Spokane Lutie Fisklets

Congratulations to the Gazette on having acquired a foreign correspondent. We are not surprised that the mention of the male livestock market has brot in a sample from the land of the Chamber of Commerce.

Score another point for California. She has driven "Just Idaho" off the front page. The California rooters will now rise and sing "My Scare Crow's In Eserow Now".

After seeing the orange show your correspondent from the south can probably tell us how they pick out all the sour oranges to send up to the northwest.

So they pay a dollar to start riding at two in the morning down there. Up here in Spokane you can ride on the installment plan, ten cents down and ten cents an hour, with a thirty per cent discount for cash in advance. Also when a fellow gets drunk enough in Spokane to start riding at two in the morning he usually rides in an automobile and pays a hundred dollars or is given terms.

We certainly hope to hear from the California writer again, perhaps he can give us the latest dope on the revolution down there in Mexico.

We received a pamphlet yesterday advertising the humble spud. It seems they're packing them in cartons now. Pretty soon the farmers will have to have some labels printed and stick a label on each spud in order to be able to compete. Advertising spuds may seem foolish, but last year Idaho spuds were much better spuds than last year's California oranges were oranges and we've seen considerable advertising of oranges.

Well with bananas, sauerkraut, spuds and oranges getting their share of publicity it won't be long before Uncle Sam gets his appetite back and they'll be raising something else at a profit out here besides the taxes.

Lutie Fisk.

W. W. P. Anniversary

The celebration by the Washington Water Power company of its fortieth anniversary, Wednesday, March 13, signalizes the development of the electric service industry in the Inland Empire and indicates the widespread adoption of electricity in this territory.

The history of electric service in the Inland Empire closely parallels the actual development of this new power. Thomas A. Edison built the first generating station in New York City in 1882. Three years later a small electric lighting plant was put in operation in Spokane. The Washington Water Power company was organized March 13, 1889 to consolidate the electric service industry in Spokane and to develop the Monroe Street power site. This station was completed and put in operation in 1890, the year in which Washington was admitted to statehood. The Monroe Street station has an initial capacity of 470 horsepower. Today the company operates six hydroelectric power stations on the Spokane river, these having a total capacity of 183,000 horsepower. In addition its plants at Chelan, Oroville and Dalkena bring the system capacity to more than 250,000 horsepower.

From the time of its organization in the infancy of the electric service industry the company has grown with the communities it serves and has been engaged in constantly increasing its generation transmission and distribution facilities to meet the demands for service and to increase the reliability of this service.

Today the Washington Water Power company furnishes electric service to 105 towns and communities in ten counties of Washington and six counties of Idaho.

George Elders of Lewiston was transacting business in Kendrick last Tuesday. He stated that he had bought property there and moved into it last Saturday.

"That woman is the most awful actress I ever saw," said the mild-mannered man to his neighbor. "That woman is my wife," replied the neighbor. "I am wrong," said the mild-mannered man; "she is a good actress struggling with a rotten play. I wonder what fool wrote it?" "Unfortunately, I am the author," said the neighbor, simply.

An Englishman touring in Scotland came across an old couple arguing in the road and stopped to ask the cause of the dispute. "We're no disputin' at all," answered the man. ### Store Announces Close Out Sale

Circulars are in the mail announcing the closing out sale of the stock of general merchandise of the Kendrick Store Co. This announcement will be received with regret on the part of the many friends of this institution. The Kendrick Store Co. has been doing business here under the active management of Mr. Damarell for a period of 14 years and during that time has served the community well and faithfully. The institution has a reputation all over the Potlatch country for honest values and fair dealings. For this reason it is not to be expected that the people of the surrounding country will receive the news carried in the store's announcement, with anything but a feeling of regret.

The sale that will open up next Wednesday morning will be store-wide and the stock has been priced at close-out figures. The sale is in charge of O. M. Giness, merchandise adjuster of Minneapolis. He is pricing the merchandise, arranging the stock and looking after the many details of the sale. Advertising has been distributed over a fifty-mile area. It is expected that the stock will be sold out within a comparatively short space of time.

Gypsum Will Help Crops

Use of gypsum on northern Idaho soils growing alfalfa or clover is recommended by the agricultural station, reports G. R. McDole, soil technologist.

Soils in northern Idaho, chiefly north of the Salmon river, need more sulphur in growing clover and alfalfa. Professor McDole said, and application of gypsum supplies this need. Gypsum is more cheaply applied than is sulphur and is also more easily obtained. It may be applied either in fall or spring, with the best time being the fall. If applied in the spring, application should come as early as possible in order that the precipitation may work it into the soil.

