd pay a good profit.

Poultry

It is only by using the greatest possible care in selecting breeders that production of a large number of fertile hatchable eggs can be obtained. Vigor and constitution are first considerations, then egg production and standard points. The individuality of the hen is the principal factor in fertility of eggs. Most hens laying infertile eggs are consistent in this respect throughout the season. A male usually gives good fertility or practically none at all. Breeding stock should be given plenty of exercise and green feed and should not be overcrowded. Forced feeding and artificial lighting are not conducive to high fertility and hatchability of eggs.—R. T. Parkhurst.

Death of John Lorang

John Lorang, age 68 years, one of the prominent farmers of the Genesee section, died suddenly at his home near Genesee, Wednesday morning. He was a pioneer of Latah county, having resided on his farm for 45 years.

H. S. Basket Social

The basket social, given by the local high school last Friday evening for the benefit of the basket ball team, was not very well attended. The gross receipts were in the neighborhood of $20.00. The basket ball team has been unable to schedule games for some time on account of lack of funds. A subscription list passed around among the business men would have remedied this condition in a very short time. Kendrick business men are always willing to contribute toward the finances of high school athletics.

STUDENT ACTIVITIES KENDRICK SCHOOLS

Written For Gazette by Student Reporters

A Lincoln program was held in the assembly room last Friday afternoon with all grades in attendance. One of the features of the program was an address by G. P. Barnum, a veteran of both the Spanish-American war and the World war. The address was of 30 minutes duration and was well received by the students.

A basket ball game is scheduled to be played Thursday of this week between the Kendrick and Genesee high schools to determine which of the two teams may enter the tournament at Lewiston. It is in the nature of an elimination contest. Our high school team will play a game of basket ball at Lapwai Friday night of this week.

A spinster in a London suburb was shocked at the language used by two men repairing telegraph wires close to her house. She wrote to the company on the matter, and the foreman was asked to make a report.

This he did in the following way:

"Me and Bill Fairweather were on this job. I went up the telegraph pole, and accidentally let the hot lead fall on Bill. It went down his neck, then he said: 'You really must be more careful, Harry.'—Ex.

Case in Justice Court

Judge Hull had a case in the justice court at the city hall here Monday morning. W. J. DePartee was plaintiff and Harry Langdon defendant in the case involving the value of a horse which the plaintiff was endeavoring to recover, alleging negligence on the part of the defendant was responsible for the horses death.

According to testimony of the two principals, a contract had been entered into by Mr. Langdon and Mr. DePartee some time last June, in which Mr. Langdon agreed to take care of and work a team belonging to Mr. DePartee, for its feed. He was to take the same care of the horses that he gave his own. The horses were delivered to Mr. Langdon about the first of August last year.

After working the team last fall during the plowing season, Mr. Langdon turned the horses to a straw stack, along with about 20 head of his own stock. The stack was close to the house and Mr. Langdon stated that he made daily visits to see how the stock was faring. Some time ago the top slid off of the stack and covered one of Mr. DePartee's horses, causing its death. The owner then brought suit against Mr. Langdon for $60, the alleged value of the animal.

Mr. Langdon asked for a jury trial. He had as his attorney Jatham Moore of Moscow, while the plaintiff's attorney was Mr. Babcock of Lewiston. The jury was selected as follows: Ed Deobald, A. C. Deeter, Silvie Cook, C. G. Compton, James Emmett, Ralph Knepper.

Witnesses called for plaintiff were Mrs. DePartee and Sam Bolton. For the defendant, John Kite and C. C. Blackburn.

The jury brought in a verdict in favor of the defendant.

Sold Residence Property

Harry Fowler closed a deal this week for the sale of his residence property in the east end of town, to O. C. Aiken. The Fowler family will move to Lewiston within the next two weeks to make their home. Mr. Fowler has employment there. Their many friends will regret to see them leave. They have resided in Kendrick for a long time and have a large circle of friends in the community.

Come in or Stay Out

An Irishman who was rather fond of strong drink was asked by the parish priest:

"My son, how do you expect to get into Heaven?"

