Embezzler Sticks Auto Dealer

Sale of the Grill at 413 South Main street and a second-hand automobile during the past week, ostensibly to C. Calvert from Kirtland, Wash., proved disastrous for A. N. Merry, owner of the restaurant, and the Ruddach Motor company, says the Star-Mirror. The sheriff Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday was searching for the man and an unknown woman, a warrant being sworn out against the former for embezzlement of the machine.

The specific charge against Calvert is that of embezzling a Buick sedan from the motor company, for which a check for $1150 was drawn against the First Trust & Savings bank here. Less than $6 was in the bank to cover the draft.

Calvert Thursday agreed to purchase The Grill from Mr. Merry and gave a check for $5,000 in payment, drawn on a Kirtland bank. The check was sent through a Moscow bank for collection and Tuesday a telegram was received declaring the check a forgery.

The man purchased the automobile giving a check dated December 28, but took delivery of the car Sunday. Sometime Monday he left, with the machine and three-day's receipts of the restaurant. Officers of Whitman county reported that he was helped out of a snow-drift Tuesday between Pullman and Colfax, and declared a woman with him was driving a Cadillac car.

Dramatic Poster Tells Graphic Story Of Need in Armenian Quake Zone

THIS dramatic poster by G. Patrick Nelson, prize winner in the thousand dollar contest conducted by Henry Morgenthau for the best poster for the Golden Rule Sunday campaign of the Near East Relief, tells in graphic fashion the story of the Armenian earthquake disaster. Primarily intended to provide funds for the child welfare work of the relief organization in Armenia, Syria, Palestine, Turkey, Persia, and Greece, the Golden Rule Sunday campaign this year will be used to collect funds for the earthquake victims. The disaster not only upset a large part of the reconstructive efforts of the relief organization in Armenia, but it created a vast army of homeless. It is estimated that approximately 80 per cent of the homes in the tiny country were destroyed and people are living in bitter zero weather in rough dugouts, without sufficient food or blankets and practically no fuel.

Hope Chest Contest Winners

Winners of the Hope Chest Contest, put on by the New Kendrick Theatre and the Kendrick Gazette, were announced at the theatre last Saturday night, immediately after the picture program. The first prize, consisting of a chest of Community silverware, was won by Miss Henrietta Blum with 16,035 points. Mrs. Eddie Galloway won the cedar chest, second prize, with 10,970 points. Miss Bonnie Craig was a close third with 10,580 points, winning the aluminum kitchen set.

Judges of the contest were Messrs. Lanphere, Emery and F. F. Dammarrell. They made an official canvass of the ballots and finished the count at the theatre during the progress of the show Saturday night.

The Gazette wishes to express its appreciation for the splendid work of the young ladies engaged in the contest. The number of subscribers added to the goodly number the paper already had, gives it a splendid circulation in the Potlatch territory.

Game Birds Must Be Fed

Farmers of the Rimrock section state that hundreds of game birds are coming to their feed lots and barnyards in search of food since the snow has covered their feeding grounds and that it will be necessary to feed them if they are to survive the winter.

It has also been stated that now is the proper time to destroy magpies. All that is necessary to kill literally hundreds of these destructive birds is to take a thin piece of fresh pork, cut it crosswise and fill it well with strychnine. Nail this up on a post near where the birds congregate and they can easily be destroyed by this poison.

Low Jain says that if this is done, while the snow is on the ground and feed is scarce, there will be from four to six more game birds next year where there is one now, as the magpie lives almost exclusively on the eggs and young birds during the laying and hatching season.

While wheat is being scattered for the game birds, several pieces of well-poisoned tough pork should be put out for the magpies.—Genesee News.

President Coolidge Urges Observance Of International Golden Rule Sunday

President Coolidge again asks America to observe International Golden Rule Sunday. By Presidential endorsement the day has been observed for the past three years to aid child welfare and relief work of the Near East Relief. This year the day will have the additional significance of aiding the earthquake victims of Armenia.

The President's letter of endorsement follows:

"I regard International Golden Rule Sunday as a movement of much importance. Begun in an attempt to care for the orphaned children of Bible lands, it has been extended to other countries.

"Practical help is the best expression of friendship. The aid we may give out of our abundance to those less fortunately situated than we should be of great value in bringing about the application of the Golden Rule to the settlement of misunderstandings among nations as well as among individuals.