Use of about 200 pounds of gypsum every third year on old alfalfa stands is the most profitable. It should be applied to new stands whenever it is felt that gypsum is needed. Alfalfa and clovers are crops to which gypsum can be applied most profitably. It is not recommended for pastures, for seed, or for bringing too heavy a crop.

Howard Delano was a Spokane visitor the first of the week.

Obituary

Carrie O. Vognild was born in Opdal, Norway, August 2, 1853. At the age of 29 she came to Yankton, South Dakota, where she remained for six years, coming to Moscow, Idaho, in May 1888. She was united in marriage to Abraham Hooker on November 8, 1891 at Moscow, where they resided for 3 years then moving to Genesee where they lived 6 years.

In February 1900 the family moved to Big Bear Ridge near Kendrick where Mrs. Hooker made her home until her death on February 22, 1929, at the age of 75 years, 7 months and 2 days.

During the last years of her life Mrs. Hooker was in poor health and in her last illness suffered much but bore her suffering patiently and was waiting the summons of eternal rest.

Mrs. Hooker was a woman of few words but was honest and upright in her motives, and was loved by all those who knew her for the good she did in her quiet manner for the welfare of the community. Her greatest interest was in her home, where she loved to work for her family.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Johanna Nelson at home and an aged sister, Miss Marit Vognild at Coeur d'Alene. Her husband preceded her in death six years ago. Two sons and a daughter died during infancy.

Funeral services were held Monday, February 25th, with a short service at the home. The quartet sang "Jesus Lover of My Soul", and a short prayer by Rev. Peter Hesby. This was followed by a service at the church. Mrs. Hooker's wish was to have her funeral like that of her departed husband, so Rev. Hesby chose the same text, John 14: 1-6 and the quartet sang, "There'll Be No Tears in Paradise", and "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere." The song "Nearer My God to Thee" was sung at the grave.

The pallbearers were: O. H. Forest, Ole Lien, N. E. Ware, A. Kleth, Halvor Lien and Hans Sneve. Interment was made in the Lutheran cemetery on Big Bear Ridge.

Lower Gasoline Prices

Gasoline prices were lowered two cents in Genesee the first of the week, following reductions in the state of Washington. Gasoline is now retailing at 22c, with the outcome undecided as to future prices. The cut has affected only border towns in Idaho, and as yet is not general over the Gem state. Prices in Washington, especially in the larger centers are lower than here.

Overproduction and unfavorable weather has increased surplus supplies to such an extent that lower prices result. Gas in California has reached the lowest mark in history, selling at one time as low as 5 cents in the southern part of the state.

Play at Leland Tonight

A play will be given by the Leland Missionary Society at the I. O. O. F. hall, tonight, Friday, March 8th at eight o'clock, at Leland, entitled "Mr. Bob." Characters: Phillip Royson, F. L. ### A Boys Idea

A school teacher asked her pupils the following question: "If you could be born again, what nationality would you prefer to be?" One boy, after a moment's thought, raised his hand confidently. "I would like to be born half Dutch and half Jew," he said. To the teacher's inquiry for his reason, he replied: "Well, a Dutchy is always happy if he has a dollar, a Jew always has one."

Student Qualifies For Silver Medal.

Lillian Long, a first year typing student, qualified for the silver medal given by the Underwood Typewriter Company to a student who attains a speed of fifty words per minute with five or less errors during the fifteen minutes of writing.

Several other students taking the same test were disqualified by one error too many. Eleanor Herres, writing for the forty word bronze pin, Edna Stanton, Gorgine Christensen and George Bailey, trying for the thirty word certificate, failed because of one too many mistakes.

This is the first year the Underwood company has allowed only five errors in a test. The more stringent requirements were made in an effort to train better stenographers in our schools.

The students must meet the requirements on the first writing and can try for the medal only once during a month. All of them are more determined than ever that they will win these awards.

Books Wanted

As the library in the school is rather limited, if anyone that has books written by standard American authors wishes to donate or lend them to the school it would be appreciated. The books are to be used by the students for book reports.

Kendrick Loses to Deary

The Kendrick girls played a losing game with Deary here last Wednesday night the score being 18-6. The girls tried hard to make their score crawl higher, but the Deary girls were too fast for their attempts. They are to play with Deary again next week.

Hear Inaugural Program

The students of the school and intermediate grades, thru the courtesy of the Carlson Hardware Co., were privileged to listen to the Inaugural Program broadcast from 7:30 to noon on Monday. Although the program was long the students appreciated it, but were disappointed that President Hoover's Inaugural address did not come in more distinctly. They particularly enjoyed the description of Washington, D. C. and the program broadcast from Palo Alto.

