SUMMARY OF EXCHANGES FOR BENEFIT OF GAZETTE READERS

The new Moscow-Pullman highway has been closed indefinitely to protect the new surface from damage incidental to the heavy rains.

More than 2,100,000 acres within the national forests will require artificial planting, according to the Forest Service, United States Department of Agriculture. Bad fires in the past or logging by destructive methods before the lands came under federal administration have so denuded these areas that they can be made to grow new crops of timber only by planting.

Raymond Hatton, well known movie star, paid a twenty year old store bill at Moscow last week by sending a check for the amount and $5 extra for Christmas money for the merchant's sons. Hatton was playing a small part with a stock company at Moscow twenty years ago and contracted the bill and left without settling it. Which goes to show that even a movie star may have a conscience.—Cottonwood Chronicle

The growing board of the Lewiston Chamber of Commerce urges that Idaho bond itself for money sufficient to improve all state trunk highway projects. This is regarded as the only way to rid the state of ruinous competition between districts for shares in the present fund.

The Orofino Commercial club is seeking the assistance of the State University to determine, through experimentation, the best and cheapest fertilizer for alfalfa and clover land in the Clearwater region.

The Pacific Power and Light Company will shortly employ an agricultural agent to be at the service of farmers. This service is similar to that now offered by the Northern Pacific and the Union Pacific railways.

Plans for a hospital at Cottonwood are rapidly taking shape.

A movement has started among Cottonwood farmers toward the wholesale purchase of gasoline for the entire prairie. If all the farmers will sign up, one gigantic order will be submitted to the various companies for bids. By this means a considerable saving can be effected in harvesting operations.

A new Catholic church will be built at Moscow at a cost of $30,000.

There are only two county prisoners in the Latah county jails at the present time but 20 federal prisoners are being housed there.

It is a curious fact that the number of delinquent boys in Idaho decreased by 143 over the year before, but the number of delinquent girls increased by 46.

Plans are going forward for the annual poultry show to be held at Lewiston, January 14, 15, 16.

A wheat growers' local was organized at Lewiston last week and 170,000 bushels were subscribed immediately. The five directors of the local have set 1,500,000 bushels as the amount which they will seek for the pool. It is said that Monday's meeting was characterized by great enthusiasm and hopefulness on the part of those present.

Boise.—Prizes totaling approximately $450 in value have been won by four Idaho schools in the football season which closed Thanksgiving Day with the state championship game between Rupert and Idaho Falls, it is announced by W. B. Pratt, secretary of the state athletic commission, which offered the prizes. Each of the four teams of Sandpoint, Nampa, Rupert and Idaho Falls, having won the championship of their districts, will receive $75 worth of athletic equipment to be selected by them and bought by

RICHARD BLANKENSHIP

Richard Blankenship was born at Troy, Idaho, on February, 1893, he died December 7, 1929. In 1913 he was married to Miss Minnie Thornton. He leaves a widow and six children Cora, Uretta, Cleo, Vinie, Elmo and Austin; also four brothers—Leonard of Rosalia, Washington; Roy and Raymond of Leland, Idaho; Jesse of Bandon, Oregon; and one sister, Mrs. Sarilla Richardson of Central Point, Oregon.

GOOD SHOWS FOR THE HOLIDAY SEASON

The Kendrick Theatre will have plenty of good entertainment for the holidays. On Friday and Saturday evening of this week, our old friend Tom Mix appears in "Soft Boiled," a pleasing admixture of action, romance, fun and death defying stunts.

On Christmas night, December 25, Buster Keaton, the funny man will star in "Spite Marriage." This picture is said to be a sure cure for the gloomiest case of the blues—a love story loaded with laughs and thrills.

Taxes are Delinquent Monday, Dec. 23

Taxes on real and personal property must be paid by Saturday, Dec. 21, otherwise they become delinquent. Cash is being poured into the Treasurers' office at Moscow rapidly this month, a total of $106,453.45 in tax money having been received up to last Saturday.

ANOTHER PLAY COMING

The Methodist Ladies' Aid is sponsoring a play which will be put on about the latter part of January. Watch for further particulars which will be given from time to time.

BIG BEAR RIDGE

There will be a program and Christmas tree at the Community Hall, Dec. 24. Everyone is cordially invited.

Miss Bertina Forest returned home from Spokane where she spent the past 3 months.

More than 200 pea growers met at Moscow a week ago Tuesday to discuss the problems of their industry. It was shown that the average yield for four years in the north Idaho district has been 900 to 950 pounds per acre. The weevil menace has caused damage amounting to $500,000 during this period. A request was sent to the federal bureau of entomology for an investigation of the pea weevil disease.

