SANTA CLAUS WILL BE A VERY BUSY OLD MAN

No business concern in the world, and not even the government, will record the receipt of so much mail within a few weeks' period as will reach the mail box old Santa Claus between now and Christmas

The business office of the world's foremost toy-maker, hidden away under some snow-covered building somewhere at the North Pole will be a busy place from now on until the good old Saint starts out on his worldwide tour on the night before Christ-

Very little mail is ever sent out from this office, but the incoming letters are far more numerous than any one can ever make an estimate of. It takes system to handle all of this mass of letters from the youngsters in every nook and corner of the world, but old Santa has a system that takes care of it all. He knows exactly what every youngster wants for Christmas each year, and in so far as he is able, he tries to meet their every demand.

From the Kendrick community there will be many such letters which will be mailed to Santa Claus this year. Taking this as a basis on which to make a calculation of the mail that will go to that good old fellow this year, think of the hundreds of thousands of other communities like this, and then the larger communities and then the smaller ones, and your head will get dizzy trying to reach a total of the letters which old St. Nick will have coming to him within the next few days-besides all those he has already received.

Then let your mind turn to the orders, for that is almost what each of these letters amounts to, will represent in articles of various kinds which must be gathered together in this very short space of time to comply with these letters. There must be carload after carload of fruits of various kinds, there must be carload after carload of candy of one kind or another, and there must be innumerable dolls,, etc., to meet the requirements of the little misses of various ages. Then there must be the gifts for the boys, trains. drums, electrical toys-in fact, a little bit of everything that boys and girls want.

Talk about a job! Well, that goodnatured old fellow at the North Pole has a man's-size job, and very little is ever heard about him except during the Christmas season. However, he is busy; very busy. He could never fill all the orders that come to him if he were not a busy old chap, you can just bet. He keeps busy all the time, and so long as the world lasts he will have a steady job. Of course, Santa Claus sometimes has to call in assistance, and in order to be ready in an emergency, if he should happen to ask the local merchants to aid him, the local business houses have put in liberal stocks of holiday goods and goodies this year. They always do, and a visit through the local stores will reveal the fact that old Santa will not go emptyhanded if he happened to run out anywhere around here, and has to fill in with some needed articles. The stock of toys is good and the stock of drygoods for gifts is most complete and an excellent line of gifts for the home may be had right here in Kendrick. The stock of candies and other goodies at local stores is ample for all needs. In fact, unless you are hard to please and determined to trade out. of town, you will have no trouble of. getting at least a good part of your Christmas needs right here at home.

A period of depression has swept over the country, that's true, but the holiday season is the time when almost everyone has someone he wishes to remember with a gift of one kind or another, and so the marchants have placed themselves in position to meet this demand. Try your home merchant first. Buy as liberally as you can afford and have a part in creating as much business as possible and ultimately in providing employment for some who otherwise would be without cash to tide them over and thus indirectly bring good cheer to the hearts of some who might otherwise not be remembered at this glad season.

And you-everyone-are invited to be present when the gifts that old Santa has left in Kendrick, to be distributed to the youngsters of this

Now, I ask you, could you find a prettier sight than the 28 evergreen street for holiday decoration than these trees presented early Tuesday morning when they were covered with snow-the most beautiful of natural decorations? We enjoyed seeing it, whether anyone else did or Your trade will be appreciated by entertainment and Community tree not. It was a beautiful sight and is a beautiful custom.

COMMUNITY CHRISTMAS TREE SATURDAY NIGHT

As stated in last week's Gazette, there will be a community Christmas. tree in Kendrick on Saturday night, December 20, and every youngster. in the entire community under high school age, will be given a bag of candy, muts and a big juicy apple with the compliments of the business men of Kendrick.

There will also be a short entertainment, of Christmas carols and short talks, the whole taking up only a few minutes. Santa Claus will be there in person at 7:30 p. me to distribute the bags of "goodies" to the youngsters. So, kiddies, if you want to get a glimpse of that good old fellow, just be on hand at the big Christmas tree, which is locatetd in Main street, covered with colored lights, and he will have a bice treat for you.

There seemed to be some misunderstanding among a few people as to what children would be giventreats, when we stated last week that children under high school age would be given a treat. All children under high school age whether they are old enough to attend school or not, will be given a bag of candy and nuts. It is for all children of the entire community_country as well as townand they are cordially invited to be present. In case children are detained at home from one cause or another, if the parents will so state, a bag of goodies will be given to each youngster so detained at home. There will be ample packages for all, but only one for each child as the packages will be quite liberal in quantity.

