INTERESTING NOTES FROM PUBLIC SCHOOL

Frosh Have Party

Last Thursday evening the freshmen class of the high school held a party in the high school assembly. After an enjoyable evening spent in playing games, refreshments were served consisting of sandwiches, jello and cookies. A splendid time was reported.

Local Squads Win Double Header

Last Friday, January 31, both the girls' and boys' teams of the high school defeated Southwick on the local floor.

The girls' game, which was played first, ended in a score of 17-7. At the end of the half the score was 11-1, but in the last half Southwick and Kendrick each made but six points. Though Southwick was handicapped by the difference in rules, all made a good showing.

In the boys' game, the local hoopers maintained a lead throughout the game. George Bailey was Kendrick's high-point man, making 13 of the 35 points, and Meyers was high man for Southwick, making five of their 16 points. The game ended in a score of 35-16 in our favor.

High School Students Have Party

Last Friday evening, after the basketball games, the students of the high school and the Southwick basketball squads held a party in the assembly. The evening was enjoyably spent playing games and dancing, after which light refreshments were served.

Typing Students Earn Awards

Several of the students in the typing classes have earned Remington typing awards, which are given by the company to the students who write the required number of words. Those whose papers have been sent to the company are Alice Ingle, Marjory Davidson, Bernice Whisler, Irene Davis.

Two of the students have received awards already. Eldwa Jones received her Proficiency certificate and Eleanor Herres, a second-year pupil, has received her silver Underwood medal. To do this she had to write between 50 and 60 words a minute for 15 minutes with not more than five errors.

Many other students are working for these awards.

Salmon Digs Its Way Out

The following news dispatch appeared in the dailies a few days ago, showing that Ralph Kneppler's town over in the east part of the state has been having troubles of its own. We're not the only ones that have had snow—and a few other things.

Snow plows today cut through the snowdrifts that imprisoned Salmon to the outside world, the state Bureau of highways was advised recently.

Reports to the department said that the town had been isolated by snow blockades on the Lemhi and Sawtooth park highways. The road is now open between Salmon and Challis on the Sawtooth Park highway, from where the road to Arco and Blackfoot, over the Lost River highway is open.

Hurt In Auto Wreck

Friends received word last week from Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ameling and Mrs. Bertha Eichner and son Harley, that they had been injured in an auto wreck while visiting at Long Beach, California. It seems that the Eichners and Amelings were out riding and in some manner their car was struck and almost completely demolished by another car and that Mrs. Eichner and Mrs. Ameling and the Ameling baby were injured sufficiently for them to spend several days in a hospital. At last reports they were said to be getting along nicely. No further particulars have been learned.

"Yimmie" To Stick Around

Yimmie Yonson was so well satisfied with his job that he has decided to stick around Kendrick until Monday evening, February 10, when he will again appear at the local opera house to bid you good-bye before he goes to his native laud (Troy) where he will meet most all his relatives and friends.

If you didn't see Yimmie the other time he was here, you should do so next Monday night. He will be disappointed if he doesn't get to see you!

IDAHOANS INTERESTED IN NEW ORGANIZATIONS

As Idaho produces 25,000,000 to 28,000,000 bushels of wheat and 16,000,000 to 18,000,000 pounds of wool each year growers of the state are much interested in the first two national commodity organizations established under the Federal Farm Board the National Grain Marketing Corporation and the National Wool Marketing Corporation. These marketing organizations were sponsored by the Farm Board to carry the benefits of the agricultural marketing act to the wheat raisers and wool growers.

County agricultural agents of Idaho are gathering all data on organization plans and aims of these two corporations so they will be able to acquaint farmers in their counties with these new marketing facilities.

Working plans of these two corporations were explained by W. E. Schoenfeld, western representative of the Federal Farm Board, at the biennial meeting of the University of Idaho college of agriculture extension staff last week.

Mr. Schoenfeld, expressed the belief that the national grain corporation would control 30 to 50 per cent of the wheat crop during the coming year. Word from Byron Wilson, secretary-treasurer of the wool corporation, indicates that organization expects to have control of at least 25 per cent of the 1930 wool clip. This volume of wheat and wool will give both corporations a sufficiently large percentage of the national production of these commodities to be a strong market factor.

Resigns Position

Frank Ellis, an employe of the Vollmer-Clearwater company for the past 25 years, and manager for that company for the past six years, has resigned his position, to take effect as soon as his successor has been named and the proper transfer made.