Idaho produced 18,500,000 pounds of creamery butter last year—an increase of 1,500,000 lb over the previous year. In spite of an increase in production of butter, however, the sale of oleomargarine mounts higher and higher, especially in North Idaho.

Members of the wheat growers' cooperative at Colfax have signed up for the marketing of 450,000 bushels.

A report from the college of Agriculture at Moscow says that Idaho clover seed is not selling readily, because the farmers have allowed the product to go onto the market in a state of low purity. The report says that if farmers would command a good price for their seed they must produce a pure product.

Spokane, Wash.—"There is an exceptionally bright outlook for farmlife in the Pacific Northwest," reports President Ehrhardt of the Federal Land Bank of Spokane. There has been a 40 percent reduction in tax delinquencies during the year ended November 30, 1929, there has also been a reduction in farm land foreclosures, a steady buying of lands formerly foreclosed, and no cut in prices asked.

$2,830,000 will be spent on highway repair and construction in Idaho during 1930.

CHURCHES JOIN IN MUSICAL PROGRAM

CHRISTMAS CANTATA— THE WONDROUS LIGHT

The Presbyterian and the M. E. churches of Kendrick will join forces Sunday evening at the Methodist church in rendering a beautiful Christmas Cantata.

The community choir has been to considerable expense purchasing music and preparing for this cantata so friends far and near cordially urged to attend and give a large offering. After the expenses are taken out the offering will be divided evenly between the two churches of this city.

BASKET BALL INTEREST CONTINUES

TEAMS PLAY DEARY AND CLARKSTON

Deary B.B. Game

The high school basket ball teams started the season's schedule against Deary High School here last Friday night.

The girls game which was played first ended in a score of 30-10 in favor of Deary. Kendrick was handicapped because four of the regulars were out with the mumps. The girls played a good game and deserve your support.

The boys' game was quite one-sided with the local boys winning 34-6. The first team was minus the services of George Bailey, center and Howard Damarell, forward. The score at the end of the half was 27-0; the second half was played by a Freshman-Sophomore combination who succeeded in nosing Deary out, 7-6. Ralph Blevins and Charles Davis were leading scorers for K. H. S. Wade was the best performer for Deary scoring two baskets.

CLARKSTON vs. KENDRICK

Last Saturday evening Kendrick high school played Clarkston High School on the latter's floor. In a close hard-fought game, the score stood, one minute before the close, 13-12 in Kendrick's favor. Clarkston made a basket just before the whistle blew, thus making the final score 14-13 in favor of Clarkston. Both teams had good defense. Kendrick's high score man was Charles Davis. Clarkston's high score man was Charles Arthur.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Thompson and daughter Marion Elizabeth and son John Buster were Lewiston visitors Monday.

KENDRICK PRESBYTERIAN

NEW LAW PROPOSED FOR RECKLESS DRIVERS

The Inland Automobile Association is in favor of a law against the reckless driver which would deprive him of a license when he fails to pay a fine. This "safety responsibility" law has already been passed by 11 states and an effort will be made to enact it in Idaho and Washington.

The safety responsibility law, as proposed by the motor club, would require a driver who has had an accident in which a judgment has been given against him to pay the judgment within a specified time or his license would be revoked. No new license would be issued until the judgment was satisfied.

LEWISTON FIRM SHOWS GOOD TASTE IN ADVERTISING

Milo Slind, formerly of Big Bear ridge, visited the Gazette recently on business for his employers, the Vassar Mortuary of Lewiston. Mr. Slind is greatly interested in his work there, and he seems especially proud of the fact that his employers are members of The Order of the Golden Rule, a national organization of morticians that strives to strengthen and uphold the standards of the profession.

Vassar's, he says, have been in business since 1900, the oldest exclusive funeral directors in the state. They are licensed in Idaho, Washington and Oregon. Besides two licensed embalmers they have a lady assistant. With new rolling stock and the latest equipment at their headquarters in Lewiston, Grangeville and Uniontown, they are prepared to give personal supervision to every case.

Mr. Slind and his co-workers feel that it is an honor to be a member of the Order of the Golden Rule, and they want people to know about it. To this end they are running a series of advertisements in The Gazette that are noteworthy for their dignity, their good taste, and their educational value.