Both the students and faculty are glad to thank Mr. Carlson for his thoughtfulness in giving them this privilege.

End of Six Weeks Period

The first six weeks of the second semester ended last Friday. The tests were given Thursday and Friday. Since a patriotic program was given on Washington's birthday the regular six weeks program was not given. Instead of the program booths were made ready for the carnival given Friday night. The report cards will be given out the first of the week.

Third and Fourth Grades

Joe's Birthday Party

"Oh, I wish Joe had a birthday every day," sang the third and fourth grades after partaking of the lovely surprise lunch that Mrs. Cardinal served to them Monday in honor of that occasion.

Joe Cardinal was nine years old on that day and Mrs. Cardinal casually walked into the room with a very large basket just full of popcorn, jello and cake. She had to have Mrs. Beardsley help carry it up the hill. All the boys took turns paddling Joe until he was quite glad he was nine years old in stead of ten.

A mistake was made in last week's school notes that we would like to correct. There are three little girls instead of two that have never been absent nor tardy. The girls are Lillian Beardsley, Cleota Bolon and Jewel Cummings.

First And Second Grades

Those who have been neither absent nor tardy during the past six weeks are: Wallace Fraser, Irene and Harry McNeal, Ethel Fraser, Helen Gardner and Dick Carlson.

The first grade is taking up a silent reader, furnished by the district. It is called "The Thought Test Reader".

Don't forget the little children's program tonight (Friday) at eight o'clock. The Kendrick Band will play.

Please come and encourage the little ones. You will be pleased with their efforts.

Seventh And Eighth Grades

The seventh and eighth grades were in the assembly Monday morning during the inauguration of Herbert Hoover.

Both grades studied a picture during grammar class Thursday. Friday they wrote a story about the picture. The seventh grade studied "On the Santa Fe Trail." The eighth grade studied "On The Stairs."

Evelyn Hartinger is leaving school this week.

Carnival

The total receipts from the high school carnival amounted to about fifty dollars. Considering the conditions of both the weather and roads, that sum was as much as could be expected. The sideshows were unusually good particularly the style demonstration of the latest fashions put on

FEEDING METHODS REDUCE FLAVORS

Offensive Taste Due to One of Four Causes.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

While milk producers are giving considerable attention to preventing losses due to sour milk, they too rarely recognize that other flavors and odors also cause an annual loss probably as great as that from sour milk. Milk containing abnormal flavors and odors is rejected by dealers and consumers.

Abnormal flavors result mainly from four causes, according to C. J. Babcock, of the bureau of dairy industry, United States Department of Agriculture. They may be due to the physical condition of the cow, to highly flavored feeds and weeds, to the absorption of odors by the milk after it is drawn, or to biological changes in the milk.

If due to the condition of the cow or to feeds the objectionable flavors and odors will be noticeable just after milking and usually will not increase with time. Those caused by absorption develop only when the atmosphere is permeated with pronounced odors, whereas those due to biological changes become more apparent after some time has elapsed.

Feeds and weeds impart flavors and odors to milk mainly through the body of the cow, although feed-tainted barn air may have some effect. The time of feeding, therefore, is an important factor to consider in preventing undesirable flavors in the milk, according to Babcock. In most cases feeds do not flavor the milk except for a few hours, although some feeds, such as cabbage, when consumed in large quantities may still be noticeable in milk drawn 12 hours after feeding. For this reason, he says, highly flavored feeds should be fed immediately after milking—never just before. When fed as short a time as one hour before milking, such feeds as silage made from corn, alfalfa, sweet clover, or soy beans; and such feeds as green alfalfa, cabbage, turnips, rape and kale seriously affect the flavor and odor of milk. Green rye, green cowpeas, potatoes, dried-beet pulp, and carrots affect the milk only to a slight degree, whereas green corn, green oats and peas, green soy beans, pumpkins and sugar beets have practically no effect on the flavor and odor of milk.

Grain Should Be Given Before Roughage Is Fed

Most farmers who feed grain and good silage or alfalfa hay to their milk cows in the winter time have learned that it pays to feed the grain before the cows are given their roughage. Some cows relish silage so much that they will actually leave some of their grain in their troughs and clean up the silage. Four reasons are cited by practical dairymen why grain should be fed before the roughage is fed. The first reason is that heavy producing cows will get the concentrated grain feed that they need to maintain their production and their body, the second that the cows will relish the grain more when fed alone, the third that they will produce more milk and butterfat from a certain quantity of feed, and the fourth one is that they will produce more during their entire lactation period.