His first job with the Vollmer-Clearwater company was that of driving the piling horse that pulled the tram, he gradually working his way up to assistant manager under E. P. Atchison, whose death occurred in 1923, when Mr. Ellis was made manager to succeed him and since which time he has held that position in the Kendrick office.

Twenty-five years with the same firm is no mean record and one of which Mr. Ellis should be proud—and one seldom reached by anyone in the employe of another. He has many friends here who will be sorry to learn of his decision.

Committee To Lewiston

A delegation consisting of Ira Havens, Thorvald Nelson and Norris Walker, of the Kendrick highway district, and W. J. Carroll, a member of the highways committee of the commercial club, went to Lewiston Monday to meet with the Lewiston Commercial club and members of the Lewiston highway commission in an effort to obtain the amount that would naturally be due this district under the Governor's proposed "speeded up" highway program.

There is nothing like being on the ground, early in order to get the proper share of "donation" that might be coming our way. These gentlemen laid the matter before the meeting and while they didn't have much to say it is evident that they were not "turned down flat" on their request.

Interest Increasing

Corvallis, Jan. 29—An increasing interest in the revival meetings held for two weeks at the Methodist church, Corvallis, caused a continuation of the services throughout this week. The evangelist, Rev. L. E. Taber, has proven to be a popular speaker with the church people of the community and they have turned out well to hear him every night. Sunday night the house was full. Several conversions have been recorded. Rev. Taber is a Presbyterian minister from Juliaetta, Idaho, and came here at the invitation of his brother, Rev. C. J. Taber, pastor of the Methodist church. —Ravilla (Mont.) Republican.

No Grain Or Beans Moving

Questioning the managers of the Vollmer-Clearwater and the Kendrick Rochdale warehouses and elevator elicited the fact that while there is much grain in storage here, none is being shipped. The owners are waiting for a rise in the market.

CITY WATER QUESTION IS NEARLY SOLVED

The water question in Kendrick has been about solved for this time. The big leak near the reservoir has been welded, as have several places in the lower part of town, where much trouble has been experienced and is still being experienced by broken pipes. The pipes in the lower end of town are rather old, but it was thought best to repair them rather than put in new sections as the line is not on a grade.

At some future time this part of the main water pipes will have to be renewed, and when this is done they will be put on a grade and, it is hoped, below the frost line. The ones unearthed this past week were barely 18 inches below the surface, making them very susceptible to the frost, especially when the snow is light, as it has been this winter.

The city authorities have been doing their best to "thaw" out the frozen mains and put the water system in good condition again. While many feed pipes are still frozen, the mains are open and the reservoir is full of water, which, with the big electric pump working whenever necessary, gives ample fire protection to the town, as well as water to most of the residents.

Sewers have also been flushed and opened up to the place where they empty. This is something that was absolutely necessary as many of the leads were clogged and frozen.

Mayor Long has assured us that the water system will be put in first-class condition just as soon as it is possible to do so. But taken all in all we have been, and are, more lucky than many of our village neighbors in regard to the water question.

Honor Class Have Taffy Pull

Last Thursday evening, January 30, in the basement of the church, the Honor class of the Presbyterian Sunday school held a taffy pull. After the taffy was pulled and eaten the young people spent the rest of the evening playing games.

Those present were Jane Plummer, Phyllis Cummings, Josephine Davis, Annabel Davis, Gladys Dunning, Kathryn Emery, Margaret Schultz, Oscar Onstott, Margaret Dougherty, Jean Ramey and Rev. and Mrs. Franklin.

Buys Barber Shop

L. E. Hunters of Lewiston has purchased the De Luxe barber shop from Earl Kulick, and has taken charge of same. Mr. Kulick expects to go East to make his home.

Mr. Hunters has a family and will bring them to Kendrick just as soon as he can find a suitable house in which to live.

The good people of Kendrick welcome Mr. Hunters and his family and wish Mr. Kulick much success wherever he may see fit to cast his lot.

Heavy Traffic Barred

Wm. Boyd, the Kendrick truck man, has been informed that the piled road from Spaulding bridge to Lewiston is closed to heavy traffic, therefore he is unable to make trips to Lewiston with his trucks until such time as the road has settled and the embargo has been lifted.

The road is said to be "heaving" and when it settles the surface crumbles, making the highway unfit for pleasant travel. Passenger traffic is not barred.

