STATE CHAMBER TELLS IDAHO TAX HISTORY

How has the cost of government increased? Most persons have been made painfully aware, through the medium of tax notices, that such an increase has taken place, but answers to the questions of How? and Why? are still somewhat obscure.

Personal service—they called it "third help" in the good old days—is the state government's largest individual item of expense. Expenditures under this heading are commonly called wages and salaries. They are paid to persons who work for the state. In number of employees and in size of payroll, the state government is the largest user of personal service in the state.

New Jobs Created

The increased necessity for personal services has come with the rapid development of the state government and the continuous adding of functions. Additional jobs and duties, all requiring additional employees, have been created by the succeeding legislatures. Also the technical complexities of modern governmental administration have made man-power necessary.

Under the heading of personal service come stenography, accounting, inspecting, controlling, administering, auditing, buying, bargaining, sweeping, cleaning, painting, polishing, teaching, coaching, advising, judging, enforcing, protecting, collecting, assessing, experimenting, training, rehabilitating, reclaiming, reforesting and a lot of other things, including, no doubt, some plain and fancy swivel-chair warming.

The Public Pays

The number of jobs that can be discovered necessary to the efficient carrying on of the state's business is really amazing. There seems to be good excuses for filling every chair in the state house, and for putting an employee behind every desk. The public, of course, pays the bill.

In creating such a multitude of jobs, the state legislatures have been under the impression, theoretically at least, that they were fulfilling the desires of the people, and providing for needed public services and protections. The very fact, however, that the burden of taxation is now so oppressive is proof that some of these creations were ill-advised.

Costs Compared

During her first biennium of statehood, Idaho had an estimated number of less than 65 employees and the total appropriation for all state government purposes for the two-year period was $385,000.

In contrast with this, the 1931 legislature appropriated the sum of $3,509,526 for the salaries and wages of 1059 persons, all employed by the state. Of this amount, $531,094 was provided for "extra help," an item not mentioned in the 1891 budget.

From these figures it is to be seen that during the years of 1931 and 1932 the state of Idaho will pay for personal services a total of more than three and a half million dollars from funds collected from her citizens in the form of taxes.

Special Funds

But that is not all. Salaries and wages of the special departments, some of which are among the heaviest users of personal service, are not included in the above figures.

Among these special departments are the highway department, the state's biggest spender and employer of hundreds of road workers; the department of law enforcement, with its numerous clerks and patrolmen; the game department, which has many deputy wardens in the field.

Funds for the maintenance of these departments, whose aggregate expenditures for salaries and wages will run into millions of dollars annually, are derived from the gasoline tax, game licenses and other licenses and fees of various kinds. They come, however, as do the direct taxes, from the purse of the general public.

Comparing the state government of 1891 with the heavily-maned organization of today, we find it less difficult to understand how the cost of government has increased.

Billy Deobald Improving

W. B. Deobald, who is quite ill at St. Joseph's hospital, Lewiston, is reported as much improved at this time. Everyone is indeed glad to hear this and wish for his speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Harley Perryman of Lewiston Orchards spent their week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Art. Perryman and family.

COMMERCIAL CLUB HOLDS REGULAR MONTHLY MEET.

The regular monthly meeting of the Kendrick Commercial club was held in the Raby Hotel Monday evening, when 24 interested business men came to take part in the deliberations of the meeting.

The first thing on the program was one of Mrs. Raby's dinners, which was served at 6:30 o'clock. After the dinner, had been partaken of and the tables cleared the business of the evening was taken up. Few committees had anything to report, perhaps the one having the most interest being when N. E. Walker of the Highway committee announced that a state engineer would more than likely be here to make a survey and estimate of the cost of building a road from Kendrick, over Bear, ridge, to Deary, within the next ten days, as well as to look into the cost of repairing the road from Kendrick to Arrow Junction, which has been in a very bad condition for the past several years, and keeps getting worse, the worst part being that through the section belonging to the Clearwater highway district, which last Saturday voted to disband the district and turn it back to Nez Perce county. This may simplify matters in getting the road repaired.

A vote of appreciation was given the Ladies Aid of the Community church and to Rev. Smith for the splendid entertainment afforded by the Father and Son banquet given, which most of the members of the Commercial club attended. It was also voted that the men have charge of a dinner to be tendered the mothers and daughters at some date to be selected, early in May. A committee was appointed to take the matter in hand and report at the May meeting.