The Irishman replied: "Shure and that's aisy. When I get to the gates of Heaven I'll open the door and shut the door, and open the door and shut the door, an' keep on doing that till St. Peter gits impatient an' says, 'For goodness' sake, Mike, either come in or stay out.'—Ex.

W. O. W. Party

The annual party of the local Woodmen lodge was held at the Fraternal Temple last Wednesday evening with a large crowd in attendance. The evening's activities started with a pleasing program of musical and comic numbers, which was well received. An address of welcome by N. E. Ware was followed by a short talk delivered by Mr. Hoover from Denver, Colorado, who is temporary district representative.

After the program, refreshments consisting of sandwiches, coffee, ice cream and cake were served, after which cards and dancing were enjoyed until a late hour.

Soon Start Band Concerts

At the regular weekly rehearsal of the band, held last Monday evening, it was decided to give an open air concert in the park, some time about the middle of April. The band boys will practice twice a week to work up some new music for the occasion. It is hoped there will be a large attendance on the part of the members at these rehearsals.

Kicked by Colt

Adolph Dennler, twelve-year-old son of George Dennler of Fix ridge, was kicked just above the eyes by a colt last Monday. The wound was so severe that several stitches had to be taken to draw the edges together. At present he is getting along in good shape.—Julietta Record.

About The Highway

Now that the "soft" weather has set in, it behooves everyone to watch their loads and see to it that they do not go over the posted weight of 5,000 pounds. As long as judgment is used in this respect loads to 5,000 will be allowed, but should the weight of the car and load exceed that amount and do damage to the highway, the owner of the car will be asked to contribute to the state fund in the shape of a fine. The road overseers are disposed to be lenient with trucks and heavy cars, but judgment must be used or action will be taken.

This is merely a warning handed out by the road authorities and it is hoped it will not be necessary to go further.—Genesee News.

Elk River Mill Starts

The big sawmill at Elk River has resumed operations and camps in that vicinity are again becoming active. Extensive logging operations are starting in the St. Maries district. No information is available as to when the camps in this vicinity will resume full strength.

It is generally accepted that this will be another big year for the lumber industry—the business may exceed that of last year, above all previous records in both cut and sales. The whole country seems to be in the midst of a building orgy which has continued active during the winter.—Deary Press.

Against Butter Substitutes

A movement to start legislation in the state of Idaho against the sale of oleomargarine was launched at a meeting of Latah county farmers here Tuesday afternoon. Several reports were heard showing the amount of nuco used in the county and in Moscow, which were followed by an open discussion. Action on the question was continued until after the next meeting, the date for which will be announced later.

According to the report submitted by J. E. Wilson, approximately 2400 pounds of nuco were consumed in Moscow during January and possibly 2500 lbs. in December. No accurate estimate could be made on the amount of butter used in the city during this period, he stated.

G. W. Abel endeavored, in his report, to show the amount of butter needed to take the place of oleomargarine consumed in the United States. He stated that there are 24,000,000 cows in the United States according to the 1923 reports, which produce an average of 3600 pounds of milk and 160 pounds of butter fat. The average in Idaho surpasses that of any other state in the union, he stated, being an average of 7,472 pounds of milk per year, and an average of 300.8 pounds of butterfat.

According to this report, Mr. Abel stated, there were 24 million pounds of oleomargarine produced in a month or 288,000,000 pounds per year. A production of 288,000,000 pounds of butter is needed to take the pace of nuco production, he told the meeting.—Star-Mirror.

Won Lincoln Medal

The Lincoln medal, which is given for the best essay on Lincoln, every year at the Kendrick high school, was won by Hester Knepper. There were nine contestants. The Judges were Messdames Newton, Daubenberg and Carlson. The following is the winning essay:

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

"Lives of great men all remind us
We may make our lives sublime,
And departing, leave behind us
Footprints, on the sands of time"
The test is not in how large the footprints seem to be, when they are first imprinted upon the sands, it lies in the length of time they will remain, before they are washed away by the tide of forgetfulness.
There is a man whose name will never die; and who will live forever in our hearts and memories. His footprints remain clearly upon the sands of Time, and are protected by a veil of memory which has been woven with honor, reverence, and love.

