

LEARNS TO FLY

AT AGE OF 72

MRS. JOSEPHINE DEOBALD MAY FLY HERE FROM DENVER

Mrs. Josephine Deobald of Denver, sister-in-law of Mrs. M. A. Deobald and aunt of the Deobald Bros., has learned to fly, at the age of 72. Following is a news item taken from a recent issue of the Rocky Mountain News.

Mrs. Josephine Deobald of 423 23d St. waited a long time for her first airplane ride, but when her 72nd birthday arrived Wednesday she decided she had waited long enough.

Unknown to her family she went out to the Colorado Airways airport and found Mrs. Anthony F. Joseph, Colorado's only licensed woman pilot. Mrs. Joseph took her on a flight over the city and surrounding country.

"It was great," declared Mrs. Deobald as she stepped from the plane when they had landed.

The Denver Post says:

Mrs. Josephine Deobald, 423 Twenty-third street, told her family Wednesday that she was going out to celebrate her seventy-second birthday. She arrived at the Colorado Airways flying field a little later and announced she wanted to take her first ride in an airplane.

She was escorted into the cockpit of a Waco biplane with Mrs. Anthony F. Joseph, Colorado's only licensed woman pilot, and away they went.

"It was the greatest experience of my life," Mrs. Deobald declared when she alighted. "I'm going again, and I hope on my next birthday that I'll be able to fly around the world."

Mrs. Deobald writes her sister-in-law that she hopes to fly from Denver to Lewiston by-and-by, to visit her relatives here.

FRANK BROWN DIES AFTER LONG FIGHT

Frank L. Brown, Lewis county deputy sheriff, wounded last Thursday in a gun battle with bandit on the highway at Jacques Spur, died at 1:10 o'clock this morning at White's hospital after his battle of five days against death proved of no avail.

Brown put up a game fight wit overwhelming odds and lost. Paul Kariak, convict-robber whom Brown killed, shot Brown down with a treacherous shot from a gun concealed in his shirt sleeve. From this fateful beginning, courageous to the end, Brown battled to live. He emptied his gun as an officer of the law to kill his combatant and after that laid down his arms and fought for his life as a citizen of the commonwealth he risked his life to protect.

No Hope of Recovery.

Doctors did not at any time hold out hopes for his recovery, after it was learned that he had been shot through the stomach.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Classes are all running smoothly this week. The arrival of text books for most of the courses makes the work of both teacher and student more interesting.

Kendrick high school students consider themselves fortunate in having as complete a course as they have. The subjects offered include four years of English, two & years of Latin, two years of history, two years of mathematics, three years of physical science, two years of social science, two years of typewriting, one year of shorthand, one year of bookkeeping, and two years of manual training.

In addition to the regular curriculum, the ultra curriculum activities include Boy's football and basketball, girl's glee club, and girl's basketball and orchestra.

The local football squad are working hard pointing in particular to their game with Genesee, Sept. 27.

With the exception of Ivan Craig the boys have received no serious injuries. Ivan however, has a badly sprained ankle which will probably keep him out for a large part of the season.

The problem of the coaches will be to develop two fast ends. One of the ends from last year's squad has been shifted to the backfield. George Baily who played the other end last year is not turning out this season.

LUTHERANS CELEBRATE

The Lutheran congregation at Cameron celebrated its annual Mission Festival last Sunday. A goodly number from sister congregations in Gifford and Julietta joined with the celebrants, as well as friends from Nez Perce, Genesee, and Lewiston.

At the community feast good-fellowship and wholesome cheer was much in evidence. And, why not? Were these not friends and the tables loaded with delicious dishes?

The chief element, however, on such a festive occasion is the wish and prayer to extend the Kingdom of God. Herein the speaker, Rev. O. J. Wolff of Walla Walla directed the thought of the audience to the CALL OF THE UNCHURCHED in our own fair land and to those ignorant of Christ's Salvation in heathen lands.—"Come Over and Help Us." The call comes from a loving and compassionate God to each Christian, "HELP, Bring the Gospel," said Rev. Wolff. Also his afternoon-message carried that note, in Christ's word, "THEY KINGDOM COME." His prayer, may it come to our children in Baptism, in instruction; may it come to the adult in heart and life,—meditation, prayer, action. An offering taken was sent to the treasurer for the purpose of carrying on Mission work at home and abroad.

Diaz Practical Dictator

Porfirio Diaz first became President of Mexico in 1877. At that time the term was four years and the laws of Mexico prohibited a President's succeeding himself. Consequently Diaz was succeeded in 1880 by his intimate friend, General Gonzalez, who made way in 1884 for the re-election of Diaz. In the meantime the constitution had been amended and Diaz held office without interruption until 1911.

Inland Empire Prosperous

The commercial apple crop for the Inland Empire was reported as 23,165,000 bushels by this year's figures of the United States department of agriculture for the states of Idaho, Oregon and Washington.