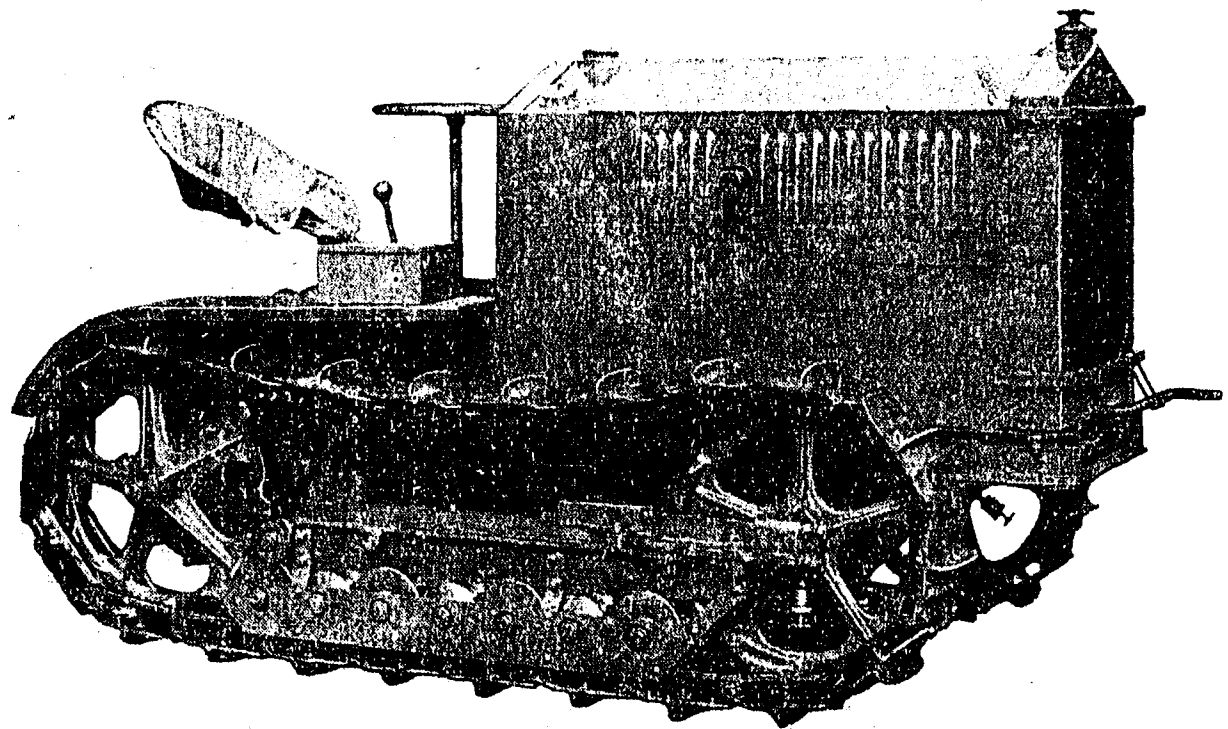

One pound of grain for each three pounds of milk produced per day is the usual amount fed. Four to six pounds is generally enough for heifers and eight to twelve pounds enough for mature cows. With the grain the cow should be eating about one pound of hay and three pounds of silage for each one hundred pounds she weighs, that is, a thousand pound cow would eat ten pounds of hay and thirty pounds of silage per day.

Improved Feed Methods Always Most Profitable

The selection of economical feeds, the intelligent compounding of rations and the feeding of each cow in proportion to her production, constitute the principal factors in economical feeding. Prices of feeds vary greatly from time to time, so that in choosing those most economical the cost per pound of digestible nutrients in various feeds should be considered. Under normal price conditions, roughage usually furnishes digestible nutrients more cheaply than concentrates; and feeds high in protein, such as cottonseed meal and all meal, furnish digestible protein much more cheaply than low protein feeds, such as corn and oats.

Tie Herd Bull

The herd bull should be tied up or be penned away from the herd until late in the fall, as it is important to avoid having cows freshen during the warm months. According to the 1927 records of the cows in Kansas herd improvement associations, the cow freshening in the spring showed a return above feed cost of nearly $18 less than did the winter freshening cow. If no pen is available for the bull, he may be tied by a chain from his ring to a wire cable.

The New Model Cletrac Now Ready For Delivery

It Is New From End to End

During the past three years we have sold nearly 100 Cletracs. One sells another. Cletrac has many new features, just as autos have. First, the wonderful, powerful, smooth-running six-cylinder motors; three speeds forward, electric lights, self-starter. New tracks on all models which will never give any more trouble.