Had you happened to be in the neighborhood of Harden County, Kentucky, about the year of 1809, you might have seen a tiny, ordinary baby boy, lying in its mother's arms, sheltered only by a rude hut.

No, there would have been nothing extraordinary in that, but mayhap you might have felt sorry for the tiny boy who had had, and was to have, such a poor chance to prepare himself for the future.

And, you might have felt a tiny spark of interest in this baby, enough, perhaps, to lead you to follow him to Indiana. There, too, you would have felt a pang of sympathy for this seven-year-old boy who was forced to help in the building of a rude cabin, which was to be his shelter for many years. You could not, however, have kept from admiring the boy, who so willingly helped his father.

How sad you would have felt when you saw him weeping over the body of his dead mother, who had been his guiding hand for so long, and yet so short, a time.

And so it would have been, on down through the years. Sorrows, disappointments and short periods of downheartedness, all of which were to prepare his sympathetic and understanding heart for future work. You might have heard reports of his popularity; perhaps, even voted for him to fill the President's chair. Even so, it would have been a great, not to say pleasant, surprise for you to learn that Lincoln, OUR Lincoln, was president of the United States!

After this success, he began his great work. No, not began it in the real meaning of the word; the people were those who began. This time marks the bequining, in the lives of the people, of a realization of his greatness.

With sudden thought, we come abruptly to a question which should have much to do with his character. Was he a Christian? Each person must answer this question for himself, according to his own standards. We doubtfully quote from the "International Encyclopedia": "He was never a member of the church; indeed, he is believed to even have doubted the divinity of Christ." Yet, it is only fair that we should consider the meaning of the word "Christian." Christian means more than just belief, it is Christ-likeness.

It is often said that Lincoln is homely. What is there homely about his countenance? Is there any deceitful, any cruel or indifferent look upon his face? It may be compared to a mirror, in which we find reflected: love, understanding, honor, consideration, simpleness, loyalty, and courage.

Now, we may look back over his life and see in what his greatest works were expressed. First, we have his face, an unflinching mirror of thoughts and deeds. Second, his thoughts, which were many and so beautiful that we find them written everywhere. Third, his deeds, with which everyone should be familiar, and which are so great that we cannot find words to express them. And, fourth, his words, with which he expressed his thoughts, an example of which we find in his great Gettysburg Address.

All his life was centered around one thing, which may be expressed in one word, which is—SERVICE.

His tragic death occurred on the morning of April fifteenth, twenty minutes past seven. The fatal shot, which caused his death, was fired the night before, while he was attending a play, in one of the local theatres. The assassin, whose name may well be forgotten, leaped upon the stage and cried, "Sic semper tyrannis" (Always thus with tyrants), "the South is avenged." Lincoln was carried to a nearby house, and all possible was done to save him. However, early the next morning, his soul passed on to the great beyond, leaving behind a footprint, which will remain forever.

His body rests at Springfield, Massachusetts. Over his tomb, General Grant spoke the following words, "In his death the nation lost its greatest hero; in his death the South lost its most just friend."

Studies in English
By Wickliffe R. Smith

In order to be beautiful a sentence must have unity—must contain but one principal thought and that thought should be expressed in the main proposition. The mind can contemplate but one leading subject at a time. If other subjects are introduced, they distract the attention and a weak and confused impression is the result. In every composition the style should be fitted to the theme, the sound of the words to the sense, and a rhythmic, musical effect produced.

Synonyms

Vacant, Empty: A vacant house is unoccupied; an empty house has no contents. Thieves took the furniture from a vacant office. The bucket was empty.

Sure—Certain: Of these two words sure is the stronger. I am sure the sun is in the sky today because I see it. I am certain it will be there tomorrow.

