Fruit Prospects

Burnham Dustan, of Dustan & Son, owners of the local cannery, was up one day this week looking over the cherry and tomato situation. He says the fruit prospects are best he has ever seen, especially in this so as regards cherries, apricots and peaches.—Juliaetta.

Heavy Tourist Travel

Tourists by the thousands will pass this way this summer and fall. With improved roads, the Potlatch country may expect a greater influx of pleasure seekers than ever before. This section offers all the outing pleasures the tourist craves—scenery, cool shade, mountain streams and good fishing—and none of the discomforts, such as mosquitoes, ticks, flies, chiggers and the like that infest so many mountain sections. There are no sudden storms with lightning, thunder and wind to terrify and endanger campers.—Deary Press.

Practically 95 per cent of the cherry crop in this district was killed by the heavy frost of Thursday night, last week, in the opinion of E. K. Kroh, deputy horticultural inspector and local orchardist. The freeze was one of the hardest, in the opinion of Mr. Kroh, that has occurred here in many years, after the fruit trees were in bloom. Mr. Kroh is of the opinion that the plums and prunes are also badly injured.

The buds and blossoms on the cherry trees were frozen black Friday morning. The Palouse country cherry crop was practically destroyed last year by a late frost. The cherry crop, when the yield is up to normal, is the source of considerable revenue in the Moscow district.—Star-Mirror.

Clarkston Defeats Kendrick

Contrary to expectations, Kendrick went down to defeat at Clarkston last Sunday and lost the first game of the Valley League schedule, by a score of 7 to 3. Six errors on the part of Kendrick's outfield were largely responsible for Clarkston's runs.

Up to the fifth inning the score was tied, 2 to 2. Clarkston then ran in three on errors. In the 6th inning Boyd, Davis and Jack Fleshman were substituted for H. Flaig, Bolon and Brown.

MASS MEETING OF FARMERS SATURDAY

Two-County Gathering to Discuss Farm Relief Measures

With local farmers opposing the Tincher, or administration farm relief bill, and favoring the corn belt farm relief bill, which is now before the house as the Haugen bill, a mass meeting of farmers of Latah county, Idaho and Whitman county, Washington, has been called for Saturday, May 1, at 1:30 in the Farmers Union hall, to discuss farm relief legislation, and to endorse the bill which it is believed will be productive of the greatest good for the wheat farmers.

The meeting is called by the Idaho Export Commission League, G. P. Mix, president, and George Sievers, secretary, and invitations are being sent out through the newspapers and to individual farmers, urging a large attendance.

Mr. Mix states that much information has been secured relative to the various bills and it is desired to bring this to the attention of the farmers and to discuss their merits and give the endorsement of the meeting to the measure which it is thought will be most effective in bringing relief. Mr. Mix states that the Tincher bill would, in his opinion and in the opinion of other farmers who have studied it, be of little benefit to the farmers, and is more in the nature of an effort to sidetrack the real issue. The corn belt bill, he believes, would accomplish the results which was before congress two years ago, and which had strong support in Idaho, and in support of which the Export Commission League was organized.

Western senators are in favor of the corn belt farm relief bill, or a bill comprising its main provisions, and have gone on record as opposing adjournment of congress until action is taken on this or a similar bill.

