Pay High Taxes For Bad Roads

Bad road taxes, equivalent to 22.3 cents on every gallon of gasoline consumed, are paid by motorists, according to the Idaho State Automobile Association which bases its deductions on experiments in this state, Iowa and North Carolina.

The figures were on the basis of a car making 10 miles to the gallon on a rough highway. At a speed of 33 miles per hour, the test showed the cost of gasoline and tires per one thousand miles over rough roads used in the experiment was $35.10 for an average four cylinder car weighing 3,500 pounds loaded. The cost for the same car at the same speed over a very smooth improved road was only $12.80, according to the tests.

Consolidation Defeats Kendrick

The Kendrick ball team went to Winchester last Sunday to play the fast Winchester-Craigmont team and were defeated by a score of 20 to 11. Both Fleshman and Lawrence, Kendrick's pitching staff, tried to stem the hitting fervor of the Consolidation, but without avail.

The winners then took on Orofino for a drubbing, the score being 15 to 7.

Death Called Mrs. J. L. Harris

Mrs. Prudence Harris, one of the fine, old pioneers of the Southwick community, passed away at her home there at 5:30 o'clock Tuesday morning from complications incident to old age, having almost reached her seventy-third milestone. She had been quite ill last winter but recently had apparently recovered her strength again. Her death was due to a failing heart.

Mrs. Harris was one of the early residents of Southwick, having resided there about 42 years. She saw that community develop from a sparsely settled frontier settlement to one of the most prosperous agricultural sections of Idaho.

Funeral services were held at Southwick, Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock, Rev. Pierson of Peck officiating, assisted by Rev. Mathews and Rev. F. A. Everett of Boston, Mass. Interment was made in the Southwick cemetery. Arrangements were in charge of the Pickerd undertaking firm.

Mrs. Harris is survived by two sons, Gordon, a resident of Southwick, and Walter, who makes his home in the Lewiston Orchards. She was born at Meadowville, Barbor county, West Virginia, August 24, 1855, and was married in that state 52 years ago. The family came direct to this region from West Virginia, first locating on a place at Crescent, seven miles from Southwick, and a few months later moving to the farm house where Mrs. Harris met her death. She was a woman very highly respected throughout the Potlatch country, was very active in the affairs of the Methodist church and in community happenings.

At the time the family located at Southwick, Moscow was the nearest railroad point, 40 miles away, but at the present time Kendrick, 12 miles distant, serves that purpose.

Leland Oddfellows Install

The following officers were installed at Leland Lodge No. 90, I. O. O. F., Saturday evening July 7th. Roy Craig, Past Grand; Robert Thornton, Noble Grand; Oral Craig, Vice Grand. The appointed officers are: R. B. Parks, R. S. N. G.; Alva Craig, L. S. N. G.; Jesse Thornton, Warden; Denzil Kuykendall, Conductor; Wilfred Corkill, Chaplin; R. and L. Scene Supporters, Wm. Bond and Wilfred Corkill; Herman Johnson, R. S. V. G.; Clyde Gephart, L. S. V. G.; Carl Gillespie, Inside Guard; Claud Gephart, Outside Guard. Wilfred Corkill, D. D. G. M. was the installing officer, assisted by R. B. Parks, Ed Johnson, Howard Smith and Wm. Bond. There were twenty-four members present. After installation cake and ice cream were served. Much interest has been shown the past term and several new members have been taken in the lodge.

Revival Meeting in Juliaetta

Revival meetings are being held in Juliaetta every evening this week and will continue thru next week, at the U. B. church. Rev. Lichty of Twin Falls, Idaho, is conducting the services. The meetings start at 7:30 with a song service. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

Purchase Kendrick Residence

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Carroll this week closed a deal for the purchase of a brick bungalow from Mrs. Dottie Stanton, located west of the park. It is a very desirable piece of property. The Carrolls expect to make a number of substantial improvements in the property.

Marine Aviators to Go With Byrd

Sergeant Victor H. Czegka and Sergeant K. F. Bublir of the United States marine corps, aviators who have been selected as representatives of the corps in the coming expedition of Commander R. E. Byrd to the South pole.

