

JUST IDAHO

By Guy Flenner

On Being Progressive

Boise suffered for some time from lack of public improvements. Some of the principal business streets resembled the Craters of the Moon. There was general complaint. The demand for betterments resulted in the election of a progressive council, which has remedied the defects, cleaned up the city, made it good to look at and inspired many private improvements.

But because the council passed an ordinance providing one voting precinct for a proposed bond election, with one set of judges and clerks instead of 20, it is threatened with a recall petition.

The ordinance was enacted, as stated, in the interest of economy and in view of the small vote at the average bond election and followed the precedent of the independent school district.

Does it pay to be officially progressive when all the good things accomplished may be forgotten in the heat engendered by a minority group over some issue separate and apart and usually more or less inconsequential?

And may not the recall provision, which has many adherents, fall into disrepute because of its utilization as a club to intimidate official bodies?

These questions are being asked not only in the Capital city, but all over Idaho. Being hit with a recall petition whatever may be done does not encourage men of business ability and personal integrity to accept local offices.

The Price of Gas

The suggestion that Idaho's investigation of the price of gasoline is responsible for the recent increase in the cost to the motorist does not have any real foundation. The fact is, however, that gas has gone up pending the inquiry.

In most places the retail price of gasoline is what the local filling stations may agree upon, irrespective of the wholesale or tank wagon price, but always remembering possible competition when the temptation may be to pitch the retail cost too high.

In all places where the Continental company operates gasoline has been sold on a two-cent margin for years, and the retailers make a very good argument against that differential, with the evaporation and everything.

Recently the filling stations in some of those places have raised the margin to three cents. For example, in Boise gas retails at this writing at 27½ cents a gallon and costs the filling station 24½ cents. In McCall gas was sold all summer at 30 cents a gallon that cost the filling stations 24—a 6-cent margin. The wholesale price went to 25 cents, but the retail price remained at 30. The prices quoted, as all over the state, include the state tax of 4 cents a gallon.

We cite these cases as showing the conditions in the largest and possibly the smallest towns in Idaho.

When we contemplate the opportunity of the filling station owners we really marvel at their modesty. We fear little can be done about it under the law, any more than about the price of eggs being the same all over town.

Charivari Newlyweds

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fairfield, who were married in Moscow, Wednesday of last week, were given a rousing charivari by their friends on Bear ridge last Wednesday evening. They returned from their honeymoon trip Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Fairfield is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bean, prominent residents of Bear ridge.

The harvest dance will be held tonight at the Fraternal Temple. A big crowd is expected and a fine time assured to everyone. Good six-piece orchestra. Everybody is going, so don't miss it.

Death of Stephen W. Roberts

Stephen W. Roberts, pioneer resident of this section, died last Saturday morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. R. W. Hall, who lives seven miles north of Moscow.

Mr. Roberts was born in Iowa, Sept. 25, 1859. For many years he lived on a farm on American ridge. Mrs. Roberts died several years ago. He is survived by two daughters and one son.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon from the Short chapel, the Rev. J. Wesley Croft, pastor of the Nazarene church, officiating.

Pallbearers were John Benjamin, Ole Rierson and Bun Benjamin of Troy and Ralph Vanderpool, W. W. Hall and Dick Vanderpool of Moscow. Interment was made in the Moscow cemetery.

School Notes

As the textbooks have not yet arrived the Kendrick High School has not had a chance to start on all four, this however does not prevent the teachers and students from combining their efforts in making school life worth while, and it is for that reason that it is the general belief that when the books come we will be in the right time to start study in earnest.

Greetings

To the patrons and citizens of Kendrick and vicinity.

School is now started and, we as teachers, seek your co-operation to make this a successful year for all concerned. When questions concerning the school work or school activities arise come and let us talk it over before you criticize or condemn.

Come and visit us any time and any day see your educational institution at work. Kindly enter without knocking and leave in the same way.