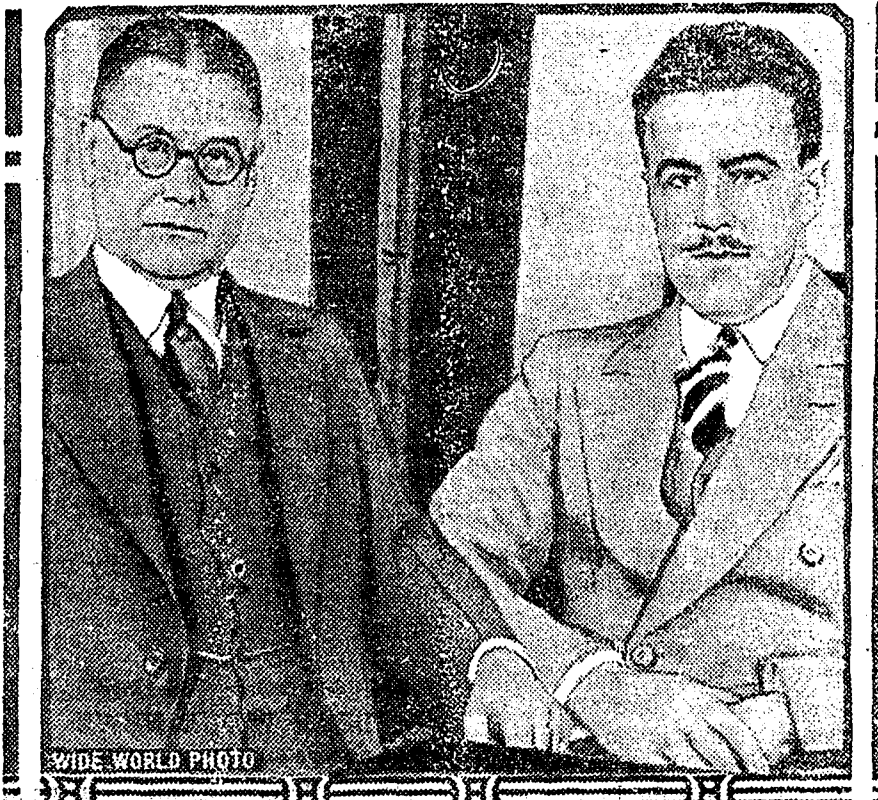

Attention of the farmers in the two counties is called to the importance of the meeting Saturday and a large attendance is urged.

Senior Play Pleases

A packed house greeted the high school play "And Home Came Ted," shown at the New Kendrick Theater, Wednesday evening. The play was a mystery comedy in three acts and was full of clever situations which were put over in a very creditable manner by the members of the cast. The cast of characters was made up from all four classes in high school. The characters in the order of their appearance were:

Skeet Kelley the hotel clerk characterized by Carl Sparber, who had a heavy part and was one of the star performers. Diana Garwood the heiress was played by Miss Ernestine Callison whose stage appearance was very good and her part carried out in a pleasing manner. Miss Loganberry the spinster was represented by Miss Hazel Stanton. Her part was full of comedy and she carried it through nicely in every detail. Claud Cook as the villain had rather a difficult part but had it well in hand. Clarice Leith, the fairest of blonds, as Aunt Jubilee the Cook showed marked ability. Her makeup was a complete disguise. Mr. Man the Mystery was a popular character and was taken by William Brown, who presented a fine characterization of the hero of the piece. Herbert Schwarz had a dual part and in the last act was particularly good in the disguise as a deaf, old man. Alberta Walker was the star of the cast as Mollie Macklin the housekeeper. She had a heavy part and was exceptionally good.

Maud Compton made a very pretty little widow as Henrietta Darby. Elbert Long is a handsome young fellow and as Ted the Groom looked the part. His bride, Elsie, was played by Grace Plummer who handled her part nicely. Walter Sparber appeared in the last act as Senator M'Corke the father. His makeup was very good although he had a light part.

The scene was the office and reception room of the Rip Van Winkle Inn in the Catskill mountains.

"Why is it Sam, that one never hears of a ducky committing suicide?" "Well, you see, it's disaway, boss. If a white pusson has any trouble he sets down and gits a-studin' and a-studin' an' a-worryin' an' a-worryin'." "Then frs' thing, bang! he done killed hisse'f. But when a nigger sets down to think 'bout his troubles, why, 'e jes' nacherly goes to sleep."

IDAHO UNIVERSITY FARM CALENDAR

Specialists Write on Subjects of Interest

Dairying

This is clean-up season on the dairy farm. If possible, all painting or whitewashing should be done soon before flies become numerous. Almost any kind of barn can be made clean and attractive if the farmer wishes to have it so. If paint is too expensive a coat of whitewash at this time not only makes possible the production of cleaner milk but will give the dairyman reason to take greater pride in his business. Some even whitewash fences around paddocks, which gives an appearance of thrift and pride in ownership.—F. W. Atkeson.

Agromony

The cultural treatment for the first alfalfa seed crop is much different from that of subsequent crops. The stand is usually fairly thin and the rooting system has not developed to the point where cultivation and holding back of growth are necessary. It is best to keep the plant growing normally the first year. Applications of water should be light and fairly frequent, but not more than just enough to keep the plant making a slow, healthy growth. The color of the plant should be medium to dark green at all times.—A. E. McClymonds.