Walker for Commissioner

G. F. Walker, candidate on the republican ticket for the nomination for commissioner of the third district, Latah county, deserves the consideration of the voters of the county. Mr. Walker served two years as commissioner and his record from every standpoint was above reproach. He is a successful, conservative business man and has had business training along lines that qualify him to successfully handle the affairs of the office of commissioner.

In the third district a commissioner is needed who will do all in his power to secure better road conditions, as this district is farther behind in road matters than any other part of the county. Mr. Walker has always been an ardent supporter of road projects in this, as well as other part of the county. While the commissioners of the county are not directly responsible for road matters, their influence may be felt in securing outside assistance. The people of this community know that Mr. Walker will always be found ready to do everything possible to promote this vitally important matter.

Mr. Walker has always received a splendid vote from his home community and there is no reason why, at the coming primary, he should not be treated even better than in the past. He is intensely interested in county affairs and never loses sight of the fact that his home is in the third district.

Sunday School Party

Hester Knepper, assisted by Doris Emery, entertained the pupils of her Sunday school class at a party Tuesday evening. They planned to have the party in the park, but owing to the rain it was held at the Presbyterian church. The games were taken from a group called "An Indoor Track Meet" and were enjoyed by all. Refreshments consisted of lemonade, ice cream and cake. Those present were: Katherine Emery, Marjorie Onstott, Margaret Daugherty, Mary Elizabeth Thompson, Phyllis Cummings, Jean Ramey and Jack Kempton.

Aller Presents Good Show

The Doc Aller Magical company which appeared at the New Kendrick Theatre last Wednesday night, presented a highly satisfactory entertainment. The magic tricks by both Aller and his daughter, Della, were very pleasing. The handcuff and leg-iron escape was cleverly done. This troupe expects to appear here again sometime in September.

Lightning Struck Tree

Last Friday evening a rather severe electric storm visited this section. Lightning struck a big pine tree on the hillside east of Kendrick. It started a grass fire but this was soon extinguished by a crew of men. One of the big fuses in the Washington Water Power sub station was burned out but was replaced in a few minutes.

Plenty of Huckleberries

The woods in the vicinity of Bovill were full of people from Kendrick and vicinity last Sunday. Hundreds of gallons of huckleberries were picked that day. The number of gallons gathered by individuals varied according to the veracity and ability of the pickers. How any one person can pick more than three gallons of these precious berries in a day is a matter worthy of investigation.

Gas Sales Higher

Idaho motorists are using more gasoline this year than ever before, it is shown by a report just issued by the motor vehicle department of the secretary of state's office.

There were 4,764,890 gallons of gas sold in the state during the month of May, 1927 and the state collected taxes thereon amounting to $190,595, according to the report. In May, 1927, gasoline sales amounted to 3,671,856 gallons and the tax revenue was $145,023.

Total gasoline sales from January 1 to June 1, 1928, are 15,598,152 gallons and the tax on these sales amounts to $623,962. For the same period in 1927 the sales were only 12,692,467 gallons and the tax was $469,603.

The fund which the state derives from this four cents per gallon tax on gasoline is used entirely for the operations of the bureau of highways, thereby reflecting to the benefit of the motorist. At the outset of the present year it was estimated that this year's tax would amount to $2,000,000 and plans were made for a program of road improvement work to equal this amount, according to George Gordon, director of the motor vehicle department. Now it looks as though the gasoline tax receipts will be far in excess of this amount and the program of the highway bureau may be enlarged accordingly.

Register For Primary

E. H. Emery, local registrar stated this week that Saturday, July 28, is the last day to register before the primary election. All those who did not vote in this precinct at the last general election should register.

In this connection it might be well to call attention to the fact that Kendrick precinct has two candidates who are seeking the nomination on the county ticket. They are G. F. Walker for commissioner and W. Q. Taylor for assessor, both able men and deserving of a big vote from their home precinct.

