THE STATE WE LIVE IN

By Byron Defenbach

Exploration And Exploitation

The story of Idaho's progress divides itself very naturally into five phases. The periods are dissimilar in length, and the dividing lines are not always equally sharp.

The period of discovery began in August, 1805; it virtually ended on Christmas Day, 1811, when Hunt cursed the Snake River and left it.

The second period, that of exploration and the exploitation of our fur-bearing resources, had practically closed on the day in late summer, 1860, when the third phase was very definitely ushered in. The high light of this second era was the work of Captain Bonneville, who in the early 30's explored much of what is now southern Idaho. Minor events of this period, though interesting, were not productive of permanent results.

The first white man's house was built on Lake Pend O'Reille in 1809; the next year Andrew Henry built the first trading post near our St. Anthony. The John Reed party was slaughtered on Reed's River, now the Boise. Fort Hall was established by Wyeth, Fort Boise by Payette, in 1834.

The Spaldings came to Lapwai. Eliza Spalding, first white child born in the northwest, made her advent in 1837. The first authentically recorded birth of a child in whose veins flowed white blood, occurred near Weiser on December 30, 1811.

Catholic people built the St. Joe Mission in 1842; Father Desmet erected his church ten years later. Mormon immigrants built Fort Lemhi, inaugurated a system of irrigation, were visited by the head of their organization, but were compelled by Indian troubles to abandon the enterprise.

Idaho became a part of Oregon in 1846; North Idaho went into Washington Territory soon afterward.

The great migration to Oregon crossed our country from 1843 onward, crossed but did not stop, the Oregon Trail was born.

Right at the close of this second period came our state's first permanent settlement, that of the town of Franklin, founded in the spring of 1860. Like Columbus, these settlers entered a new land without knowing it; they thought they were still in Utah, a mistake not definitely corrected for 12 years.

With this year, our third era came in, its arrival marked by an event second in significance, prominence, and dramatic interest, only to the home-coming of Saeagawea, almost 55 years before.

By 1860 the fur industry was long since gone. Our fixed white population was practically nothing; our natural resources, overlooked, lay stagnant. The tablet of our progress was almost clean in 1860; the mark made in that year was a bold one.

The most vital and indispensable human figure in the resurrection of our activity, was an Indian girl, whose remains now lie in a neglected and desecrated grave just across the Clearwater River from the territory's first capital, the prosperous and beautiful city of Lewiston.

COMMERCIAL CLUB DECIDES TO CELEBRATE

Decision Unanimous at Tuesday Evening Meeting.

At the meeting of the Kendrick commercial club, held at the Commercial hotel last Tuesday evening, it was decided by unanimous vote to have a big celebration here July 4. Committees will be appointed by the chairman in the near future to have charge of arrangements.

At the Tuesday evening meeting of the teachers of the Kendrick schools and ladies of the civic club were entertained at a chicken dinner, preceding the regular business meeting of the club. After the dinner hour everyone joined in singing several popular old songs, led by Mr. Franklin with Mrs. Thomas at the piano. Two beautiful musical numbers were furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas.

Secretary Oppenborn opened the business meeting with the minutes of the previous meeting, which were approved. Then followed a report from the civic committee. The personnel of this committee is Dr. Morehead, chairman, Wm. Watts, E. H. Emery, W. J. Carroll, Ed Long, Mesdames Thompson, Herres, G. F. Walker, M. F. Long and Morehead.

The report recommended that the street west of the Pemberton property be cleaned up by the town marshal and trees from this property be transplanted to the corner lot northwest of the depot. They also asked that the town council donate the use of the city truck and town marshal's services to clean up this lot, and at other times as needed.

Mesdames Thompson and Carlson were appointed as a committee to investigate and report concerning what may be done to beautify the old elevator and surroundings. Mr. Carroll volunteered to take up their recommendations with the Vollmer-Clearwater Co.

It was recommended that a few suggestions should be made thru the columns of the Gazette as follows:

That each and everyone sweep his sidewalk.

