Division of Gas Tax

Sentiment might easily be created in favor of division among the counties of the gas tax in the absence of a thorough understanding of the subject by the public. At present the state gets it all and builds and maintains all the highways. If it were divided 50-50 with the counties, as some propose, the counties would have to do a lot of state highway work, as the state department would be too crippled financially to do all of it. And furthermore, local demands would divert considerable of the county gas fund to county roads, leaving the state highways neglected again, which, it appears to many, would not be satisfactory.

This work can be done better and more economically when under one general management, and more uniformly. That statement appears to be fully justified in the light of the experience in every state. Those having the best highways, the most economically constructed and the most efficiently maintained have produced those results by state effort. It never could have been accomplished by a division of construction and thru a patch work system. In this state we might have 44 ways of doing it, with most of them displeasing. Every county would have to maintain more or less expensive road building machinery in duplication of the lesser number required by state group construction, as none of the absolutely necessary federal funds are available excepting a certain standard be maintained.

The smaller counties would undoubtedly lose heavily through the proposed change. Most of them sell comparatively little gasoline, but the state builds their highways the same as for the larger counties. For instance, travelers between Boise and Twin Falls buy their gas mostly at one of those two points, not in Elmore county, which has an oiled state highway. The larger counties would suffer thru dissimilarity of construction, and possibly unsatisfactory construction leading to them, which would give them and the state a poor tourist reputation. In most cases, it is believed, their cost would be greater than at present even though they received half their gas tax.

Reduced to its essence we would have a retail and disconnected highway construction program instead of a wholesale, cohesive one. The wholesale cost is always the least.

These observations are not set down as infallible, but they seem to be practical. What is more important is the possibility that they may turn the public to a square and dispassionate analysis of the subject.

Idaho Produce Shipments

Idaho's heavy movement of produce is under way. There has been a steady outflow of it for some time, but the really big shipments will for some time now tax the capacities and energies of our carriers. If all the cars of annual production were strung along they would reach a distance of over 1,000 miles—a solid line from Nevada to Canada, and back, and then some. One newspaper stated recently there had been two million lambs shipped from Idaho. Too high, but there were 275 car loads. And that's a small item comparatively as to carload lots although large in dollars. Fruit, potatoes, seeds, lumber, livestock and other productions of Idaho swell to immense proportions. They are responsible for the fact that Idaho people live so well. Many laboring men in Idaho enjoy more luxuries than many of the professional class in eastern cities—and they are not cramped in cages but have commodious and real homes.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Foster of Elk River spent the week end at the home of Mr. Foster's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Foster.

Troy Has Great Play

Probably the best home talent play ever staged in Kendrick was "Cappy Rieks", presented at the New Kendrick Theatre last Wednesday evening by the Troy high school. It was as far superior to the usual "home talent" as a symphony orchestra is to a hand organ. The play itself, adapted from the story by Peter B. Kyne, is a comedy in three acts. It is extremely clever and full of sparkling comedy.

Prof. Wenig's characterization of Cappy Rieks was little short of marvelous. In fact, from the beginning of the play thru every minute of it, he was Cappy Rieks. He was just simply extremely good! Chalmers Donaldson as "Ceil Pericles Bernard", also showed exceptional talent. During the last act it was difficult to hear his lines because of the laughter which his clever acting provoked. But all of the members of the cast were very good and well adapted to their various parts.

A big crowd enjoyed every minute of this splendid entertainment. It was certainly a huge success.

Crescent Clippings

Sunday guests at the A. Dorendorf home were Mrs. Axel Swanson and daughters, Gloria and Alma, and son, Axel, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dorendorf and sons, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Riley and children, Mrs. W. H. Loeser and children, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Dorendorf and daughter, Mrs. Anna Kimbley and children, Mike Forrest and son, Burton, and Warren Trail.

Eldie Hunt visited with his sister, Mrs. James Farrington over the week end.

Wm. Kauder and John Darby spent from Thursday till Saturday of last week visiting in and around Moscow.

Mrs. Stewart Wilson and son, Elmer visited school Friday afternoon. Miss Slatter and Mrs. Wm. Zimmerman accompanied Mrs. Wilson to Elk River to visit Mrs. Oscar Torgerson over the week end. Mrs. Torgerson and Charlie Zimmerman returned with them Sunday and all spent the day at the Wm. Zimmerman home.

Mrs. M. L. Robeson returned from Agathia, Sunday after visiting with her daughter, Mrs. Arthur Anderson for the past two weeks.