Pass The Apples

When every pool in Eden was a Mirror,
That unto Eve her dainty charms proclaimed,
She went undraped without a single fear or Thought that she had need to be ashamed.
'Twas only when she'd eaten of the apple
That she became inclined to be a prude,
And found that evermore she'd have to grapple
With the much debated problem of the nude.
Thereafter she devoted her attention,
Her time and all her money to her clothes.
And that was the beginning of Convention,
And Modesty, as well, I suppose.
Reaction's come about in fashions recent,
Now girls conceal so little from the men,
It would seem, in the name of all that's decent,
Some one ought to pass the apples round again.—Ex.

Forging Ahead

"How is your son getting along in the Ford factory, Joe?"
"Fine, Ed—he's been promoted."
"Promoted? You don't say!"
"Yes. He used to put on chassis nut number 34, and they jumped him right up to chassis nut number 37."—Life.

Walter Taylor For Assessor

Walter Taylor of American ridge was a Kendrick visitor the first of the week. Mr. Taylor's name will appear on the primary ballot as a candidate for the nomination for assessor of Latah county. If the people of this part of the county have anything to say about it, he will be nominated without question. He has every qualification for the office and, if elected, would bring the affairs of the office up to a high degree of efficiency. It is safe to say that his home precinct, having known him for years, will be solidly behind him at the polls August 7th.

Mr. and Mrs. Follett of Genesee spent the week end at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Jack Barnes.

Lewiston Airway Service

Lewiston is to be on the map as an aviation point, served regularly by taxi and transport service from Spokane and Walla Walla, starting August 1. This fact became known Wednesday when word was given out that a new firm had been formulated in Spokane to operate regular passenger service to this city and that the Commercial club had arranged to secure control of a field in Clarkston, the lease on which is to run until January 1, 1929.

For two or three days trial flights over the route have been maintained by the Spokane Airways, Incorporated, one party of four persons stopping here on the field that has been leased.

The field to be secured for the landing of planes is the large plot now in alfalfa situated along Fair street in Clarkston at Sixth. It is a strip of land 200 feet wide north and south and 1,320 feet long east and west. Swinging off to the west, the planes will have an unobstructed zoom with plenty of room for a perfect take-off, according to those who have studied the site. The distance to the field makes it easily accessible to either Lewiston or Clarkston and car service will undoubtedly be maintained between the field and both cities.—Tribune.

Less Noise, Please

Agent Ramey might pass this story on to the bird that brings the freight train in about 4 P.M. in the morning:
A sufferer who lives close to a railroad yard in the suburbs wrote the following about the racket made by a switch engine: "Gentlemen: Why is it that your switch engine has to ding, dong, fizz, spit, bang, hiss, pant, grate, grind, puff, bump, chug, hoot, toot, whistle, wheeze, jar, jerk, howl, snarl, puff, groan, thump, boom, smash, jolt, screech, snort, snarl, slam, throb, roar, rattle, yell, smoke smell and shriek like hell all night long?"

POULTRY

SEPARATE SEXES WHILE YET YOUNG

When the cockerels in a poultry flock reach a live weight of from one and one-fourth to two pounds each they should be separated from the pullets and put on a different range or in another inclosure. This will aid in the growth of both the pullets and cockerels, according to the poultry men at the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca. They explain that the pullets will be less crowded and will thus have a better chance to eat and grow.

The cockerels fight less and grow faster when they, too, have less competition in their range area and roosting quarters. They should have a shelter house, preferably among trees, to insure shade and open air roosting places. To raise vigorous males for breeding purposes the cockerels should be grouped together by size and vigor; all should have large range areas, with feed hoppers and water troughs in at least three separate parts of the range so that there will be less chance for intimidation and consequent undernourishment for the smaller birds.

In choosing cockerels for breeding or for market, begin the selective process as soon as the birds begin to show marked sexual characteristics. The time may vary according to breed and feed, but for leghorns they may be selected first at from six to eight weeks of age, and from ten to twelve weeks in the heavier varieties. The earlier the market cockerels can be separated from the rest for crate fattening, the better, because the price by weight for broilers decreases with the season faster than the birds can put on weight.

