

JUST IDAHO

By Guy Flenner

Newspapers and Uncle Sam
If the federal trade commission shall find any foundation for its inquisitorial operation on the so-called power trust, undoubtedly part of it will be evidence of a perfectly legitimate purpose to defend a heavy investment from practical ruination through governmental competition.

If it shall find that other industrial organizations and newspapers have taken up the fight for the power interests, or at least presented their side, it will have only revealed widespread opposition to governmental competition with private enterprise.

If it shall go farther it will develop that the federal government, in almost every department, members of congress and numerous bureaucracies have been busier than any other agencies with "space grabbing".

Government ownership is a subject upon which there is difference of opinion, and everyone is entitled to his own and should express it after he feels he has been fully informed as to conditions and consequences, but there should be no variant views as to the right of any industrial group to protect its investment, which means the investment of hundreds of thousands of people of all classes; and there should be no official support for any who are so biased, radical and unfair as to infer that those newspapers that see fit to oppose governmental ownership, or that merely publish the facts as they find them, have been "bought".

Newspaper publishers know a lot about governmental activities in "space grabbing", and they have suffered long from direct government competition in printing. They are in a strongly entrenched position to point out the inconsistency of official attitude on the "propaganda" of others while the country is being drenched with official propaganda. It is clearly within the rights of newspapers to oppose encroachment of government competition at any point, especially when they have experienced loss through its monopolistic expansion in their direction.

In Idaho, with hydro-electrical development, large as it is, still in an infant stage comparatively, the subject may be of as much concern as in the corn belt or the maple sugar zone. There are divisions of opinion, of course, on the main issue, but there is a very decided and rather unanimous belief that the federal government should not insist upon having a corner upon propaganda and that it should not encourage hateful innuendoes to be directed through official channels at its most loyal supporters—the newspapers.

Heavier Production

In practically every line of activity in Idaho there are signs of heavier production. Organizations representing our industries are talking more production, and the outlook is that 1929 will eclipse the heavy Idaho output of 1928, as to most lines. It is argued that production should be curtailed, notably agricultural production, but practical opinion again clashes with theory and at this time we are left in doubt. However, the trend toward greater output cannot be said to be premised upon mere folly. There must be some elements of substantiality behind it, and what seems more significant, is the confidence and faith disclosed in Idaho's future. When we couple the production prospects with the building programs outlined all over Idaho and visualize the general good conditions and in prospect for our producers in the country and in the towns, there is certainly no excuse for anyone giving this

IDAHO'S LICENSE TAX

Idaho has collected $1,454,081.30 in license from 84,886 pleasure automobiles, 8698 trucks and from dealers, motorcycles and miscellaneous vehicles, declared a report for the first six months of the year, made public Tuesday by the department of law enforcement, Boise.

This compares with 81,161 pleasure cars and 7845 trucks licensed at the same time in 1927 were $1,251,986.20.

Ada county leads the list of counties with collections of $152,675.35; Twin Falls is second with $127,180.10 and Canyon is third with $103,830.60. No other counties collected more than a hundred thousand dollars.

Of these license fees the counties get 90 per cent and 10 per cent goes to the state. The law requires this money to be used for road purposes or the retirement of outstanding road bonds.

There were 84,886 pleasure automobiles licensed, 8,698 trucks, 416 dealers, 338 motorcycles, 154 trailers, 298 commercial chaffeurs. Transfers of licenses totalled 7007.

Hunters Leave For The Wilds

A party of big game hunters composed of George Davidson, Wade Keene, Walter Bigham, Andy Galloway and Clarence Morey left last Saturday for the Selway country. They planned to drive to the end of the road and charter a pack train to take them to a favored spot where elk abound and mule deer are bounding around in herds.

A pleasure car was taken for two members of the party and the other three rode in a ton and a half truck, which will be used to bring home the meat. Close calculations divulge the fact that an elk and a deer for each member of the party will weigh just about a ton and a half. There's nothing like preparedness.

John Brocke Sold Farm

John Brocke sold his ranch on American ridge to Harry Ameling, the deal being closed last Monday. The place consists of about 97 acres of land and is located at the head of Brady gulch grade. It is a fine piece of property.

Mr. Brocke found it necessary to sell on account of the condition of his health. He and Mrs. Brocke will leave within a few weeks for the coast, probably Portland, to make their home. Their son, Don, will remain here to attend high school.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Deobald and family were Lewiston visitors last Tuesday.

state a pessimistic punch.

Idaho is one of the best buys in the list today. Land is cheaper than it ever will be, due to future heavier and more compact production, such as dairying, seeds, sugar beets, etc., to more intensive cultivation of smaller tracts and to enlarged areas under water insurance—storage. There are better opportunities in our towns than in the larger centers of population—better living conditions, more healthfulness, greater contentment.