Burton Souders visited at home from Friday until Monday.

Ida Carey visited over Sunday at home.

Mrs. E. J. Wells returned to her daughters home. Mrs. Frank Souders, Monday, after spending some time in Southwick.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Reid of Colfax visited Sunday at the Wm. Kauder home.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Zimmerman and children, Mr. and Mrs. James Farrington and son, Elmer Souders and Ida Carey visited at the W. L. hunt home at Linden, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Farrington and son, Abe Dorendorf, Eldie Hunt, and Gus Farrington were business visitors in Kendrick Saturday.

Sue Robeson is staying with her sister, Mrs. Vester Evans of Texas ridge, who is suffering with a felon on her hand.

Frank Souders, who is with the bean thresher, spent Sunday at home.

Zeb Robeson, Charlie Greenwood and Burton, and Elmer Souders left early Monday morning for Helmer where they are working with a surveying outfit.

One of the best conducted lines of business in Kendrick is that of the Kendrick Dray & Ice. Frank Boyd is always on the job, is accommodating and gives perfect service. He enjoys a splendid business because of the fact that he "tends to business".

The prettiest yard in town is that of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Long. They have a large variety of flowers in full bloom and very nicely arranged. The yard presents a very pretty picture to the passerby.

NEWS FROM THE KENDRICK SCHOOLS

Daily Doings in the Grades and High School

First Football Game Scheduled

Coach Jarvis announced Wednesday that he had scheduled the first football game of the season with the Culdesac High School, to be played at Kendrick, Friday, October 5th.

The boys have been practicing faithfully every night for the past week and hope to have learned at least the fundamentals of the game by the first of the month. While they may not display very much science in their first game, we guarantee an exhibition with plenty of spirit, determination and fight. Your presence and admittance fee will be greatly appreciated.

Warning To Freshmen!

At a class meeting held by the Sophomore class the following rules are to be observed by the Freshmen as a part of their initiation:

Wednesday: Freshmen are to carry Sophomore's books on their way to school. Upon all meetings they are to salute the Sophomores and say "I am green".

Thursday: The Freshmen are to omit all cosmetics. The girls are to comb their hair back from their face, and the boys are not to comb their hair before going to school.

Friday: Dress-up day, the girls are to dress as boys, and the boys are to dress as girls.

Friday evening: The initiation will be completed in the presence of the student body and faculty. Signed: Sophomore Class.

Frosh Version of Initiation

Initiation, which is being administered under the auspices of the Sophomore Class, began on Wednesday morning—according to the Sophomores. A long list of rules were read aloud for the benefit of the Frosh. On Wednesday the Frosh were amazed by seeing all rules disregarded. Instead of Freshmen appearing in their usual array as had been stipulated by the upper classmen, they burst forth in all of their glory. No wild Indian savage could have rivaled them for grease and paint.

The one good joke on the Frosh came when, following instructions made by them, the Frosh boys "carried the upper classmen's books" but not to school, rather they took the words literally and carried books, helters-skelter. Frosh are now bewailing their lack of grammatical knowledge and in the mean time are toiling up hill and down in search of lost books.

One other note the Frosh wish to make.—When the Sophomores found its rules disregarded by the courageous Freshmen, they nobly changed the date for the use of cosmetics—Victory for the Freshmen.

Sophs Version

We, the Sophomore Class, are very well pleased with the sportsmanship of the Freshmen Class. It is thought by us that if they proceed as they have been doing that Friday night's initiation will be a great success.

The primary room is busy learning new songs and games. The first grade especially enjoys the guessing and matching games, while the second grade has made the sand table into the "Three Bears" home with house, table, chairs and beds, folded and cut from construction paper.

The primary room sold the most hearts for the Children's Home Finding and Aid Society of Idaho. The sales totaled $6.70. The pupils will receive a flag for their room.

Wallace Fraser brot a pretty geranium plant for the first and second grades to enjoy.

Dr. and Mrs. Gist of Winchester were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Herres over the week end. They were on their way home from Yellowstone park where Dr. Gist attended a medical meeting.

May Organize Scout Troop

Last Friday evening Scout Executive A. J. Copeland of Lewiston, met with a number of Kendrick business men to talk over plans for organizing a local scout troop. The sentiment of the meeting was very favorable and temporary officers were elected to take further action in the matter. Attorney C. A. Oppenborn was chosen chairman of the committee and Prof. C. M. Beardley, secretary. This committee was instructed to take the matter up with the Kendrick commercial club at their next regular meeting.

