Looking and Longing

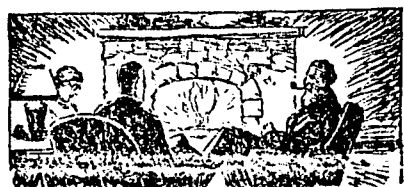

Out and In Christmas Eve
by Wickes Wamboldt

ONE of the best times I ever had on Christmas was about five years ago," said Jason Griggs reminiscently as we sat in front of a big log fire in his cozy sitting room Christmas eve.

Mrs. Griggs smiled and looked up from her sewing. "We did have a lot of fun that Christmas, didn't we, Jason?"

"We certainly did, ma," Jason laughed softly and continued:

"I had gone to town Christmas eve with a load of wood. The sun was pretty well down when I started home; and as I came along the street back of the baseball park I saw a lot of household goods piled out on the sidewalk. A man and woman and two little children were standing there looking at the stuff like they didn't know what to do. I stopped.

"Been put out?" I asked.

"Yes, sir," said the woman. The man didn't say a word. He had the most weebone look on his face I ever saw. To have one's goods dumped onto the sidewalk at any time isn't pleasant, but on Christmas eve of all times is just about the worst.

"Got any place to go?" I asked.

"No, sir," said the woman; then I turned to the man.

"How did you get this way?" I asked. He lifted his head and looked me straight in the eye.

"Carousing," he said frank as you please. I liked the way he said it. I like frank-hearted folks. If a man will be open and above board with me I can always get along with him.

"Why don't you cut it out?" I asked.

"God helping me, I have cut it out right now," he said.

"Got a job?" I asked.

"No," he said.

"Want one?" I asked.

"Mister," he said, "I'll take any decent job at anything I can feed my wife and children on."

"Well," said I, "my name is Griggs, Jason Griggs. I've got a farm out here on Turkey creek, and I need an all-year-round hand. I've got a nice little cottage out on my farm, too, that's empty. If you want to move out and go to work for me, I'll pay you $35 a month and give you your house rent, your firewood, your milk and your eggs when they ain't too scarce; and let you have a piece of ground to make yourself a garden; and let you have the tools to work it with."

"Well, that fellow's nice at up like a jack-o'-lantern on a Halloween night. He tried to say something but he just couldn't. He acted like he was about to choke. Then a couple of big tears pushed out of his eyes and rolled down his face.

"It was the woman who answered. She said: 'Thank you, mister! Thank you! It seems like God Himself must have sent you to help us.'

"All right," I said cheery as you please. 'Let's pile this stuff of yours right into the truck, and you folks'll spend Christmas out on the farm with me and my old lady.'

"It didn't take long to load up; they didn't have overly much; and they all worked like beavers, including the two little ones. We were soon rolling along, with the man and one of the children sitting on a mattress, and the woman and the other youngster in the seat with me. It was getting sort of late, so I kind of let the car have her head a bit; for a man who has been married as long as I have knows better than to keep supper waiting.

"When we reached home it was plumb dark, so I stopped at the house for a lantern and told ma what I had done; and she laughed and told me I was just as crazy as ever. I drove the folks down to their little cottage back of the orchard. We soon had things in and the stove up; and while the woman and the children were setting things to right I took Jim (that was the fellow's name) and we went up to my back yard to get a load of wood. I knew they didn't have anything to eat, so while Jim was piling the wood onto the truck I went into the kitchen and found that ma had already fixed up a basket for the boys.

"After ma and I had finished our supper, ma says to me Jason, those young ones are not going to have any Christmas presents." And I said 'Well, that will never do.' So we put on our duds and climbed into the slyver and drove to town and blew ourselves.

"We bought Jim a pair of overalls, a jumper and some heavy work gloves, something he could use on the farm.

"We bought Mrs. Jim a nice warm sweater and a dress. We got each of the kids a little red sweater, a red stocking cap and shoes, and some toys and candy and popcorn and oranges.

"We are fools," I says to ma on the way home. 'Nobody is ever grateful for what you do for them.'

"That isn't the idea," says ma to me, 'to do things for people to make them grateful. You want to do things for folks because things ought to be done!'

"'Guesse you're right,' says I, 'as you always are.'