It was also recommended that a postoffice sign be put up at the postoffice corner and with it the name of the city.

It was requested that all persons having useless buildings on their property tear them down or destroy them.

It was further recommended that owners of vacant lots clear them of rubbish or pay the city for having it done.

The co-operation of the local teachers is asked in the general clean-up plan.

It was moved and carried that we encourage a flower show in the fall, offering prizes for the best blooms and displays, also for the best window or porch boxes.

H. B. Thompson moved that the report of the committee be accepted and the motion was unanimously carried. The members of the civic committee were urged to carry out their present plans and were promised the co-operation of the club.

An optimistic report on baseball was given by Manager Jack Barnes, and Marvin Long, chairman of the finance committee of the ball club, stated that finances to start the season would soon be raised.

A report on the committee in charge of the campaign against predatory birds, was given by H. B. Thompson, who stated that this project is progressing nicely.

The chairman made an announcement to the effect that the first open-air band concert will be held in the park Sunday afternoon, April 14.

The meeting then adjourned to meet the second Tuesday in May.

The afternoon bridge club was entertained by Mesdames Carlson and Herres at the Carlson home last Wednesday. High scores were won by Mrs. Frank Boyd and Mrs. Walter Thomas of Lewiston, who were awarded prizes. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostesses.

POULTRY FACTS

EARLY HATCHING MEETING FAVOR

Breeders Find Chicks Make Better Winter Layers.

The official results of laying tests recently concluded show that early-hatched chicks of the heavier breeds make the best winter layers. Rhode Island Red pullets which were hatched in March gave a winter egg production of 42.85 eggs. April-hatched pullets gave a winter production of 35.40 eggs and May pullets gave a production of 22.50 eggs.

The profit in producing eggs comes largely from producing them at a season of the year when they are highest in price. This means that we must plan to produce eggs during the winter months. The experiment referred to shows that, with the general-purpose breeds, the early hatched chicks are the ones which mature in time to start laying in the latter part of October and continue throughout the winter.

Many people have failed to raise early chicks for the reason that they have trouble with leg weakness and brooder troubles. The leg weakness can be largely overcome by the ration advocated by the Wisconsin experiment station as the result of their experiments in overcoming this trouble. This was reported at an earlier date but for those who overlooked it we are repeating the formula which they suggest: eighty pounds ground yellow corn, twenty pounds wheat middlings, five pounds ground raw bone, five pounds pearl grit and one pound of common salt. Skim milk is used freely but no water is furnished. Infertile eggs or cod liver oil is added in limited quantities if the chicks do not have access to sunlight.

The first experiment quoted shows that April pullets produced a fairly good quantity of eggs. This is undoubtedly on account of the fact that they were well grown. This is a fact that the producer who has late-hatched chicks should take into account. Oftentimes April-hatched pullets which are well fed will mature before March pullets that are stunted and poorly grown.

Crop-Bound of Fowls

Caused by Rough Feed

"Crop-bound" is caused by eating food too large to pass through the gullet from the crop to the proventriculus or true stomach. Chicks become crop-bound if fed whole wheat when too young. The wheat swells and becomes too large to pass out of the crop. Coarse feed with an excess of crude fiber often causes this condition. The paralysis of the muscles of the crop is another cause. This occurs in cases of cholera.

Sometimes the contents can be removed by drenching the fowl, then kneading the crop and holding by the feet head down and working the contents out by the mouth. In severe cases an operation is necessary. Remove the feathers, make a slit through the outer skin, spread apart, then make an incision in the crop and remove the contents; then sew up the crop, then the outer skin. The crop membrane and skin should be sewed separately.

Pullets Require Green

Feed When Confined

When the pullets are penned and set to their work task of egg laying, their need for succulent green feed must be met, say the poultry specialists of the Ohio university. Succulent green feed provided for the pullets for the first few weeks after they are housed will keep them in good physical condition. Rape, green clover, and alfalfa are satisfactory for this purpose.