Cletrac has more power for its size than any other tractor built and more traction. Above all, when you put in the gas the Cletrac is ready to go. One shot oiling-system oils all wheels and lower track wheels while tractor is going. No dirty job of digging out mud nor spending an hour filling grease cups. No oil holes on the machine. Motor has force feed oil to all rocker arms and moving parts.

Colonel Byrd is using a fleet of Cletracs on his South pole trip.

Cletrac has gone over the top. Just recently Russia has bought half a million dollar order of Cletracs. Factory is taxed to the limit on orders.

We will demonstrate for you on your ranch and will show you that the Cletrac cannot lie, but some agents can and do.

Cletrac shafting is all built of Krupp steel which cannot be broken by motor power. Our trouble is ended.

We have opened Cletrac headquarters in Kendrick for Nez Perce, Latah and Clearwater counties. We keep all parts on hand and overhaul all makes of tractors and cars from the bottom up. Guarantee first class workmanship. Reborn all motors.

We trade in any make of tractor or auto on new Cletracs. We have our service man who takes care of all tractors in field when needed. We are here to stay and so is Cletrac. We build 4-row bean cultivators for Cletracs, here in Kendrick. We sell all tractor machinery and carry a full line of Oliver and Case implements and repairs. See our display and before you buy a tractor let us show you the new Cletrac, fully guaranteed by factory for a long time to come. Your troubles will be ended when you drive one of these new machines.

Dub Male Fowls

Some breeders dub their male birds like game cocks to avoid freezing of the comb and wattles. The practice appears cruel but probably produces much less suffering than a badly frozen comb which takes weeks to heal. Usually it is only possible to dub birds for the home flock as it injures their appearance and other breeders will not like to buy them. With warmer poultry houses, many male birds are going through the winter without a frosted point.

Dairy Facts

It costs money to grow feeds for cows.

For washing and rinsing utensils, a clean, safe water supply is absolutely necessary.

The dishcloth may be justly charged with being responsible for a lot of the unclean utensils now being used to handle milk and cream.

The main essentials in housing dairy cows in winter are to keep them dry, out of the wind and drafts and to provide plenty of fresh air and sunlight.

With good breeding to produce cows of high production, never hesitate to give an individual all the feed she can efficiently convert into milk and butterfat.

Milk that has curdled will separate with difficulty. Previous to separating, such milk should be thoroughly mixed by pouring from one can to another, breaking up the curd as finely as possible, so as not to clog the machine.

Hindsight

We would be several thousand miles nearer the millennium if people expended as much energy trying to prevent disasters as they expend trying to explain them and place the responsibility.

Buckwheat Has Feeding Value for Dairy Cows

Buckwheat has a fair feeding value for cattle. The woody hulls of the buckwheat kernels have little feeding value themselves, but may be used to add bulk to a ration of other grains. Buckwheat middlings, which are separated from the hull in milling, contain 28 per cent crude protein and a fair amount of fat. Buckwheat bran is, of course, less valuable than buckwheat middlings, and when the bran does not contain more than half hulls it is regarded as about four-fifths as valuable as wheat bran. Such bran has about 16 per cent protein and 24 per cent fiber. Buckwheat products help to produce a large flow of milk when fed intelligently to dairy cows. If buckwheat is not given in excessive amounts it is not injurious to the quality of the butter produced by a herd.

Sheep must not get their coats soaked to be dried with their body heat.

High production is important, but hand in hand with it should go careful marketing.

Many farm tasks can be done more cheaply during the winter than on the more expensive time during the cropping season.

Not "Religious" Painting

The portrait of Mona Lisa, by Leonardo da Vinci, is by no means a religious picture. Mona (matrona or madam) Lisa Gherardini was the third wife of Francesco de Giocondo, whom she married in 1495. Leonardo da Vinci was engaged in painting her portrait from 1500 to 1501.

YOUNG MEN AND WOMEN WHO THINK CLEARLY THE GREATEST DEMAND OF AMERICAN BUSINESS

Bankers Association President Gives the Five Essentials of Sound Thinking in Business—Greater Opportunity Than Ever Before for Young People With Educational Training and Power to Analyze Problems.

By CRAIG B. HAZLEWOOD
President American Bankers Association

ONLY half a century ago Michael Pupin, a shepherd boy, guarded his flocks by night among the fields of Serbia. Thieves often lurked in the bordering cornfields awaiting an opportunity to make off with a part of the herd. Serbian boys were taught a method of signalling one another for warning and help. Each carried a knife with a long wooden handle which he would thrust deep into the ground and in case cattle thieves approached he would strike the wooden handle. The sound would be transmitted through the ground to other boys some distance away who could hear and interpret the message.