Among the Sick

Mrs. Thos. McDowell has been confined to her bed with illness for the past week.

H. B. Meyers of the Commercial hotel has been unable to work the past week on account of illness. He is somewhat improved at this time.

Mrs. Arthur Johns, residing two miles west of town, who has been ill for the past two weeks, is convalescing nicely.

Ladies Bridge Club Meets

The Ladies Afternoon Bridge club was entertained at the home of Mrs. Ramey Wednesday afternoon. Several hours of bridge were indulged in after which songs and a jolly time were a part of the entertainment. The Valentine scheme was carried out throughout. High honors went to Mrs. Fields and the consolation to Mrs. Watts. Refreshments were served.

SUPERINTENDENT OF GAME FARM RESIGNS

C. W. Myers, who established the state game farm near Sweetwater some four years ago, and who has been superintendent since that time, has resigned his position and expects to remove to Lewiston, where the family will make their home, and where he will engage in another line of business.

He stated his interest in the success of the game farm will continue and he has ambitions to see the Idaho farm one of the largest and one of the most productive in the entire country.

Mr. Myers came to Idaho about four years ago from Seattle. He was recommended to the state game department as an expert in the rearing of wild game birds and was brought here to establish the state farm at Lapwai. The first farm was located near the Indian agency but the quarters were inadequate and later arrangements were made with the Indian department for a transfer of the farm to the location near Sweetwater where more land was available and where water facilities were more adequate to the needs.

Mr. Myers has been successful in his management of the Idaho farm and from the beginning, young Chinese pheasants have been sent to all parts of the state for planting. The pen space has been enlarged from year to year and recently improvements have been made to the keeper's residence so that the farm now compares very favorably with other such institutions in the west.

Saw His Shadow

While many have been talking extermination of the magpies and a certain breed of hawks, why not just add another organization to exterminate the groundhog. This rodent has been playing hobb with the weather for years and years and nothing has been done to stop him, with the exception of an occasional shot at him when someone happened to see him during the summer months, after he had mused the weather all up.

According to past rules and regulations, we are to have six weeks more winter, for the varmint certainly saw his shadow last Sunday, on what is known as "Groundhog" day.

But if you want to get the dope on the weather for the next month or so, just read the prognostications of "X Y Z" the weather regulator for the Lewiston valley, taken from Sunday's Lewiston Tribune. It'll be worth your while.

Have Installed Cooling System

Pearson & Pearson have just completed the installation of an up-to-date cooling system for their meat department, which they have recently added to the store.

The system is said to be of the very latest type of electric refrigeration. The cooling room is 7x11x8 feet, which gives ample room for carrying and cooling a large supply of meats, which will comprise beef, veal, pork, mutton and various lunch meats, as well as all kinds of cured meats. The cooling system extends to the show-case, where meats are kept on display. All in all, the market is a very material benefit to the store. They will manufacture their own sausage, but will not render lard until arrangements have been completed for that work.

Weather Has Moderated

Well, we guess parts of California haven't anything on the Kendrick weather just now. It has been so balmy the past few days that some have been heard to express a desire to "dig in the dirt" while others have mentioned spring flowers—and a few other things—along with a few things about the squirrels.

Anyway the weather has been fine and we have high hopes that the backbone of "Old Man Winter" has been so badly bent, at least, that he will be unable to do very much more damage to the coal pile. And, too, many people are anxiously awaiting the time when Old Sol will get busy and thaw out their water pipes.

Orofino In Limelight

Federal officials have been busy down in the Orofino and Pierce sections for the past week or so and have rounded up more than a score of alleged violators of the liquor laws, among them the chief of police of Orofino. It would seem that those who toy with the "wild cow's milk" these days are apt to find themselves in trouble.

"YIMMIE YONSON'S YOB" PLEASES BIG AUDIENCE

The home talent play, "Yimmie Yonson's Yob," presented under the auspices of the M. E. Ladies Aid of Kendrick was a big success in every way, the characters were well drawn and the parts played to a perfection, so much so indeed, that one would almost think them real, and not the product of a stage.

This play, the first home talent in Kendrick for some time, showed the results of long hard hours of practice and of real enthusiasm by the characters for their parts. The play, a comedy drama, abounds with laughs and thrills, carrying with it a strain of mystery, a ghost, the howling of dogs, the din of thunder and the flash of lightning that give it the realistic touches so much desired in stage presentation. Then, too, there runs throughout the play a thread of pathos, and ones heart almost bleeds for poor Mrs. Kent, who has lost her son and who is also entangled in the villainies of her step daughter and her lover, a roomer at her home.

