Brings In Trout

Harley Perryman took a notion Sunday morning that he would go fishing—and he did. He went up Bear creek to just the proper place (but we don't know where) and succeeded in luring a nice catch of trout to get on his hook—and he brought them home. We know, for we were lucky enough to get a nice mess out of the catch, and they were delicious, too.

It's all in the know-how.

FRANK BROCKE AND MISS MARGIE GREEN ARE WED

The marriage of Miss Margie Green, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Green of Troy to Frank Brocke took place Tuesday at six o'clock at the Methodist church in Moscow. The Rev. T. J. Croot officiating. Only intimate relatives and a few close friends of the couple witnessed the ceremony.

Grace Green, sister of the bride was bridesmaid and Bertel Bohman acted as best man. Both bride and bridesmaid wore silk ensembles, the bride wearing a corsage of sunburst rosebuds and orchid sweetpeas, the bridesmaid's corsage being red rosebuds and white sweetpeas.

A reception was held immediately after the ceremony at the Blue Bucket Inn.

The bride graduated with honors from the Troy High school and resumed her studies the following year at the U. of I., receiving her degree—Bachelor of Science—in 1929. She was affiliated with the Alpha Chi Omega sorority. For the past year she has been teaching.

Mr. Brocke is the son of Mrs. Julia Brocke of Kendrick and is well known in this vicinity, as he has made his home in Troy for the past four years, during which time he has been employed in the First Bank of Troy.

Following the reception at the Inn the happy couple left for a short wedding trip and upon their return they will make their home here. We join in extending hearty congratulations and best wishes for their future happiness and prosperity.—Troy News.

Visit South Idaho

M. O. Raby, W. J. Carroll and Dr. E. H. Field made a hurry-up trip to south Idaho, leaving last Friday late in the afternoon in Mr. Raby's car. Mr. Raby and Mr. Carroll went on to Shoshone on business while Dr. Field stopped at Emmett for a visit with his brother, who has a fruit ranch there. On their return the party spent the night at the Field ranch and were generous in their praise of the entertainment accorded them by Mr. Field.

The party states that the Field ranch is one of the finest they have ever visited and that there is now 200 acres of cherries ready to be picked. Everything is electrically equipped and the home is completely modern in every respect. It is situated near Emmett and is one of the beauty spots of the region.

The party travelled 985 miles from Friday afternoon to Sunday evening.

Will Tour Europe

Miss Agnes Rognstad left on Tuesday for a vacation trip of three months, which will include a tour of the Scandinavian countries, Germany, Italy, Switzerland, France and the British Isles.

Miss Rognstad will be accompanied by Mrs. Thorvald Nelson of Kendrick. They will visit friends in Minnesota, where the party of between 200 and 300 will be made up. This number will include the St. Olaf choir of Northfield, Minn., which will appear in concert work abroad.

Before leaving New York they will visit Washington and other eastern cities and will sail on the "Spavangerford" June 30. On the return trip from New York they intend to visit Niagara Falls and Chicago. During their visit in Germany they will attend the Passion play at Oberammergau.—Lewiston Tribune.

DEATH TAKES HEAVY TOLL—THREE PIONEERS PASS

Mrs. May Barber
Friday evening, June 13th at 8:30 o'clock Mrs. May Barber, known as the "Mother of Kendrick," passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. L. J. Herres of Kendrick. Mrs. Barber had complained of her hip for some months and four weeks and four days prior to her passing she was brought from her home at 1513 G. street Lewiston, and was constantly confined to her bed.

May Matilda Hall was born at Ottawa, Canada, Dec. 16, 1854, being 75 years of age at the time of her passing. She was the daughter of Simon and Agnes Hall, natives of England and Scotland, respectively. She was the last member of a large family.

On November 8, 1874, she married Thomas Kirby at Loughton, Kansas. From Loughton they moved to Howard, Kansas, where they were blessed with three children, Rollie Claud of Yakima, Washington, Elller, deceased, and Lula May, wife of L. J. Herres, Kendrick. They remained at Howard, Kansas, until they came west in 1887.