H. B. Thompson of the Educational committee announced that the regular monthly meeting of the Parent-Teachers association would be held next Monday evening and that Prof. E. E. Hawley of the Department of Education of the University of Idaho would make an address. This is the first time an outside speaker has been asked to address the meeting, and it should prove of much interest and should draw a good attendance.

It was reported that the Farmers Institute, held in Kendrick last Saturday, and sponsored by J. W. Thometz, county agent for Nez Perce county, was a success, and was attended by many farmers who came from all sections of this community to hear the speakers, three of whom were from the University of Idaho.

The secretary of the club was instructed to convey the club's best wishes to W. B. Deobald, who is confined in St. Joseph's hospital, for his speedy recovery and to have delivered to him a bouquet of flowers with the club's best wishes.

The unemployed situation was again discussed at length, the question being brought up as to whether the Kendrick branch of the "Hotel de Gink" at Spokane should be operated later than April 15, when the "head office" will be closed. It was finally decided to allow the present quarters of the transients in Kendrick to remain open, but that instead of just handing out meal tickets, those receiving them would be asked to work a short time for the usual 20-cent ticket, and now that spring has arrived and out-door work possible, there are many places they can be put to work to advantage. Those who do not want to work will not receive an order for the usual amount.

The question of organizing a band in Kendrick was taken up and discussed at length, the statement being made that A. K. Carlson had offered to instruct a band free of charge (which certainly is a generous offer) if sufficient interest was taken to make the undertaking a success. There are many old-time players in Kendrick who used to take a lively interest in a band and there is every reason to believe that they could be induced to again enter into the movement. Kendrick at one time had a band that any of the smaller—and some of the larger—places could well be proud of.

The question of holding a magpie contest again this year was brought up and it was decided that the Commercial club would again sponsor such a move. It will more than likely be held along the same lines as in previous years and those wishing to take part in it should get in touch with H. B. Thompson, who has so successfully handled these contests in the past. No definite program has been worked out, but the contest will be held. This is one of the best ways

DR. HOLLEY WILL SPEAK TO P. T. A. MONDAY EVE

A regular meeting of the Kendrick Parent-Teachers association will be held at the school house Monday evening at 7:30. Dr. Charles E. Holley of the education department of the University of Idaho will be the guest speaker. His topic will be "Problems of the Adolescent Child and Their Solution."

Dr. Holley is widely known as an author and lecturer and has spoken to similar groups in this territory. The program committee feels fortunate in bringing him here Monday evening.

In addition to Dr. Holley's address there will be several musical numbers by people of the community.

Topics of general interest to school patrons will be brought up at the business meeting. Supt. Brigham will explain the program of studies to be offered in the high school next year and the hot lunch question will be discussed. A large attendance is anticipated.

Spring Improvements

Paul Lind was quite busy the first of this week transforming the rear portion of the Raby hotel from a rutsy color to that of a neat paint job of gray and green, which adds very materially to the looks of the hotel.

Thos. McDowell has had the interior of his place of business transformed into bright, clean colors by the addition of a coat of interior decorating material. It adds much to the appearance of the room.

E. H. Dammarell has improved the appearance of his home property very much. A new fence on the north and west of his property adds much to the appearance, as does a fill where an old sidewalk was removed.

George Leith is wrecking the large barn at the rear of his home, just across the alley.

The house occupied by Lester and family is receiving a new roof.

Others are tidying up their premises and amking ready flower gardens which will soon be a bower of bloom.

Good Old Summertime

Not only the demure and shy Miss Spring has made Kendrick a visit but that mature dame known as Miss Summer has also made us a visit—the mercury reaching 78 degrees on the school-house hill Monday afternoon. This caused much scratching around in gardens and the rust to be removed from rakes being pulled through the lawns.

General Prosperity may be just around the corner, but little Miss Spring has surely arrived to cheer everyone.

Keep down predatory birds, which each year make great inroads on the game birds.

S. A. McALLISTER PASSES AWAY AT HOME SUNDAY

Silas Alexander McAllister, a resident of Kendrick for the past ten years, died at his home in Kendrick at 4:10 o'clock Sunday morning, after an illness of ten weeks, cancer being the immediate cause of death. He was 68 years, two months and four days of age at the time of his passing.

Mr. McAllister had not been in good health for several months and those who knew him could see that he was gradually failing in health, but he was much surprised when the break came and he was taken to a Lewiston hospital, where an operation was performed but little could be done for him only to make him as comfortable as possible.

Silas Alexander McAllister was born at Purchase Line, Indiana county, Pennsylvania, February 22, 1868. Later in life he went to Westunton, Nebraska, where on January 10, 1899, he was united in marriage to Ida I. Smith. This union was blessed with three daughters, Viola Mable, Bertha Loretta and Nona Beryl, the first two mentioned having passed to the great beyond.