Lambing and "Lamming"

Just been "lammed" over lambs. Tried to give an idea of the immensity of the Idaho sheep business by stating the lamb shipments in carload lots. The KEN 5—

O's and "Ewes" got all mixed up. Leaving off an "O" or so makes a lot of difference to everyone but the stenographer. Anyway, a good editor friend and booster for everything Idaho produces, landed on our advertisement. We now have it from Joel L. Priest, general agent of the Union Pacific, that the lamb shipments this year amounted to around 5,000 carloads, or about 1,500,000 lambs. He ought to know as he counts them as they get on the cars.

NEWS FROM THE KENDRICK SCHOOLS

Daily Doings in the Grades and High School

Candy Sale
Can candy be an aid to football? The high school girls are going to swell the football fund by selling candy at the game Friday afternoon—pennies increase profits.

The following is a sentence taken from a theme from English I class about a wreck: "It was too late then to stop the horses so he tried to cross the track before the train got there, but he did not make. The train mashed the wagon and killing one horse, breaking both his arms and one leg and cutting him badly."

Mr. Beardsley called for volunteers in the assembly Tuesday morning. The call was answered by all the boys, only to find it required hard manual labor. They were ordered to report to Mr. Jarvis at the football field as soon as hoes, shovels and rakes could be procured.

Tuesday, in domestic science, the girls made grape jelly, carrot marmalade, baked apples and pineapple jam.

The Sophomore Class would like to say that there was a slight mistake about the initiation in the Frosh news last week. Books were slightly misplaced but were brought back by the Freshmen, and also the date for the use of cosmetics was not changed by the Sophomores.

Upon entering the building the Freshmen were blind-folded. They thought they were beautifully painted Wednesday, but when we were through with them no wild Indian warrior could have been more artistically or elaborately decorated. They seemed to enjoy the free airplane ride, and the thrill of the chute.

Also, most of them will not need their usual weekly shampoo as they received one sufficient to last for some time.

A light lunch consisting of doughnuts and cider was served and afterwards games were played on the lawn. But, on the whole, the initiation was a great success; most of the Freshmen being good sports and only a few being absent.

Willis Berriman and wife of Moscow, Idaho, Oct. 1.—A matrimonial agency fraud, capable of being developed along wholesale lines, was believed to have been nipped in the bud here with the apprehension of a man giving the name of Ellis Foster and a woman whom he says is his wife. They live near Viola.

No arrest had been made today, however, pending laying of the case before the federal attorney by a postal inspector who spent Saturday in Moscow and, he said, obtained a confession from both the man and the woman.

Operated only a few weeks, few victims are known, but letters, telegrams and registered mail has been flowing to the pair, through use of a fictitious name, in growing volume, postal clerks said, leading to the belief that a lucrative clientele was being coerced into sending money to pay for transportation of one "Belle Gagnon" to marry bachelors or widowers.

Foster obtained a box at the Moscow postoffice under the name of "Belle Gagnon."

Only recently a man in Pennsylvania sent $150 in currency to the "woman," who had answered a matrimonial ad. When the easterner received a letter from a "friend of the woman," signing as Mrs. Bessie Foster, and telling that his "fiancee" had been injured in an automobile accident, that her money was nearly all gone and that she could not go to him, he became suspicious. This suspicion led to the man's apprehension when he called at the postoffice.

Foster and the woman are said to have confessed. The money they had received from Pennsylvania has been returned, and $124, which they admit receiving from other men was paid.

Between the time of the apprehension of Foster Saturday and Monday noon, seven letters and one telegram were received at Moscow, addressed either to "Miss Gagnon" or "Mrs. Bessie Foster."—Spokesman-Review.

Forget the election, therefore, until a month from now, and give some attention to registration. You'll feel like a fool if you walk up to the polls on November 6 and a hard boiled clerk tells you, "Nothing doing—you didn't register!"

KILLED BIG COUGAR

Idaho county's cougar killer, Elmer Gilmore, sends in another story of a big cougar killed in the wilds, east of Grangeville. We use his own words:

Another Deer Slayer Gone
"This time I had my 30-30. The other day brother Sam and I were hunting cattle. We went way up on the Blue ridge and had just turned off on the old 20-mile trail when both dogs rushed ahead. We called. Bill came back, but Smoky tore off down through the brush barking, so Sam told Bill to go and he did, and so did I.

"With chaps and spurs on and rifle in hand, I got almost there, then stopped and yelled back to Sam that I thought it was a porcupine. All at once away went the dogs and I after them, where they were running around in the tall timber and brush barking.

"I looked all around and then said 'go get him Bill.' The dog ran down the hill and jumped up on the trunk of a silver fir as high as he could and fell back barking. I looked up the tree about 60 feet and saw the big fellow through the boughs. I had got close to the tree to see where to shoot. On looking up, to my surprise, that awful beast was looking straight down at me and I had to shoot almost straight up. One shot from the trusty rifle brought the big fellow to the ground with a crash and a broken neck.