With a carload of drugs they landed at Juliaetta, Idaho, where they remained for about one year, moving from there to the present site of the town of Kendrick. After successfully founding the town, their next move was to Peck, Idaho, wherethey remained till the death of Mr. Kirby, which occurred in 1905, and on the fifth day of June, 1910, Mrs. Kirby was married to R. H. Barber of Clarkston, Washington. Mr. Barber passing away last December at Great Falls, Montana.

Funeral services were held at the Herres home at 10 o'clock Monday morning with Rev. Claude Groth of the Methodist church in charge. Burial was made in the Kendrick cemetery.

The pallbearers were Jas. Emmett, John Brown, E. H. Dammarell, Wm. Freytag, Frank Crocker and Claude Stanton. Brower-Wann, Lewiston, had charge of arrangements.

He was united in marriage to Rachel Pitman, February 8, 1891, and to this union 10 children were born, and survive his passing with the exception of two, a daughter having passed away in infancy and a son, Charles, in 1926.

He leaves to mourn his passing his widow, Mrs. Rachel Daugherty, four sons, Clyde of Kendrick, Idaho, Harrison of Vina, California, Philip of Lewis, Indiana, and Jacob, at home; also four daughters, Mrs. A. G. Peters, Mrs. Virgil Fleshman and Mrs. Lyle Harrison of Leland and Mrs. Frank Breggal of Spokane, Washington.

F. lodge for the past thirty-five years.

One Out of Every 34 Loaf

While the 1930 census was being taken in the City of Lewiston it was learned that one out of every 34 persons enumerated were idle, from one cause or another, there being 275 out of Lewiston's population of 9,388 who were unemployed. Lewiston Orchards reported 48 out of a population of 1,701 were out of work.

This is only a sample of the general conditions prevailing throughout the entire country. The man who is able to make a living or "break even" these days is in clover.

Southwick Store Robbed

Ziemann's store, at Southwick, was robbed Tuesday night or early Wednesday morning of about $200 worth of merchandise and cash; $16 was taken in money from the cash register and the remainder of the loot consisted of shoes, gloves, blankets, suitcases and various other articles of merchandise.

Entrance to the store was gained by letting a rope down through the skylight and it is presumed the one entering the store opened the rear door. Holes were bored around the lock so that the door might be opened.

The sheriff's office was notified early Wednesday morning and it is thought the robbers will soon be behind the bars.

Miss Doris Emery is assisting with the work in the Kendrick State Bank.

Individual Co-operation Life of Community

Unity of purpose and effort characterizes the modern age in the fields of industry, agriculture, transportation, finance, trade and labor. Even government is a close unity of the governed. But in our rural communities unity of citizenship is in many instances lacking. Unity of individual effort is the goal of co-operation in all human activities. The old adage "in unity there is strength" still has a modern meaning. The appeal for co-operation comes to the individual in every walk of life.

It involves all of the attributes of good citizenship.

It is not necessary to indulge in any cultural imagining to determine what constitutes good citizenship. Good citizenship is not merely a question of sociological ethics. Good citizenship is a recognition of individual responsibilities and maintaining a co-operative spirit in the community group. A proper sense of good citizenship includes political, financial, moral and co-operative responsibilities to the community. Good citizenship impels concentration of purpose and effort in everything which stands for the good and growth of the community. It reaches to all of the elements which go to make up the community. Good citizenship means joining in perfecting the community government, planning and carrying out civic programs of betterment and beautification of the community, encouraging and protecting the development and expansion of the communities' business interests, markets and industry, improving the conditions of employment and labor, enlarging and bettering its educational facilities and contributing to the moral uplift of the community.

Indications from the recent census indicate movement of the population of the rural districts to the larger cities. This presents a serious problem in community citizenship responsibilities, for unless this trend of rural population to the bigger cities is stopped, and the rural towns and villages made more attractive for permanent residences, the ultimate result will be the depopulation and ruin of many communities. It is the part of good citizenship to help in regenerating these communities until their attractiveness for permanent residences surpasses the apparent advantages of big city life.