We are always open to kindly suggestions and are ready to assist in the community in any way we can.

We wish to thank the business men for their support of football and we'll endeavor to have a team of which they need not be ashamed.

The first play program of the school will be given by the 5th, 6th, 7th and 8th grades near the last of October. There will also be an all high school play in November.

The five cents a week given by the pupils is to go towards beautifying the rooms and for play-ground equipment.

A Solid Head

"Yes, she is really nice," said a young man as he talked with a friend about a mutual girl acquaintance. "But her head is rather like a door knob." "Really?" responded the friend. "It didn't impress me so solid." "Oh no, not that," explained the first fellow. "But any man can turn it."—Ex.

Officers Make Raid Tuesday

Sheriff Charlie Summerfield and his deputy, George K. Moody, raided the Van Wert ranch east of Kendrick last Tuesday and secured a quantity of moonshine on the premises. They arrested Doc Van Wert, his son, Fred, and two men from Spokane giving their names as Jack Raymond and Fred Arnold.

The four men were taken to Moscow and arraigned before Probate Judge Nelson. They waived preliminary hearing and were bound over to the district court to answer counts of transportation, sale and maintenance of a liquor nuisance. Their bonds were placed at $6,000.

The officers state that all four men were sitting around a table at the ranch house, partaking of liquor from a gallon jug on the table.

The place has been under surveillance during the past three days, after an under-cover man had succeeded in purchasing some liquor at the place, the sheriff said. Moody and Summerfield were lying in wait for the alleged bootleggers when a car drove into the farm yard with some whiskey in the rear. It was placed in a barn by Raymond and Arnold, officers say. They later claim to have found 17 gallons of whiskey in it, and 12 gallons more cached in a place pointed out to them by the men arrested.

The car will be confiscated, Summerfield said.

Juliaetta News

G. Bowen came home last week on account of illness. He went to Lewiston to consult a physician.

Mrs. Sophia Taylor came home the first of the week.

Once more death has come into our midst and taken one of our best loved citizens, Mrs. Malone, who had been an invalid for a number of years. The community greatly mourns her loss. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Pearson at the U. B. church.

Cecil Gruell is home from Lewiston where he has been working. The mill has shut down to make some repairs.

Mrs. R. F. Pepple of Klamath Falls, Oregon, spent a few days here last week with friends.

On Friday night of last week a joint reception was given to our teachers and the Rev. Mr. Forbes and his wife, who come as minister to the Methodist church here. The reception was held in the church auditorium, which was arranged in a home-like and inviting manner. Great credit is due the ones in charge.

The program was good and all enjoyed hearing both teachers and patrons express their ideas and sentiments regarding school work. Especially was the idea of a parent-teachers association a good one. We certainly need to meet our teachers and discuss our problems in a businesslike manner. Rev. Taber and wife of Kendrick were among the honored guests, and Mr. Taber gave us a very interesting and spicy talk as is his usual custom.

Mrs. M. Nutt had a birthday last Friday. Her friends, Mrs. Amanda Alexander and Mrs. Jones prevailed upon her to go to Lewiston with them. Mrs. Nutt had not dreamed of anything unusual until the party went to the Majestic Cafe. As a surprise to Mrs. Nutt the friends had ordered a delicious dinner with little celluloid men and whistles as favors. The ladies also presented her with a beautiful dish. Mrs. Pepple who was leaving for her home at Klamath Falls, was also presented with a gift.

Mrs. May McCall is suffering from an injury to her hand that she received while working at the cannery.

Death of Mrs. Mary Malone

Mrs. Mary E. Malone, for 20 years a resident of Juliaetta, passed away at about 8 o'clock Monday morning at Gritman's hospital in Moscow.

Mrs. Malone had not been well for some years but had seemingly not been any worse until Sunday when she suddenly became seriously ill and was rushed to the hospital where she gradually grew worse until death relieved her of her suffering.

