Make Prisoners Earn Money

During the past 15 months prisoners working in the penitentiary shirt factory earned for themselves approximately $22,500, says an audit of the prison's accounts recently completed for Governor H. C. Baldrige by B. E. Hyatt, director of public accounts. Mr. Hyatt said the records were scrupulously accurate. In the same time the prison factory has earned for the state $52,754.63. These two items together with visitors' admissions, sale of farm produce and proceeds of the shoe factory, bring total receipts for the period up to $82,420.13.

Prisoners working in the shirt factory are required to perform a certain amount of work each day at whatever part of the operation they are working. This is for the state. After completing this they may stop or they may continue working and earn money themselves. Whatever they earn is placed to their credit and may be used by them for certain purposes in the discretion of the warden.

LOCAL BANKS WILL ADOPT SERVICE CHARGE

In Line With Progressive Banking Principles.

After a thorough checking up of costs of operating, the members of the Clearwater group of the Idaho Bankers' Association, have found that they have been carrying small checking accounts at an actual loss to the banks. In order to partially overcome this loss the banks have decided to institute a small service charge on checking accounts that have an average balance of less than $50 a month. Fourteen banks in this vicinity have adopted this policy and will put it into effect after July 25.

Banks probably extend more free service than any other line of business. Customers have become so accustomed to receiving this service that they take it more or less for granted. After all, it is a big accommodation for a business institution to be responsible for the safe-keeping of your money and ready to pay it out in any amount at any time, at your command. For this service the banks should at least be allowed to "break even."

The service charge of 50¢ per month on checking accounts averaging a balance of less than $50 per month, is a very reasonable charge for the convenience of having a checking account. There are few if any people who will object to it as the average person likes to pay for what he gets.

This service charge is not a new idea. It is in practice in larger cities and towns and a minimum checking balance of from $50.00 to $300.00 is required according to the size of the city. It is likely that the system will be adopted universally, as it has proved a success wherever it has been tried.

thing?" a sweet young thing, who was being shown thru the railroad shops, asked the foreman who was taking her thru the plant. "That," explained the guide, "is a locomotive boiler." "Why do they boil the locomotives?" persisted the sweet young thing. "Well," the guide thot hard for a moment. "It's to make the engine tender."

"What is your name?" asked the mistress of her new chauffeur. "James, madam," was the reply. "But I mean your last name. I am not in the habit of calling my chauffeurs by their first names," she said curtly. "My last name is Darling," said the chauffeur, meekly. "You may get the car, James."—Ex.

IDAHO RECEIVING MORE ADVERTISING

Interesting Article Published in National Farm Magazine.

More of the type of advertising that is bringing Idaho prominently to the foreground as a leading agricultural state of the nation, is contained in the July issue of "The Country Gentleman", national farm magazine. The article is titled "Down and Out and Up Again", and was written by Frank Llewellyn Ballard. It is a review of the agricultural situation in the western states but a great part of the article is devoted to Idaho. Some of the things Mr. Ballard says about Idaho follow:

"For a picture of re-established morale in farming of fundamental economic adjustments, one cannot fail to nominate the state of Idaho. Its rapid rehabilitation has been a topic of admiring conversation throughout the West . . . ."

"Idaho is a challenge to the critics of reclamation. More than 60 per cent of its tilled area is artificially watered. The Snake river is its jugular vein. The waters of the Snake originating high in the Rocky Mountains, are spread upon desert soils of volcanic ash that hold the unleached fertility of centuries. Under the hot sun this union of mountain water and arid soil is fruitful indeed. A recital of average yields of potatoes, alfalfa seed, clover seed, onions, beans and alfalfa hay, in comparison with yields of these same crops in the United States as a whole, would sound like an echo of the boom days."

"The problem was not what Idaho farmers could grow but what they could ship and sell to best advantage. In common with other western markets, Idaho turned into market channels a surplus of nearly every staple commodity grown on its farms. For butter the markets of California held forth bright promise. This promise was realized. Southern Idaho ships approximately one-third of Los Angeles' butter supply.

"For the seed there was a good market in the East, and Idaho's yields are highest in the United States. As one Idaho farmer humorously commented on this point: 'We don't consider five or six bushels of clover seed anything to talk about, but back where I was raised we would call a community holiday if we were to harvest a two and one-half bushel crop.'"

"With these developments and the production of turkeys and farm flocks of sheep, and more sideline ventures making headway, Idaho farmers came back in 1925 with a hundred and twenty odd million dollar crop."

Prepare Foods Carefully During Times of Illness

An Electric Refrigerator is An Invaluable Piece of Equipment

By Louise Leato, Home Economist, Electric Refrigeration Bureau

Helen Palmer is one of those people who can be tremendously efficient without being the last bit objectionable about it. One of her minor strokes of genius was converting their large, old-fashioned house, which became too big for just her husband and herself after the children left, into an attractive and highly profitable two-family dwelling.

Another example of her cleverness lay in the way she nursed her husband when he fell ill. We never knew exactly what was wrong with him, but the doctors ordered his food very carefully prepared in accordance with a strict diet—and stressed the importance of it being preserved with the utmost caution. Helen saw instantly the desirability of installing an electric refrigerator.

And, being Helen, she conceived the idea of putting a refrigerator unit in the refrigerator she had purchased for her tenants. (Helen had bought such good boxes originally that she had the refrigerating units installed right in them.)

Makes Caring for Patient Easy. "I can't tell you how much it helped me while Carl was sick," Helen would reply to inquiring friends. "I'm sure the electric refrigerator deserves some of the credit for pulling him through. It kept his foods in the most scientifically perfect condition, and made them so tempting and appetizing that he ate willingly, and of course that helped him to get his strength back.

"And the nerve-wrack which that electric refrigerator saved me in the kitchen! You see, Carl's custards, gruels and broths could be prepared well in advance and stored in the refrigerator, which did away with all last-minute dashing around. And it is so easy to keep the cabinet clean and it does away with those deadly interruptions caused by rushing to the door to let in the iceman—and well, it was simply priceless, that's what it was.

Makes Housekeeping Easier.

"Now that Carl is well again, the refrigerator is just as helpful to me in other ways. My foods are always delicious and I haven't had to throw away one single bit of food-stuff since I had the electric unit installed! Not even a drop of cream has soured, and sometimes it has sat around in the box for ever so long.

"Now, too, it is practical for me to go into town to the big markets. Before I had the electric unit I couldn't buy enough to make the trip worth while, despite the lower prices of the foods. Now I can buy enough for a week in advance.

"And the effect of the unit on my tenants is magical. They are so pleased to have it that they were delighted to pay the increased rent which I asked to cover their electricity and the depreciation on their refrigerator. In fact, they have renewed their lease for the next two years!"

When we hear stories like this we can't help but believe that it is only a matter of a short time before electric refrigeration will be as commonplace and taken-for-granted as electric lights and vacuum cleaners!

Human Bones Found in Box

While the families of Ed Kent and Pete Stump were picking huckleberries near Crescent last Sunday, some of the children found a small white box in the brush. The box was newly painted and bore a number on the lid. When it was opened it was found to contain a pile of ashes and charred bones, which were later found to be the bones of an adult person.

County Coroner Howard Short and Deputy Sheriff Jordan went to the scene of the find at day-break Monday and brought the ashes back with them. They are being kept at the coroner's parlors and an effort being made to locate the owner.

"There is no evidence other than that they have come from some crematory. Possibly they were put or thrown there by someone desiring to dispose of them, but the method was not a very good one," said Mr. Short, upon his return. The box was similar to the type used in some crematories and bore an imprinted number.