The real cause for the movement of the rural population toward the big centers is usually the fault within the community itself. These people are migrating to the cities because they are dissatisfied with home business conditions, absence of community spirit, and their own erroneous conception of the high wages and the greater business opportunities offered by the big cities. They are entirely ignorant of the real conditions existing in large cities which offset the higher wages and greater business opportunities. They do not realize the bitter experiences ahead of them in the big city. It is the duty of the community to make them realize this.

Returns From Camping Trip

Miss Marjory Davidson returned to Kendrick Tuesday morning from a few days camping and fishing trip with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Lange, of Genesee, they having spent most of the time at Elk River, where only indifferent success was had capturing members of the finny tribe.

She reported a very pleasant time, notwithstanding.

DEER ON DECREASE; ELK ARE INCREASING

Deer have decreased by 2.8 per cent in the national forests of Montana, and northern Idaho during the last five years, according to a report on game conditions received from the regional forester at Missoula, says the Lewiston Tribune.

This figure, which is based on observations made by forest officers, is believed to be approximately correct, and indicates that slightly more than the total increase of the deer has been killed.

Of the kill 41.5 per cent only has been by hunters, the remainder being laid to predatory animals and other causes.

The report shows on the other hand that elk have increased 60.3 per cent, moose 39 per cent, black bear 5.1 per cent, grizzlies 13.6 per cent, mountain sheep 15.6 per cent and mountain goats 53.5 per cent.

Fur bearing animals show a gain for all species. Otter show the heaviest increase, or 43.3 per cent over the figures for 1924, the date of the last report. Mink have made the least gain, with only 4.4 per cent increase in the last five years.

Taken as a whole, the figures on game and fur bearing animals are encouraging with the exception of deer, which are the most widely distributed and the most hunted of any of our large groups of big game animals, according to the regional forester.

They Went After "Flak"

Ira Bolon and Dr. McKeever got up during the wee sma' hours of Sunday morning and hid themselves hence to the fishing grounds way over on Eagle creek, in the Salmon river country. And when we say "way over" both of the earwhistle followers of Isaak Walton will tell you that is just what it is.

According to reports they arrived at the fishing place all right and they caught fish, but when they started home was where the real drag came. They said they walked about 75 miles (seemingly) almost straight-up and a little to the left, getting to their conveyance; and when they arrived home they were about as near tuckered-out as it is possible to be and still move.

They claimed to have brought out the limit of trout: "Now ain't that sumpin'?" They didn't happen to see Amos and Andy and the Kingfish.

Howard DeLano Loses Cigs

Howard DeLano went down to Lewiston Saturday evening and had gotten a carton of cigarettes during his stay and had them in the back seat of his touring car, which he parked in front of the Rex Theater while he went for a lunch and during his absence of perhaps half an hour the 10,000 cigarettes were lifted from the car and made way with.

The alleged robbers, William Woods and George Hunter, were rounded up by the Lewiston police Monday.

A few of the cigarettes were recovered from places in Clarkston where they had been peddled in small quantities. The bulk of the 100 packages, however, are still cached in the jungles along the clearwater river, the men admitted.

Boys Stole Horses

Two Lewiston boys, one 16 and the other 18 years of age, entered the stables of the Idaho National guard last Friday by climbing up to a window on a long pole, and rode away two of the mounts that happened to be left in the barn during the absence of the caretaker. The youths were captured Saturday between Leland and Cavendish astride the animals, by Deputy Sheriff Douglass and Gordon Harris, a citizen of Southwick. They also annexed two saddles during the trip from Lewiston.

The youngsters are now behind the bars in the Nez Perce county jail at Lewiston and will have plenty of time to ponder over their error of stealing horses.

Wheat Sharply Lower—Other Grains Weakened

Domestic wheat markets weakened and prices declined to near the low point of the season during the week ending June 14, influenced principally by improved prospects for the new crop, increased offerings of new crop wheat and a continued slow demand, according to the Weekly Grain Market Review of the United States bureau of agricultural economics. Exports were weaker than wheat and prices dropped to the lowest point since 1918. Feed grains weakened under the influence of lower bread grain prices and generally favorable conditions for corn, oats and barley. Flax was firm for cash seed, reflecting the very light offerings, but deferred deliveries were lower compared with a week ago.