Beautiful—Pretty—Handsome. We speak of a beautiful landscape, a beautiful woman; a pretty hat or a pretty girl; a handsome house.

SELECT GOOD BULL FOR BEEF CALVES

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Buying a good herd bull is the first step in growing better beef calves at much less cost per pound, says the United States Department of Agriculture. In common or native cow herds, calves sired by pure-bred bulls weigh on an average about 125 pounds a head more, when one year old, than calves of the same age sired by the average run of scrub bulls, and they will sell for about two cents a pound more as stockers and feeders. Two-year-old steers sired by good pure-bred bulls weigh on an average about 200 pounds more a head than steers sired by scrub bulls, and sell for considerably more as stockers and feeders.

There is practically no difference in the cost of feed for the two classes of calves up to the yearling age, but from that time on grades develop more capacity and require more feed than scrubs. The difference in cost of feed, however, is a very small item when the values are taken into consideration. The big difference lies in the type of bull used.

Having selected a good bull, he should be the best-cared-for individual in the herd. Not only should he have special feed at times, but he should be kept in a separate paddock or lot and should not have the freedom of the herd except during limited seasons of the year. Unless a special lot can be provided, some means of giving the bull exercise should be devised.

The bull should be well fed during all seasons, but especially so just previous to the breeding season. His ration may consist of roughages mainly, but a small quantity of grain also should be used. The exact quantities of feed that should be given depend largely upon the size, age, and individuality of the animal, and the ration must be varied according to requirements. As a general rule excessive quantities of silage should not be fed to a bull doing heavy service. A safe rule to follow is to feed one-half as much silage as would constitute a full ration for an average cow.

Prevent Pig-Eating by Proper Feed and Care

A sow's desire to eat her pigs may result from a number of causes, although it is not natural for a sow to destroy her young. When the sow is constipated she becomes feverish, develops an abnormal craving or appetite and may kill her pigs and eat them. To prevent this condition the sow should be properly fed during pregnancy. Linseed oil meal in the ration will aid in keeping the bowels regulated. In extreme cases of constipation salts should be used.

The afterbirth should be removed promptly from the pen and burned or buried. If left in the pen the sow is likely to devour it and as the scent of the newly born pigs is similar, some of them may also be eaten.

A sow that has acquired the habit of eating her pigs should be watched carefully to see that her bowels are working properly. When she farrows, rub each pig with a cloth saturated with kerosene so that they will have the smell of the oil. Great care should be taken not to put too much on the pigs as it will blister the skin. When the sow's nose detects the odor of kerosene she will decide not to eat the pigs.

Permanent Pastures for Wintering Beef Cattle

The secret of economical beef production is the maintaining of the breeding herd cheaply—and at the same time keeping them in a thrifty condition during winter. It is true that every farmer has his particular problems relative to feeding and management. However, the following suggestions made by Prof. L. V. Starkey, chief of the animal husbandry division at Clemson college, may throw some light on the problems which confront the farmer engaged in raising beef cattle.

The beef herd should be kept on permanent pastures as long as these pastures are sufficient to practically maintain the normal weight. As soon as the permanent pastures become exhausted as a result of frost or otherwise, the cattle should be turned in the velvet bean fields from which the crop has been snapped. The cattle should be left in the bean fields as long as they maintain their normal weight. If rye pasture is available they may then be turned on this pasture. In this way the herd may be put through the winter with practically no additional feed.

Saving Little Pigs

More of the little pigs can be saved by equipping the farrowing pen with fenders and by giving better rations to the sows. Over half of the 34 per cent usually lost will be saved by these precautions alone.

It costs $12.57 to feed a sow from breeding to weaning time of her pigs. Why feed ten sows to get 50 pigs when by a little extra care six or seven will produce as many with a saving of $50 besides the labor?

SEASONABLE DISHES

At this time of the year when pears are plentiful they may be used for breakfast fruit, baked; as a dessert for dinner and a salad for luncheon. They are especially nice baked with a bit of grated lemon rind, butter and a few teaspoonfuls of the lemon juice with sugar to sweeten.