The entire enterprises is being runs on a "non-profit" basis. No one is receiving a penny for his time and all candy, nuts and apples were furnished at cost. The entire enterprise is just to show the good will of the business and professional men of Kendrick toward the entire community, and for the mere joy of celebrating at might, so it cannot be classed as a strictly advertising scheme for personal gain of any merchant or business house. That is not the idea of the giving of the tree and entertainment. It is a splendid/custom and is being done in many towns through out the country. Don't forget to come and see old St. Nick, youngsters, and don't for-

Wrap Christmas Packages Well Postmaster E. H. Dammarell asks that all who mail Christmas packages wrap them well and address them plainly. If you are in doubt about the mailing of any package, ask for information at the postoffice, which will be gladly given.

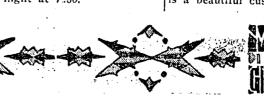

Addresses should be complete, with house number and name of street, (if any) postoffice box or rural number, and typed or plainly written in ink. A return card should be placed in the upper left hand corner of every piece of mail. If a tag is used, the address and return should also be written on the wrapper for use if the tag is lost, and a copy of the address should be inclosed inside the parcel.

The use of a special-delivery stamp will assure delivery on Christmas day, if mailed at the proper time. Special delivery service means the handling and transportation of parcels with the same expedition as firstclass mail, as well as immediate delivery at office of address. It is obtained by affixing a special delivery stamp of the proper denomination, or its equivalent in ordinary stamps, in addition to the regular postage. When ordinary stamps are used, the words "Special Delivery" must be written or printed on the envelope or wrapper immediately above the address. Special delivery is for speed and not for safety. Valuable mail should be registered or insured.

Insurance fees: Value not exceeding $5, 5 cents; not exceeding $25, 8 cents; not exceeding $50, 30 cents.

Hunters Got Big Game

Central Idaho's giant game country, region to be tapped by the Lewis-Clark highway, afforded 1874 hunters during the fall, according to a report made by Harry Walrath, assistant chief deputy game warden, says the Lewiston Tribune.

.The kills were classified by control stations as follows: Elk. 402: deer. 521; goat, 32, and bear, 26.

Control stations checked the hunt ers into the game country and checked them out: A patrol was carried on along the Montana line to guard against out-of-state poaching.

Walrath figured, when interviewed that it costs abount $1 a pound to hunt big game. The average elk weighs 400 pounds. Deer killed averaged about 100 pounds to the ani-

Big game is steadily increasing, Walrath said. He estimates that during five years the elk and deer have doubled their numbers.

"I only wish that could be said of fish," said the deputy. "Fires in the mountainous regions and the big drain on all streams many months of the year has kept down the fish supply."

GRAIN MARKET STEADY -FEED GRAINS LOWER

Domestic wheat maarkets held relatively steady during the week ending December 13, despite further declines in foreign markets, according to the Weekly Grain Market Review of the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Active buying of December and May deliveries was a strengthening influence in the futures market, but cash premiums were mostly reduced, and cash wheat prices were not materially changed except on the Pacific coast, where they were lower. Corn declined on a slow demand for the fairly liberal offerings. Oats and barley were weaker with corn. Flax prices were down 8c to 9c per bushel, reflecting the weakness in Argentine markets, and the slow domestic crusher demand. The wheat market situation in gen-

J. I. Mitcham Heard From

The Gazette is in receipt of a Christmas card from J. I. Mitcham, an oldtime resident of Kendrick, and perhaps the oldest subscriber the Gazette has on its list, now living at Tiger, Wash.

The following brief letter was written on the reverse side of the card. and is very much appreciated by the Gazette man:

"Dear Old Gazette: I don't know your owner, but I do know you. I have taken vou since your first issue in the world, over forty years ago; never missed a copy; over two thousand times you have come to my house. Your friend, J. I. Mitcham." Mr. Mitcham has no idea how much these few lines pleased us, but we want to assure him that we are very grateful to him for them. Even newspapers like to be remembered once in a while. We are always glad to hear from our subscribers away from Kendrick, especially the old-timers. Their old friends are likewise glad to hear from them. Send in your letters. They are more than welcome and we will be glad to publish them.