"I hope the voluntary observance of this day may become increasingly prevalent in America and throughout the world."

THE KENDRICK GAZETTE "The Pulse of The Potlatch"

Ralph B. Knepper

The Gazette extends to its readers greetings for the New Year and the hope that 1927 will bring happiness and prosperity in abundance.

Christmas fatalities bid fair to out-rival Fourth of July casualties. Firewater is becoming even more deadly than fireworks. De-natured alcohol caused the death of a score or more on Christmas day in New York City alone.

In his recent economic review Secretary Hoover cited facts to show that the United States is enjoying abundant prosperity and, in the course of his comment, gave as evidence that the mail-order business has greatly increased during the past year. This, Mr. Hoover believes, is a definite reflection of farm prosperity—and in the main he is probably correct, but it is possible that the condition may also mean that the mail-order people continue to gain advantage over local merchants because of their superior knowledge of the uses of printer's ink. Several car-loads of mail-order literature have been distributed in Canyon county during the past year—and it is reasonable to presume that there was nothing visionary or experimental in the procedure.—Caldwell News.

Use Sodium Fluoride to Destroy Lice on Fowls

Don't allow lice to get a good foothold in your flock. The entire flock can be treated with sodium fluoride, a white powder that can be purchased in bulk. This powder can be applied by taking a pinch and working it well down between the feathers next to the skin around the neck and vent.

Equal parts of blue or mercuric ointment and vaseline is also effective. Place a small quantity of the ointment about the size of a pea on the skin below the vent. Be sure and treat every bird in the flock, for the fowl that gets away will carry enough lice to reinfest the entire flock in a short time.

Markers for Layers

No doubt, many flocks are less profitable than they might be, because the owners have no method by which they can identify old hens which are not worth keeping beyond the second year. One of the simplest methods is to use ordinary metal bands which can be placed around the bird's left leg when put in winter quarters, and a similar band put around the right leg in 1928. This method of marking will make it easy to cull a flock.

Tree Petrification

The forest service says that the petrification of wood takes hundreds of years. It therefore is not possible for a complete petrification to take place during the lifetime of an individual.

An amusing instance of vanity under peculiar circumstances is given in the war diary of a young American flyer in Liberty. During the war, as he tells, one of his comrades, who had lost all of his teeth in a crash, and who had also lost his false teeth one morning, wouldn't fly that day because he was afraid he'd get shot down with no teeth in his mouth.

POULTRY

SELECT BREEDING STOCK FOR 1927

Early fall is none too early for poultry keepers to make plans for the 1928 breeding stock, says Cora Cooke, poultry specialist with the department of agriculture, University of Minnesota. A Wisconsin authority has said that the selection of breeders should begin as soon as the chicks are hatched.

Miss Cooke says the following requirements should be kept in mind when breeders are being selected: 1, of a pure breed; 2, high vitality; 3, high producing ability as shown by records or examination; 4, right size and type; 5, conforming as nearly as possible to the proper breed and variety characteristics.

"Further information, such as may be obtained by trap-nesting and pedigree, is very valuable," says the specialist. "Absolute knowledge as to how many eggs a hen has laid in her pullet year, how many times she has been broody, and what kind of eggs she lays is a distinct help in selection. But when trap-nesting is not practicable, ordinary examination will achieve results, though in a somewhat smaller degree."

"After selecting the breeders it is important to keep them in the best physical condition for breeding. This calls for comfortable quarters, with plenty of room, fresh air and sunshine. The birds should have an ordinary laying ration which will keep them in good flesh without their getting too fat."

Bird Tick Very Serious

Menace to Turkey Grower

Dr. W. A. Billings of the agricultural extension service, University of Minnesota, warns turkey growers to be on the lookout for the bird tick which has made its debut in Atkin county, its first appearance in Minnesota. This tick should not be confused with the common Minnesota wood tick or the owl tick of the Southern states. It has the same general appearance, but is a distinct species.

"The ticks are seen most around the eyes and necks of the young turkeys," says Doctor Billings. "They are very destructive and in one outbreak killed 40 out of 46 poults. There is no successful treatment. The only thing that can be done is to go over the birds once or twice a week by hand and pick off the ticks."

"It is possible these parasites were introduced into Minnesota from wild fowl or through the interchange of breeding stock from other states. The tick appeared in Vermont in 1909."