Conditions are considered very favorable for a scout troop here. Both Mr. Beardley and H. B. Thompson have had extensive experience in scout work and would be valuable leaders for the local troop. It is also practically certain that the commercial club will be enthusiastically behind the new organization.

Death of George Spray

THE STATE WE LIVE IN

By Byron Defenbach

Lakes of Southern Idaho

Along the southern slope of the divide separating the Salmon and Snake River watersheds, and near the line between Idaho and Valley counties, there is a scattered group of small lakes all tributary to the Payette River through the

Payette Lakes

This lake, or group of lakes is perhaps the best known and most patronized of the waters of Southern Idaho. It is 114 miles from Boise, and easily accessible from all directions.

Its outlet is thru the Payette River to the Snake. The Payette flows down thru the counties of Valley, Boise, Gem and Payette, and has diversion and power dams at Cascade and at the Black Canyon near Emmett.

The main stream is joined by the South Fork of the Payette near the town of Banks, after which it traverses one of the most fertile valleys in the state, passing through the towns of Montour and Emmett, reaching its mouth at the city of Payette.

The following description of the Lake itself is contributed by the writer's friend, Mr. Guy Flenner, Idaho's best-known correspondent and feature writer:

Payette Lake is in Valley county and is described as one of the most beautiful in the state because of its approximate freedom from commercial attachments to its borders,—its exclusiveness, in other words, for recreational purposes.

The lake has a shore line of around 40 miles and has been sounded to a depth of nearly 300 feet. The water is pure and clear and mirrors with almost uncanny vividness the surrounding mountains some of which rise to a height of 8,000 feet.

The lake is in some what of a clover shape, with narrows connecting the three subdivisions. It lies at an altitude of 5,000 feet which renders it attractive as a summer resort. Evidence of its popularity is found in cottages all along its shores, in commercial tourist camps, and a splendid resort hotel.

The town of McCall is on the lake shore. It has a normal population of about 300, but in the summer season caters steadily to from 3,000 to 5,000 vacationists. The principal industry is lumbering. Almost every line of business is represented, including hotels, restaurants, and a variety of stores.

Payette Lake may be reached by the North and South and the Boise-Cascade highways, and by the Union Pacific Railroad which operates a line from Nampa to McCall.

FARM POULTRY

MODERN CHICKEN MUCH IMPROVED

When you sit down to your breakfast eggs or your Sunday chicken dinner nowadays you will probably enjoy much better food than you did seven years ago. For while few of us know anything of the change, the great American hen has become a decidedly improved bird since 1921.

Thousands of poultrymen in more than half of the states of the Union have adopted standard systems for improving the breeds and eradicating disease in their flocks since Wisconsin began producing "accredited" chicks seven years ago.

"The basis of the Wisconsin plan," explains the Farm Journal, "was a breeding program whereby through culling, selection of birds of standard qualifications and vigorous constitutions, with supervision of both flock and hatcheries, high-quality flocks and chicks might be produced. The chicks thus produced were designated as "accredited" and were advertised and sold as such.

"This accredited idea spread rapidly from Wisconsin and is now in operation under essentially the Wisconsin plan in Ohio, Illinois, Kansas, Missouri, Michigan, Texas, Tennessee and a number of other states. Some eight or ten more states are also preparing to put this plan into operation.

"In 1922, Connecticut adopted the Wisconsin idea, but made the blood test for bacillary white diarrhea the basis upon which flocks were to be accredited. Following the lead of Connecticut, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and a number of other Eastern states have built up an accredited system based on the disease-eradication plan. Washington, Oregon and Idaho are now on, or are adopting, this plan. New York has a plan that is a modification of this, with more emphasis on breeding."

Success of the plan is evidenced by the fact that Ohio, where the state poultrymen's association adopted the plan only in 1924, will this year produce 12,000,000 chicks from 65 accredited hatcheries.

Hot Water Very Useful in Preventing Chilling

If there is anything more aggravating than an old "mother" hen that refuses to hover her brood on cold, wet days, I don't know what it is, says a writer in Farm Life. But you know a dead chick more or less means nothing in life to an old Cluck, so it's up to us to give nature a lift in the way of artificial heat, when the hen refuses to do her duty.

Here's my way. Fill one-half or one gallon jugs with hot water, make a snug cover of woolen (an old blanket is ideal) to fit the jug, cork tightly, and place in a box or in the coop with the chicks. This will give off enough heat to keep the little things cozy for several hours. When necessary refill with hot water and you'll never lose chicks from chilling.