Bake plain and serve with cream for a breakfast fruit, or if ripe and good flavor, the fresh fruit is delicious.

For a salad the combination of ripe tomatoes and pears cut into quarters then into eighths and again sliced, is good; serve with a rich mayonnaise. Pickled, canned and preserved pears are so well known and liked that they need not be mentioned. In winter the canned pears cut into halves make such tasty desserts and salads.

Salmon Souffle.—Season one can of flaked salmon with salt, paprika and two teaspoonfuls of lemon juice. Cook one-half cupful of bread crumbs with one-half cupful of milk five minutes. Add the salmon, the yolks of three eggs beaten thick, then cut and fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Turn into a buttered baking dish, set into a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven. Serve with:

Spanish Sauce.—Melt three tablespoonfuls of butter, add three tablespoonfuls of flour, stir until well blended, then pour on gradually one cupful of milk and one-half cupful of cream. When boiling add one-half cupful of tomatoes put through a sieve, one teaspoonful of salt, a dash of cayenne and paprika.

Cheese Straws.—Roll out any small pieces of leftover pastry very thin, cover with grated cheese, season with a dash of cayenne; fold up in thirds, folding in the cheese, roll again into a long narrow sheet, cut into strips and bake in a hot oven.

Turnovers may be made with small pieces of leftover crust. These are good for the lunch basket, as they are easier to carry without crushing than ordinary cut pie. Pastry shells are dainty small receptacles for holding preserves, jams or sweetened fresh fruit. Line small gem pans and bake.

Plan to Reduce Expense by Employing Farm Power

That farm power and labor cost too much is the conclusion reached by agricultural engineers of the Pennsylvania State college. Under the leadership of R. U. Blasingame, head of the college farm machinery department, part of the 1,800 acres of college farm land will be devoted to an experiment to reduce these costs.

So far as is known the Pennsylvania State college is the first agricultural experiment station to put aside part of its farm for power farming experiments with a research engineer devoting full time to the work. H. B. Josephson, a graduate of Saskatchewan university and the Iowa State college, is in active charge. A four-year rotation of corn, oats, wheat and hay, will be used in the experiments.

"With power and labor constituting 65 per cent of the cost of producing corn crops, we felt that some means should be employed to decrease this burden," says Blasingame. "Figures collected on 116 farms in Lancaster county in 1923 gave that average. Interest, depreciation, taxes, insurance, seed, fertilizer, marketing, and profit composed the other 35 per cent." It is hoped that a substantial reduction will be obtained by means of the plans used in the experiments.

"House" and "Home"

A house is built of stone and brick, of pliers and posts and sills, but a home is built of loving deeds and endearing associations that last throughout hundreds of years. A house, though only a humble cottage, may within its modest walls hold a home, like a priceless gem in a ring, rich in affection's eternal gold.

TONIGHT and Saturday

Created a sensation when published in the Cosmopolitan Magazine. An action story of the West that is entirely different from anything ever attempted. Overflowing with such thrills as a stampede of 10,000 cattle; the most striking spectacle ever filmed. Fast action, tense drama, a remarkably well chosen cast. Sweeps along like a prairiefire to a never-to-be-forgotten climax.

LION THOUGHTS

"You have a family history," said Mother Lioness to the three lion cubs.

"What's a family history?" asked the little boy lion named Bill.

"Yes, what is a family history?" asked the two sister lion cubs.

"A family history," said Mother Lioness, "is the story of the family to which you belong. We can go far back with our family history. And because you are fine lions, with African great-grandfathers and even grandfathers you're considered most important."

"Is that the reason we had our photographs taken?" asked the boy cub.

"Yes," said Mother Lioness, "they took your pictures as you were in that beautiful basket with flags surrounding it."

"You were going to be pictured in the newspapers and you were going to be pictured in the movies. For, listen, cubs, this is your history."

Your great-grandfather was named Leo and your great-grandmother was named Rose and they both came from Africa.