Poultry

It is poor policy to take up range with young pullets or cockerels that have little hopes of making profitable producers or breeders. Cockerels to be kept as breeders should be selected and given free range. Some of the breeders may be culled out every few weeks so that by fall only the select males will be left.—R. T. Parkhurst.

Short Courses Announced

Two bulletins describing short courses to be offered by the University of Idaho collage of agriculture during the year 1926-27 have just come from the press and are now available.

One publication is the annual announcement of the School of Practical Agriculture in which are given detailed descriptions of the regular courses in practical agriculture, commercial dairying, and auto mechanics. The other is a four page folder giving general information on these three courses and, in addition, on the poultry short course, and the farmers' tractor short course.

Either publication, or both, may be secured by addressing the Director, School of Practical Agriculture, University of Idaho, Moscow.

Lewiston Industrial Celebration

Lewiston is making elaborate preparation for an industrial celebration to be held on May 14 in commemoration of the beginning of construction work on the Weyerhaeuser mill and the power dam and forebay dyke.

The building of the mill is already under way and contractors are erecting their plants and their equipment for the dam and dyke construction. It is assured by the Lewiston celebration committee that the construction plants and equipment will be complete by the date of the celebration.

These will be the show features to be offered but the committee has promised some real entertainment with prominent speakers, plenty of music and a big street pageant that will present the story of the inland country from the first coming of the white man to the present day.

The celebration will have a colorful setting because of the annual Shrine circus that opens on the preceding day and the circus management will furnish the entertainment on the evening of the celebration.

A friend of mine bought a gramophone, for a dollar down and a dollar a week. (This is the easiest graft I've known— This dollar down and a dollar a week). So he bought a chair and a fountain pen, a runabout car and a stove; and then, a set of the "Lives of Famous Men," for a dollar down and a dollar a week. Then he bought two brand new radio sets. For a dollar down and a dollar a week; And a dozen cartons of cigarettes, for a dollar down and a dollar a week. Then he bought a ring that was fair to see, for the lily-white hand of his bride-to-be; And after the wedding the minister's fee. Was a dollar down and a dollar a week. Then he bought a house for his

SCHOOL AND OIL STIRS NAVAJOS

Wealth Enables Them to Buy Civilization.

San Juan Indian Agency, Ariz.—Oil and education are leaving the stamp of their influence on the Navajo Indians.

Wealth from the one is enabling them to "buy" civilization, and education teaches desires. Soon, it is to be expected, the Navajos will be as affluent as the Osages in Oklahoma.

The Indian agency has been kept busy providing schools for the brown-skinned Navajo youngsters. A. H. Kneale, superintendent of the reservation, reports the San Juan school capacity was doubled in the last year, and 650 children now are taught the ways of the white man. The San Juan schools teach only six grades. Three hundred and fifty higher students are scattered in Indian institutions throughout the West.

Most of the first-graders have never been out of sight of their own "hogans"—family dwellings. They have never worn shoes nor hats, never eaten at a table, nor ever seen a stove, picture, newspaper or chair.

"The children have never eaten what a civilized person would call a meal," Mr. Kneale said. "They have thrived on beef and horse meat, goats' milk and corn cakes, served on the dirt floors of the 'hogans.' They do not know what sanitation and hygiene are, and they have not seen the simplest tools that make civilized people comfortable. But they learn quickly."

The Navajos have a natural aptitude for agriculture and stock raising. Far back in history they were not famous as warriors, but as tillers of the soil. Today they are shepherds, shepherds of 170,000 individually owned sheep. The name Navajo was given by the Spaniards and means "people of large fields."

Mr. Kneale said the adults were quickly taking up the civilization the new generation takes home from school. Modern machinery is being used for farming and the "hogans" are being transformed into houses.

The oil which now is pouring wealth into the laps of the Navajos was discovered four years ago, but inaccessibility prevented rapid development. Thirty-six wells have since been drilled, most of them good producers. A small pipeline has been completed to Farmington, N. M. A larger pipeline is projected. The Navajos receive a royalty of 12½ per cent.

Arkansas Deed Gives Land to Jesus Christ

Hardy, Ark.—The most singular instrument ever recorded in Sharp county was filed a few days ago. The instrument is a warranty deed executed by Clarence H. Powell of Jefferson, Iowa, to the Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ, conveying 100 acres several miles northeast of here.