Teach Chicks to Roost

as Early as Possible

As soon as possible chicks should be taught to roost. After they roost the dangers of crowding or piling in the corners is eliminated and a great problem of the poultry keeper is nearing solution. At the earliest opportunity roosts should be installed a foot or eighteen inches above the floor along the back of the house so as to encourage roosting. One should carefully observe the chicks and always provide an abundance of roosting space. The brooder house should be supplied with fresh air so as to afford comfort to the chicks. This discourages their roosting in trees. A good rule is to get the chicks on the roost at the earliest age possible.

Discrimination Against

Eggs in Cold Storage

An interesting argument has been going on recently over the question, "When Is an Egg Fresh?" Undue discrimination against eggs that have been kept in cold storage has aroused butter and egg dealers to an effort to change the public attitude. One suggestion is that storage eggs should be labeled "Kept Fresh in Cold Storage." It is pointed out that eggs which are placed in cold storage are of the finest quality, being produced in the spring, and may actually be better after several months of keeping than others which are fresh in the present use of that term.

Roosts for Turkeys

A great many of the turkey growers build the roosts about 10 or 12 feet high for the large turkeys and about 5 or 6 feet high for the young ones; around these roosts is built a 6-foot fence with a large gate. When the turkeys get their feed and drink on return from the fields they are driven into this enclosure and the gate shut; in this way dogs, coyotes and other animals are kept away and the turkeys are amply protected against thieves.

Spray for Mites

Mites live in the house, laying low in the daytime, and swarming over the hens at night, sucking their blood and poisoning their sleep with evil dreams. The best way to put a crimp in their game is, first, to scrub the house out thoroughly with strong soap-suds, then spray the walls, roosts and everything else in the house, with a 5 per cent solution of some good coal-tar disinfectant. Repeat the spraying in three or four days and keep the house clean.

Use Acid Phosphate to Increase Alfalfa

Tried With Satisfactory Results in All Cases.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Farmers visiting the Yuma reclamation project near Bard, Calif., have been impressed with the results obtained by the United States Department of Agriculture in its investigations to determine the causes of the apparent decline in yield of alfalfa hay during the last few years. Simple fertilizer experiments indicated that where alfalfa was making unsatisfactory growth on the Yuma project acid phosphate could be used to very good advantage. Furthermore, preliminary tests indicate that seed production may be materially increased through the application of acid phosphate.

The farmers have tried acid phosphate on their own fields with such satisfactory results, in practically all cases that the demand for the fertilizer has increased each year. Approximately 250 tons of 16 per cent acid phosphate was sold to the project farmers in 1924. This is equivalent to 250 pounds per acre on 2,000 acres.

All the tests showed a marked improvement in the growth of alfalfa from applications of acid phosphate. There seemed to be little preference between 16 per cent and 44 per cent acid phosphate, providing equivalent quantities of phosphoric acid were applied. This being the case, says the department, it would appear that the farmer should use which ever form is the cheaper, based upon the relative proportions of this element.

Great Preventable Loss in Using Common Sires

A great preventable loss in American animal production is in the low quality of the sires used, says the United States Department of Agriculture. In no other phase of animal husbandry is it possible to make such direct, such marked, and such profitable improvement at such slight cost as in the use of superior pure-bred sires.

Records of the beef-cattle breeding work at Sni-a-Bar farms, Jackson county, Mo., furnish examples of the value of a good bull. Common cows in calf to common bulls were purchased as foundation stock for the demonstration farm. These cows were later bred to pure-bred beef bulls. The first-class steers brought $2 a hundredweight more than the common steers.

Since the dams of the two lots were essentially the same and the methods of feeding and marketing were identical, the difference of $2 a hundredweight in their value may be fairly attributed to the superiority of the pure-bred sires used for the first cross as compared to those used on the farm from which the foundation cows were purchased.

At the average of 1,000 pounds live weight for the animals, an increase of $2 a hundredweight in the value at marketing time of the offspring of a pure-bred bull brings an increased value of $240 a year on a crop of 12 calves if it is assumed that the heifers improved equally with the steers.

Lack of Potash Cause of Poor Clover Crops

Investigations in Wisconsin have shown that one of the causes for the decline in various clover crops is lack of sufficient potash. Alfalfa and all of the clovers use large quantities of potash, and cannot do their best when there is a shortage of this element. One of the indications of potash starvation in alfalfa is tiny white spots the size of small pin heads appearing on the leaves, while the same thing in clover is indicated by similar yellow and brown spots.