POULTRYMAN SECURES EXCELLENT RETURNS

MR. DUMBAULD TELLS HOW TO MAKE MONEY WITH LEGHORNS

Mr. Ariel Dumbauld, poultryman of Juliastaff has made an enviable record in profitable egg production during the past year. His gross income from 200 South Carolina single comb White Leghorn hens from October 3, 1928 to October 3, 1929 was $1123.69. The average number of eggs per hen was 208, and the average gross income per hen, $5.61. The feed bill for the year totalled $380, leaving a net income of $743.69, or a net income per hen of $3.72. We submit the proposition that a bird that will bring $3.72 net income to its owner in one year is no loafer. That kind of a bird commands our respect.

Astonishing as the above figures may be, they do not tell the whole story. As a matter of fact the hens did better than the figures indicate. Eggs used for the Dumbauld family table—and the number was considerable—were not counted at all. Moreover, the feed bill of $380 not only supplied the 200 hens—it also sustained one good sized milk goat thruout the year; as if this were not enough, it sufficed to transform the family pig from a 50 lb strippling to an aristocratic porker of 350 pounds avoirdupois. If one were to add to the gross income the value of the eggs consumed at home, and subtract from the feed bill the value of the wheat and corn fed to the goat and pig, one would have a net income considerably greater than the $743. It seems probable that the net income would easily reach $800,—that is, $4.00 per hen.

There are, doubtless, any number of "secrets" explaining Mr. Dumbauld's success. He has followed the chicken game for 12 years, and during all this time he has studied the problems of egg production persistently and has learned gradually, by experience. He believes that careful attention to details each and every day is fundamental to success. Next in importance to this, perhaps, is headwork in the purchase of feed. Mr. Dumbauld buys his supplies by the ton, paying cash and getting the best possible price. He secures his wheat, oats and corn directly from the farmer in the fall of the year. He sells his eggs in Elk River, and receives the top price. During the past year the average price was a little more than 30c.

Mr. Dumbauld hesitated to tell his story for fear that some of the Gazette readers might not believe him. Those who know him well, however, realize that he is giving the facts. His reputation and his carefully kept records speak for themselves.

46,000 ACRES WILL BE REFORESTED IN LATAH AND CLEARWATER

Nearly 46,000 acres of land in Latah and Clearwater counties will be set aside as the first reforestation area under Idaho's new law, it was decided at the state cooperative board of forestry in session here Monday afternoon and evening. The meeting was presided over by Governor H. C. Baldrige.

Decision to declare the property a reforestation area was arrived at after extended examination by witnesses conducted by W. D. Gillis, attorney-general. Petition for the hearing was filed by the Potlatch Lumber company, owner of the land, and W. D. Thumston, assistant general manager, represented the company before the board.

Some Near Bovill
The new reforestation area consists of 32,408.51 acres in Latah county, near Bovill and 13,061.31 acres in the Elk River section of Clearwater county.

FOUR CHRISTMASSES

The child sat on his mother's lap and gazed at the Christmas tree, shining with candles. His brothers and sisters went skipping about with cries of glee over all the things that Santa Claus had brought. But the little one just sat and looked with round eyes at the splendor of it all. He tilted back his curly head to see into the topmost branches. The others cried, "The baby, look! He sees the star!" And sure enough. He raised his shabby arms toward the silvery star that glistened on the very tip, up against the ceiling. It was his first Christmas.

The youth fastened the star to the top of the Christmas tree and set it up for the others to trim while he did the evening chores. The December night was chill and clear. Stars twinkled. He stopped in the barnyard to pick out the biggest brightest one. It shone so steadily out of the deep he thought to himself it must have been a star like this the shepherds saw, abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flocks by night. He put down hay and measured out feed into the manger. When he had attended to all and the beasts munched contentedly he sat down on a milking stool and thought how calm and peaceful was this scene. And he pondered the things told by the shepherds. Without the barn was starlight. Within the house the good times waited. "How slow you were about the chores on Christmas Eve," they chided merrily on his return. "But now we can begin." It was a merry Christmas.

The man stood in his house surrounded by his family. Soft lights gleamed, gay ornaments bedecked the tree. Weary with workaday toil and responsibility, he thought that but for the others he fair would do away with all this tinselled Christmas show and rest. Then the room went dark. Only the tree stood out alight. They sang together, "Holy night, silent night." And strangely, in some degree the peace and calm and vastness of the event they celebrated gripped him, wiping out the worries of the day. His heart warmed, bridged the gap of years. Remembering the childhood he used to know he lost his troubled self in the spirit of joyous family celebration. It was a happy Christmas.

There came another Christmas. The man was old now. The years bore hard upon him and he could not leave his room. His children's children came with their joys and woes and garnered words of cheer and comfort from his lips. Gladly would they help him downstairs to the festivities. He told them, "No." But would they draw the curtain back that he could look out into the night, the while they sang, "Wise Granddad, 'some-one said, 'You want to see the real stars'." He smiled. They left him. And presently he slept. He was tired and his work was done. It was his last Christmas.