Irish, Swedish, and staid old Yankee characters make up the cast, but then, we must not forget snappy, peppy youth, which must bubble out, even in the face of a ghost.

Truly, the play was well worth the price of admission—and then some.

Those taking part in the play were:

Mr. Kent, the father Wm. Watts
Mrs. Kent, the mother Mae Ramey
Belle, the foster daughter Blanche Woods

Sylvia, the niece Earline Stump
Mickey, the farm hand Claud Groth
Peg, the cook Emma Walker
Kittie, the helper Marjory Davidson
Pal, the detective Wm. Jones
Frank, the clerk Roy Ramey
Yimmie, from Mannesota Yimmie Yonson

Norris Walker

This play is to be repeated by popular request on Monday night, February 10.

During the intermission between the second and third acts Mrs. Field and Mrs. Groth sang a duet, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Thomas and Mrs. Schupfer, furnishing a duet accompaniment.

to and including 3501 of the Compiled Statutes of Idaho. Notice is hereby given to all owners and occupants of land in Latah County, Idaho, that said noxious weeds must be exterminated upon their premises within the times and in the manner hereinafter prescribed.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED: That the following named weeds, to-wit: Jim Hill mustard (tumbling mustard), Bindweed (Convolvulus arvensis), Canada Thistle (Carduus arvensis), Fanwood (Thlaspi arvense) are detrimental and destructive to agricultural crops in Latah County, and all such noxious weeds growing within Latah County, Idaho, are hereby ordered destroyed or exterminated as hereinafter described, and all of said work must be performed and completed at the proper time and in the proper season.

JIM HILL MUSTARD (Tumbling Mustard. CONTROL: The first requisite is sowing clean seed. Stubble fields where the weed has matured seed should be burned and disked to encourage germination, and the land summer fallowed or put into a cultivated crop.

BINDWEED (Convolvulus arvensis) (a) Large Areas. Clean cultivation is the most satisfactory and economical means of eradication. Such cultivation should start shortly after the weed begins its growth.

(b) Small Areas. Clean cultivation or carbon bisulphide may be used. The chemical if used should be upon the recommendation and under the supervision of the director of weed control. This chemical is effective when the conditions are right for its use.

(c) Waste Areas. Salt at the rate of one pound per square foot will completely eradicate the weed from waste areas. Since salt makes the soil unfit for the growth of other crops for several years, it cannot be recommended for cultivated land.

CANADA THISTLE (Carduus arvensis). (a) Cultivated Areas: Clean cultivation at sufficiently frequent intervals to keep down all top growth will eradicate this weed. A combination of spraying with sodium arsenite and cultivation is also very effective. Sodium arsenite spray should be applied in the form of a fine spray to the plants in the late evening or early morning.

(b) Badly Infested Areas. In the infested grain fields, the stubble should be burned to destroy the seed. Fall cultivation to encourage the growth of the seed, followed by subsequent cultivations to kill the young seedlings is effective. Cultivation of the grain in the spring will help to free the land of young plants.

(c) New Infestations. Where the weed appears for the first time, hand pulling and burning is the most effective means of control. Burning is essential since the seed are likely to mature, if the plants are pulled and left on the ground.

(d) FANWEED (Thlaspi Arvense). (a) New Infestations. Where the weed appears for the first time, hand pulling and burning is the most effective means of control. Burning is essential since the seed are likely to mature, if the plants are pulled and left on the ground.

The balance of this day was taken up in checking the poll books and selecting the jury list for 1930. The Board now adjourned to meet tomorrow, Saturday, January 18, 1930, at nine o'clock a. m.

Agricultural Hints

For best production from pullets put them in the laying house before production starts.

Many daymen have increased their profits by belonging to dairy record clubs. They help you to know your cows.

Flower beds and borders should be cleaned out in the fall to destroy disease fungi which live over winter in plant residues.

Bone meal, limestone, and salt are the only minerals necessary in the dairy ration. Complex mixtures are a waste of money.

Alfalfa hay or alfalfa leaf meal is an effective substitute for succulent green feed for winter poultry feeding. Alfalfa hay may be fed in two-inch mesh wire netting feeders.