In addition to apples, the Inland Empire has profited this year from good yields of pears, peaches, cherries, plums, apricots and berries.

At the same time that the fruit centers are "coming into their own," live stock values have reached the highest point in nine years and a 70,000,000-bushel oat crop, with a value of approximately $79,590,000, is rapidly reaching the market and pouring a golden stream into the various channels of trade.

The reason for this large increase in yields is an advantageous climate, fertile soil, high development in irrigation and scientific methods in culture and packing in the Inland Empire. Inland Empire apples are becoming famous all over the world and the export trade is steadily increasing.

Damp Organ Keys

When an organ gets wet, causing the keys to stick, they must be taken out and allowed to dry slowly, then rubbed with fine sandpaper and re-oiled. Care must be taken that the instrument be kept in a room that is not damp, or the trouble will return.

Best Seed Corn Can Be Obtained at Home

Select From Own Patch Ears of Type Desired.

The home gardener who does not select his own seed corn from his own patch is missing some of the pleasure of gardening, say specialists at the New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell. But they add that one should know just what type and characteristics he wishes to perpetuate in his corn patch and then use care in selecting and gathering the seed ears.

Those who wish earliness, for example, mark the stalks which produce the earliest ears of the correct type and also the earliest and best ears on these stalks. These ears are allowed to mature on the stalks and then are picked with the husks on, hung up to dry in an airy place away from rats and birds, and left there until winter or early spring.

After they are cured, the ears are sorted and only those of the most uniform type, shape, and size are used for seed. The best ears are well filled, solid, with good kernels and well dried, the college says.

Shelling is usually done by hand, and the kernels from the butts or tips thrown away. Before shelling, several kernels from each ear should be tested for germination. When one has developed the type, it is well to produce at least twice as much seed as will be necessary for home planting; something may happen to the crop the next year, and this extra seed can be carried over. Continued selection and careful growing will be necessary if the desired characteristics are maintained.

CROPS ARE SHORT

The United States Department of Agriculture now estimates the total farm crops of the country at 9 percent below the yields of last year and 6 percent below the average for the past ten years.

The wheat crop for 1929 is estimated at 786,000,000 bushels, which is 13 percent below the 1928 crop.

A country-wide drought during August is given as the chief cause of a crop shortage.

FARM POULTRY

EARLY MOLT NOT RIGHT FOR EGGS

Careful Feeding Will Encourage Hens to Lay More.

Poultry keepers who fed a wet mash in addition to the regular grain and dry mash kept their hens laying heavily last year, says L. M. Hurd of the New York state college of agriculture. Hens should be kept in production through careful feeding during the summer and early fall so that they will molt rapidly and soon return to producing.

Records of the Missouri College of Agriculture show that early molting hens lay fewer eggs during the following winter than those hens which molt late.

In the summer and fall, hens should have an abundance of tender, leafy green food, shade, and fresh clean water at all times. Hens that do not respond to good treatment should be removed so as to give the others a better chance. Skim milk or semi-solid buttermilk, at the rate of one or two pounds to a hundred birds should be used. A good plan for feeding this, is to mix it and enough water with the regular dry mash. This mash should be fed in the afternoon, just before the night feeding of grain. The hens should have only what they can eat up in twenty minutes.

If milk is not available, fill a pail half-full of dry oats, fill it up with water, and let it stand from one afternoon until the next. Then add enough of the regular dry mash to take up the remaining moisture, and feed as described above.

After September 1, poultrymen have had good results from using lights to prolong the laying season. Late in the fall this should be discontinued to give the hens an opportunity to molt before cold weather, and rest for the breeding season.

Avoid Changes in Feed for the Pullet Flock

It is surprising how important some poultrykeepers are when endeavoring to secure eggs from the pullet flocks. Unless the yield goes up by leaps and bounds, they imagine that there must be something wrong with the feeding, and forthwith begin to change the rations.

This happens at irregular intervals, and in consequence the birds never have an opportunity of getting accustomed to any particular ration. There is nothing more detrimental to egg production than these frequent changes. Of course, it would be unwise to persist in feeding a ration which had proved to be unsuitable, but until such unsuitability has been definitely established changes should be avoided.

LIBERAL FEEDING OF BROOD SOWS

Generous Rations While Nursing Pigs Profitable.

"Liberal" feeding of brood sows while they are nursing their litters pays big dividends," declares B. W. Fairbanks, associate professor of animal husbandry at the Colorado Agricultural college.

"Excellent rations can be balanced with skim milk or buttermilk, bran, shorts, ground oats, wheat, barley, or corn," he adds. "A little leafy alfalfa hay builds up the quality of the proteins and supplies vitamin 'A'."