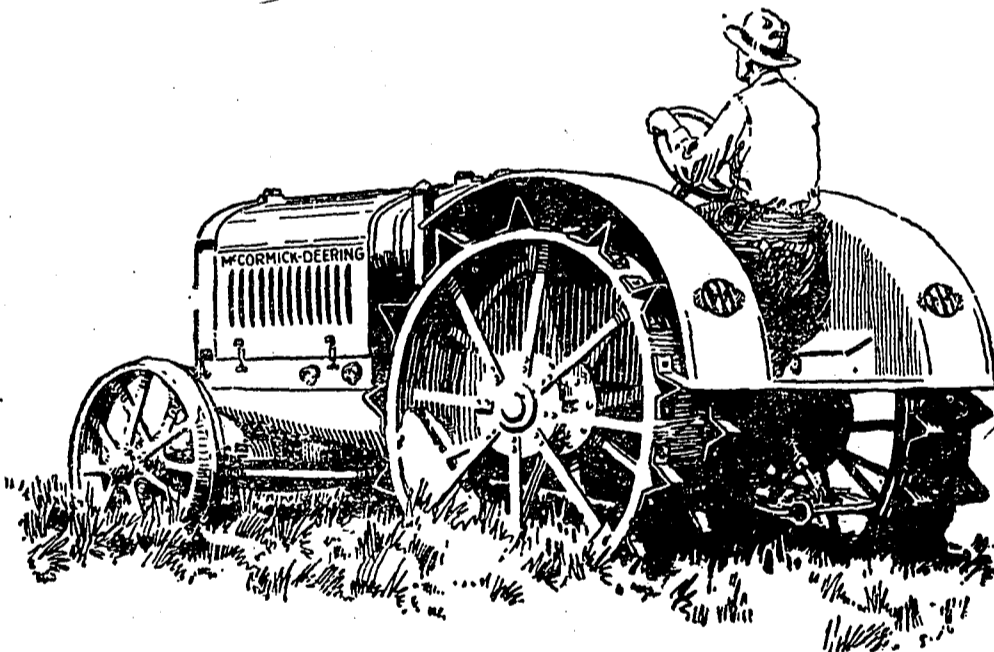

The deed is regular in every way except that it reads "for and in consideration of the death and penalty all people inherited being hereby acknowledged paid by our Lord, Redeemer and Savior, Jesus Christ, who bought the right to possess and control the earth and all things pertaining thereto, I hereby surrender all claim of right and ownership to the lands herein described."

After giving a description of the lands conveyed, the deed recites: "The Savior secured the right of possession and control of the earth by all proper methods known. First, by participating in the creation of all things; second, by inheritance; third, by gift; fourth, by purchase at the cost of His life."

The deed was made on February 16 and acknowledged before J. L. Lindsey, a notary public of Greene county, Iowa, and witnessed by J. E. Watson and W. H. Young.

Might Have Been Worse

A man committed suicide because he proposed to two girls and both of them rejected him. Well, look how much worse off he'd be now if both had accepted him.—New York American.

This Year, Win with Power --- and Machines to Match!

From the standpoint of effort the tractor owner has an easy time compared with the other fellow. He does not have to crack the whip over tired and weary horses. He has no chores to do. He has full power and full efficiency at his command at all times, regardless of heat and dust and flies. His tractor and tools may be made to work thru twenty-four hours a day, if the season demands such extra speed, with utmost efficiency.

Remember, your earnings come from what you actually do and not from the amount of time you spend plodding behind unwieldy teams. Hired labor costs you the same for inefficient outfits as for money-making tractor outfits. The difference shows up in your profits at the end of the year. That is one important reason why so many farmers are discarding their ungainly, inefficient teams and adopting McCormick-Deering tractors and power farming equipment.

McCormick-Deering tractors and machines are built to work together. You can choose your machines and plan your work so as to keep your tractor busy practically every day, accomplishing from two to four times as much as is possible with hores drawn tools.

THIRD OF DRUNKEN DRIVERS ARE FREED
Public Officials Lax, Says Safety Director.

Washington.—Thirty-three per cent of drunken automobile drivers go unpunished by the authorities, is the startling statement made here by Marcus A. Dow, director of the Stewart-Warner safety council for the prevention of automobile accidents, who was here to attend the national conference on street and highway safety, called by Secretary Hoover of the Commerce department and which opened its sessions in the United States Chamber of Commerce building.