"Early next morning ma and I carried the things down to Jim's house. I never saw a more tickled bunch in my life. The kids squeaked and yelled. They were as happy as pigs in a goober patch. And Jim had on a grin that took in his whole face.

"You sure have made a happy Christmas for us!" says Mrs. Jim, and her eyes were wet.

"And yesterday afternoon it looked like we weren't going to have any Christmas," said Jim, and his eyes were wet, too; then ma and I topped things off by having the whole kit and parcel up to Christmas dinner with us. That sure was one jolly Christmas.

"What became of Jim?" I asked.

"Oh, Jim's got a farm of his own now. He's a natural born farmer, Jim is. And when he got a chance to use the heavy farm tools to mine on his terms, I helped him buy it and he started. He's making money, too; I reckon Jim is one of the best farmers I've got. Talk about gratitude! He is one chap who doesn't overlook a cent's worth of business."

Christmas cheer
not forgotten

BY MARTHA BANNING THOMAS

FOR mercy sakes, do come along and don't drag so!" Mrs. Casey jerked at the arm of her reluctant son who was craning his neck to look into three shop windows at once. "We have only half an hour before the boat leaves, and I've got a lot of errands to do yet."

"There's a man waving at you, mamma," said the small boy. "He's comin' down the street. He wants to speak to you."

"Don't pay any attention to him, Joe! I haven't time to be bothered with him. Just some one who wants me to take a message over to his folks across the bay, probably."

But the man was coming rapidly nearer. His face was alight with smiles. His hand was out before he was within five yards of Mrs. Casey. "Mamma!" Joe hissed, "You'll have to stop!"

And indeed the man had no intention of letting her pass him.

"How do you do!" he called. "I recognized you three blocks away."

He was quite close now and his hand was still out. "My, it does my heart good to see you again, Mrs. Casey."

The woman frowned. Who was this man? Why did he bother her when she was in such a hurry? There would be no other chance for Christmas shopping after today. She had come across the bay in a small motor boat; it would be leaving for the return trip in twenty-five minutes.

"You don't remember me?" smiled the man. He looked down eagerly at the puzzled woman. "It was twenty years ago on Christmas that I first saw you. And I'll never forget it as long as I live."

Mrs. Casey clutched her shopping bag more closely to her breast and stared.

"I had a brother," said the man, his face aglow with memory. "He was younger than I . . . a little shaver when you saw him. You gave us our first real Christmas, and I'll never forget it as long as I live."

Mrs. Casey blinked rapidly several times. Part of a smile began to flicker around her lips. She peered up into the man's face.

"You sent your husband down to the little shack where we lived," continued the man, "and he wrapped us up warm in mufflers and coats he had brought. He drove us in a sleigh to your house. Our mother had died a few months before and we were lonely and miserable. We had moved to the village just that week and knew no one. Our father had no work and we were terribly neglected and unhappy."

"Yes . . . yes!" laughed the woman, "I know you now. My land, how big you've grown!"

"And you gave us a fine big dinner, turkey, cranberry sauce, mince pie," said the man. His voice was softened and his eyes misty with tears. "It was the greatest day of my life. I have never forgotten it. You gave us a memory of happiness that has lasted all these years and will go on forever. It was the true spirit of Christmas cheer, and my brother and I have tried to spread it around as far as we can ever since. You see what you started. God bless you!" He bent swiftly and kissed her cheek. He tweaked Joe's ear. With a smile, he strode off again and was lost in the crowd.

"Gracious sakes!" gasped Mrs. Casey. "Well, if that don't beat all! My, my, my! Those two little boys men grown now!"

With beaming face she tugged at Joe's sleeve. "Hurry up now! We must catch that boat."

"Aw, mamma . . . let me just peek into that window . . ." But Mrs. Casey was thinking of that long ago Christmas, and the man who had reminded her of it.

Old Age at the Altar

Marriage statistics of South Africa record the wedding of one centenarian and four other men, each more than ninety-five years of age. Three hundred bridegrooms of eighty-five and over are mentioned, as well as three centenarian brides.

Christmas' Namesake

The most important of Christmas' namesakes is Natal, a province of South Africa. The Portuguese discovered it on Christmas day and named it Natal since it was sighted on Christ's natal day.