Crop developments were again the dominating factor in the domestic wheat markets, but increased offerings of new hard winter wheat, together with slow export inquiry as a result of larger offerings of Argentine and Indian wheat, were also partly responsible for the sharp decline. Harvesting of winter wheat in the United States has progressed as far north as southern Kansas, southern Kentucky and North Carolina, with conditions favoring the development of the new crop in more northern areas. The condition of the crop June 1 was reported 71.7% of normal, compared with a ten-year average of 77.2%, and a condition of 79.6% June 1 of last year. The June 1 condition indicated a production of about 532,469,000 bushels, which would be about 46,000,000 bushels below last season's harvest. Of the 1930 winter wheat crop now in prospect about 325,000,000 bushels is hard Red winter wheat, 167,000,000 bushels soft Red winter, and about 40,000,000 bushels fall-sown type of white wheat. Should these statements be borne out, the hard winter wheat crop would be about 5% less than last season, the soft red winter wheat crop 13% less, and the crop of white wheats about 12% less.

Several more cars of new wheat were received at Fort Worth, and the first car of the season was received at Kansas City June 10, which is the earliest arrival since 1901, when the first car was received on the same date. Spring wheat continued to make favorable progress in both the United States and Canada. Good rains were received over much of the area and moisture is reported adequate for the time being. Cool weather up to a week ago has conserved the moisture which has amounted to slightly more than last year in the Canadian prairie provinces. Timely rains, however, will be required during the remainder of June and in July to produce a good crop. The condition of the spring wheat crop in the United States June 1 was 85.7% of normal, compared with 84.8% June 1, 1929, while the condition of the Canadian crop in percentage of the 10-year average yield of 17.2 bushels per acre, was officially placed at 96% as compared with 100% June 1 a year ago. The condition in Canada was the same as for the corresponding date for 1924 and a little above the 95% reported for 1927. The influence of weather conditions during the remainder of the season is apparent when a comparison of final yields for these years is noted. The yield per acre last season and in 1924 was 11.9 bushels per acre, while in 1927 when the June 1 condition was the lowest during recent years, 21.4 bushels per acre was produced.

Generally favorable crop conditions were maintained during the week in Europe with some improvement noted in the French crop. Heavy rains did some damage in Spain and in Scandinavian countries, but conditions were mostly favorable in the Balkans, although the crop is reported to be lighter than usual. Spring wheat seeding is backward in Siberia but the crop is reported making favorable progress in other areas of Russia.

Cash wheat markets mostly followed the decline in future prices, and at the close of the market June 13, were 5c to 6c lower than a week ago. No. 2 hard winter wheat, ordinary protein, sold at Kansas City at 94 $\frac{1}{2}$ c to 95 $\frac{1}{2}$ c per bushel, with 12 $\frac{1}{4}$ % protein bringing about 96c per bushel. The car of new wheat received June 10 graded No. 2 hard, tested 59 lbs., with 14% moisture and 13 $\frac{1}{4}$ % protein, sold at auction at \$1.06 $\frac{1}{2}$. Offerings of old wheat at Kansas City were of moderate volume and were taken principally by mills and mixed feed manufacturers. Receipts and

Supporting Your Newspaper

Occasionally we hear someone make a statement that it is the duty of a merchant to "support" the town newspaper or newspapers. Certainly it is. But not in the sense that a father is called upon to support his family. Advertising these times is a business proposition. The newspaper is constantly fighting to bring business to its home town and it is entitled to the support of the merchants because it is to their interests to advertise and assist the newspaper publisher in enlarging the trade territory. There the various definitions for support, we discover in looking through our dictionary. One is "to keep from fainting, sinking or yielding, to furnish with funds."