If no succulent green feed is available, the poultrymen recommend a dose of Epsom salts for the birds soon after housing. One pound of the salts for each 100 birds should be dissolved in their drinking water, and no other water should be given until that containing the salts has been consumed.

Care of Pullets

Poultrymen who buy pullets at this season should have facilities for properly housing the birds and ranging them separate from old hens. The pullets will be unfamiliar with their new location and possibly changed rations, and every day that they go underfed means a day or more of egg production lost during the winter. It may be possible to learn the ration used by the former owner and make changes gradually to the rations you are using.

Hens Need Mash

Don't get the idea that because it is cold that your hens do not need anything but corn. Corn is all right and has its place in the menu, but if you want eggs, and also to get your hens in good condition for hatching they must have something besides corn. Give them a good egg wash and it will be better if it is fed moist and warm, once a day—better still if it is fermented for 24 hours with yeast. Do not feed all they want. Make them clean it up.

COD LIVER OIL HELPS HENS LAY

Much Needed in Winter as Substitute for Sunshine.

Cod liver oil is an important item in winter rations for poultry because it helps to maintain egg production, prevents lameness, and helps them to lay strong-shelled eggs. It contains vitamins A and D which promote growth and maintain vitality and disease resistance, says the State College of Agriculture at Ithaca, N. Y.

Cod liver oil is essential to hens that are closely housed during winter. Vitamine D in the oil is a substitute for direct sunlight, according to poultrymen at the college, who say its use, therefore, is most desirable during winter and early spring when direct sunshine cannot be used or when little is available.

This oil, which is the richest known source of these vitamins, is usually fed for its vitamine D; although vitamine A is present in the oil, it is not so important as vitamine D because yellow corn and leafy green feeds contain enough of vitamine A to meet the ordinary requirements of poultry.

Poultrymen may use the cheaper grades of cod liver oil because they are less expensive and contain the essential vitamins in the same quantity, as in the other grades. In feeding cod liver oil during winter and early spring, add 1 per cent of oil to the dry mash portion of the poultry ration. Roughly, this is slightly more than one pint of cod liver oil to 100 pounds of mash. This quantity of oil in the mash will provide approximately one-half of 1 per cent of oil in the whole ration of grain and mash.

Satisfactory Rations for the Laying Flock

According to the test work conducted at Wisconsin and other stations, satisfactory corn belt rations for the laying flock must contain plenty of yellow corn, some form of milk and leafy green feed, or a green feed substitute like fine green alfalfa or clover hay, to furnish vitamine A. Vitamine D, the ultra-violet ray factor, is equally important. To get it in sufficient quantities during the winter and early spring months requires the use of cod liver oil or a good deal of direct sunshine or sunshine received through a glass substitute that really admits the ultra-violet rays. Professor Halpin recommended the use of all three—cod liver oil in the laying mash, an open shed or yard for good weather, and effective glass substitute windows.

Making Mash Palatable Is Problem for Keeper

Making a dry mash palatable so that the laying flock will eat it in sufficient quantities is one of the problems of the farm flock keeper. That is one of the virtues of commercially mixed mashes. The manufacturer has put various ingredients together that will not only produce eggs but that taste good to the hens even though they are receiving a liberal grain ration. Putting in plenty of ground yellow corn and not overdoing the ground oats and bran portions helps make the mash more popular with the hens.

Corn gluten feed when added to the mash makes it more palatable. In a recent bulletin of the Illinois experiment station, they also call attention to the fact that corn gluten feed increases palatability of mash.

Beware the Demonstration Another thing that is likely to cost you a good deal is a free demonstration.—Ohio State Journal.

But We Know They Do An authority on ostriches denies that they bury their heads in the sand to escape notice. This spolls a splendid comparison that has become endeared by long usage.—Minneapolis Journal.

If you want the maximum tire mileage, buy Goodyear tires. There are no better tires for rough usage on these Potlatch roads. Give them a fair test and you will be satisfied.

FLASHLIGHT BIG AID IN CULLING

Shows Many Loafers Among Layers in Hen Flock.