Sunday, December 14, again saw the fans of gundom at their sport and despite the wintry espect of the landscape and the fact that the ground was covered by about an inch of snow a large turnout was present, and with the new trap house in operation and an experienced man loading and setting the angles the squads were shot off in record time.

will be held on December 21, and everyone interested in trapshooting is asked to be present. At the last shoot a new member was added to the list, that of O. W. Henry. Anyone interested in this sport is asked to see Frank Rider at Long's store or W. L. McCreary at the Gazette.

AT THE AUDIAN THEATRE

"Sweethearts On Parade"

The feature picture at the Audian Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights, December 19, 20 and 21, will be 'Sweethearts On Parade," with Alice White in the leading feminine role.

Helen, a pretty country girl, comes to the big city to marry a millionaire. She meets Nita, a typical city girl. The two become friends and decide to "team up."

Nita, having prospects of work, leaves Helen waiting in an amusement park while she goes to apply for the job. While she is gone, Helen flirts with Hank, a sailor on shore leave. When Hank goes to purchase some ice cream cones, Bill, a U. S. Marine, siezes the opportunity to make friends with Helen. Upon Bill's return, the result is a grand and glorious scrap.

The girls are engaged as window demonstrators at Hyson's Department Store. Their trim figures in bathing suits attract huge crowds, among them are Hank and Bill, who meet again for the first time since their fight. Quick recognition and the boys are fighting again.

This sounds like a real "blood and thunder" picture, but it is far from it. It is chock full of laughs all the way through and is a wholesome, laugh-provoking picture of the cleanest type.

"The Rogue Song"

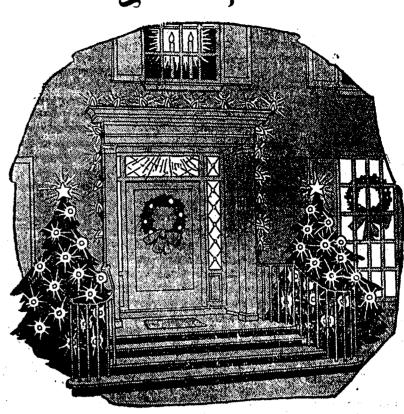

This is one of the finest musical comedies in the talkie world, and will be presented at the Audian theater on Thursday (Christmas), Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights, Dec. 25, 26, 27 and 28, with Lawrence Tibbet, a Metropolitan baritone, and Catherine Dale Owen in the leading roles. If you love musical comedy, this will be your chance to see one of the best, if not the finest, in that line. This picture is all in natural color and hailed among the finest ever produced.

Yegor, tribal chieftain of the Causacus, a colorful singing chief of a band of mountain bandits, meets Vera, a Russian princess, when she and a countest are marconed; by a storm in a mountain inn on a trip to Riga. He sings to the princess, who is attracted to him. The countess, jealous, plans to have him captured and hung, but the princess, hearing the plot, saves him.

Yegor visits the princess in a palace at Riga, and just as love is acknowledged between them, he learns that his sister is dead, ruined by the brother of his sweetheart. In revenge he kills the brother, and the princess bewails her brother's death "for the sake of a robber's trull." Yegor, furious at the words, kidnaps her, taking her to his band where she, too, will be a robber's woman.

Yzanga-Consider it said again, sir. Zweig-Consider yourself knocked HERE was Christmas music everywhere. The pines were singing softly to themselves. It seemed as though they sang great long notes filled with melody.

Blue, curling smoke could be seen from the chimneys of houses, and great old trunks of trees made crackling sounds. It was a world of white and dark patches, of lights and shades and of the sounds of the wind and the icecoated trees. It seemed like a background of music to Frances and Floyd as they walked up beyond the town to the woods to gather Christmas greens. They wanted a great many greens. The house expected them. Every picture wanted its spray of green behind it, every window wanted its wreath, and the house wanted its big tree, and its little one for the center of the dining room table.

"You're coming to Christmas dinner, you know," Frances told Floyd. "Yes, your mother did ask me. It was so good of her. Of course it will mas much at our house. Not the way you seem to do. "Why I never knew people to celebrate Christmas as you do-and there are no young children in your house."

"We've always done it that way," Frances answered. "Mother always has Christmas celebrated as though every one of us was a child.

"Maybe it's what keeps us feeling so young and merry all the time.

"You're Sure It's Not Just the Family You Love?"