But that isn't the definition that expresses or interprets what we mean when we say that merchants should "support" their newspaper. Here's another one that suits our own ideas on the subject: "To uphold by aid or countenance; to help, to assist." And if the merchants join with the newspaper in a constant endeavor to bring business to their home town, they are supporting that newspaper in the right sense of the word and it, in turn, is supporting them. Newspapers have passed beyond the charity stage. They are an active factor in the business world.

They stand upon their own feet and they are asking for the "support" of the merchants because, cooperating together, there is no limit to the trade possibilities of any live, wide-awake community. — Storm Lake (Iowa) Pilot-Tribune.

Beating a Tornado's Time

You can outrun a tornado, says the United States Weather Bureau—provided you sight the menace several miles away and have at hand a car that can make about sixty miles an hour and are in open country and happen to be near a road that leads at right angles to the tornado's path. Given all these necessary aids, one will find the automobile the second best means of escape. Of course, a well-constructed tornado cellar is the safest refuge.

The bureau further furnishes a description of a tornado for the inexperienced person. Usually it takes the appearance of an elongated, funnel-shaped or cylindrical cloud dangling from the sky toward the earth. If you can't see the cloud, be warned by the sky. Clouds are thrown into a wild turmoil and are colored jet black or greenish or purple where dark, but often mingled with stream-like grays and whites. A terrifying roar, which is compared to thousands of railroad cars crossing a bridge, may be heard at a considerable distance.

The movement of the storm is moderate, averaging about 40 miles an hour and in rare instances reaching 60. It's path generally varies but little from a straight line. Most tornadoes move toward the north-east, a few toward the southeast, and the rest, with few exceptions, in some easterly direction.

DEFENBACH ONLY NORTH-ERN CANDIDATE FOR GOV.

Precinct workers and prospective delegates from every precinct in Ada county met at the court house in Boise, Ada county, Monday evening at eight o'clock.

Reports which were given showed that there is a strong Defenbach sentiment in all parts of the country and especially in the country districts. Delegates to support Defenbach for governor have been selected and will be ready for filing June 7.

The reports indicated that the country precincts will certainly go 100 per cent for Defenbach and that in the city precincts he will get more than 50 per cent of the delegates.

Reports were received from all sections of the state and especially northern Idaho. Dr. O. H. Parker who recently returned from a trip to Coeur d'Alene and other northern districts, gave a very optimistic report of conditions in the northern counties.

A delegation from Canyon county reported that the primary delegates to the county convention had been signed up in practically every precinct to support Defenbach.

Laurel E. Elam, Ada county representative, reported he had recently made a trip to Payette and Canyon counties and that he found the sentiment very strong in favor of Defenbach.

Plans were made at the meeting to continue the work in the various precincts to insure a full registration of voters and to assure the capitalization of the Defenbach sentiment by a big vote and the election of Defenbach delegates.—Boise Statesman.