Mary Spawr was born at Corvallis, Ore., July 4, 1855. She was married to John H. Malone at Waitsburg, Wash., March 2, 1873. They moved from Waitsburg to a homestead near Pullman in 1877. They remained on this homestead for 21 years.

After leaving Pullman, Mr. and Mrs. Malone and their children moved to Moscow, where Mr. Malone operated a dairy farm for ten years. From Moscow they went to Juliaetta some 20 years ago.

Four children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Malone: Mrs. W. E. Larkins of Juliaetta, with whom Mrs. Malone made her home for several years; Mrs. F. A. Jenne, of Yakima; Mrs. H. C. Miller, of Wenatchee, and Claude Malone of Spokane.

Mrs. Malone also leaves two brothers, Marion and Louis Spawr and three half-brothers, residing in Oregon and California.

Funeral services were conducted from the United Brethren church of Juliaetta by the Rev. J. L. Peterson, Wednesday at 2 p. m. The remains were laid to rest in the Juliaetta cemetery beside her husband who passed away December 4, 1923.

Mrs. Malone's parents crossed the plains in 1853 with the United Brethren emigrant train, of which Dr. Kenoyer was captain. They were sweethearts then, and were afterwards married in the Willamette valley where the emigrants had settled. Mr. Malone when a lad of 16 years, crossed the plains with his parents, having only ox teams, and settled in the Willamette valley in 1853.

While living near Pullman, Mr. and Mrs. Malone helped to organize the first Sunday school in that community and Mr. Malone helped to build the first church in Pullman, the M. E. church.

"Cappy Ricks" Coming

"Cappy Ricks," an exciting comedy in three acts is the name of the play which the Troy High School Players will bring to the New Kendrick Theatre, Wednesday evening, September 26th. Supt. E. J. Wenig of the Troy schools and director of the play was in Kendrick recently making arrangements for the production.

An excellent cast has been selected for the production, including two former Kendrick residents, Frank Broeke and Ruth Johnston. "Cappy Ricks," a grouchy but kind hearted old ship owner, is the central character of the play and is portrayed by E. J. Wenig. Mr. Wenig and Roy Ramey were associated in the production of plays for several years at Creston, Wash. Clifford Anderson, who takes the part of Matt Peasley, ship's captain, is an experienced actor, having taken leading roles in plays at Washington State College and in summer stock companies.

Special scenery has been prepared for the production. The play is being given at Troy this week on Friday and Saturday evenings. Those who enjoy good comedy will undoubtedly have three hours of splendid entertainment at the New Kendrick theater next Wednesday evening.

Was Her Idea

"My Gosh," exclaimed a man when he returned from an afternoon at the golf links to find his next door neighbor still working out in the yard. "You don't mean to say you have been pulling weeds since 7 o'clock this morning. Why, I wouldn't think of doing such a thing." "Neither would I," replied the limp and exhausted lawn worker. "It was my wife who thot of it."—Ex.

THE STATE WE LIVE IN

By Byron Defenbach

Minor Lakes of Northern Idaho

Priest Lake, in Bonner county near the Canadian line, is really two lakes joined by a narrow channel. Its waters flow out thru Priest River into the Pend O'Reille.

Spirit Lake, Hauser, Fish, and Hayden lakes, all in Kootenai county, are well-known summer resorts. Hayden Lake, 8 miles from Couer d'Alene city, is one of our most beautiful pools. It has no known outlet, but the freshness of its waters indicates an underground channel.

Lake Waha, 22 miles above Lewiston, is a favorite local summer resort for people of that city. Its overflow is piped to irrigate the famous Lewiston Orchards. All of these lakes are easily accessible. Dozens of others, smaller and more remote but not less beautiful, lie among the timbered hills of Northern Idaho.

Antelope Lake

Two miles from the town of Clarksfork in Bonner county is a lake whose existence is undreamed of by the casual tourist on highway or railroad. It has features, and a history, which entitle it to wider reputation than it now enjoys. How it ever got the highly inappropriate name of "Antelope Lake," no one seems to know.