Mr. Dow, who presented to the Hoover conference many other startling facts he has discovered in his many years of safety work, has just completed a survey of the death-dealing automobile with the assistance of the chiefs of police in 185 cities and towns which he is compiling for the Stewart-Warner safety council of Chicago to be used in his nationwide campaign to help cut down the tremendous death toll due to automobile accidents. In an interview prior to the opening of the three-day conference Mr. Dow revealed some of the high spots in his investigation.

Are Contributing Factor.
"In the survey of the contributing causes to automobile accidents, said Mr. Dow, "it has been made clear that drunken and reckless drivers of automobiles are numerous enough to be a big contributing factor to the street and highway accident record of the United States. The record of arrests shows this class of drivers to be an actual and grave menace throughout the entire nation, while adequate punishment of offenders is conspicuously lacking. The failure to punish is the most regrettable part of this serious situation."

"I have just received reports from the chiefs of police of 185 cities and towns which show that 14,505 persons were arrested for driving automobiles while intoxicated in 1925 and 148,768 arrests were made for speeding or reckless driving where no intoxication was charged. These cities covered in my survey represent 34 states and the District of Columbia. The population of the towns and cities on which this estimate is made totals 15,000,000.

"The most amazing fact revealed in these reports is that 33 per cent of the drunken drivers arrested received no punishment, their cases being either discharged or sentence suspended. We found that only 21 per cent arrested for intoxication were sent to jail and 46 per cent fined. Of those arrested for speeding or reckless driving and who were not drunk only 46 per cent were fined and 1 per cent sent to jail.

124,000 Drivers Drunk.
"Assuming that the same conditions exist in all the other cities and towns of the United States as are found in those covered in the Stewart-Warner safety council survey, which is a reasonable assumption, there were at some time last year more than 124,000 persons driving automobiles in the streets and highways of the country while drunk. The number guilty of speeding and reckless driving where no intoxication was involved would include 5 per cent of the motorists of the United States.

"Every automobile with an intoxicated driver at the wheel becomes a potential death car, and every car in the hands of a reckless driver a deadly weapon. It is obvious that if the automobile death and injury record is to be improved and the streets and highways made safer for the people there must be a decided tightening up in the enforcement of law against drunken and reckless drivers, which our survey demonstrates is sadly lacking throughout the country generally."

Mr. Dow found just one bright spot in the course of his investigation. That was in Florida. At Jacksonville 192 persons were arrested for driving cars while intoxicated and every one of them was punished.

WHY? You Tell It!

City of 500 B. C. Found on Moscow Outskirts

Moscow.—Russian archeologists have discovered on the outskirts of Moscow the remains of an ancient city, believed to date from the fifth century before Christ, when stone tools were just beginning to be replaced by metal implements.

Iron arrows, knives, glass bracelets, bone combs, and gold and silver jewelry were unearthed. Several examples of primitive pottery bearing designs for textiles also were found.

The main occupation of the inhabitants, the archeologists say, was cattle breeding, hunting having played a minor role. Traces of an ancient krenlin also were excavated.

JAPANESE STREET RITES ENTERTAIN

Novel Ceremonies by Youths Attract Visitors.

Tokyo.—Youths clad in little more than pleasant smiles are to be seen running through the streets of Tokyo and other Japanese cities. They are a source of amusement to visiting foreigners.

But there is a reason. They are apprentices and young workmen practicing the "misugori" or age-old water purification rites in Fudo temples to improve through the grace of that particular god, their craftsmanship.

Their costumes look like abbreviated Ku Klux Klan robes, without the mask. They are only white cotton cloths, loosely thrown about cold-hardened bodies, and other smaller cloths wound around the head. Cotton cloth shoes are worn but legs are bare.

As they run through the streets, usually in groups, the youths carry Japanese lanterns, and tinkling bells herald their approach and they chant "Rokkon Shojo," a prayer in which they ask to be cleaned of the six roots of evil.

Sometimes there are women among them. Years ago the apprentices wore nothing except loin cloths. The flimsy cotton garb worn now is not for warmth but to comply with police regulations.

These religious pilgrims start from their homes shortly after dinner. They meet in appointed places and then begin their marathon to the nearest Fudo temple. As they run they keep their minds on their rites and they indulge in no boyish caprices. They chant unceasingly.