"Your grandfather and grandmother were both born on this side of the Atlantic ocean though their parents were African. And so were your father and I, your mother. Yes, I was born here in the same zoo.

"Your father's name is Bill, and so you, young Bill, are named after him, and your mother's name, my name, is Rose the Second.

"So you see what a fine family you come from and you will live to be as fine, too. For they like our family in the zoo. We've lived here a good long time, we've eaten our meals, we've nourished our thanks, we've never given any trouble to speak of—and so we're a nice family of lions."

"We're a nice family of lions," repeated the little cubs as they curled up and went to sleep, for they were still very, very young, and sleep was such a wonderful thing.

But in the yard next door another lioness known as Queen Lioness was roaring for she was very angry.

"I want to be free, free," she was roaring. "I want to hunt and kill. I want to look for my own dinner. I want to find it myself. I don't want to have it given to me by a keeper."

"I don't want to live in a cage or a yard. I want to walk through the forests where it is wild and where I used to live."

"I want to go back and see my lion friends and not have boys and girls looking at me and laughing when I roar. Oh, that is such an insult—to be laughed at when I give my great and glorious roars."

"Queen Lioness," said King Lion, as he waved his head and looked down admiringly at his name, "you had better be thankful."

"Thankful for what, I'd like to know," said Queen Lioness. "I won't be thankful. I won't be. I won't be." And she roared more than ever so that the children who were visiting the zoo didn't laugh but looked a little bit frightened.

"There," said King Lion, "the children aren't laughing at you. They're actually frightened."

"Good," said Queen Lioness. "Just as they should be!"

"But you should be thankful," said King Lion again.

"For what I should like to know?" asked Queen Lioness, as she stopped pacing up and down her cage.

"You should be thankful that here we are liked and admired. Back in Africa where we came from they're killing our families off and driving us away."

"They are living where we used to live. They're building, and tearing down our wooded homes."

"They don't care for us for neighbors, so they're driving us out."

"But here in the zoo they admire us and think we are handsome and should be well treated."

"I won't be thankful," said Queen Lioness, "for it is not my nature. You're not as wild as I am, so you may be thankful if you want to be. But I'm too much of a lioness to be thankful even if I should be," she roared.

Snakeroot Is Poisonous and Will Kill Cattle

White snakeroot is a poisonous plant that is causing some loss to cattle owners in Iowa, according to reports coming in to Iowa State college. A number of calves died in a pasture near Avoca as a result of eating white snakeroot.

Flowers of white snakeroot are white, about one-fourth to one-third of an inch in diameter, and are produced in clusters. The plants grow from two to three feet tall. The leaves are two or three inches long and are ovate in shape. White snakeroot is related to boneset, a plant the pioneers used in making a tea for medicinal purposes. It is very common in wooded pastures and is found in almost every part of the state. If there is fear of the plant being present, cattle should be kept out of wooded pastures.

Cattle have consumed the plant this year partly because of the dry weather and resultant short pastures, according to Dr. L. H. Pammel, head of the botany department, Iowa State college. Cattle are said to show trembles when poisoned by white snakeroot, and the milk from the cows eating this weed is considered injurious to man.

Charm of Brick House

Europe has been a land of brick houses for hundreds of years and America is rapidly emerging from the "Woolen Age." Many a traveler has returned from abroad with tales of the picturesque homes of England, quite unaware that the underlying cause of their charm lies in the material—solid, dignified brick—the appeal of which has only been enhanced by years of sunshine and storm.

PAINT

Sherwin-Williams Prepared Paint

Sherwin-Williams Paints are the most durable and economical paints that can be made. It cost less per job and wears longer than any other paint, either ready prepared or mixed by hand. It is made in one quality only and that is the best.
 The man who buys the raw material and prepares a paint himself, cannot possibly make a paint equal to Sherwin-Williams. It is a case of hand work against mechanical efficiency; human guess-work against exact scientific formulas: hand-stirring against fine machine grinding.
 We carry a complete stock of the well known Sherwin-Williams paints and we will appreciate the opportunity to sell you your paint.
