

JUST IDAHO

By Guy Flenner

There is always a measure of gratification when one's judgment is sustained, albeit the boastful "I-told-you-so" may be exploited ad nauseam, and especially when the object is larger than individual foresight or conceit. Early in 1928 the writer forecasted there would be a movement out of Idaho of at least 100,000 carloads of Idaho production. The statement was received in some quarters with owlish depreciation—in other words, too hop-ful or something. That the forecast is borne out by the results is of no importance as to its origin but quite material as revealing the growing strength of Idaho. We figured a certain increase on the theory that none can lose unless we discount this state's resources.

The figures are now available. We will not string them out here in detail but will give enough to demonstrate. On the Union Pacific system from Pocatello west the shipments amounted to 60,000 carloads and north, south and east of Pocatello to 40,000. There's the 100,000. To be sure all were not out-of-state shipments. Many cars were of local or interstate destination, but we have not included the out-of-state shipments of the north Idaho lines, which far more than offset the local shipments in the south. The fact is that the total shipped out of the state exceeds 100,000 carloads by a most satisfactory majority.

Some of The Items

Only the Union Pacific figures are available to us at this time, but we all know that the northern roads shipped heavily of grain, lumber, mine products, etc.

A glance at the list furnishes some revelations, for instance the shipment of 12 carloads of frozen canned eggs, representing in their compressed state several times the shelled variety. Celery with 129 carloads, lettuce 92 and green peas 168 are figures that compel attention. Then there are nearly 1250 cars of onions, butter 303 cars, eggs 582, cheese 401 and dressed poultry nearly 250. Of the larger items we have more than 25,000 carloads of potatoes, 8000 of green fruit, 13,000 of grain, 546 of wool, 15,000 of livestock. The list includes 5000 cars of sugar beets, much of it moved within the state. Another interesting item is over 200 cars of canned goods.

In perishables the Union Pacific handled of Idaho stuff nearly 6500 more carloads in 1928 than in 1927.

To repeat: Do not sell Idaho short or you will find yourself on the wrong side of the market. The pessimistic game in this state will inevitably lead to dead and losing cards.

Entertained at Bridge

Mrs. Arnold Behrens entertained a number of friends at her home in Juliaetta, Tuesday afternoon, honoring her sister, Miss Mildred Griffith of Lewiston, who is her house guest. Two tables were arranged for bridge and after several very delightful hours of play, scores were totaled. Mrs. Carroll and Mrs. Rider tied for first. They cut for the prize, Mrs. Rider winning.

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess. Those present were Mesdames Morehead, H. Thomas, Carroll and Carlson of Kendrick; Mrs. Powell Neilson of Ogden, Utah; Mrs. W. C. Jones and Mrs. Rider of Juliaetta; Miss Mildred Griffith of Lewiston, and the hostess.

City Fathers Meet

The following members of the city council were present at the regular meeting held last Tuesday evening: Chairman Walker, Trustees Dammarell, Deobald and Schupfer. Trustee Raby was absent on account of illness in his family.

After disposing of routine business the matter of changing the ordinance covering the collection of dog taxes was discussed. A copy of the proposed changes was read the first time at this meeting. They govern the time of collecting tax, the minimum age at which dogs may be taxed and the penalty for failure to pay taxes.

Bids for the sale of the old Hamley residence were opened. There were three bids on file. One from Phil Johns, high bid of $51.50, and the other two from Harry Ameling and Geo. Leith. The bid of Mr. Johns was accepted. He will have until the middle of April to tear down the house and remove the material from the premises.

The meeting then adjourned.

Game Birds Starving

Leonard Fairfield of the Fairview section was in Kendrick yesterday. He said that a few days ago he was out on the breaks of the Clearwater and found a number of Chinese pheasants that were so weak they were unable to fly. He caught one of them and examined it and found that it was nothing but skin and bones, covered with feathers and that it wouldn't weigh a pound. It seems strange that our much vaunted state game department can spend thousands of dollars to raise a few hundred pheasants on the game farm but can't afford to spend a few hundred dollars for feed to save thousands of birds from starving.

Arrest Alleged Robbers

Lewiston Tribune: Curtis Lyle, alias Dick Lyle, is under arrest at Walla Walla, and the two other men who were with him when the Cavendish postoffice was robbed several weeks ago are behind the bars in this city. Lyle was the last man sought by the officers to bring to justice what the officers claim to have been one of the most daring and active gangs of criminals that has worked in the north-central Idaho region, the others being Nathan Kelly and James Roberts, alias James Morrow. Harry Saxton was a member of the gang but was not involved in the crime committed at Cavendish. He, too, is in the Nez Perce county jail, charged with first degree burglary.