We're such a family for games and fun-all by ourselves, too."

What a beautiful walk they had, and how Floyd did enjoy helping them decorate later on.

Since his business had called him here and since he had seen so much of Frances he had never felt happier. At first, as he went inside with the Christmas greens, he felt a bit of a stranger. Their voices were all louder than usual. They were calling directions to each other. They were laughing over the things they were doing.

They were so enormously busy over such details. They took as much time wrapping up a paper of pins for one of the members of the family as they would have done had it been a rare necklace.

And about every little detail they took the same care.

The Christmas decorations were finished. The wreaths were up in the windows. Every picture had its spray of green behind it, and they were all talking of how it would look on Christmas day.

Floyd was sure they would all act as though it were a great surprise to them. That was how they entered into the spirit of their Christmas.

"Come very early in the morning," Frances' mother was saying to Floyd. "Then you'll be here in time to help open the presents and empty the stockings."

Floyd accepted gayly. It was really his first Christmas like this. And in the center of it all was Frances-Frances whom he loved so much. "Maybe," he said to her as he was leaving, "maybe I could really be a member of this family next year. Do you think you could love me enough to take me?"

"You're sure it's not just the family you love?" she asked, smiling. "I'm quite sure of the member of the family I love best," he returned, and she buried her head in his heavy overcoat and said: "Well, I think it's a very good idea!" There was Christmas music everywhere!

After Santas Visit

T WAS early evening and the | other trees nodded warningly. It did air was frosty in the forest. The full moon shed a white light over everything and the gay little frost-stars twinkled on every bush.

Only the trees seemed alive: they stood sentinellike, quiet guardsmen. The huge out-of-shape spruce on the right seemed to be the authority. To him the others all looked for wisdom. He had seen many, many winters come and go, he had been buffeted by the great North Wind until he was twisted and bent, he had felt the cold strike so deeply into his heart that he groaned every time a breeze swayed his branches. But still he survived, the greatest, the most powerful of the trees there.

Suddenly the winter silence was broken as a light wind rustled through the forest and the old tree shook himself awake. With the sound all the other trees bent toward him alertly. "Today," said the old tree solemnly, "is the first day of December."

The pine trees, both big and small, sighed in unison. Neither December nor any other month meant anything special to them. But the half-grown spruces were attentive at once. They were wise in the ways of the forest and they knew that the oldest spruce could be relied upon to keep in touch with the seasons. They knew perfectly well what his announcement meant and they waved their branches about

merrily. Only the baby trees failed to understand and join in the glee with the others. Even the very beautiful, perfectly-shaped, large trees were moved to delighted expectancy.

"The first day of December," repeated the very littlest baby spruce. What does that mean?" "Sh," cautioned the pines, and the not do to interrupt when the old spruce spoke. But the old spruce was kind, he did not mind a bit. "It means," he said, "that exactly twenty-five days from today is Christmas."

"Christmas?" again queried the littlest baby spruce, "What is that?" Patiently the old spruce replied. "Listen, and I'll tell you the story. In nearly all the Christian countries of the world one of the symbols of this day called Christmas is the Christmas tree. Now this Christmas tree is a plain evergreen tree, just like one of us, and on it are hung brightly colored ornaments, sparkling garlands and gayly wrapped gifts. So much happiness and peace does this tree bring that to be chosen for this purpose, whether it be for the richest or humblest home, is indeed a great honor.

"Sometime soon, almost any day now, men will come into the forest and picking out the best, will take them away. Then the adventure begins. First the chosen ones will be tightly and very carefully rolled up and the branches tied to keep them from getting broken, and then they will be sent many, many miles a way, probably to a great city. In that city they will be just as carefully unrolled and then stood up so that people may see.

"On Christmas eve they are set up in the homes of those who have chosen them and late that night the loving hands of one who loves the children will decorate them."

The pine trees sighed sorrowfully. "They never choose us," they said. "No, nor us," whispered the birches sadly. The half-grown spruces and firs drew themselves up proudly. "We are pretty sure to be taken," said the all our branches are graduated so that they make a nice point on which to place a star. We all have straight trunks, too. We'll be taken, that's sure.' The littlest baby spruce had another question to ask the old tree, one about which he was not very clear: "Why weren't you ever taken?" he said. "Sh!" warned the tall pines once more. They were very much afraid that the feelings of the old tree might be hurt. "Because," answered the old tree sadly, "I wasn't beautiful enough. I've never been straight like the rest of you and who would want a gnarled old thing like me to dress with bright ornaments? But I don't mind. I know there are a great many others to do their share toward spreading happiness so I am content to stay in the forest."