"I have killed quite a few cougars, but never saw such a beast as this one. He was nine feet and seven inches from tip to tip and weighed about 200 pounds."

Uncover Marriage Hoax

THE STATE WE LIVE IN

By Byron Defenbach

LAKES OF THE SAW-TOOTH RANGE

No intelligible description of this marvelous group of waters is possible unless the reader has some conception of the country in which they lie.

The Sawtooth region is a high mountainous area with summits at elevations of from 9,000 to over 12,000 feet above sea level. From the North, or Salmon River side, they rise abruptly from a broad valley floor 7,000 feet in elevation. As seen from this side, the crest bears a striking resemblance to the teeth of a saw, a likeness not so apparent from the south.

The canyons in these mountains are deep narrow gorges occupied by rapidly flowing streams whose beds are never less than 5,000 feet above the sea. In bygone ages these streams were living glaciers, those on the north slopes persisting to more recent times, some of them to this day.

A glacier is a river frozen solid, yet moving down, usually with incredible slowness, and carrying in its icy embrace earth and stones torn with irresistible force from its canyon bed and walls. The lower extremity of the glacier is always melting off. At the place of melting the earth and stone is deposited, often forming a sort of dam which the geologist calls a "terminal moraine". A moraine differs from a dam in that it may be miles instead of mere feet in thickness.

We are told that the ice or glacier age passed away very slowly. As the centuries went by, the glaciers gradually turned to rivers with their little tributary springs and creeks. Behind each moraine or dam there formed a sort of "millpond", or lake.

Of such structure, in such situations, and with such a history, are the lower Sawtooth lakes, commonly known as the REDFISH LAKES so called from the color assumed by the salmon as they come up into these remote regions to spawn.

Of these lakes the largest and best-known are Big and Little Redfish, Alturas, Yellow Belly, Pettit, and Stanley. They have been made accessible by highways, and are visited by thousands of people. They lie near to the center of area of Idaho, in Blaine and Custer counties. In beauty, in majesty of surroundings, in geologic interest, they have no equals outside of the Alps, and no superiors on earth. Many Idaho people have never visited them, though they are one of the great glories of the state we live in.

Lost Livery Barn

The last remaining livery barn in Grangeville is no more, this being due to the destruction of the historic Boss barn by fire Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

When the alarm was sounded and the department made a rapid response, the large frame building, occupying nearly a quarter block of ground, was burning with such fury that the firemen deemed it advisable to direct all their work to saving adjoining property, which proved a good move, the result being that but one other smaller frame structure was destroyed, the property of A. S. Hardy.

Twelve fine work horses were devoured in the flames. When the interior of the barn caught fire, burning like so much tinder, the animals were panic stricken. Three of them managed to escape from the building but after reaching the outside turned and made a hurried return into the burning inferno and perished with the nine that made no attempt to leave. Five of the horses were the property of Ed Lancaster, Salmon river stockman, it is said.—Tribune.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS

Eight proposed amendments to the Idaho constitution will be submitted to voters of the state at the general elections in November, according to a statement issued by Fred E. Lukens, secretary of state. Amendments in question will appear on a separate ballot at polling places.

The proposals deal with monthly instead of quarterly payment of state prosecuting attorneys, change of term of state officers to four years, disposition of county, city, and village lands, collections of revenues, appropriation of water for power purposes and an increase of salary for state legislators.

House Bill No. 3 provides for payment of monthly instead of quarterly salaries to the governor, secretary of state, auditor, treasurer, attorney general, and superintendent of public instruction.

All county officers and deputies when allowed shall receive fixed annual salaries to be paid in monthly installments out of the county treasury, if House joint resolution No. 4 is amended by voters. County officers are now being paid at the end of each quarter of the fiscal year.

An amendment of Section 18, Article V of the state constitution proposes that the prosecuting attorney of each county in Idaho shall "receive such compensation for services as may be fixed by law."

If resolution No. 8, a joint proposal, is passed by the voters, all officers of the state house whose names appear on the tickets will be elected for four year terms instead of two years. Officers include that of governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, state auditor, treasurer, attorney general, and superintendent of public instruction.

Amendment of Section 11, Article IX of the constitution will permit the loaning of permanent educational funds arising from the disposition of university lands on county, city, and village bonds. The amendment provides that permanent educational funds arising from sale and disposal of university land belonging to the state shall be loaned on first mortgage on improved farm land within the state, United States, county, city, village, or school district bonds, or state warrants, under such regulations as the legislature may provide: Provided, that no loan shall be made on any amount of money exceeding one-third of the market value of the lands at the time of the loan, exclusive of buildings.