CRAIG B. HAZLEWOOD

"Why is it," Pupin asked his mother, "that we can signal this way? Why is it the sound can be heard through the ground, but not through the air? Why is it the signals can be heard in the pasture land so much better than in the plowed fields?" The boy's mother could not answer his questions, nor could the village teacher. However, having an eager mind and great determination, the boy decided to go to America, where he might win an education and find out the answers to these and other perplexing questions. Hundreds of other boys under the same circumstances and with the same set of conditions merely accepted these things without once questioning them just because they had always done them that way.

The Land of Education and Success

So a penniless immigrant boy from Serbia at the age of fifteen landed in New York in 1874 and, years later, having worked his way through Columbia University, concentrated the wonder and simplicity of his mind upon the problem of sound, which had puzzled him as a shepherd boy. The results of his thinking—what he has accomplished for the long distance telephone and for radio communication by his inventions—are known the world over. "It during the past twenty-two years this company has been compelled to do without one invention of Michael Pupin," an official of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company once said, "and yet give the same service it is giving today it would have had to spend at least $100,000,000 more than it has expended."

These inventions, in which millions of dollars of capital have been invested, were the result of the thinking of a mere country lad who had the simplicity to wonder, the determination to know and the power to apply what he learned.

Stimulating the imagination and thinking is the greatest purpose of education. What American business needs more than anything else is young men and women to think—individuals who are not mentally anchored to tradition, who do not merely appropriate other people's ideas, but who are hard, purposeful thinkers, independent and unprejudiced, with the ability to concentrate and strike straight for the heart of a problem.

Business Needs Folk Who Think
America has astounded the world by its readiness in casting aside traditional viewpoints, disregarding traditional difficulties and pioneering new shortcut formulas in the realm of business. Business is undergoing epochal changes.

Business problems are crowding in upon us so rapidly that the executive knows not where to look for adequate help or relief. With the enormous increase in size and intricacy of business affairs the problems have become so complicated and the mass of information necessary to their solution so great that the "days are not long enough." The demand for managerial and executive ability is rushing ahead—the opportunity for young men and women who have the professional training and who develop genuine thinking power is greater than ever.

All business feels the same crying need for the men who see clearly and think conclusively. Wherever we look—manufacturing, wholesaling, retailing, banking, financing—new forces are at work. Vast movements are under way and executives are seeking light upon perplexing problems daily.

Let us consider briefly the five essentials of a sound thinker. If I were looking for a young man of exceptional promise I should hope, first, to find in him the simplicity to wonder. Every great advancement in business has been made by men who dared to wonder, who had the courage to inquire into present procedure and who had the audacity to ask whether something that had been done a certain way for a long time might not be wrong. Although the history of America's progress from its very discovery to the present time has shown the value of an inquiring mind, there is still an inevitable tendency in most men to accept in a docile manner the opinions, methods, supposed facts, procedures and processes of the past. With due reverence to the effort, the spirit, the accomplishments of the past, let us make it our rule that everything be looked at with the clear, young mind of the scientist.

Business Requires an Open Mind

Second, among the essentials for sound thinking I would write down an open mind. We have mentioned freeing our minds from the influence of tradition. Let us think also without prejudice of personal feelings, desires or consequence. Let us seek only the truth. Mere surface reasoning must be discarded. Old "can'ts" and "don'ts" must be thrown into the discard. A man who has an open mind will do a great many things because he doesn't know they can't be done.

The third essential to sound thinking is knowledge—a thorough, comprehensive understanding of all the factors involved in a problem. It has been said that most problems answer themselves when the facts have been gathered. A well known student and teacher of business describes the method of attacking a problem as tearing it down, reassembling the problem and drawing the conclusion. There can be nothing but guess work or intuition unless the unknown quantities are discovered.

As a fourth essential sound thinking requires the capacity to generalize. How often we have seen men sweating and confused before a mass of details which they were utterly unable to classify and crystallize. We have the problem of sorting out the relevant, attaining a perspective and reaching a conclusion that can be defended against any attack. To certain minds this procedure comes naturally; to others training in the solution of complicated problems points the way out.

The Time for Action
Fifth among the essentials of sound thinking is the power to apply. A few individuals have minds that travel at random or in circles. Some have minds that even refuse to budge. But there are still others who naturally or through training have minds that can be directed straight through to the practical application of their thoughts. They refuse to compromise or to be thwarted in purpose before definite application of their ideas has been achieved.