The Genesee News says that the farmers of the Genesee community have taken no action toward joining the marketing association, because thru the Farmers' Union they are already strongly organized and in position to derive any benefits which may be available to wheat growers. The News feels that only one side of the case has been stated, and it invites a full and frank discussion of the question, pro and con, in its columns. The News says quite frankly, that so far we have heard only from the organizers, and that "they by no means represent the actual producers." Obviously the News is from Missouri, and wants to be shown. It will indeed be interesting to read the letters which actual producers may write in regard to the question.

Following the suggestion of the News, we want to say that the columns of the Gazette, too, are open for a discussion of this live issue. To quote once

EASY TO CLEAN OUT SINK WASTE TRAP

Cleaning Out a Sink Trap.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

It is advisable to clean out sink or laundry tub waste traps from time to time. Dirt collects in the bottom of them and grease adheres to the sides of the pipes. It is not hard to unscrew the cleanout plug and wash out any obstructing matter or pull it out with a wire bent to form a hook, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Grease, hair, or lint, can often be scraped out with a stick when the trap has been opened. Coffee grounds are among the commonest sources of stoppage at the trap. Melted wax used for sealing jelly glasses finds its way into the trap, and when hardened is another frequent cause of trouble.

Small obstructions are often forced down or drawn up by the use of a simple rubber force cup, sometimes called "the plumber's friend," costing 30 to 50 cents. The cup is placed over the fixture outlet and the fixture is partially filled with water. The wood handle of the cup is then worked rapidly down and up, causing alternate expulsion of the water from beneath the cup and suction upward through the waste pipe and trap. Chemical solvents are sometimes needed to free the pipes. Caustic soda or potash are sometimes used. Directions for their preparation and use may be found in Farmers' Bulletin 1420-F, "Farm Plumbing."

LARGER RETURN FROM WHEAT LIKELY

Secretary Hyde, in his annual report to the President, has this to say regarding the wheat situation: "Though this season's wheat crop is considerably smaller than that of 1928, it may return the growers a larger income. Wheat prices have been substantially higher so far this season than they were during the corresponding period of the 1928-1929 season. A reduction in our wheat output is offset by an increase in the carryover from the previous season. Stocks on July 1 totaled 245,000,000 bushels compared with 128,000,000 bushels on the same date in 1928. Income from wheat depends, however, on the world wheat situation as well as on the situation in the United States. The world's production of wheat outside Russia and China in 1929, according to the reports now available, is about 3,400,000,000 bushels, or 500,000,000 less than the record crop of 1928. As the carryover was larger than that of the previous crop year, the total world supply for 1929-30 is only about 360,000,000 bushels less than the supply available in 1928-29. Nevertheless, the indicated reduction has raised the world price level."

Ensilage Is Essential to Cattle and Sheep

Feeders of beef cattle and sheep have even more reason to build a silo and feed silage than the dairymen, according to experiment station results. Yet nearly all dairymen feed silage, while the majority of beef men and sheep men do not.

After summarizing the results of all experimental data available Prof. F. B. Morrison, director of the New York Experiment station, finds that the average ton value of silage for dairy cows is approximately one-third that of good mixed hay, while the per acre yield of silage is four or five times greater than that of hay. For beef cattle, he finds silage worth half as much per ton as clover hay, and for sheep more than half as much.

In an average of 20 trials with two-year-old steers, gains on silage-fed cattle cost $1.22 a hundredweight less than on steers fed no silage. In these tests a ton of silage replaced 27 pounds of concentrates and 605 pounds of clover hay.

Prof. Morrison, who has long been considered one of the foremost feeding authorities of the country, feels that cattle and sheep feeders, like the dairymen, could make greater profits by feeding silage.

Dairy Associations Overlooking Means of Improving Their Breeds.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Dairy breed associations in the United States are overlooking an important means of improving their respective breeds in keeping their herd books closed to the many unregistered high-producing cows of excellent type, according to O. E. Reed, chief of the bureau of dairy industry, United States Department of Agriculture.

Speaking before the annual convention of the Holstein-Friesian association in Philadelphia, Mr. Reed suggested the desirability of the national breed associations giving "some study to setting up a system of registry which will permit entering in the herd books unregistered animals that have reached a high degree of purity for a high level of production."

Seems Like Rank Herey
Mr. Reed admitted this suggestion might seem like "rank herey to those who have not thought the proposition through," but he called attention to the fact that all cattle now registered spring from the common herd. Moreover, he cited figures showing the very slight difference existing between the production of unregistered and registered commercial herds today.