Broilers Bring Profits

Now Only When in Prime

New Jersey poultrymen having surplus cockerels to dispose of as broilers are finding that there is little or no profit in them unless they are in prime condition.

Because farmers in all parts of the country are getting rid of their excess young male birds during May, June, July and August, the market offers only moderate prices. Birds in poor or only fair condition are sold at a loss.

"Observation has shown," says C. S. Platt, assistant poultry husbandman at the New Jersey experiment station, "that the poultrymen who have their broilers always in prime condition and ready to sell at a moment's notice, make the greatest profits through their ability to take advantage of favorable turns in the market. These men start with young chicks and by proper feeding and management endeavor to get rapid, uniform growth. No finishing is necessary. From the time the birds are first large enough to sell as broilers, until they are finally sold, they are in prime condition."

To cause this favorable growth poultrymen keep the birds confined and feed them a special ration.

Laying Mash Suggested by New York Station

An egg is a pretty complicated thing, and the hen that makes it needs a lot of material of different kinds, especially if she is going to do herself proud and make you a profit by a big year's output.

The ingredients commonly used in egg-laying mashes, says the New York agricultural experiment station, are wheat bran, wheat middlings, linseed oil meal, corn gluten feed, corn meal, ground oats, alfalfa meal, meat scrap, fish meal and dried buttermilk feed.

Of course you don't use all of these materials at the same time, but you need several. The Cornell mash, for instance, which has become so standardized that dealers are putting it on the market already mixed, consists of "equal parts by weight of wheat bran, wheat middlings, corn meal, ground oats and meat scraps."

The above mixture makes a pretty good growing mash, too, except that rolled oats or oatmeal may be used in place of the ground oats. Bone meal or lime is also usually added.

Size of House

Most authorities recommend a poultry house 16 to 20 feet wide facing the south with single slope shed roof, or one 20 to 25 feet wide with low double roof. Half-monitor poultry houses are not very popular because of the large amount of waste space at top. From three to five square feet of floor space per fowl is recommended, depending on type, with four square feet as a good working rule. For a house 16 feet wide, this would mean four fowls per foot length.

Poultry House Floors

Poultry authorities differ as to best floor for poultry houses. Important things are freedom from dampness, cold, drafts and dust. Double wood floors with heavy paper between are much used and very good, except that they are short-lived and do not keep out rats. Dirt, gravel or sand-clay floors are dusty and harbor rats and are hard to keep clean. Cement floors are satisfactory when properly made. Foundation walls should extend 12 to 18 inches into the ground.

Plenty Pasture Need of Geese

Can Be Profitably Raised in All Parts of the United States.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Abundant pasture of a sort that is tender and remains green for a long period is the most economical basis for the raising of geese. A stream or pond, or even tanks of water may serve for the aquatic needs of the birds, and shelter may be reduced to a minimum. In the South none is required and in the North a simple shed open to the south is sufficient. Geese can be raised successfully and profitably in all parts of the United States, but are more abundant in the Middle West and the South. In 1920 Illinois with nearly 200,000 geese closely followed by Missouri, Arkansas and Iowa led in production of geese. Kentucky, Tennessee, Minnesota, North Carolina and Texas followed, but this group of states was much behind the four leaders.

Closest Grazers. "Geese subsist largely on grass during the growing season and are the closest of grazers," says Alfred R. Lee, author of Farmers' Bulletin 787-F, "Goose Raising," just published in a revised edition by the United States Department of Agriculture. Geese grow to much heavier weights than chickens, but the price per pound on the markets is usually several cents less than for chickens. Some of the geese are sold from the farms to specialists in the fattening of the birds, and then go to market, largely in the cities where foreign population creates a demand.

Principal Breeds.