Feed a balanced ration of whole-some grain and mash, supplemented with grit and oyster shell, and endeavor to secure the maximum production of eggs of high quality.

Late maturing turkeys that would not dress out as number ones at Thanksgiving, due to lack of size, should be culled and fed heavily on corn in preparation for the holidays.

Generally speaking, the hens with white shanks, big red combs, and old, dirty, and ragged plumage are the ones to keep, according to the specialist.

If eggs are found in stolen nests, in the litter or otherwise, so that their condition is not absolutely known, candle such eggs before taking them to market.

A hen that is laying will have a big, red, waxy comb, but as soon as she quits, the comb will begin to shrivel.

New corn can be fed in the ear if the birds are started on it gradually, with the amount increased from day to day.

Muslin curtains, if used in ventilating poultry houses, should be clean and in good condition. The old muslin area which is clogged with dust is not an effective medium for the diffusion of the air.

In addition to mash and scratch grain hens should have free access to grit, oyster shell and water. Green feed such as cabbage or mangels is also helpful.

For winter feeding yellow corn is superior to white. The yellow types are rich in vitamin A, which is necessary to keep the birds in good health and particularly to prevent eye trouble. This vitamin is also found in green feeds, but little of it in white corn, wheat, oats, buckwheat, barley and other common feeds.

FARM POULTRY

FEEDING PULLETS FOR WINTER EGGS

To Be Good Producers Fowls Should Be Well Developed.

The profit or loss in winter egg production of pullets depends upon the care and feeding they receive. For pullets to be good producers during the winter months they should be uniformly developed, have good frames, and be in good flesh before they begin to lay. It is therefore necessary that they receive a good ration which will fill them out and also store up an abundance of fat, according to H. M. Wells of the Colorado Agricultural college.

Feed a good growing mash or a laying mash that is supplemented with a grain mixture of two parts by weight of corn and one part of wheat, advises Wells. A laying pullet during the winter months will draw upon her reserve supply of fat and the feed she eats will go toward the development of eggs; otherwise if she does not have this fat reserve she will utilize the feed she consumes to supply her body wants and keep her warm, and only the surplus will go toward the production of eggs.

It would be profitable, if one has the room, to grade the pullets according to size. Make two or three grades of pullets, namely, those that are coming into bloom (comb becoming red) and are laying well developed, would be put in the laying house and fed a laying mash with the grain ration recommended above. The next smaller grade of pullets should be given all the growing mash they will consume, and this should be supplemented with a moist mash at noon. This moist mash consists of the growing mash moistened with milk to a crumbly consistency. By following this method, the more backward pullets will be brought into production before extreme cold weather sets in.

To secure the maximum results in production from pullets, it is advisable to keep them housed separately from the hens.

Air Outlets Prevent Colds and Diseases

All poultry houses should have an air outlet from the highest point in the house, for without this air-vent moisture collects. The fresh air that enters the house becomes warm and rises, and as warm air holds more moisture than cold air can hold, it will cause dampness in the poultry house unless it has a chance to go out. Otherwise it condenses under the roof and drops to make the litter moist and to cause a damp hen-house, which leads to colds and other troubles for the birds and a gradual loss of vigor on their part and loss of money on the part of their owners.

These facts, and many others, on ways to house poultry at low cost are given in a Cornell bulletin, written by H. E. Botsford and sent free to poultrymen of New York. It tells how to remodel old buildings—even large disused barns—and how to construct new houses.

Plan Poultry Houses With Eye to Future

Save dissatisfaction, regrets, many useless miles of walking and finally the sale of an unhandy place, by planning over and over the proposed placing of the buildings.

Try to plan out the ranch as it will be at the end of five to ten years' development, and put the first building where it should be at the end of that time.

Every building that must be moved is a dead load of effort, time and temper.

Figure to save steps by having tasks that can be done going and coming, driveways that save using carts, wheelbarrows and man power—and locate feed room centrally.

If winter must be carried, try to cut down the distance and plan on running water as a part of the progression of plant.

Use Lice Powder

Body lice on hens are best treated by some good louse powder such as sodium fluoride, Persian insect powder, and a dozen more or less, good commercial powders. The main point is to get the powder clear to the skin.

To do this, hold the hen in the left hand, head downward. Force a small handful of powder, about the equivalent of a level teaspoonful in measure, through the long, soft feathers that cover the abdomen and clear down to the skin.