Of 100,000 cows tabulated by the bureau of dairy industry, 70,000 were grades and 30,000 were registered. The grades, he said, produced 7,124 pounds of milk and 264 pounds of butterfat a year, on the average, while the registered cattle averaged 7,878 pounds of milk and 308 pounds of butterfat, a difference of only 754 pounds of milk and 44 pounds of butterfat in favor of the registered cattle.

New System Is Favored.
There are many unregistered animals of great productive capacity and excellent type in the United States today that could be made use of in our breeding operations with profit, he said. A system of registering such animals has plenty of backing, and it can be made genetically sound. Great Britain, Holland, and other countries famous for their fine herds and flocks have used such a system in the past, and still follow the practice of admitting animals that have three to five top crosses of registered lines. In discussing the plan, Mr. Reed pointed out that it would not mean an immediate wholesale registration of grade cattle. If only three top crosses were required for the registration of females and all first calves in the crosses were females, which is improbable, he stated, it would take ten years to get a female registered in the herd book.

A Voice From the Ranks

CAPTAIN BILLY FARINHOLT, now deceased, was one of the most gallant soldiers that Essex county, Virginia, sent to the Confederate army—and if you don't believe Essex sent out her full share of hard fighters in 1861 just ask any native of the county, that's all. The old gentleman was a famous story teller. One of his favorites had to do with an actual occurrence of the Civil war in which cool grit in the face of almost certain death was mingled, I think, in just the proper proportion, with a beautiful sense of humor.

The man from whom I got the yarn used to go on hunting expeditions with the captain. My informant couldn't recall the name of the battle in which the thing occurred but he was quite sure it was one of the bloody fights of the final Virginia campaign shortly before Lee's surrender.

The general engagement had commenced. The brigade to which Captain Farinholt belonged was drawn up in reserve awaiting the command to advance, when a small battery of Union guns, opened upon it from the top of a nearby hill, doing considerable damage. An order was given that Captain Farinholt's company should capture the battery and silence the bothersome guns.

This meant that, unless some one devised a better plan, the detail must rush the hill by a frontal attack. It also meant that the little assaulting force must suffer heavy casualties, even if it were not entirely destroyed; for there was no cover. They must charge the enemy across an open space where the Federal pieces might play directly upon them.

As the men awaited the word to advance, the company commander felt it his duty to advise them that this was a most desperate adventure, on which they were about to start. His own instructions, he explained, were not specific. He merely had been told that he must eliminate those pestiferous Yanks. Then, departing somewhat from strict military discipline, he asked whether any individual present cared to make a suggestion whereby the enemy's battery could be taken with the least possible loss of life. A pause befell. No one, it seemed, could think of an easier way than the one already decided upon.

A private, who stammered badly, broke the silence:
"W-h-a-t say, fellows. I-e-e-a-a-just c-h-a-p in a-n-d buy the d-a-m-n-ed thing?"

Cereal Sponge

Stir into two cupsful cooked wheat cereal, the beaten white of one egg and one teaspoonful vanilla. The cereal should be thin. If it is thick, add warm milk or water to it before folding in the egg white. Chill in molds. Serve for dessert with a soft custard.

In training chicks to roost, it is a good plan to have the roosts low. Often it is necessary to place the chicks upon the roosts once or twice. Soon they will find that such roosts are much more comfortable than nudging around the hover, and they will quickly adopt the roosting habit.

ALFALFA HAY IS GOOD FOR HORSES

Fed With Corn, It Makes a Well-Balanced Ration.

Alfalfa hay can safely be fed either as the sole roughage for horses, or to replace half or more of timothy or prairie hays, according to A. O. Rhoad of the New York state college of agriculture. Experiments have shown that horses at hard work and fed alfalfa hay as the sole roughage, maintained their weight on 20 to 22 per cent less grain than others fed timothy hay.

Alfalfa makes a well-balanced ration when fed with corn alone. Timothy hay may not be fed with corn alone, as this ration is low in protein and needs a supplement to balance it. With grains other than corn—such as oats, barley, peas and bran, which in themselves contain considerable protein—alfalfa should not be used as the sole roughage. Under such circumstances lower the amount of alfalfa fed; use, for example, half alfalfa and half timothy.

For horses, the first cutting of alfalfa is more beneficial than the second and third cuttings. Second and third cuttings are preferable for dairy cattle because the stems are not as coarse and there is a larger proportion of leaf area. For horses, however, the first cutting is better as it is not "waxy" and is coarser. It is commonly advised to cut alfalfa when one-third in bloom and this is highly desirable for the dairy cow. Alfalfa is better as a feed for horses, however, if it is cut at a later stage—when almost mature.