In discussing the weaning of pigs, Fairbanks says that "when the pigs are two to three weeks old they will drink from a trough in addition to their nursing. A shallow flat-bottomed trough placed in a pig creek is ideal for the feeding of additional milk."

"Fresh milk is generally fed the first day or two, and then skim milk is substituted. Middlings or shorts may be mixed with the skim milk and fed as a thin slop twice daily."

"When the pigs have learned to take freely of the shorts or middling slop, they are ready to wean, according to Fairbanks. This usually occurs when they are seven to ten weeks of age. If skim milk is not available it will be necessary to keep them on the sows longer."

"After weaning, a slop of shorts or middlings or corn meal is offered twice daily. At first the pigs should receive a ration with a liberal supply of protein, but this may be reduced slightly later."

Operations on Lambs Pay in Real Dollars

Docking and castrating will add materially to the receipts from the lamb crop. Either operation is simple and the risk negligible when performed on lambs at ten days to two weeks of age.

"Long-tailed lambs sell on the market for 25 cents to $3 a hundred less than docked lambs," says W. E. Morris, a live stock specialist with the agricultural extension service of the University of Minnesota. "Thin long-tailed lambs are classified on the market as cull feeder lambs and suffer the largest cut in price."

"Ram lambs sell for $1 to $3 per hundred less than wether lambs of the same quality. Fat ram lambs sell on the market at a cent a pound below fat wether lambs. Thin ram lambs are classified as culls and sold to the packers as such, at about $3 a hundred less than they would bring as feeders if they had been castrated."

Brood Sows Should Be Fed Very Little Grain

Brood sows should be given very little grain for 24 hours after farrowing but should have all the water they desire. The first feed given after farrowing should be limited in amount and fed as a thin slop. The amount fed is increased gradually as the pigs need more milk, until in 10 or 15 days the sow is being fed all she will eat. The brood sow's ration during the suckling period should be slightly laxative and provide for increased milk production to meet the needs of the pigs.

Economical Gains

At no time in a sheep's life can a more economical gain be made than when the lamb is suckling its mother, and at this time one has to be on the alert lest something is done or neglected to be done so as to hinder its growth, thereby robbing it of its baby fat much earlier than nature intended. The first 90 days of the lamb's life the lamb can, with a little forethought, be made to gain from one-half to a pound per day.

Hog Cholera Prevented by Right Use of Serum

Let us not forget that hog cholera has not been entirely and completely eradicated in this country. Let us not forget also that the disease may be easily prevented by making pigs immune with the proper use of serum and virus. Let us keep in mind that after the disease gets a good start in a herd of pigs there is little that can be done to stop it. While we are at it let us be reminded that it costs less to immunize weanling pigs than 150-pound shunts. They are also more easily handled.

Feeding Orphan Lamb

If the orphan lamb cannot be given to another ewe, it may be raised satisfactorily on a bottle. Of course it is better to get another ewe to adopt the lamb if possible. When necessary to raise a lamb on a bottle, it will need to be fed several times a day at first. The number of feedings may be reduced until by the time the lamb is six weeks old, three or four times a day will be sufficient. A creep should be provided where some ground grain may be kept for the lambs.

ALASKA, OUR SCENIC FRONTIER

By Rev. CLAUDE W. GROTH

I want to tell in this writing something about the cities and the steamship lines of Alaska. The cities are not what we would term large cities, and there are mistaken ideas as to how often the steamers run between Seattle and Alaskan ports.

Ketchikan is the largest city in Alaska having a population of six thousand. The city has an assessed property valuation of $6,800,000. It has fine schools including a High School which is accredited by the University of Washington. It lies about the same latitude as Edinburgh, Scotland, and has an equally mild climate.

Fishing is the important industry, which is well developed with large cold storage and other facilities for such an industry. It is about 662 miles from Seattle and can be reached by steamer from that city in two days, thus giving Ketchikan a quick way of shipping goods to the States. During recent years an average of nearly two thousand vessels have entered and cleared from this port. And the city has boat service that reaches out over a vast tributary area.

Copper, gold, lead, and marble are mined in the vicinity of this busy, little metropolis.

Juneau, the capital of our Territory, is situated on Gastineau Channel about one thousand and thirty-three miles northwest of Seattle, and it is about the same latitude as, Lenigrad, Russia, Stockholm, Sweden, and Oslo, Norway. Its population is next to that of Ketchikan, being to the number of 4,500. Both of the cities mentioned are on what is known as the "Inside Passage. Juneau is located in the "Juneau Gold Belt. Important mines that have paid well are the Ebner, Eagle River, Kensington, Hallum, Julian, Treadwell, Alaska Gastineau, and the Alaska Juneau. The Alaska Juneau Gold Mining Company mines more than 11,000 tons of ore daily. The Treadwell which had a gross production of $66,000,000, and which paid $27,000,000, due to an accident was flooded in its underground workings by the waters of Gastineau Channel in 1918. There are also coal mines, and timber, and abundant water-power available in the vicinity for use by the city. Halibut, King Salmon, Herring and Black Cod are brought to the market of the Juneau Cold Storage Company's plant located here.