The Wisconsin College of Agriculture, pointing out that it takes four tons of farm manure to supply the potash needed by one ton of alfalfa or clover, says that it is more economical to use a potash fertilizer than to depend upon farm manure to keep up the supply of this element. From one hundred to two hundred pounds per acre of a potash fertilizer is sufficient for clover; alfalfa requires three hundred to five hundred pounds per acre. This may be applied as a top dressing in the spring or fall after the crop is started.

Box Stall for Bull

A box stall is the best place to house a herd sire, although he should be allowed more exercise than he will get by just tramping around in a small stall. Turn him out into a small paddock each day or give him the freedom of a barn lot to roam around and exercise. The ordinary ration of hay, silage and a small amount of grain is suitable for him. Silage will have no ill effects upon his potency, although he should not be made to subsist upon silage altogether.

Combination of Bits

A defendant, explaining to an English magistrate what happened, said: "There was a bit of a party. At the party there was a bit of an argument. It ended in a bit of a quarrel. My wife got a bit nervous and fetched the police. I got in a bit of a temper, dropped a bottle, and it broke into bits."

Nor Egg Plant

A scientist assures us that as smell is a matter of wave length, it won't be long before the scent of garden things will be broadcast. Thank heaven spinach doesn't have much odor. Philadelphia Enquirer.

Controlling Ostriches

Ostriches are difficult to control. A man shipping several of them used a pole with two metal prongs arranged in V-shape at its end and storage batteries in the handle to control the ostriches. He could energize the metal fork by pressing a button just as he caught the neck of one of the big birds between the tines.

A recess was now taken until Monday, December 13, 1926, at nine o'clock A. M. ATTEST: HARRY A. THATCHER, Clerk. APPROVED: ELMER M. PAULSON, Chairman. The DAIRY USE SKIM MILK FOR DAIRY CALF. "Many farmers are not successful in raising calves on skim milk," says R. W. Clark in Colorado Extension Bulletin No. 127. "Whole milk may produce the best calf, but not necessarily the best cow. As good an animal can be produced on skim milk as can be produced on whole milk, but greater care and attention is required in producing the former. "The calf should nurse its mother for the first few days, after which it should be removed and fed by hand. Whole milk, warm and fresh from the mother, should be given for ten days or two weeks at least. Ten to twelve pounds per day in two or three feedings should be given at first, and the length of time that it should be continued depends upon the strength of the calf. Ordinarily ten days to two weeks will be required to make the change from whole milk to skim milk. Gradually substitute skim milk for whole milk, increasing the former until the whole milk is entirely replaced. This may be a week or it may be a month. Skim milk should be warm and sweet when fed, as cold sour skim milk is the greatest cause of scours. It may be fed for six or seven months, depending mainly upon the supply. It should be given until five months of age at least." Missouri College Cows Make New Milk Records. Two new Missouri Jersey records in milk and butterfat production have been reported by the dairy specialists at the Missouri College of Agriculture here. Raleigh's Velvet Queen, a mature cow in the herd of Longview Farm, Lees Summit, in ten months produced 332.78 pounds of butterfat and 12,731 pounds of milk. This is the highest mature 305-day Jersey record ever made in Missouri, the specialists said. The new champion has been awarded a gold medal by the American Jersey Cattle Club, New York. In a previous test made when she was a two-year-old, Queen produced 628.25 pounds of fat and 11,025 pounds of milk in 365 days. Another Jersey cow, Campus Love C, established a new senior four-year-old record for Missouri by producing 710.67 pounds of butterfat and 12,268 pounds of milk in 365 days. This cow also was tested as a junior two-year-old, when she produced 460.84 pounds of butterfat and 7,456 pounds of milk in 365 days. Silage Must Be Given Serious Consideration. The dairyman who is milking ten or more cows in the corn belt can well afford to consider the advisability of using silage for his cows. Dairy cows need succulence in their ration to produce to the best advantage. Corn makes a large amount of feed per acre when it is converted into silage and provides the succulence that dairy cows need when pasture is not available. Some of the larger dairymen find a profitable use for two silos. A large silo is used for winter and a smaller silo is used for summer. In this scheme the men are able to provide a succulent feed for their cows at any season of the year. If it happens to be a very moist year and the pastures remain good, the silage in the small silo is carried over or fed to some other type of stock. However, there are not many years when silage will not come in handy to supplement pasture crops. Give Plenty of Feed to Increase Yield of Milk. There is a tendency to decrease the amount of feed fed as the costs mount. The proper thing to do is to select cows with sufficient capacity to become profitable and then increase the amount of feed. Experience has shown that it is not the highly concentrated rations that make for the greatest production. It is the fresh, partially dilute, soft, palatable feeds, with a low crude fiber content—such as grass—that give the best results. A mixture of different kinds of hay is important, especially with a high-producing cow, in order that all the nutrients may be provided. Hay should be cut before feeding and the different varieties mixed. Grain is combined with this and plant minerals added. If properly mixed, this feed receives the same treatment in the paunch as hay. This aids digestion and lightens the process of mastication.