No better roughage exists for growing colts than alfalfa hay. The high protein and lime content of this hay is just what the growing animal needs to build firm muscle and dense bone.

Making Silo Air Proof Most Practical Plan

An Iowa farmer who has had wide experience finds that spoiling of silage during the winter can be lessened by treating the silo wall on the inside with a solution that keeps out air. The mixture consists of one pound salt, two tablespoonfuls of alum, one teaspoonful of lye and four gallons of water, plus enough cement to make it the consistency of paste.

In some cases, the inside of the silo doors are lined with paper or the cracks filled with clay to keep out air. Another scheme is to sow oats or cane at the top of the silo. These grains sprout quickly in the warm silage and the matted growth serves as an insulator excluding the air.

Less Bulky Fertilizers Encouraged by Farmers

Higher concentration of plant food in mixed fertilizers, than was customary six years ago, has resulted in Ohio farmers buying 20 per cent more plant food in commercial fertilizer in 1928 than they bought in 1922, while paying only 3 per cent more freight and bagging charges, E. E. Barnes, of the soils department of the Ohio State university, has checked the tendencies in the use of fertilizer on Ohio farms, through fertilizer sales reports made to the state department of agriculture.

"Actual tonnage of fertilizing material purchased in 1928 is only 2 per cent greater than the tonnage purchased in 1922," says Barnes. "But this is not a true picture of what has happened. Along with this small increase in tonnage, there has been an increase in the concentration of the fertilizers sold, which has made the sales of total plant food materials in 1928 increase 20 per cent over the same sales in 1922."

Barnes' check shows that the sale of phosphoric acid increased 9 per cent in the six-year period; sales of potash increased 100 per cent, and sales of nitrogen increased 121 per cent.

Poultry Pointers for Use in Breeding Pens

The inclusion of birds in the flock that have other than straight breastbones is a matter for the individual to decide. It is inadvisable to use males with this defect, no matter what may be decided regarding females.

A crooked breast is a deformity, however. The trap-nester, possibly, is more likely to use breeding birds with this deformity than a breeder not knowing actual record of the birds.

Where birds have been trap-nested it will be an easy matter to leave out those birds which do not lay normal-shaped or standard-sized eggs.

It is not expected that each bird will lay exhibition-quality eggs, but eggs that are pronouncedly abnormal will certainly not give optimum hatching results.

Nutrient in Skim Milk Too Valuable to Waste

Fully 70 per cent of the nutrient in milk is contained in the skim milk. This is too valuable to waste and skim milk powder, which preserves this valuable food for human use, is finding new uses every year. Progressive bakers here and there are using this powder in the making of bread and cakes. As high as 7 per cent may be used to advantage and it is said that customers are quick to appreciate the difference between bread containing milk powder and that with no milk. In fact, the superior quality of most home-made bread is due to the use of milk in the mixing where many bakers use only water. Ice cream makers are using a lot of this material and it also enters into the making of macaroni, pie-filling, chocolates and many kinds of candies.

HANDY COOKING CENTER AND PASS CLOSET

Convenient Kitchen and Pass Closet.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.

An arrangement that is very frequently recommended for making the kitchen convenient is to have a pass closet in the connecting wall between the dining room and kitchen. This plan can be made particularly compact when the sink and drainboards are placed at right angles to the pass closet on an outside wall so that a window may be located above the sink for light and ventilation. In the house where the photograph was taken by the United States Department of Agriculture, the stove is placed on the connecting wall next to the pass closet. With a minimum of steps, food can be prepared at the sink and put on the stove or in the oven to be cooked. When done, the platters and vegetable dishes can be reached without extra walking about and the hot food dished on the counter and passed at once through the closet to be taken out on the dining room side. The sink is within reach for those foods which must be drained immediately after cooking.

A well-arranged kitchen has all the major equipment placed so that work is routed from one center to another in a logical way and with no unnecessary steps. By thinking carefully how each part of the work is done it is sometimes possible to rearrange one's kitchen equipment and make it more convenient without extensive structural alterations.

A Red Button on His Cap

By LILLIACE M. MITCHELL

NATALIE, walking along the boulevard, saw the cleaners' wagon a block away, driving to the side street. Natalie blushed.

Although she could not see through the great purple car, she knew that in the driver's seat sat one Hal Merton who owned the company or at least the controlling share of it. To many people the merry Hal Merton, with his quick smile, was just the cleaner-man. To Natalie, however, he was man o' dreams, hero and wishes fulfilled! Natalie was in love with Hal but he did not know it nor, so far, had he ever evinced any interest in Natalie.