Poultry Notes

Comfortable quarters in the very earliest days means much in the future development of the chicks and the profit which they will return to their owners.

Young chicks should have no feed for 36 or even 48 hours after hatching. Corn bread, rolled oats, and hard-boiled eggs are good feeds for the first few days.

It takes 21 days for a hen egg to hatch, about 28 days for ducks, from 30 to 34 days for a goose egg, and 28 days for turkey eggs. The time may vary somewhat according to conditions.

The all-mash system of feeding chicks after the first month furnishes a satisfactory method and also allows the person handling the flock some leisure time without damaging the young birds.

Ground oats may be used for growing stock or laying hens when fed in limited quantities.

Wheat bran is largely used in all chick mashes. It is bulky but fairly digestible and has a laxative tendency which is beneficial. It is fairly high in protein.

Chicks need something green to eat. When they are out on good range they will take care of this requirement themselves. When they are housed it should be supplied.

In the building or maintaining of a high quality flock of poultry, no one factor is as important as the males heading the flock.

Buckwheat is lower in feeding value than corn, oats, or barley. Furthermore, it is higher in fiber and lower in digestibility than these grains.

When bluegrass is pastured too closely by geese, it will kill the grass out just the same as it will if bluegrass is pastured excessively close by cattle, or particularly by sheep.

Electric Service Is Democratic

EVERYONE in the community may enjoy the same economies and conveniences of the Electric Service company. Customers in large homes, small homes and of all circumstances have the same electricity available—which assures a high standard of living in American homes. Service is the same to all within a community. Certainly the industry is democratic in its benefits.

The engineer, the lineman, the power station employee, the meter reader and every other employee is as much in the service of the two-room residence as he is for the largest industry. That is the principle behind conscientious public service.

Slow-Feathering Chicks

Common in Some Breeds

"Slow feathering or 'naked' chicks are quite common in general purpose breeds, and sometimes occur in the lighter breeds," says Prof. C. W. Carrick, Purdue university. "Such chicks are usually those that lack the vigor necessary to grow rapidly but chicks may also become stunted from improper feed, chilling, or crowded conditions during the first few weeks of their lives. Whatever the cause may be, little can be done to make such chickens profitable. If pullets, they lay poorly and are likely to be susceptible to disease. They should be marked with leg bands when five or six weeks old, and marketed as soon as they reach sufficient size, otherwise they may feather out slowly and be kept in the flock to produce similar chicks next season."

By constantly culling out these low-vitality chicks, one can practically eliminate them in the future offspring.

Good Laying Mash

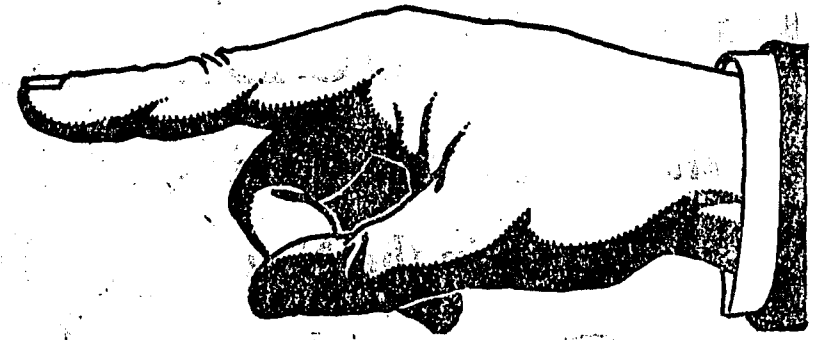

A farmer who raises corn, wheat, and oats can work them into a good laying mash. It can consist of 100 pounds of ground corn, 100 pounds of ground oats, 200 pounds of ground wheat and 100 pounds of meat scrap.

The addition of 2 per cent bone meal, 2 per cent ground limestone and 1 per cent fine salt will furnish minerals. Adding 50 pounds of bran to the 500 pounds of mash helps to give it more bulk, when ground wheat is used in place of bran and middlings.

POULTRY

REMOVE ROOSTERS FROM HEN FLOCKS

Now that the hatching season is over and fertile eggs are no longer needed, every poultryman should remove all of the male birds from his flock. For, says C. S. Platt, assistant poultry husbandman at the New Jersey experiment station, the production of fertile eggs for market purposes is never desirable, though it cannot be avoided during the hatching season.

On many farms there is a desire to keep over some of the better cockerels and the temptation is to allow these to remain in the flock. The number retained, however, should be reduced to a minimum by careful selection. When this is done the few that are kept should be segregated. It must be remembered that a new crop of cockerels will be reared during the coming season and good, vigorous cockerels are usually better than older birds anyway.