Need Standards for Live Stock Complete Set of Names and Terms to Describe Groups Desirable. (Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) The need for standard market classes and grades of live stock is emphasized by the United States Department of Agriculture in a bulletin which sets forth a standardization program. "Even since the establishment of central live stock markets," says the bulletin, "there has been considerable confusion, much disappointment, and untold loss and waste, because of the difficulty in describing market transactions in such a way that the producer on the farm or on the range, the slaughterer at some distant packing center, the trader on another market, and the student in his classroom, may understand exactly what happened on the market. Have Own Standards. "Practically every live stock market has its own standards, its individual preferences, and its own methods of doing business. All these matters are thoroughly understood by those on the market daily, but when an attempt is made to describe market transactions to some one at a distance, or to one who is unfamiliar with practices prevailing at that particular market, difficulties are encountered. "Much of the confusion," the department continues, "arises from the fact that a certain set of names and trade terms are rather generally used to describe live stock at all markets. The meaning of the names and terms, however, varies between markets, between individuals on the same market, and frequently with the same individual on the same market at different times and different seasons. "One result of this variety of definitions of terms and shifting of standards is that producers having shipped live stock to a certain market in the belief that prices were highest there, frequently are disappointed to find that prices actually are higher at some other market which they might have patronized. Frequently live stock is forwarded from one market to another because the shippers believe the second market is higher than the first, when subsequent events show the opposite to be the case. In most instances of this kind the difficulty is due, not to any intention to deceive on the part of anyone, but merely to the fact that the same or similar terms carry different meanings on different markets and when used by different individuals. Desirable Conditions. "In view of such conditions it would seem highly desirable to have a complete set of terms and names with which to describe the various groups into which live stock is sorted at central markets and, for such names, definite and fixed definitions which can be understood and interpreted in the same way by producers, shippers, commission men, traders, packer buyers, or anyone else connected with the industry. "Such an arrangement must facilitate live stock marketing and tend to eliminate disappointment, loss, and waste. "The set of standards and definitions for the leading kinds of live stock are published in full in Department Bulletin 1360-D, "Market Classes and Grades of Live Stock," copies of which may be obtained, as long as the supply lasts, by addressing the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. Soy Beans Prove Great Value as Swine Forage. Ten years ago soy beans were little grown in Missouri. At that time the college of agriculture was experimenting with hundreds of strains and varieties, trying to determine the economic possibilities of the crop for Missouri farmers and trying to select out of this large number the best strains and varieties. Today Missouri farmers grow 350,000 acres of soy beans for seed and forage and 500,000 acres in corn for hogging down and for silage. Eighty-five per cent of this great acreage is seeded with four varieties determined by the experiment station to be the best among the hundreds tested. Man likes a variety of foods and a change in the menu. This applies also to pigs. Change to fresh pasture occasionally. Farm Hints. Fire buckets should be kept handy for emergencies. Silos should be tight enough to keep the juice in and the air out. A good rotation of crops is necessary to maintain soil fertility economically. Cement makes a good floor for the chicken house. It is economical, easy to clean, rat proof and durable. It is desirable to thoroughly renovate and disinfect the laying pens in the fall before pullets are transferred to them. A good way to store seed corn so it will dry well is to nail woven wire fencing on the studding in the barn and tie the corn by the husks to it.

Growing Various Crops to Provide Dairy Feeds

The following amount of home-grown feed should be provided for each cow for a period of one year:

- 3 tons silage if as many as 10 head of cows are kept.
- 1 ton good legume hay—alfalfa, red clover, soy bean, cow pea, etc. If no silage is provided, 2 tons legume hay should be grown for each cow.
- 15 bushels corn.
- 10 bushels oats.
- Plenty of good pasture from frost to frost.