When the runners reach the temple they assemble at the well in the temple compound. Here they cast aside their single cloths and pour cold water over themselves from the tops of their heads. Then they offer prayer to Fudo. Hot amasake, a sweet, non-alcoholic drink made from rice, is served to the pilgrims by the temple authorities and the homeward trip begun, with the same chanting and tinkling of bells.

Even if their prayers are not answered, the followers of Fudo believe, their scantily clad exercises give them endurance, hardiness and healthy circulation of the blood. Wind, rain and snow do not interfere with the practicing of the rites and few of these devout believers suffer any illness from exposure.

SCIENTIST TO HUNT PORPOISE WITH GUN

Hopes to Get Specimens Off Florida Coast.

Washington, D. C.—To shoot porpoises as they come into the shallow waters is the unusual aim of a scientific expedition to the Gulf of Mexico, undertaken by Dr. Gerrit S. Miller, Jr., mammalogist of the Smithsonian Institution.

Fishermen of Cedar Keys, Fla., report that herds of this sea-going mammal have a habit of coming into shallow water at low tide. Thus, if they can be shot, the shallowness of the water will prevent their being lost to the hunter.

It is believed the species of porpoise which makes its home along the western shores of Florida has certain distinctive characteristics, about which scientists are not clear. To decide this point is the purpose of Doctor Miller's collecting expedition.

Porpoises are, of course, mammals; that is, they are members of the same large group of animals to which man himself belongs, the distinguishing characteristic of which is that the young of every one of its members must be fed on milk. The porpoise is really a small-toothed whale. Its teeth are peculiar in their shape, which very much resembles an inverted flower bulb. It feeds upon fish and squid. Its sociable and gregarious nature is revealed in its habit of traveling in herds, so frequently seen from ocean liners.

In former times, the porpoise formed a common article of food in England and France, but it is now rarely if ever eaten, being valuable only for the oil obtained from its blubber. Its skin is sometimes used for leather and boot thong.

Doctor Miller will also do much plant collecting for the national herbarium, which is also under the direction of the Smithsonian. The northwestern section of Florida has been rather neglected by botanists.

Doctor Miller, who has been with the Smithsonian for nearly thirty years, occupies a position in the forefront of his science. It was he who, in 1894, introduced to the British museum the new technique in the study of mammalogy which had been evolved by Dr. C. Hart Merriam, at that time head of the United States biological survey. This new technique has since revolutionized the science of mammalogy throughout the world.

Pigeon Steals Ride in Auto to Deliver Message

Washington.—The navy's pet pigeon story about a carrier bird that went away from a Canal Zone station for a year and then returned to duty was capped in an official report from San Diego of an aerial messenger which stole a 40-mile automobile ride to deliver its message. The San Diego pigeon arrived at the navy station there perched on an automobile driven by Mrs. Evelyn Johnson of San Diego, who said it had boarded the machine at Oceanside, 40 miles away. It drew rations, rested a bit and then took the air to make its home port at a nearby naval aviation station under its own power.

'Gators Eat Dynamite; Halt War on Lizards

Beaumont, Texas.—War on alligators in the marsh district of Cameron parish, Louisiana, has been called off temporarily since it has developed that dynamite missing from the camp of oil prospectors making seismic tests has been eaten by the 'gators.

A post mortem on one of the big lizards revealed several sticks in his stomach and trappers are apprehensive of the results should a bullet come in contact with one of these choice morsels of alligator dessert.

The surlans are being killed as a protective measure against destruction of muskrats, which are valuable for their fur crop.

Find Tapestries Worth

$2,000,000 in Attic

Venice.—Ten early gothic tapestries, estimated to be worth $2,000,000, have been found in the upper attic of St. Mark's cathedral by Dr. Phyllis Ackerman and Prof. Arthur Upham Pope, advisory curator, in Mohammedan art to the Chicago Art Institute.

The two Americans discovered the tapestries hidden under coarse burlap hangings.

Doctor Ackerman is of the opinion the tapestries were made about 1430. She pointed out that they have borders, an important feature as it hitherto has been assumed that early tapestries were without borders.

Another unusuality is the use of a shade of rich violet and black background against which the strong reds and greens of the costumes stand out vividly.