When James Roberts confessed to the officers here last week, his statements covering 16 typewritten pages, he directly accused Lyle and Kelly of being present at the time of the post office robbery and also implicated them in other crimes committed in the Lewiston region. At the time of making his confession Roberts advised the sheriff and prosecuting attorney that Kelly had "squealed" on him and that in view of that he was going to divulge to the officers all information he possessed relative to Saxton and Lyle.

Was Misunderstood

A druggist was obliged to be absent from his store one day. His wife took his place. A large Norwegian, who spoke English with difficulty, entered and said: "Hi owe de firm 50c." "Very well," said the druggist's wife, "just pay it to me, it will be all right." "Hi owe de firm 50c." "Yes, I understand. If you are afraid, I will give you a receipt for it." The man looked at her in astonishment, walked out without a word. Pretty soon he returned with a fellow countryman, whose command of English was a little better, who interpreted his friends remarks by explaining, "He wants 50c worth of iodoforn."—Ex.

And from behind the davenport came a surprised voice: "Now, how the hell did you know I was here?"—Ex.

made for monthly teachers' meetings, the first one to be held at Kendrick.

The following is a descriptive paragraph written by Eugene Groselose of the seventh grade:

A FALL DAY

The horizon was hazy with a smoky murkiness, and the sun a huge red ball of fire, could be seen dimly through the misty atmosphere. The trees were shedding their leaves, and the clear sparkling brook was almost choking with the leaves of nearby trees. These being of all shapes, sizes and colors floated on its beautiful surface. On the high slopes the wind was moaning softly, yet wearily through the tall stately firs, and stunted old pines, on whose branches the happy squirrels were storing the last part of their winter foods. Beneath, on the large trunks, the stately red coated bucks were rubbing the velvet off from their shining antlers, preparatory for their autumn fighting.

Letter From Rev. Taber

The Gazette received the following letter from Rev. L. E. Taber, former pastor of the local Methodist church:

"We enjoy reading the Gazette very much and look forward to its coming with pleasure.

"The church folks at Connell and Othello presented us with a gift of $100 to rehabilitate our ear. We expect to be driving it again soon.

"We are having some snow now, which is very beneficial to this arid district. Othello is located in the center of the Columbia Basin project. We boast of 300 days of sunshine, mild winters and long growing seasons as well as excellent soil. The elevation is 1038 feet. It is a fine territory for early fruit and vegetables.

"Othello is a division point on Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad. The population of the town is 649 and we have a monthly payroll of $20,000.

"We have a consolidated school, both in the grades and high school. The pupils are conveyed to and from school in auto busses. This system is very satisfactory to all concerned and should be adopted in every community where it is possible.

"Our churches are very attractive. The attitude of the congregation and interest in all civic affairs are most encouraging.

"Wishing the Gazette readers a very prosperous year.

"Sincerely,
"Rev. L. E. Taber."

Purchases High Class Bull

William Cox of Juliaetta recently purchased an Ayrshire bull from E. W. Van Tassel of Wenatchee, Washington to head his present herd. Wenatchee Scottish Cavalier 2nd E, the eight-month old bull, is from a high producing dam, Lady Robin of Wenatchee, last year making a herd test record of 11,187 pounds of milk and 443 pounds of butterfat. Also, his half-sister, Wenatchee Lady Fair, is a very good show animal, being awarded second prize junior calf at Pacific Coast International in 1924 and was third prize two-year-old at the same show two years later. Another sister, Wenatchee Lady Rose, was second prize junior calf at the Pacific International in 1926.

THE STATE WE LIVE IN

By Byron Defenbach

The City of Rocks

Twenty-five miles northwest of Gooding there is an interesting manifestation of Nature's architecture known on the maps as the "City of Rocks." It differs from the Cassia county formation in that it is lava instead of granite.

The Gooding county city is drained by 2 small creeks which were once much larger streams. Clover Creek flows directly to the Snake. City Creek is a tributary of Wood River, and thus finally reaches the Snake through the Malad.

The Malad River is probably the shortest stream of its volume in the world. Mr. H. L. Senger, chief engineer Idaho Power company says: "The source of this river is in a pool of clear spring water, located at the head of the canyon. From here to its mouth is about three miles. I do not know of any similar stream three miles long which carries 1,100 second feet of water."

The formations in the City of Rocks are chiefly the result of erosion by the creeks above named, followed by the polishing effects of centuries of wind. Softer parts of the earth's surface have been worn away by these forces, aided by frost and rain, leaving the more resistant portions standing in picturesque forms, such as curious looking spires, steeples and mosques.