Two interesting towns from an historical standpoint in Southeastern Alaska are Sitka, the oldest settlement on the Pacific coast, and Wrangell which was settled and named Wrangell in 1830. Sitka is located on Baranof Island, and was long the Russian capital of Alaska while the territory belonged to that country. St. Michaels Cathedral, a Greek Catholic Church built in the form of a cross, is according to the Russian custom is decorated with trimmings of silver and gold, with paintings, jeweled crowns, and costly robes. The World-famous Painting, The Madonna and Child is in this cathedral.

The Sheldon Jackson Memorial School is also located at Sitka. This school is the center of Presbyterian work in Alaska. From it have graduated many Indians who are taking active and successful part in Alaskan affairs. This school offers a four-year high school course.

In the parks are a great many historic and mammoth totem poles. The city is reached by the boats of the Pacific Steamship Company, and the chief industries of the surrounding country are, lumbering, mining, fishing and fox farming. It boasts of a salmon cannery and a cold storage plant.

Wrangell is 720 miles from Seattle. Near it are several totem villages and it boasts of more totem poles than any other city in Alaska. Lead and silver are mined and marble is quarried nearby. Wrangell is rapidly pushing to the front as a fishing center. The city has shrimp, crab, and salmon canneries. The Tougars National forest supplies lumber for the sawmill located at Wrangell, which has a capacity of 100,000 feet a day. Around the city is also a great area of farm land.

And now let us go to Fairbanks at the end of the Government Railroad on the Tanana River about one hundred miles south of the Arctic Circle. It is termed the "Golden Heart of Alaska, and it is noted for its Agricultural College and School of Mines, its flowers, its proximity to mines and to game, its airplane field, and air lines, and its annual baseball game at midnight on the twenty-first of June. Its population is 2,500.

Nome, the metropolis of the Seward Peninsula is 1,300 miles west of Fairbanks. It is on Norton Sound. It has a population of approximately 1200 and during the summer months this sometimes reaches the 2000 mark. In the time of the Gold Rush in 1900 the population was estimated to be between 25,000 and 30,000. It is the supply point for Point Barrow, Kotzebue Sound, Northern Alaska and even Eastern Siberian Communities. The Loman Brothers have established the reindeer industry here.

Other cities that are important are Anchorage, Petersburg, Valdez, Cordova, Nenana, Skagway, and Haines. Seward is the Western Alaska terminus of the Alaswa Military Cable and Telegraph System. It also has fish canneries, a sawmill, and a golf course. Anchorage is on the line of the Alaska Railroad, has a population of 2500, and has many railroad shops.

If you want to know more about Alaska write to the Chamber of Commerce at Seward, better still, go and see Alaska for yourself.

FAVORABLE TIME TO RAISE COLTS

Farmer Developing Own Power Has Low Cost.

If a farmer ever intends to raise a colt, now is a good time to do so, according to A. O. Rhoad of the New York State College of Agriculture. If the farmer raises colts now he will save money in a few years when he puts them to work in place of the horses he now has on his farm.

The farmer who grows his own power, says Mr. Rhoad, buys his own power at the lowest cost and pays for it on the installment plan without interest. With the possible exception of a fee for stallion service the farmer does not have to take much money out of his pocket at present to produce his farm power. The farmer who breeds his mare to foal next spring and feeds the colt well will have a work horse that will cost him far less than one purchased on the market.

According to a recent survey made by C. E. Ladd of the college, 57 per cent of horses in New York state are more than twelve years old. The price of horses is increasing. Doctor Ladd also states that from two-thirds to three-fourths of the horses in New York state will be replaced during the next ten years, and that it is probable that they will be replaced at a time when it will cost New York farmers several millions more than it would today. This survey, "The Farm Horse Situation in New York," will be sent free to anyone who writes to the office of publication, State College of Agriculture, Ithaca, N. Y., for E 169.

Sweet Clover Disease Should Be Prevented

It is now definitely established and acknowledged that some specimens of moldy or spoiled sweet clover hay and silage produce a specific disease in cattle, the so-called "sweet clover poisoning," say L. M. Roderick, assistant veterinarian and A. F. Schalk, veterinarian, North Dakota Agricultural college.

Several experimental feeding trials with moldy sweet clover hay and silage in North Dakota have shown quite conclusively that the so-called poisoning is primarily a disease of cattle, particularly young animals a few months of age to two or three years old.

The trouble can be avoided in practically all cases, if small quantities of the moldy hay or silage are fed with two or three times as much other feed; or the spoiled clover can be fed safely if fed once every week or two.