The exception exists on those farms practicing pedigree mating. Where this is done it is absolutely necessary to keep over all of the male birds until one knows what their daughters have done. A proved male is practically priceless and as one cannot determine in advance exactly what his daughters will do it becomes necessary to keep the birds over until they have had a chance to show their ability.

Male birds that are kept should be given plenty of sunshine, green food, and yellow corn. They will not need much animal protein. A free range and whole yellow corn fed twice daily will take care of their needs until the next breeding season. If kept confined, cod-liver oil should be provided in addition to the corn and green food. One per cent in the grain would provide sufficient oil. Under confined conditions it will also be necessary to be on the watch for lice and mites all of the time. These can be kept under control by painting the roosts with a carbolineum product and by dusting the birds with sodium fluoride.

Fatten Broilers Before Sending Them to Market

Profitable gains usually will be made by broilers that are fattened for a period of two weeks before they are sold. However, one should not expect to fatten broilers for longer than a two weeks' period, as the gains will not be rapid and profits are likely to disappear. Cockerels should be separated from the pullets and confined to a small yard. A roosting shed should be provided for the fattening birds.

A satisfactory mash mixture for fattening broilers is one composed of two parts of cornmeal and one part wheat middlings. This should be mixed with milk and fed for fifteen to twenty-minute periods three times daily. A liberal feeding of cracked corn should be given late in the afternoon. If liquid milk is available, it can be kept before the birds during the fattening period and no water need be given. Plenty of water should be provided if no milk is fed.

GROWING PULLETS NEED EVERY CARE

The young growing pullets need every advantage because the profits from them this fall will depend largely on their growth and maturity.

"There are four essentials in developing young pullets," says C. F. Parrish, extension poultryman at the North Carolina State college. "First give them a good range on ground not occupied by the hens nor where mature stock has been kept, supply plenty of fresh air in the poultry house, give them sufficient growing mash and scratch feed and see that shade and green feed is available. From the green feed, the pullets get certain food elements and iron which is essential. If natural shade is not available an artificial shade may be made by driving four stakes in the ground and covering them with sacks. Sunflowers or corn may also be planted to supply this necessity."

For those young pullets still in the brooder house, the heat should be decreased as fast as possible and the house ventilated. The stove should remain in the house for at least two weeks after the fire is out to use in case of cold rains. Feed the scratch again farther away from the house each day so the birds will go out and eat more green feed.

For roosting, Mr. Parrish advises the placing of temporary perch poles in the brooder house when the chicks are about seven to nine weeks old and do not need heat. These poles should be about fifteen inches from the floor and slanting at an angle of 45 degrees. One-inch mesh wire might be used in front of the poles to make the birds climb up.

A message to the editor of this paper from GENERAL MOTORS

JUST about a year ago we published, in your advertising columns, a message in which we sought to give you and your readers an idea of what General Motors is and what it is trying to accomplish. At that time the public was purchasing our cars at the rate of about one in every three; and our Frigidaire automatic refrigerator and Delco-Light electric plants were leading in popular preference in their respective fields.

Since then each of our car divisions has introduced new, further improved models and public patronage has reached the point where almost one out of two automobiles purchased is a General Motors car. Frigidaire and Delco-Light products have showed comparable increases in sales.

The reason for this is two-fold. First, the public wants value for its automobile dollar and recognizes value when it is given. Second, General Motors is seeking so to conduct its operations as to deserve the goodwill of the public.

We are particularly impressed with the number of letters which have come to us from editors of small city newspapers during recent months. These editors, who are in a position to reflect local sentiment, speak of the goodwill which attaches to General Motors in their communities and express an obviously sincere appreciation of the character of General Motors' advertising in their publications.

For our advertising has been as much concerned with giving your readers facts of helpfulness to them in the purchase of automobiles as with the merits of our own products. Our messages have set forth the principles of trade-in transactions and used car allowances. They have dealt with time payments and the change in the public's attitude toward the used car. Other messages have told of the policies of General Motors and of how our resources are being employed to effect them.

That General Motors enjoys the goodwill of the people in the small cities and on the farms of America gives us an especial satisfaction and confidence in the future. It is in the country sections of the United States that half our population lives. It is there that the whole industry must look in increasing measure for maintenance of the production volume upon which high values and low prices depend. And it is there that General Motors is paying particular attention to its facilities for sales and service.

To our friends in your community we express our thanks.