The bulletin describes the principal breeds of geese found in the United States, the Toulouse, Emden, African, Chinese, Wild or Canadian and Egyptian. It gives directions for housing, selection and mating, incubation, care and feeding of the goslings, and preparation of stock for market. "An acre of grass will supply nearly if not all the food for from four to twenty-five geese, with perhaps ten to an acre as an average. In the South some cotton growers keep geese for the sake of their aid in keeping down weeds in cotton fields. Farmers' Bulletin 787-F may be obtained free upon request to the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Agent Must Account on Basis of Actual Sales

Produce agents in all instances should account to shippers on the basis of prices actually received in good faith from third persons, declares the bureau of agricultural economics, United States Department of Agriculture, in response to inquiries regarding this particular accounting feature under the Produce Agency act. The bureau bases its position on the fact that the Supreme Court of the United States, as well as the state courts, have held that an agent to sell cannot sell to himself. The point has been raised as to

Bacterial Canker Is Danger of Tomatoes

Wise Plan to Avoid Old Seed Beds.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Bacterial canker of tomatoes, which has been known as "the Grand Rapids disease," from the locality in Michigan where it was first observed in 1910, has since been reported from many regions including the Far South and West. It may appear either in the fields or in greenhouses and damage may range from negligible injury to such complete destruction of the crop as to cause serious economic loss to growers. Mary K. Bryan, of the bureau of plant industry, recommends thorough sterilization of tomato seed as a control method. The disease is believed to have been scattered also by the shipment of young plants which do not show infection at that stage of growth.

In Circular No. 29-C, "Bacterial Canker of Tomatoes," just published by the United States Department of Agriculture, this author gives a brief history of the disease, discusses its economic importance and describes the appearance of diseased plants as distinguished from those affected with other tomato wilt.

The bacteria which cause the disease enter the fruit through the stem, without external signs of injury, and infect the seed. When cut open the fruit shows yellow discoloration but no rot. Sources of infection aside from the seed, especially seed bed and plant bed infection, are being studied. "From all points of view," the author remarks, "it is wisest to avoid old seed beds, to use only clean, fresh soil in growing tomato plants, and to rotate crops where the disease has occurred."

Tomato growers may procure Circular 29-C by applying to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Means by Which Potato Wart Fungus Is Spread

Some of the means by which the potato wart fungus is disseminated are discussed in Technical Bulletin 56-T, "Factors of Spread and Repression in Potato Wart," a new publication just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. The viability of the fungus in the soil and under various conditions of artificial storage is also discussed. New data are presented on the resistance of the resting sporangia to moist and dry heat, and to such fungicides as mercuric chloride and formaldehyde as used in seed potato disinfection.

It is shown that the restrictions on the growing of any but immune varieties of potatoes within the areas quarantined on account of wart, and on the movement of any potatoes whatsoever out of these areas, have apparently prevented the disease from spreading.

As no resistant varieties of potatoes have been found, the continued culture of potatoes in wart-infested areas may result in perpetuation of the wart fungus. However, further experiments are necessary to determine this and the period of survival of the fungus in the soil under natural conditions.

A copy of the bulletin, which is primarily of interest to plant pathologists, may be obtained by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

The State We Live In
(By Byron Defenbach)

Exact figures are not so impressive, nor are they so easily remembered as round numbers and approximate comparisons. Think of the United States as a flat card, a plane surface, weighing practically nothing. Imagine the American people standing on this card, each in his home place, each individual weighing the same. Put a pivot under a spot 8 miles southeast of Spencer,

Indiana, and the card will balance. This spot is what Mr. Hoover's department calls the "Center of population."

One hundred and forty years ago this center was 23 miles east of Baltimore; it has moved steadily always a little south of west. It reached the eastern line of Indiana 35 years ago; it is approaching the Illinois line.

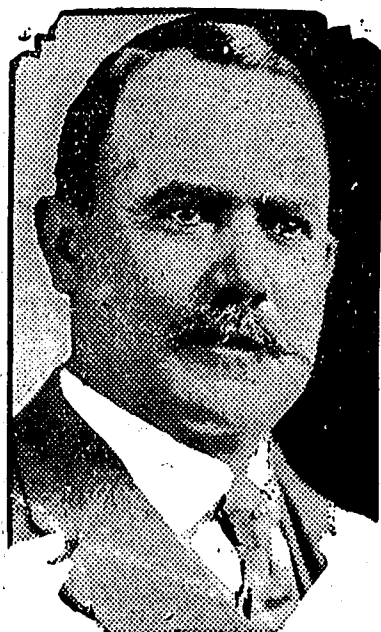

Everybody step off, please; the card tilts to the northwest. Move the pivot to about the location of Julesburg, Colorado; the card balances again. This spot is the "center of area."