The set obviously was made for the choir of the cathedral and probably found their way to the attic during the Renaissance, because of opposition against gothic art.

Only One Man Can Wear Hat in King's Presence

London.—Michael Constantine de Courcy, Baron Kingsale, is the only man in the United Kingdom who may, if he wishes, keep on his hat in the presence of the king.

The peer enjoys this curious privilege by virtue of an hereditary prerogative granted to Sir John de Courcy in the reign of King John, for conquering Ulster. History records that this privilege has been exercised five times, the last occasion being 1859 when John de Courcy, successor to Gerald, Lord Kingsale, stood with his head covered in the presence of Queen Victoria.

Rarefied Air Used for Killing Moths

Washington.—Mountain climbers and aviators are familiar enough with the disabling and even deadly effect of rarefied air, but it has remained for scientists to utilize this air in beneficial ways.

E. A. Back and R. T. Cotton of the Department of Agriculture have first reported on the work they and others have done in using rarefied air to kill insects in stored articles subject to their depredations. They have found that moths and other insects inside a locked trunk may be killed by exposure for a few days to atmosphere from one-fifth to one-thirtieth of normal.

A trunk was placed in a vault from which almost all the air was exhausted and after two days all the moths were found to have been killed and a few days' longer exposure killed other insects.

The method is said to be more effective than fumigation.

ENABLES HUMANS TO USE ANIMAL BLOOD

Exact Transfusion Unnecessary in New Method.

London.—Important experiments on blood transfusion, made by Professor Yourevitch and Mdle. Telegina of Prague, appear to lead to the conclusion that special human blood donors will no longer be required where transfusion is necessary to save a patient's life. The blood of a sheep or a cow might serve the same purpose, and special preparations of solution could be made in advance and kept in bottles until required.

It has long been known that the most important point about blood in regard to transfusion is its specificity. That is to say, a rabbit can only be saved by the injection of the blood of another rabbit. If the blood of a different animal is injected into its tissues it dies immediately. In the case of human beings blood has been divided into four groups. When an injection has to be made the blood of the patient has first to be tested to see which group he belongs to. Only rare individuals of the fourth group can give blood to any of the others with beneficial and not dangerous results.

Separate Red Corpuscles. Professor Yourevitch and his young colleague have opened up an entirely new line of treatment. They separated the red blood corpuscles from the serum by centrifuging methods. They found that the poisonous qualities which on injection have such harmful effects are in the plasma, and that if the separation or "washing" has been thoroughly carried out the red blood corpuscles of an animal of one species can be injected into another without the slightest danger, but on the contrary with completely satisfactory results.

Rabbits which have lost an absolutely fatal quantity of blood could be saved by the injection of sheep's blood which would have been highly poisonous to them, provided only the washed red corpuscles were injected.

A rabbit which had received ten to fifteen cubic centimeters of unwashed ox blood died within five or six minutes. Another rabbit was given similar blood which had been partially washed, added to some of its own. After a period of serious prostration it recovered. But a rabbit which had received only the red blood corpuscles of ox blood, which had been thoroughly washed, recovered completely without any detrimental symptoms.

Animal Blood for Humans. It is confidently suggested by the investigators that in cases where human blood of the right group is not immediately available for transfusion, blood of any other group would be equally beneficial, provided only the washed red corpuscles were used. They also indicate that, in their opinion blood of animals could probably be used in the same manner, if no human blood could be obtained.

It is further stated that a preparation of red blood corpuscles in a salt solution has been kept perfectly in bottles, and that there is no reason why such a preparation could not be made up in a standard manner, and stocked for use according to necessity.

Kendrick, Idaho

Fable

Once upon a time there was a moving picture which portrayed a youthful bachelor's dinner party without introducing a swimming pool, buckets of champagne, bathing girls, toy balloons, silken streamers, half a dozen jazz bands, hundred-dollar bills, concealed beneath the ladies' plates.

Lapwai-Kendrick Game Sunday

The second league game of the season will be played against the Lapwai Indians here Sunday afternoon. A practice game was played here two weeks ago and the teams were rather evenly matched. Local fans look for a hard fought battle Sunday and the game will undoubtedly be worth the money.

Last Sunday the Indians defeated the Lewiston Red Sox by a one score margin in a fast contest at Lapwai. They have a good team and may prove too fast for Kendrick—but we don't believe it.