And Natalie, with a gentle smile on her lips, walked along the boulevard. She must stop at the florist and see that the ice cream would be delivered in time for the party that night, and she must run into the dry goods store to find a button for Buddy's school cap. In the fight yesterday he had lost a button from his new cap with its ear flaps.

Passing the hotel which stood on the boulevard corner, her eye was attracted by a red sparkle on the sidewalk.

It was a red glass button of good size. She picked it up and watched the sun catch its facets for a moment. Then she dropped it into her pocket and walked along to do her errands.

It was noontime and she was at home again before she remembered that she had not bought the button for Buddy's school cap.

"Gee whoppings!" Buddy said in disgust when he got home, "that ear flap has been hanging down on one side all morning."

"Say, I found a pretty red button that is just about the right size," said Natalie. "I'll put that on and then get you a button to match tomorrow."

At five o'clock Buddy had not yet returned from school. Natalie remembered with a start that Buddy should have been home long, long ago.

At the end of the school block she found him along with five other small boys, all of them looking like angry animals, panting hard, dirty-faced and clenched-fisted.

"Why, Buddy!" said Natalie, relieved to see that he was all right and at a loss to understand the angry look upon his face.

"Bill Myers said I had a girl's button on my cap. It isn't a girl's button! And I'll lick the first fellow that says it is, too!" he snorted angrily.

"Boys don't wear red glass buttons," insisted the other.

"Well, for goodness sake," said Natalie impatiently, "come along home and don't worry about the red glass button. You should have been home hours ago . . ."

"The dry goods shop is only down the next block," Buddy said pleadingly, "can't you stop and get me a decent button, Sis? They all laughed at me."

The time was running on but Natalie, realizing how horrible it was to be laughed at in school, turned down the side street toward the dry goods store.

Passing the shop known to every one else as the Independent Cleaners and Dyers and known to Natalie as the place of business owned by Hal Merton, Hero o' Dreams, Natalie glanced in at the window in a would-be casual fashion. Perhaps Hal would be there, as he frequently was in late afternoon, casting up accounts at the desk in the corner. And there he was, too! With flushed cheeks, Natalie hurried on.

"Wait!" said Buddy. "I want to look in that window."

But Natalie took him to the dry goods shop and bought the button. On the way back, Buddy stopped again at the window of the cleaning shop.

"There's a red button, Sis, just like the button on my cap—I bet it's a girl's button, too!"

And now Natalie stopped. The red button was sewed to a card on which was typewritten:

LOST: A button like this one. If you find it please return within and claim reward.

"Why," said Natalie, glancing at her little brother's cap. "It is just the same. I'll take it inside."

And inside Hal Merton hurried forward. The button still on Buddy's cap was laid before him.

"I found it this morning outside of the hotel," Natalie explained.

"Why, I can't tell you how much this means to me," said Hal. "It belongs to a Chinese gentleman stopping at the hotel and I was given a ceremonial coat to clean and press. I had no idea the buttons were of any great value until I found here at the store that one was missing. I telephoned to the suite at the hotel right away and found that the buttons were real rubies. Worth a small fortune, each one of them. Of course, the boy there was supposed to have removed them before he handed over the coat but he didn't, and there I was—in a pretty fix! . . . and you say your little brother wore the cap to school with a real ruby in it?"

"And got into a fight because they said it was a girl's button," laughed Natalie merrily.

"And here is the reward promised," said Hal Merton, reaching into the drawer under the counter.

Natalie did not take that reward but later on—oh, well, that is another story with a bride and rice and confetti and everything.

RADIO AS IT EXISTS

Here's an anonymous tidbit going the rounds that may remind you of some of your own experiences.

A man had just installed a radio. He tuned in, getting three stations on the same wave length. One was a minister, one a man telling the condition of the roads and the third a lecturer on poultry. Here is what he got:

"The Old Testament tells us that baby chicks should detour one mile south of Salina and listen to the words of the prophet, Ssyssys. Be careful in the selection of your eggs, and you will find hard surfaced roads on to Garden City. We find in Genesis that the roads are muddy just west of the henhouse and clean straw is essential if you will save your soul. After passing through Leavenworth, turn north to Jerico. Three wise men bought a large incubator on account of a bad detour. The baby chicks were troubled with the pip and a bond issue is being talked in the Holy City. Keep the feet clean and dry, live a life of righteousness and turn south one mile west of the school house. Much care should be used in commanding the sun to stand still, as there is a washout on the bridge just south of Paola, and the road to salvation is under repair, making it necessary for 70 degrees in the brood house at all times. After you leave Winfield, unless you do these things, the wrath of the Lord will cause the pin feathers to fall out and detour one mile south. Many are culled, but few have any luck unless the graveled road between Topeka and Lawrence is mixed with the feed. Out of 500 eggs one should get good roads from Coffeyville, to Tulsa and He commanded Noah to build the ark just one mile west of Wichita. It rained forty days and forty nights and caused an eight mile detour. Just west of the brood house many tourists from the House of David are trying the Plymouth Rocks mixed with concrete and a desire to do right."—Kellogg News.

Early Roosting Habit Is of Great Benefit

Chicks that get the roosting habit early in life will usually grow into better chickens than those that are allowed to cuddle in crowded houses throughout the summer. Early roosting used to be considered the cause of many of the crooked breastbones in chickens. Results of proper feeding have shown that this trouble is more often caused from a deficiency of minerals in the ration or from a lack of sunshine.

With this false notion of crooked breastbones out of the argument, practically all of the benefits lie with the early training of the chicks to roost. Such chicks will be easier to handle in the fall when they are put into laying houses. They will also be less apt to crowd and become overheated, in addition to being easier to care for.

My Favorite Stories by Irvin S. Cobb

Appertaining to Finance MOST of us are familiar with the story of the improvident person who, on being warned by the head of his bank that he must make extensive deposits immediately in order that his drawing account might balance, made answer as follows: "Say, look here! I'm getting good and tired of having you fellows bother me about these petty financial details. If you begin pestering me again I'll be darned if I don't take my overdraft out of your bank and transfer it to the Second National, across the street."

There's a companion story for this, not quite so old:

A gentleman in a southern town, well known as brilliant but careless, was persistent in his applications for loans and extremely tardy about repaying them. He had induced a local bank to let him have forty dollars, and gave his note therefor.

At the end of each 30-day period he invariably appeared and asked that the note be renewed; and as there was nothing else to do, the bank always renewed it.

One day he appeared and said to the cashier:

"I'd like to renew that paper of mine you have here."

"Certainly," replied the cashier; "I'll fix it up for you."

The cashier made the proper preparations for the renewal, and then he said:

"Say, the directors were talking about this paper of yours the other day. They decided that they wouldn't charge you interest on it any longer."

"That's very considerate of them," was the reply. "I'm mighty glad to hear it. I certainly am under obligations to them."

"Yes," continued the cashier, "we're not going to charge you interest, we're going to charge you storage!"

GRADE SCHOOL NOTES

The following persons received 100% in the 150 word drill in the third grade: Ethel Fraser, and Dick Carlson.

The third grade nature study class made a general study of the different wild flowers.

The students of the third grade language class enjoyed the study of the poem, "Little Boy Blue." Interesting pictures were shown which made the picture of the poem more realistic to them. The story upon which the poem is based was told to the children.

The fourth grade nature study class found the story, "The Boholink," to be very interesting.

The poem "Little Orphan Annie" was discussed by the third grade literature class. The poet's life was told to the students.

Picture of famous paintings were shown to the fourth grade language class and each student was asked to write a descriptive theme. The following themes were written by three members of the class:

The Lonesome Trail

by Franklin Abrams

When children walk through this passage every thing is still. It is always beautiful in the spring time. If this road could talk you would know what "The Lonesome Trail" was in olden days. Probably a great many oxen have walked through the pass many a time.

A Texas Blue Bonnet Field

by Phyllis Thomas

There was a lonely little ranch upon a hill. It was evening and there was a beautiful sunset. It was blended with yellow, orange and purple. Then out in the field were white sheep grazing. The grass was green and there were purple daisies tinted with bits of red.

There was a lonely little house, a little brown house on the hill. A spreading tree stood in the back yard.

The Canadian Rockies

by Jean Bigelow

Yesterday as I was out walking, a beautiful sight met my eyes. There lay right before me the most beautiful sight I had ever seen. There was a clear, blue lake with the pine trees reflected in the water. Above the lake there were tan, blue rocks covered with moss. There was a mountain not far away covered with snow. The sky was a grayish, blue color.

3rd and 4th Grades

The booklets "Forest Fires in Idaho" and the "Forest Primer" were discussed by the third grade pupils.

"How Lead Pencils are Made" was studied by the fourth grade.

"The Magic Parasol", an interesting story of how Palm-olive soap is made was discussed by the third grade.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Keeler attended the funeral of the little grandson at Lewiston Friday.