It is possible, I believe, for young people to train themselves to an inquisitive attitude, an open mind and the ability to classify and interpret material step by step from the beginning of a problem to its final solution and application. Here, then, is the thought I would leave—the paramount need of business is sound thinking. Some may think I have overstated the case, have set too high a standard. They may feel that they are merely cogs in a machine. That, too, is a part of the problem. The only way to solve that is to find time and place in the day's work for thinking.

SCHOOL SAVINGS BANKING MOVEMENT REACHES IMPRESSIVE PROPORTIONS

Almost 14,000 of America's schools now have school savings banking plans in operation, and about four million pupils are learning systematic savings through this type of thrift, with deposits in excess of $26,000,000, recent reports of the American Bankers Association's Savings Bank Division show. The schools included in the reports are attended by 4,609,825 pupils, of whom 3,980,237 are participants in the school savings banking plans as depositors. During the year these pupils received interest in the amount of $947,610 on their deposits.

The reports gathered by the association also show that there are 33 cities in the United States in which a full 100 per cent of the grammar school enrollment is participating in school savings banking. The figures covering high schools show that in 47 cities 100 per cent of the attendance in this class are school savers.

Economical Basis for Dairy Ration

Superior Feeding Value of Legume Hays Has Been Known for Years.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
For 2,000 years agriculturists have recognized the superior feeding value of legume hays, yet, today, says J. H. Dawson, senior dairy husbandman of the bureau of dairy industry, United States Department of Agriculture, only 41 per cent of the hay grown in the United States is legume hay. Furthermore, he says, in the North Central and North Atlantic states, which contain 66 per cent of all the dairy cows in the country, the farmers grow two tons of nonlegume hay to one ton of legume hay. These statements are made in Farmers' Bulletin 1573-F, "Legume Hays for Milk Production," recently issued by the department.

Grow and Feed More Protein.
"If dairymen would grow and feed more protein in the form of legume hays, their feed bills would be reduced materially," says the author, who gives some interesting data comparing legume hays with timothy in yield of protein and other nutrients.

During 1927, according to figures in the bulletin, the average acre of alfalfa yielded 2.79 tons of hay per acre, clover 1.75 tons per acre, and timothy 1.43 tons per acre; the average acre of alfalfa produced almost seven times as much digestible protein, more than twice as much total digestible nutrients, and fifteen times as much lime as did timothy.

Timothy and Alfalfa.
"In other words," says Dawson, "15 acres of timothy would have to be grown, harvested and fed to produce as much lime as one acre of alfalfa. It would require approximately seven acres of timothy hay to produce as much crude digestible protein as one acre of alfalfa."

"When the price of alfalfa is around $12 a ton it will furnish 100 pounds of digestible protein for $5.05, whereas from timothy hay at $11 a ton the same amount of protein costs $18.85. Even when compared with the high protein concentrates, such as linseed meal and cottonseed meal at $47 to $50 a ton, alfalfa compares favorably in cost of protein. The cost of the dairy ration may be reduced materially by supplying a portion of the protein with alfalfa hay or some other legume grown on the farm. The legume that can be most practically produced on a given farm is the one that should be given first consideration."

A copy of the bulletin may be obtained by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Desirable Degree of Pruning Will Differ

Pruning the newly set tree is primarily for the purpose of reducing the evaporating surface of the tree until new root growth becomes established to supply adequate water. Incidentally also, it may serve in starting a proper framework, or branching system. The degree of pruning which is desirable differs with the species. Trees like the peach, which start new branches readily from the central trunk but the twigs of which tend to dry out badly, should be cut back most severely. Trees like the sour cherry, which does not start growth readily from the dormant buds on the older parts, but which makes its new growth from the active buds near the terminals of its branches, should be pruned least.

Lettuce Is Ideal Crop for Frame Gardening

Lettuce is an ideal crop for frame gardening. It may either be matured in the frames or the plants may be started there and later transferred to the garden. An extra early crop may be grown like this: Plant the seeds in a flat box in the house, if a hotbed is not available, harden off the plants gradually and transplant to the frames about ten inches apart just as soon as safe. For a later crop, plant in the frame and thin to stand about the same distance apart in the row. The plants that are thinned out of the frame may be transplanted to the garden if the weather permits. Big Boston is a good variety for frame culture.

Qualities of Balsam Fir

The wood of the balsam fir is very light in color, and being odorless, is very suitable for boxes intended for packing food materials.

The River of No Return

If the shades of Lewis & Clark could speak, they would say that the above is only half of it. In the year 1805, Clark spent several long August days in proving that the Salmon River was not only "no return", but was also "no go." Giving up his attempt to follow its shores, he rejoined Lewis near that beautiful spot where the city of Salmon now stands, thence turning abruptly north into the valley of the Bitter. The amazing gorge of the Salmon river cannot be traversed except by boat, and many years passed before anyone appeared with sufficient skill and courage to guide such a craft. But now the famous voyage has been made by many different groups, sometimes even in small boats, but usually in specially constructed barges. The young man Hyde, recently lost in the Grand Canyon, made the Salmon river trip with his sister in 1926.