It lies in the crater of an extinct volcano 500 feet above the adjacent river valley, has an area of 25 acres and an extreme depth of some 60 feet. Fed entirely by springs of mineralized water, it has no known outlet, but sometimes overflows in the season of melting snow. Scrub timber grows on its banks and the shore waters are filled with fallen and decaying trees. There is something weird about it.

Thirty years ago J. B. Whitcomb and Frank Herriott carried two pailfull of German brown trout fry up the difficult side of this old volcano. From this planting, the water came to almost literally wriggle with fish. Larval and insect food from the rotting timber, combined with the moderate and comparatively even temperature of the water, proved conducive to rapid growth and propagation.

Some 15 years ago, the author crawled quietly out over this water on a fallen log and saw below him such schools of 12 and 16 inch trout as caused him to rub his eyes in unbelief. The rest of the story recalls Dante's Inferno.

They will not rise to a fly and are not cager about bait; only the snare and the seine are successful, and their flesh is so impregnated with mineral that words are lacking to describe their unfitness for food. As the old frying pan warms up, those speckled beauties give forth an odor that would humiliate an explosion of black powder in a glue factory.

Mr. Whitcomb, who still lives at Clarksfork, writes that trout are now dying out. Apparently there can be a smell which, even to a fish is worse than death. Poor fish.

Mrs. Julia Alice McIver

Mrs. Julia Alice McIver, wife of John McIver, passed away Tuesday afternoon at the home of her son, Chester, near Southwick, after a brief illness. Death was caused by valvular heart disease.

Mrs. McIver was born in Iowa, March 17, 1866. She is survived by her husband, two sons, Chester and Donald; one sister, Mrs. Susan Black of Boise; two brothers, Ben and Austin McCoy, both of Southwick.

Funeral services will be held at the U. B. church this afternoon at 2:30, Rev. Calvert officiating. Arrangements are in charge of the Pickard undertaking establishment. Interment will be made in the Southwick cemetery.

Light Brahmas Good for the Small-Patch Farmer

The lower your fences are, the heavier may be your breeds of poultry. One of the best breeds for the small-patch farmer, or the business man or wage earner living in the suburbs—the man who cannot afford to put much money into expensive wire netting—is the Light Brahmas. They stand confinement in narrow quarters, and they also stand cold weather. They are less subject to disease than some of the other breeds; they make good layers, and average in weight, when fully grown, about 11 pounds; so when you market your surplus stock you have something to sell. But if you have plenty of space for your chickens the cheapest breeds are the nervous, restless ones, which means that they are good foragers for food, and will not need much feeding. The Brown or White Leghorn and the Black Spanish are among the best foragers. Other breed which do well in the small patch or acre lot are the Plymouth Rocks, Wyandottes and Rhode Island Reds.

Chickens Eat Feathers

Chickens eat their own feathers because of the lack of the following feeds: 1, meat; 2, green food or bulk; 3, salt. One-half pound of fine table salt should be put in the dry mash and this should be kept before the hens at all times. They should get plenty of green food. In the winter time, cabbage, mangels and root crops answer fairly well. They should have plenty of animal food such as beef scraps, fish scraps, skim milk or buttermilk.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank our kind friends and neighbors for their acts of love and sympathy during our recent loss of our daughter and sister, also extend grateful thanks for the beautiful floral tributes to our loved one.

Wonderful Picture at The New Kendrick This Week.

"We Americans" now running at the New Kendrick Theatre is one of the outstanding pictures of 1928. It is said to be the best American production since the "Birth of a Nation". It is truly a wonderful, powerful drama. It does not preach, but it inspires. Those who saw this picture last night were delighted with it and many splendid compliments were heard from last night's crowd. We believe we are safe in saying that "We Americans" is without exception one of the finest pictures ever shown in any local theatre. 38-1