Pull Out of Mud

When your car gets stuck in the mud and the rear wheels merely spin around and your friends advise you to call for help, get a bunch of newspapers, slip them under the rear wheels, turn on the juice and see the car come out of the mire. Newspapers are great uplifters. When our business gets into a rut, the newspapers will help you out if you use the advertising columns. Great is the power of the press.—Borrowed.

The idea is worthy of consideration.

INTERESTING FACTS OF THE ORIENT

Written for the Gazette by Rev. W. W. Bell

The following splendid article, written for the Gazette by Rev. Wm. Bell, who recently returned from Burma, will no doubt prove interesting to the people of the Potlatch as it contains new ideas and a vivid picture of some of the conditions existing in Burma today.

The lands of Burma and India, two wonderful countries of the East, are today attracting the attention of an ever increasing number of people in the West. Burma, a province of India, situated on the eastern side of the Bay of Bengal and south of China, is the home of world famous teak wood, rubies, rice and rubber.

The old Burmese Empire, with its capital at Pegu, consisted of a territory one-seventh larger than that of France or Germany. It was captured by the English army and has since that time been the means of feeding untold millions of wealth into British hands.

Most every one has aspirations to travel and see the world if ever their ship comes in. While waiting for the ship it might be interesting to think of a little tour one might take in Burma. If one of the travellers of a century ago who might have come up the twenty three miles of the Rangoon river, could repeat his journey today, he would find the great commercial city of Rangoon as much different from the former overgrown Burmese village as the comfortable ocean liner on which he would ride is different from a sailing vessel of a century ago.

Up to the time of British occupancy, the Burman lived with but few contacts with the outside world; the monarchs ruled with little to restrain their barbarous and wasteful despotism; the several hill tribes, fragments of many language groups, fought one another; there was little progress toward anything like the thought and life of the Christian nations. But the opening of Christian missions in 1813 under the leadership of Adoniram Judson, marked the time when Burma came into direct contact with the Christian world.

The natural resources of Burma are practically beyond calculation. The teak wood for building England's ships is brot from the jungle in Burma by the many huge elephants which were originally roaming wild in Upper Burma. These elephants have been trapped by building great stockades and employing large numbers of men to work as "beaters" and form lines describing a circle and gradually closing in toward the stockade, forcing the wild elephants to enter a narrow alley and finally walk into a trap. When tamed they live the rest of their lives in dragging and lifting teak logs for their master.

The rubies which lie buried in Upper Burma are being constantly sought after by enterprising miners from the west. The oil is being pumped by men and machinery from America. The rice is used to feed many nations.

Rangoon, the capital city, like many Oriental trade centers, demonstrates the way people can use the common conveniences of modern invention, can even gain European education and a world view, while their religion lags behind their material progress. They light their shrines with electric lights, ride in their motor cars to worship at mosque, Pagoda or Temple. They wear European clothes at times and eat sitting on the floor. They go from a Buddhist religious festival where superstition rules, to a modern movie where is displayed the worst type of American pictures. They plow their farms with oxen and a stick plow, plant the rice by hand, cut the crop with a sickle, tread out the grain with the oxen, sell the rice to an Englishman, and use the proceeds to buy a costly American automobile. One can see products of the oldest of civilizations being placed right alongside the latest productions of the west. Rich land owners, beggars, college graduates and the most ignorant; the political boss and the political slave; old Chinese with hair braided down the back and young people with bobbed hair, can all be seen on the street anywhere, anytime. In Burma today may be found most everything that comes out of the East and out of the West. One finds the ever rising tide of nationalism being stamped on by the determination to rule a subject people.

The West has penetrated Burma bringing all its equipment, thrift, progress and conquest, but still the sight that is everywhere is the pagoda. It is the shrine or church of Buddhism. It can range in height from three inches to three hundred feet. It is a work of solid masonry with a cone shape. It is usually built of brick and covered with gold leaf. Electric lights illuminate it for many miles at night, and weary travelers throng its base by day. Offerings of candles, food, flowers, etc, are presented by the worshipper who sits for hours appealing to this pile of brick for spiritual relief and help.

Whether one thinks of the paved street or the jungle, the college graduate or the ignorant cooly; the steam shovel or the laboring elephant; the white ants or the midew; the typewriter or the old quill pen and parchment; it only serves to remind us that after all we are brothers and