The United States has a total surface of a little more than 3 million square miles, of which Idaho makes up about one thirty-sixth. Idaho has 83,354 square miles or sections of land, over 53 million acres. It is the twelfth state in size. Others nearest it are Minnesota, Kansas, and Utah, each smaller, and Oregon and Wyoming, each larger.

Idaho exceeds in size all the New England states combined; it is nearly 80 times as large as Rhode Island, nearly double the size of New York state, about one-half as big as California, one third the size of Texas.

Our state measures 500 miles from north to south on its western border, it is 45 miles wide at the Canadian line, and over 300 from east to west along its southern boundary.

Its two most widely separated county seats are Bonners Ferry and Paris, the trip between them via the state capital by the usual routes covers about 986 miles. The "center of area" of Idaho is a little west and south of the town of Challis in Custer county.

Profitable to Dispose of All Two-Year-Olds

After a number of tests for tuberculosis in poultry flocks, the Nebraska state department of agriculture and the agricultural college recommended that poultry, excepting for valuable breeding stock on poultry farms, be disposed of at two years of age or less. The practice will not only help control the disease, but it will also help increase the profits of the farm poultry business. Most hens pass their most profitable production period during their second year.

If poultry raisers will follow this suggestion and then raise their chicks by artificial means on ground where chickens have not run to any extent, avian tuberculosis can be very nearly stamped out in every state, and the poultry business can become still more profitable at the same time. As individual hens quit laying for the season in the spring, they should be disposed of immediately. The practice will not only save feed, but it will clean up the place so the young stock will have plenty of room next fall and winter. Poultry prices also generally go down during the summer and the hens marketed early will bring more per pound.

Adding Alfalfa Meal to Mash Ration Is Favored

The agricultural experiment stations throughout the country have shown that alfalfa leaves and high-grade alfalfa meal are rich in mineral and have a relatively high vitamin A content. The vitamin A content prevents a disease similar to roup and is conducive to better hatches.

The addition of 10 per cent of alfalfa meal to the mash ration does not seem to make too much fiber. This is especially true if the alfalfa meal is allowed to replace a portion of the bran. Second or third cutting alfalfa hay may be fed to chickens with a minimum of waste by placing it in racks that are made of poultry netting.

Kept On the Go

It has been estimated that a hospital doctor walks an average of sixteen miles a day in the course of his duties, a shop assistant eight miles, a waiter twenty miles, and a street car conductor seven miles.

HEENEY TRAINS HARD

The photograph shows fighting pose of Tom Heeneey, Australian heavyweight, who is training hard at Fairhaven, N. J., for his bout with Gene Tunney for the heavyweight championship of the world. The fight will be held at the Yankee stadium in New York city on July 26. Heeneey is not bragging, but appears to be confident he will win the bout.

Nothing Serious

Edward, a colored boy, had recommended his mother for the position of cook, but when she came the farmers wife asked doubtfully: "Do you suppose you will be able to do the work? You don't look very healthy." "Yes, ma'am, I is able. I ain't nuvver been noways sickly in my life—ain't nuvver had nothin' but smallpox an' Edward."

Primitive Lighthouse

The light in the Pharos of Alexandria was obtained by burning pitch-wood. The upper story of the lighthouse had large openings toward the sea, through which the light shone. Ptolemy Soter began the construction of the Pharos in the Third century B. C. and it was not completed until about 282 B. C. The architect was Sostratus of Cnidus. Each of its four sides is said to have measured at the base about 600 feet.

Pelican's Love-Making

The courtship of the pelican is a very quaint performance. The male bird first attracts the attention of the female by prodding with his beak the earth in the vicinity of the chosen one. The two then hold each other gently by their beaks in a manner which seems to correspond pretty closely to hand-squeezing! The scene closes with the two birds bending down and rubbing the tops of their heads together!