LUKENS FAVORS LICENSE LAW FOR DRIVERS IN IDAHO

Ninety-two lives were lost as a result of highway accidents in Idaho in 1927, with an estimated property loss of a million dollars from the same source, declared Fred E. Lukens, commissioner of law enforcement, in his biennial report of the bureau of motor vehicle registration. These accidents, he said serve to point the way to greater highway safety by means of a driver's license law and suitable highway traffic protection.

There is an outstanding growth in the number of motor vehicles registered, the report continues. The total registration during the first 18 months of the biennium just closing was 194,920 automobiles, or 18,654 more than the total registration for the preceding two years. Total fees collected during the same period of this biennium amounted to $2,875,444.32 or $337,178.35 more than the aggregate collected during the entire preceding two years.

"This increase in revenue", continued the report, "is naturally due to the increase of automobile usage, but it is a fact that during the last biennium it has been possible to give the collection of registration fees more efficient attention. Previous to this time no means were available for the organized effort to demand a just and lawful compliance with the license requirements."

"A position of field agent of the department was created about two years ago and shortly afterward the state highway department aided in securing an additional field deputy. The commissioner in company with one or the other field deputy held nine regional conferences, which were well attended."

"As a result of these field officers' work the counties of Bonneville, Idaho, Payette, Washington and Bannock have paid salaries to traffic officers to supplement their work under this department. The financial earnings of these men have made their services profitable to the counties and the promotion of highway safety has been of inestimable value."

Reciting the passage of the motor vehicle uniform laws by the last legislature, the enforcement difficulties under the uniform titles act are pointed out in the report, which declares it has been the aim of the department to "institute these new requirements in a reasonable and unobtrusive way."

"A firm and inflexible enforcement of this law," the report adds, "will virtually prevent the sale of stolen automobiles in this state."

Cameron News

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Whitman and family, Mr. Reiche, Herbert Wolfe, Albert and Chas. Schultz were afternoon visitors at the home of "Grandpa" and Grandma Schultz Sunday.

Wilma Schultz has been staying with "Grandma" Schultz, helping her with her work, the past week.

Carl L. Wegner and daughters, Mildred and Selma were in Kendrick, Saturday.

Mildred Wegner spent Sunday afternoon with Erna Wegner practicing for their Christmas program.

Mrs. Chas. Schultz, Mrs. A. W. Schultz and Mrs. Jake Berriman were at the home of Mrs. Carl L. Wegner, Sunday afternoon, sewing on costumes for the Xmas operetta at the school.

Mrs. Berriman has been very kind in giving her time to assisting with the rehearsals for the Christmas operetta to be presented Friday evening at eight o'clock at the Cameron school.

Among those on the sick list in this community, the following have been absent from school the past week: Willard Schoeffler, Oscar Hartung, Clarence McCoy, Frank Schoeffler and Vernon Henry. So far this term the attendance has been very satisfactory.

Mr. Criddlebaugh, will leave Saturday morning for his home in Lewiston to spend the holidays. School will resume on Wednesday, January 2, unless further notice is given.

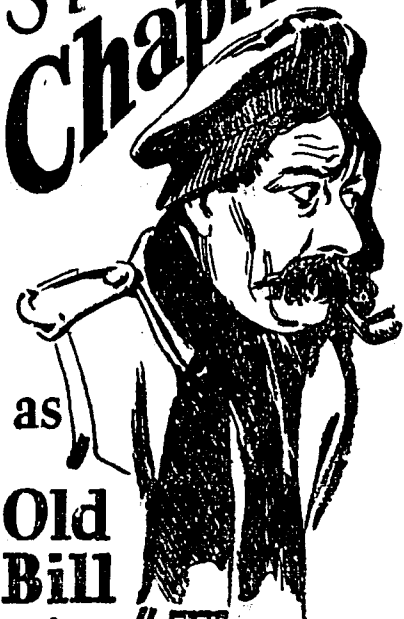

A short business session of the P. T. A. will be held immediately after the Christmas program, Friday. At this time members in good standing will vote on the proposed constitution. Members must have paid their dues by Friday evening to be eligible to vote. The dues of fifty cents per member, per year, were decided upon at the last meeting. It is hoped by the Executive Committee that there will be a 100 percent enrollment of all parents in this district.