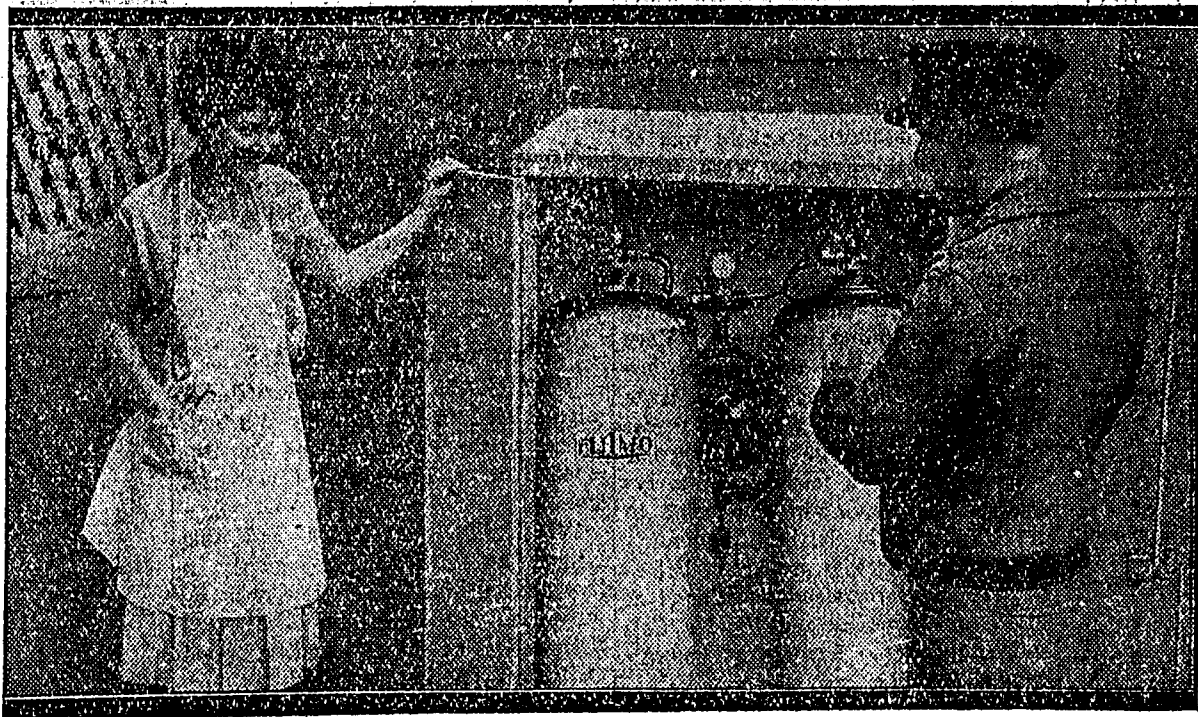

Wm. J. McConnell was the only man ever elected to the great office of governor of Idaho who lived north of the Salmon river—the Idaho Mason and Dixon line.

More British Advice

J. G. Pearce, of Birmingham, England attending the Foundry show at Cleveland, O., gave out a statement to the effect that protection against European low wages was unnecessary in the United States, because the purchasing power of wages in Europe was so much greater than "the workers live more sanely and have more comforts and luxuries than American workers."

The American government has collected official statistics as to the purchasing power of wages at home and abroad. Measured in purchasing power wages in England are approximately half those prevailing in the United States, and England has a higher wage scale than any other European country.

The answer to such statements as this is found in the American total of deposits in savings banks, of motor ownership of distribution of motor cars, radios and other comforts and luxuries entirely out of reach of the masses of British workmen. Another answer is found in the fact that in order to prevent European workers from emigrating to the United States almost en-masse, the United States had to pass stringent immigration laws. There is no movement of population the other way.

It is surprising to note how unanimous our foreign visitors are in their belief that the protective policy is a bad thing for the United States. Such advice may not be entirely disinterested since it comes from the representatives of commercial competitors who are keenly alive to their own interests.

A President Waits On a Veteran

A Union Army veteran who says that he has "no rank at all" kept President Hoover waiting for a half hour on Memorial Day. The President wanted to review what was left of the Union Army as it passed the White House before he departed at 9:30 for the Memorial Day exercises at Gettysburg. So a guard was sent to Samuel G. Mawson, Departmental Commander of the Grand Army of the Republic to tell him that the President was waiting and that the program must be speeded up.

"I can't help who's waiting," retorted Mawson, "There's no use in our leaving before ten o'clock and I'm no 'General'. No rank at all—just plain Mawson."

After urgent appeals from the guard, the procession was finally started on its way to Arlington. Nevertheless, President Hoover and his party were forced to speed for a couple of hours in order to make up lost time waiting for "just plain Mawson."

THE SETTING OF THE STAGE

"All the world's a stage."—Shakespeare.

If the development and progress of civilization of the state we live in be viewed as a play, the curtain came up for the first act in the summer of 1860. Seventy years ago, come August next.

The Atlantic cable had been laid. Victoria was queen of England; the Franco-Prussian war was still ten years in the future. The old bachelor, Buchanan, was president of the United States; a homely western rail splitter had been nominated to succeed him.