The littlest baby spruce was silent and all of a sudden he looked up. startled, as the big fir towering above his head began to speak. "I, too, may go this season," he said with pride, "now that community Christmas trees are getting so popular: even ones as big as I get a chance.' "Oh, my, oh, my!" wailed the littlest baby spruce. "Suppose I'm not chosen! Maybe they won't want such tiny ones!"

"Come now, never mind, don't worry," soothed the old tree. "The houses are so small nowadays that a great many people have to have table Christmas trees. Perhans you'll be one of those. But I think we've talked! enough for now. Let us all go to sleep, it's getting late. Tomorrow they may come to look us over and we must look our best."

So perfect silence once more fell over Christmas Tree Land. The full moon, now low on the horizon, shed a light over everything and the gay little frost-stars still twinkled on every bush. Everything was in readiness and waiting for Christmas,

England Halted Christmas

For twelve years, from 1644, Christmas was not kept in England. The Puritans, deeming it a pagan festival, passed an act of parliament abolishing it, and directing that December 25th should be a day of fasting and repentance. Charles IL restored Christmas.

APPROACHING NEW AUTO ACCIDENT RECORD

From a standpoint of deaths due to automobiles, 1930 is the worst year in our history, according to the Natical Safety Council, which reports fatalities for the first nine months were two per cent above 1929. The report is based on statistics covering areas. containing about half the nation's population. Recklessness and carelessness are still rules of the road with thousands of motorists.

However, it is encouraging to note hat there are as few rays of light in the accident gloom. Tremendous success has been aftained in reducing the number of accidents to children by means of safety instruction in schools. Throughout the nation many organi+ zations are working to prevent accidents, not only automobile, but those occurring in homes and industries. The National Safety Council announc es that it will hold 25 regional safety, conferences in various parts of the nation during the coming year and it is estimated that 1,000 delegates will attend each one. Another hopeful sign is the strong trend toward laws requiring drivers. examinations. Some of our states have such laws now and report exceedingly good results. When legislatures meet again it is almost certain that most of them will consider, stricter licensing laws. Their value is demonstrated by Pennsylvania; where 75,000 of the 300,000 applicants were unable to pass the tests on the first try.

Drivers' License Act May Pass Prospects are "very favorable" for passage of a drivers' license law by the next Idaho legislature, Fred E. Lukens, secretary of state, said at Lewiston the other day. Mr. Lukens

WOMAN SLUGGED AND ROBBED AT TROY FRIDAY

That all the evil-doers do not live in Chicago or other cities of lesser importance, was indicated by the slugging and robbing of Miss Beda Nelson, a spinister who resides at Troy, last Friday night as she was putting out feed for her flock of chickens in order that they might have an early breakfast.

The victim was struck over the head with some blunt instrument, supposedly a piece of gaspipe or the butt of a pistol of some sort and her skull fractured. Miss Nelson was discovered about 10.30 o'clock p. m. by Albert Johnson, a neighbor; who heard her cries. She carried a hoe and had evidently belabored her assailant with it.

Safety First

"Safety First" has long been a dom-nant policy of the American rail-oads.

Salety First has tong seen a commant policy of the American railroads.

Last year the lines spent $298,000,000 for the improvement of safety protection of employes and the general public. Installation of block siguals, centrally controlled dispatcher systems, cab signal devices, elimination of grade crossings, automatic warning devices, gates, signals, signs, and the like, are among the factors that make the operation of modern railroads almost 100 per cent safe.

Nowadays serious railroad accidents almost never occur. The railroads have given unremitting effort and spared no expense to assure their customers and employes that lives and property will be protected. The only form of railroad accident which has increased is one over which the lines have little control—grade crossing accidents. Such accidents are essentially the fault-of the motorist. He knows that a train cannot deviate from its right-of-way and that it is up to him to make certain the track is clear before venturing onto it. Grade crossing elimination has proven impractical, due to the fact that each year, while thousands of crossings have been built.

However, even this problem gives hope of solution. During the fast sanzed at the church, which is very interesting as well as instructive. Mrs. L. Clanin has been elected 'teacher, The class will meet after Sunday school each Sunday, except on preaching days.