Among the more striking figures are the Inverted Boot, the Twin Rocks, and the Great Mast. The last named is 24 feet thick, 100 feet high, and contains some 45,000 cubic feet of lava. Many of these formations are highly colored, blue, purple, red, brown and green.

The only scientific description of this region extant was prepared by Mr. Melville Johnson, a senior in the State School of Mines at Moscow, to whom the writer desires to give due credit. The City is not far from some of our main highways, but Mr. Johnson complains that it is rather difficult of access on account of several miles of poor road. He pronounces the area a "very beautiful and scenic spot, entitled to more publicity than it has ever received. There is no population in or near the City of Rocks, the nearest settlement being those of the Snake River Valley near Gooding and at Fir Grove, which is north of the city in Camas county.

The occupation of the people is farming and stock-raising. The creeks all go dry in mid-summer, a serious objection to the place as a tourist's camping ground. The nearest ever-living water is a spring at the bottom of a deep canyon a mile or more from the City. Johnson says that an artesian well would be the almost certain result of drilling in this section.

Other interesting manifestations of this type of erosion are found in the "Castle of Rock" near Buhl; still others, not so well developed, occur near Emmett.

Section Boss Found Hog

Tom Blevins, local section boss, while shoveling snow off the platform at the stockyards, heard a grunting sound that he decided was either a hog, a dog or a bear. Armed with his snow shovel he started to investigate and finally located the animal under the loading chute. It turned out to be a perfectly good hog, weighing approximately 150 pounds.

Mr. Blevins called up B. N. Emmett, who claimed ownership of the hog and said that it was evidently one that had been overlooked when a carload had been shipped from the yards fifteen days ago. The hog crawled under the chute and rooted up the dirt for a comfortable bed for the night. The dirt had then frozen solid and formed a barrier, shutting off all means of egress. The animal seemed in good spirits and none the worse from its enforced hibernation.

which has all the valuable properties of the barnyard variety, and is far more agreeable to handle, says the soils expert.

The material should be piled in some out of the way place where it can be moistened at intervals, and then given an occasional dressing of lime and sulphate of ammonia.

In a similar fashion, by the use of nitrogen and phosphoric acid fertilizers and some form of lime, excellent manure may be made on a larger scale with cornstalks, tomato vines, and the like. The practice followed is scattering a mixture of 80 pounds of sulphate of ammonia, 60 pounds of superphosphates and 100 pounds of limestone over each ton of material as it is being built into the pile.

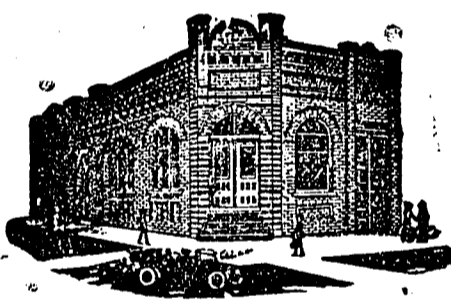

Beef Breeding Animals

Very Good Property

When a man can clip a $50 coupon from a $100 plant every year, he does not sell the goose that lays the golden egg. During the past year or two, good feeder calves have sold at weaning time for $40 to $55, almost half the value of their mothers.

Prices of heifers and cows are exceedingly high and owners have been tempted to sell them. Many of the good heifers should stay in the herds of the state to produce more beef for the future. No one is certain when the supply of cattle will increase to the point where it will start the price downward, but many who study the situation believe the break will not come for several years. Pastures in the range area of Nebraska and other states will be comparatively empty again next year if the present tendency to turn the females into money continues. Unless some unforeseen factor enters into the situation, those cattlemen who can resist the temptation and hold their breeding stock will be "sitting pretty" again next year.

A Gazette "for sale" ad will get results. Try one.

Organic Rubbish Is Source of Manures

Useful Leaves, Grass Cuttings, Weeds and Straw.

Manufacture of artificial manure from organic rubbish found about the yard and garden is perfectly possible. However, the user of the process may eventually be required to pay a royalty on every ton of manure so produced, according to H. E. Baer of the soils department of the Ohio State university. The process by which the rubbish is converted into manure has been patented by an English company, and the legality of the patent is now being tested in the American courts.

Leaves, grass cuttings, weeds, straw and such material lend themselves readily to the manufacture of manure

Let's hope that it won't happen this time as the city fathers in Kendrick are already at their wits end to know what to do with the snow we already have on Main Street.

Throughout his life Percy T. Goodban, a resident of London, had the reputation of being late for his appointments.