There is no other experience available to people of Idaho combining so many thrills with such absolute freedom from danger. Several experienced and responsible guides may be found at Salmon City, of whom the best-known is Captain Harry Guleke who has piloted many parties. Bear-hunting expeditions go down in April, but strictly sight-seeing parties prefer the period after high water on to the cold weather of Autumn. The standard boat is a flat-bottomed scow, some 10 feet wide and 30 long, very strongly built. Two huge handsweeps guide it, and propel it through the few quiet stretches. No other power is needed. The boat is broken up and sold at destination.

From Salmon City to Lewiston is 305 miles. From 4 to 8 people make up the usual party, the total cost to divide among them approximately $800.00; the trip requires from 10 to 14 days. Travel is only by daylight, and passengers are given opportunity of walking around the more dangerous rapids.

No language can more than dimly suggest the marvels and beauties of this comparatively inexpensive trip. "Sparkling waters tumbling from lofty heights down into deep rock-walled canyons," says Richard Wormwood; then he goes on,—"Rugged mountains bordering sequestered shores. Sombre forests that shut out the sun. Foaming rapids than which all Alaska offers none more thrilling."

In early morning, as the voyager fills his basket at some little tributary's mouth, he may raise his eyes to see a mountain goat or sheep in the act of a 40-foot jump. Maybe a coyote against the high skyline, a bear, elk or deer gingerly picking his way along a ledge, an eagle soaring in long sweeps in the blue sky above. O Johnnie, get your gun, and your fishing tackle, and your camera, and a half dozen other good scouts, and $800.00. Let's go sliding down the cascades, between towering rock walls, under emerald treetops and over golden sands, clear across the state we live in, and from the backbone of the continental divide down, down, down to the land where rolls the Oregon.

JUST IDAHO

By Guy Flenner

Idahoans are not unlike other people — they like to take a chance, to gamble once in a while. A recent statement from a reliable source was to the effect that one brokerage house had closed out 750 Idaho accounts. That many Idahoans had been gambling on the New York stock market on "margins". They had put up all they could and found themselves "cleaned." It would have been different had they bought the stocks outright, for many prime offerings are available; but they preferred to gamble.

When that many lost possibly not less than a million dollars through one house, we can imagine somewhat the total loss to Idahoans who felt the get-rich-quick urge.

The only safe way is for people to place their funds in the bank, at least until they can investigate stocks carefully with the view to outright purchases; then it is the part of wisdom to consult the banker as to the safe est stocks or bonds to buy. He makes it a business to keep in close touch with stock conditions.

Ban on Home Brew

Federal authorities have placed a ban on malt, itself non-intoxicating but used in the making of "home brew," a comparatively mild beverage known to many homes, also on a number of brands of "tonics" that have been in demand in this state and which were put out mostly under governmental permits.

The makers of "hard licker", known as moonshiners and bootleggers, rejoice in the prospect of added business for their output in which they will be disappointed if those who are disposed to turn to harder drink as a substitute will take the precaution to have it analyzed and determine to their own satisfaction what a large percentage of it is rank poison.

The Echoes of Real Bargains will Ring in the Public's Ears for a Hundred Miles Around When This Closing Out Sale Opens on

Wednesday, March 13, For This Reason:

I have been in business in this location for the last 18 years and have been confined to the store practically every business day during this long period; hardly any year have I thot it possible or could I afford to take a vacation, but now nature compels me to sell my stock. This, you will say, is a frank open expression and I dearly hope you will believe I am sincere when I say— I have tried to be fair because I have always realized that in order to win in this life you must be fair. I have been blest with a lot of friends—God's chosen people have favored me with their patronage. Perhaps I have not made a great deal of money and perhaps I have had the chance to make a lot more money during my 18 years career in the merchandise business, but I have never charged exhorbitant prices—All I wanted was a fair living profit!

Now, after seriously considering this matter for the past twelve months, I have come to the conclusion that there are two things for me to do in order to retire from business and sell my $20,000 stock of merchandise. Everything now is left to your own choosing—goods are marked in plain figures and I am positively certain the public will exclaim: "This is one of the most profitable Closing Out Saels for the benefit of the people I have ever attended in this state." The Sale starts Wednesday, March 13, and I don't expect from the way we have marked the goods that the sale will last more than a couple of weeks, so you had better come and get your pick.