Secession was in the air. South of the Mason and Dixon line thousands of people were protesting anti-slavery legislation, would not accept this man Lincoln, were threatening disunion.

Between the Rockies and the Columbia, six thousand Indians of varying character roamed along the streams of a primitive wilderness which was later to become Idaho. All of this coming state north of Snake River was in Shoshone county; Washington Territory; the southern end was in Oregon.

The government had established an agency at Lapwai; Bill Craig was in charge, living there with his Nez-perce wife, Isabel. (Now, seventy years later, their granddaughter is teaching school in Idaho county.) John Silcott, with a few carpenters, was putting up the agency buildings.

Along the shore of Lake Coeur d'Alene, a bewhiskered Irish captain was finishing up the road that still bears his name of "Mullan."

At Franklin, in the extreme southeast, thirteen families were watching their first crop as it ripened under the August sun; the water of Idaho's first irrigation ditch had been turned off at the headgate on Maple creek.

Beside the Oregon Trail, on the ridge above Huntington, the mangled bodies of Van Norman, his wife and boys, lay unburied. The girls of the family were captives of a band of hideous painted savages. In the brush that lined the Owyhee river a dozen emigrants, men, women and children, without horses, arms or supplies, reduced by fear and privation to the mental condition of three-year-old children, were existing by cannibalism.

All told there were not a hundred whites in Idaho.

Such was the setting one August evening as a little group of prospectors made their evening camp on Orofino creek; at the mouth of Canal gulch, on the site of the present Pierce City. Led by the young squaw Jane Silcott, they had sneaked furtively along the old trail from the Alpowa up to the present location of Moscow, thence across the Potlatch and by an easterly route through the great forests.

All this in August 1860, seventy years ago. Over the western world hung the shadow of the coming war, the greatest civil war in history.

The curtain was about to rise on act one, scene one, in the drama of settlement, progress, civilization, of the state we live in.

Local Improvements

The Washington Water Power company's office and sub-station building was last week put in a very presentable condition, having had the front and rear portions of the building "pointed up," making a decided improvement in the appearance of the building.

W. F. Behrens has had a new double door put in the east side of his building and other improvements made.

M. O. Raby and son are working almost constantly on the Commercial hotel building, recently bought by Mr. Raby. Some six rooms have been completely renovated, refurnished and refurnished and are now ready for occupancy. Several other rooms have been refurnished and made ready for furniture which will be put in a little later.

The room formerly used as an office for the hotel, is being completely replastered and repainted and made ready for the office of the Continental Oil company, which place it will occupy beginning about the first of the month.

Mr. Raby says he has an abiding faith in the future of Kendrick and is willing to stake his money on its "come-back" to the place it should occupy when the hard times are over. Later he expects to completely modernize the hotel building and will make several nice apartments on the upper floor.

Deobald Brothers are installing steel parts racks in their garage for the storage of all auto parts.

KENDRICK COMES BACK— DEFEATS OROFINO SUNDAY

Last Sunday on the local grounds Kendrick defeated Orofino 8 to 5, giving Kendrick two out of three games with the Maniacs.

The Kendrick team will go to Orofino July 4 for a game or two during their big celebration.

In last Sunday's game Kendrick got off with a start of three runs in a three-base hit by Herman Travis, the first inning on some bobbles and with two on, and collected one more run in the second. Then both teams settled down without either scoring until the eighth, when Orofino started off with a two-base hit by Randall and before Kendrick knew what was going on, the Maniacs put over four runs to tie the score at four all, with a man on third and one out. Here Levitt was called in to relieve Dammarell. One more run was scored by Orofino, making the score four to five in favor of Orofino, but their hopes were blasted in quick order when Chamberlain, first man up for Kendrick, drew a walk, and Ramey substituting for Eichner, got a single and both advanced on a passed ball to score two runs when Dammarell slammed out a nice single into left field. But this was not all, for Carlson had walked and Levitt and Travis both came through with singles to score Carlson and Dammarell.

Kendrick plays the Yellow Jackets at Spalding Sunday, June 22, and are arranging for a game with Juliaetta here on June 29th, if possible.