Needed Minerals

The Ohio experiment station has been doing some work of late years with minerals for poultry, with a very simple mineral mixture composed of raw bone meal finely ground, 60 parts, ground limestone 20 parts containing 95 per cent calcium carbonate, sodium chloride or salt, 20 parts.

The above named experiment station concludes that these are the mineral elements that are most needed for the most profitable production of eggs and health of the hen.

When Love Dictates

By R. RAY BAKER

(Copyright.)

DEAR MISS LOCKWOOD: Inasmuch as the death of your employer, Mr. Wainwright, must automatically deprive you of your position as his private secretary, I am wondering whether you would consider a similar engagement with me? I am sure there would be no difficulty about the terms; and in case you feel favorably inclined you might call at my home, 783 Springside, on Monday evening.

Very truly yours,
ERNEST HUNTER.

Elizabeth read the message for the second time, and then looked about her neat office in the Wainwright home and sighed.

Good old Mr. Wainwright! How kindly he had treated her, how considerate he had been.

When this letter came Elizabeth had been looking forward with dread to a repetition of the distasteful ordeals with sentimental business men. The epistle afforded considerable relief, for it was from Ernest Hunter, the celebrated writer.

This was Saturday, and on Monday evening she presented herself at 783 Springside, to be admitted by a motherly-looking woman.

"I am Mrs. Clayton, Mr. Hunter's housekeeper," said the latter, "and I presume you are Miss Lockwood? Unfortunately, Mr. Hunter has been called away unexpectedly, but he gave me full authority to engage you. The duties will consist of receiving and answering mail and of manuscript review, in which you will have the assistance of a stenographer."

The remuneration proposed by Mrs. Clayton was beyond anything Elizabeth had hoped, and she accepted.

"You will make your home here," said the housekeeper, "Your room has been prepared in anticipation of a favorable decision on your part. Are there any questions you would like to ask?"

"Only one," Elizabeth replied, "and that is: How did Mr. Hunter hear of me?"

The housekeeper smiled.

"He was well acquainted with Mr. Wainwright. They chatted frequently at the club, and your employer was continually singing your praises. Mr. Hunter's secretary left about the time Mr. Wainwright died, so naturally you came to his mind."

Elizabeth spent the next day tidying up the workroom, for Mr. Hunter had not yet returned and there was nothing for her to do. In the evening the applicant for the stenographic position appeared, and proved to be a young man of about her own age—a very blond young man with nice blue eyes, and well dressed.

"Take a letter, please," she said, and she dictated briefly. He was quick and accurate, so he was given the position.

The next day a letter came from Mr. Hunter, announcing his inability to return home for several days but containing implicit instructions in regard to certain manuscripts.

As they worked together Elizabeth and the young man, who gave his name as Carl Winters, naturally became well acquainted. They had their meals together, with the housekeeper presiding at the table, and during these periods of relaxation from their professional duties Elizabeth gained new insights into the attractive personality of her stenographer.

This was something new in Elizabeth's life. Attention from an employer was unwelcome, but from an employe it was not so undesirable, especially when the employe was attractive.

Perhaps her employer would not approve of such proceedings, but Mr. Hunter was not manifesting much interest in his new secretary. He remained away, while his instructions came regularly by mail.

Three weeks after meeting Carl, Elizabeth frankly admitted to herself that she was in love with him, and one night he confessed that he held the same feeling toward her.

"Elizabeth," he said, "I feel duty-bound to tell you that I am in love with you. Things can't go on as they are, so probably you had better fire me. I warn you that I shall not be responsible for my actions if we continue working together."

Her answer was a smile.

"Mr. Winters," she said softly, "will you please take a letter?"

He prepared a notebook.

"Dear Mr. Hunter," she dictated, "I have enjoyed my brief term of service for you, but I am obliged to resign, because I am going to be married. I am sorry that I never formed your acquaintance."

He made the notations, then surprised her by tearing the page to shreds.

"Mr. Hunter declines to accept the resignation," Carl declared. "He desires that you remain as his private secretary—for life."

She stared with astounded eyes.

"I am Ernest Hunter," said the stenographer. "I loved you from the moment I saw your photograph one day at Mr. Wainwright's home. I decided to make you love me, too; but I detest the sentimental man who makes love to his employe, so I hired myself to you. In addition to the ethics involved, I know now that you care for me, and not for my position in the world. What do you think?"

"Very novel," she said. "Why don't you incorporate it in a story?"