If the above amount of feed is grown on the farm for each cow it will be necessary to buy only about five bags cottonseed meal and three bags wheat bran in order to have ration filling the requirements outlined above.

TEXAS RIDGE
Greetings—A Smile Worth While For 1927.

Don't you love to see a fellow with a Smile come breezin' in, like he heard the birds a-warblin' spite of all the hate and sin? Then he tells a funny story, or he hums a cheerful song, and he leaves a ray of sunshine as he whistling, jogs along.

Try to think of something pleasant when the snow is falling down, and not be burdened with a frown or everlasting frown. Every fellow has his troubles, is the way it looks to me; and if each of us should air them, what a gloomy world 't would be.

We should sometimes think of others, ere we look and act so blue, and should Smile and make them happy as we wish for them to do. Never does no good to worry; or to grumble, fume or fret; overhead the sun, is shining, though your sky seems dark and wet.

I know it takes a heap of grit when everything seems wrong, to make a joke of just what comes with a joke or with a song. The fellow who has learned to Smile is the fellow who can win; you can never beat the man who fights and always wears a grin.—R.L.B.

Thousand Eat Golden Rule Meal At Gathering of New Yorkers

MORE than a thousand leaders in religious, social, civic and political circles in New York sat down to the "Golden Rule Dinner" at the Hotel Pennsylvania in New York which recently opened the campaign for the fourth annual observance of International Golden Rule Sunday in the United States.
Clergymen of all faiths and some of the leading philanthropists of the nation participated in the program. Girls from various New York and Brooklyn colleges served as waitresses and not a dish was broken—most of them were made from old condensed milk cans especially for the dinner by boys in the Near East Relief training school on the Island of Syra, Greece. They were similar to the tableware of the orphanages.
The menu served was meat stew, macaroni and cheese, stewed apricots, with syrup, bread and cocoa. This is the fare served daily in the Near East Relief orphanages abroad at a cost of approximately four cents a meal.
Golden Rule Sunday this year will have added significance since about it will be built a nation wide campaign for one million dollars to aid the victims of the recent earthquake in Armenia and to provide funds for the maintenance of children in the Near East Relief orphanages until June.

Vickrey Appeals for Million To Aid Armenian Quake Victims

MORE than a million dollars will be required to meet the needs of earthquake victims in Armenia, according to Charles V. Vickrey, general secretary of the Near East Relief, in a nation wide appeal for the observance of International Golden Rule Sunday.

This sum will be required to provide adequate medical attention, food, clothing and supplies to the thousands of families made homeless by the earthquake and to care for the nine thousand orphan wards of the relief organization in the Caucasus until June, according to the appeal.
Hundreds of villages have been laid waste and many of the huge orphanages caring for the children have been razed. Others are unsafe for use until repairs can be made. Meanwhile children and American relief workers are living in tents in a region in which blizzards and heavy snowstorms are frequent at this time of the year.
Reports from the various villages in the earthquake zone indicate that the inhabitants have been forced to construct rude dugouts under ground to protect themselves from the wild, winter weather. With shocks that have continued intermittently for two weeks there has been considerable loss of life in these fragile dwellings.

C. V. VICKREY

Use Your Head

A woodpecker climbed a telephone pole and started to drill in a wee small hole; he dug his spurs in good and strong so he wouldn't slip as he drilled along, then he turned his ear to the grating sound of the little white worm in the hole so round—adjusted his belt and trimmed his sail then winked his eye and flapped his tail, and went to the feast that Nature spread—because the woodpecker used his head. So here's a lesson for you and me as we journey along to eternity—just set your feet on solid ground and adjust yourself to the things around, then trim your sails so your wheels won't skid, and use your head like the woodpecker did.—Selected.

Large Amount of Silage Proves Harmful to Bull

Many farmers allow the bull to run with the herd and consequently pay no particular attention to his feed. Where silage forms a part of the ration this is to be discouraged.

It has been proved that a liberal amount of silage, six pounds or over, promotes sterility in the bull. From the data gathered in numerous experiments it would seem that even a small allowance will reduce his vitality. With farmers learning to have milk cows freshen in the fall it would appear that silage can be wholly omitted from the ration for the bull.

It is true that the bull recovers from the effect of silage, but this means early spring calves, a thing that the man with milk cows does not want.