Literally catching the loafers napping is an excellent method of culling the poultry flock, if the culling process is carried on from week to week. Extension specialists in poultry at the Ohio State university suggest that the weekly culling may be done very conveniently with a flashlight when the birds are on the roost at night.

Birds showing shriveled combs or molt, or having empty crops, should be culled. Absence of yellow pigment is one of the indications of a good producer, and it may be difficult, under a flashlight, to determine the coloring of the eyerings, earlobes, vent, beak and shanks. If there is doubt, the birds can be isolated and examined again by daylight. The heavy egg producers will have lost yellow color from the body parts mentioned. However, the color will return should the bird cease to lay.

In the low producer, the comb is pale, small and shriveled, the vent is yellow, shrunken and dry. Eyes are small and shrunken, turning in toward the beak. Shanks are yellow, round and full, the pelvic bones close together, hard and rigid. Space between the pelvic bones and the breast bone is shallow or full of hard fat. The skin is thick and underlaid with fat. The bird is generally narrow across the ribs and hips, and the body is shallow and round.

How Much Does Pullet Cost Till Able to Lay?

The North Carolina State college has conducted several tests to determine the amount of feed required to start a Red, Barred Plymouth Rock or Wyandotte laying pullet. In one series of tests the entire animal feed was milk and in the other meat meal. In the case of the milk-fed pullets it required 30 pounds of feed from the time the pullets were hatched till they began to lay 21 weeks later. This feed cost 71 cents. In the meat feed, nine and one-half pounds of mash and nine and one-half pounds of grain were used and the cost was 57 cents. Adding the cost of the chick, and other costs, the S. C. Rhode Island Red, Barred Plymouth Rock or White Wyandotte pullets just in lay would cost $1.50 when milk fed and $1.17 when meat meal fed. These pullets sell for $2 each at laying time. If you have surplus milk, feed it to the growing birds.

For Early Winter and Late Fall Production

With most ordinary flocks only 50 per cent or so of the flock is kept as aged hens, the other half being pullets, and the purpose of this is to provide for early winter and late fall egg production. Pullets, when hatched early and properly fed, will begin laying in October or November and lay quite heavily during this season of the year. Hens that are one year of age or older rarely begin laying before late December or early January. They do their heaviest laying during the late winter and early spring months. Therefore, to balance egg production it is necessary to have approximately half the flock old hens and half the flock pullets.

Poultry Hints

Feed oyster shells to poultry.

Grit, oyster shell and plenty of drinking water are necessary in the production of eggs.

Feed a ration that includes a good egg mash, some hard grain and some green feed, and good, clean water.

If several ordinary shipping crates are available, it is possible to fill these with the hens that are to be culled before starting with the work.

About four o'clock in the afternoon the hens should have all the grain they will clean up. The mash hopper should be kept open all the time.

During the winter birds should eat one and one-half to two times as much scratch grain as mash, but they must eat sufficient mash to produce eggs.

In all cases the amount of grain varies with flock conditions. Heavy breeds consume more feed than light breeds.

Crooked Breast Bones Found in Chickens

Crooked breast bones may be caused by inbreeding and general debility, or may come from improper food and feeding, or poor management of some kind, writes Michael K. Boyer in the Farm and Ranch. There is no question about heredity being the fault, at least to a certain extent. That being the fact, it should be bred out, which might be done by the selection of only straight breast-bone fowls for the breeding pen.

Lack of bone-making material in the feed of growing stock, which is the prime cause of leg weakness, has also the effect of producing crooked breast bones in young chickens.

There used to be a theory, which by many still is believed, that very early roosting of growing birds causes the soft breast bones to bend. This might be so in some instances, but does not hold good with the general run of stock.

Buying Pullets

Buying pullets by weight may be more satisfactory than buying entirely by age. April hatched pullets on insufficient rations may be of less value than May hatched pullets which have been properly fed and brooded. A May 1 pullet is much better than a May 30 pullet if the conditions have been equal. The later hatched chick has missed four fine weeks for the development of poultry meat, but the name of the month is not fully descriptive of quality.