Another amendment wishes a section of the constitution changed to provide that all taxes shall be collected by the officers designed by law.

"Shall Section 3 of Article XV be amended as to provide that the state may regulate and limit the use of unappropriated waters of any natural stream for power purposes?" is the question of another proposal. The present article in the constitution provides that the right to divert and use any waters of the state shall never be denied, except that the state may regulate and limit the use of the waters for electric purposes.

The last amendment proposal asks for an increase in salaries for state legislators from $5 to $10 per day for services while at the sessions of the legislature with a limit of $600 per session for services. The amendment also provides for mileage reimbursement at the rate of 10 cents per mile. When convened in extra session the lawmakers shall be paid for not more than 20 days, except in the case of the first session.

Voters are urged by state officials to study the amendments and become prepared to vote upon them. Special ballots, bearing the entire list of change proposals, will be used with the regular voter's ballot at the November elections in Idaho.

Too Much Running

A young man asked her father for her hand. "What salary are you receiving?" the stern father asked. "$10 a week," the young man replied. "Why, that wouldn't keep my daughter supplied with handkerchiefs," the father said. "Well, if she has a nose that runs that much, I don't want her," the young man answered.

Amputates Frozen Toes

With a Kitchen Knife
Prince George, British Columbia.—A trapper who amputated four of his toes with a kitchen knife when they became frozen last winter has arrived here for professional surgical attention, but was told he had done the job so well no further treatment was needed.

While inspecting his trap line on the upper Finlay river, J. Omera suffered frost bite in his right foot. On returning to his cabin, which is 50 miles from the nearest neighbor, he took three days to perform the operation. He then washed the wounds in antiseptic and bound them up.

Kemalists Turn Backs

on Traditional Hero
Constantinople—President Kemal, follower of Western cultural fashions, has bowled over the George Washington of old Turkey, Sultan Mahomet, conqueror of Constantinople in 1453.

An article in the official press, signed by a prominent Kemalist deputy, heaped insults on the national idol, charging that his only motto was "conquest and booty."

The attack on the Father of Turkey shows a fundamental change in the national mentality since the war. The author says that if Kemal had been on hand in 1453 instead of the great sultan the European renaissance would have sprung from Turkey instead of Greece and Rome.

Who Set The Price of WHEAT?

Congress provided in 1917 a minimum price of $2.00 for the 1918 wheat crop but no provision was made for the 1917 crop then being harvested. As a result the allied governments immediately consolidated their buying power in the hands of one central agent. It follows naturally that this central agent, as the sole purchaser of our exportable surplus, could control the price of wheat or any other commodity he wished to purchase. This purchasing agent maintained that a quantity of wheat sufficient for the needs of the allies could be purchased in the Argentine and Australia for $1.50 per bushel. It was therefor announced by the allied government that the price of American wheat for 1917 would be $1.50 per bushel.

As soon as Mr. Hoover learned that the allied governments had consolidated their buying power and were determined not to pay more than $1.50 per bushel for wheat, he urged President Wilson to take some action to PROTECT THE AMERICAN FARMER. He suggested to President Wilson that he would have to accept the price of the allies—a price fixed by foreigners—if he did not take some action. President Wilson appointed a committee, six of whom were farm organization leaders. This committee fixed the price at $2.20, which was 20c more per bushel over the price fixed by Congress for the 1918 crop, and was 70c per bushel more than the price fixed by the allied governments. The price of $2.20 per bushel fixed by the committee was a minimum price and no maximum price was provided. The price set by executive agreement of the allied governments of $1.50 per bushel was a maximum price.

When the charge was made that Mr. Hoover fixed the price of wheat, President Wilson said: "Mr. Hoover, at his express wish, took no part in the deliberations of the committee on whose recommendation I determined the Government's fair price, nor has he in any way intimated an opinion regarding that price."

Mr. J. J. Taber, National Master of the Grange, and Chas. Barrett, President of the National Farmers Union, who were members of the committee, said: "Mr. Hoover took absolutely no part in the price fixing and the conclusions of the committee were not made known to him until after they had been approved."

Dr. Harry A. Garfield, Chairman of the "FAIR PRICE COMMITTEE," appointed by President Wilson, and which fixed the price of wheat, said: "Mr. Hoover had absolutely no part in this matter other than to urge upon President Wilson that some action be taken TO PROTECT THE AMERICAN FARMER."

A Woman's Logic

Mrs. Jones cast an entirely new light—and it may be a wholly reasonable one—on the problem of woman's dress the other night. She and Mr. Jones were awaiting callers, and Mr. Jones surveyed her new gown rather critically. "Isn't it a little extreme?" suggested. "A little short and low cut?" "Well, I don't know," said Mr. Jones. "They're coming to see me, aren't they—not the dress?" —Argonaut.