Mr. and Mrs. McAllister and one child came to Idaho in 1902 and settled on Potlatch ridge, near Southwick, where he took up a homestead and where they resided until some ten years ago, when the family moved to Kendrick, where they have since made their home, during which time he has been employed as custodian of the Kendrick public school, which position he held until he was taken ill some ten weeks ago.

Besides his widow he leaves one daughter, Nona Beryl, at home, and two sisters, Mrs. Agnes Lovejoy of Sargent, Nebraska, and Mrs. Lettice Berry of Smith Center, Kansas.

Mr. McAllister joined the Presbyterian church in 1890, but on coming to Idaho became affiliated with the Methodist church, of which he was a member at the time of his death. He was beloved by all who knew him for his kindly ways and pleasant personality and will be greatly missed by those who knew him best.

Short services were held in the Fickert funeral parlors at 12:30 o'clock, Monday, April 11, after which the body was taken to Southwick, where the funeral was held in the Southwick Methodist church, with Rev. Edward J. Smith of Kendrick in charge. Burial was made in the Southwick cemetery.

MARKET UNSETTLED—FEED GRAINS LOWER

Domestic wheat markets were unsettled during the week ending April 8, influenced by the weakness in security markets, less favorable prospects for winter wheat and delayed seeding of the spring crop, according to the Weekly Grain Market Review of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Corn markets were mostly weak and lower, with futures at Chicago reaching the lowest point since February, 1900. Oats and barley were lower with corn. Rye declined under the influence of a slow demand. Flax markets remained inactive, with trading limited by small receipts.

While the sharp decline in prices of securities was a weakening influence in wheat futures toward the close of the week and resulted in a material lowering of wheat prices, several factors tended to offset this and to strengthen the domestic wheat situation. The most important of the strengthening influences was the less favorable prospect for winter wheat and the delayed seeding of spring crops. The condition of winter wheat April 1 was only 75.8 per cent of normal, compared with the ten-year average of 80.9 per cent for that date. April 1 condition and preliminary reports from correspondents indicate an acreage abandonment of nearly 14 per cent for the U. S. as a whole this season, compared with the ten-year average of 12 per cent. While April 1 is too early for an accurate forecast of final production, an analysis of condition indicates a total output of winter wheat of around 458,000,000 bushels, or about 330,000,000 bushels less than last year's harvest. Such an output would give about 266,000,000 bushels of hard red winter wheat and 155,000,000 bushels of soft red winter and about 37,000,000 bushels of fall-sown white wheat.

Prospects for the new winter wheat crop of the Northern Hemisphere appears somewhat less favorable than a year ago. Winter seedings in fourteen countries reporting to date, exclusive of those of the Lower Danube and of Russia, give combined acreage of 123,887,000 acres, as against 123,735,000 acres for the same countries a year ago. Estimates available at the middle of February for the Lower Danubian countries show a combined area of 17,855,000 acres as compared with 20,173,000 acres for the same countries a year ago. These estimates, however, are incomplete and subject to revision. The Russian winter wheat acreage is placed at 32,337,000 acres, compared with 29,028,000 acres seeded last year. Conditions of winter wheat in foreign countries are irregular, with some areas reporting considerable injury from winter killing and others generally favorable prospects. The condition of the German crop is reported below average and less favorable than a year ago. In parts of the Danubian Basin, particularly in Hungary, where crops suffered considerable damage from winter killing, prospects are unsatisfactory. In the Mediterranean countries, the outlook is more favorable and, conditions appear to be generally up to average. The acreage in Spain, France and Italy, the three most important producing countries of this group, is placed at 35,529,000 acres as against 34,946,000 acres last year.

SPRIT OF OPTIMISM AMERICA'S MOST PRECIOUS GIFT

Emil Ludwig, Germany's chief literary figure, say that what has most impressed him in the American people is their spirit of optimism and self-confidence, as contrasted with the pessimism and fear prevalent in Europe. He declares that America has the spirit of youth, Europe of old age, and that this fact underlies much that is characteristic of both civilizations.

This statement is true and of great importance. The despair which has seized upon Europe since the World War accounts for the readiness of millions who have lost confidence in themselves, and hope for the future, to surrender the control of their destinies to dictatorships, or centralized governments drifting toward despotism.

America is a monument to the courage and confidence of her people. It took adventurous spirits to leave behind the associations of the Old World in the 17th and 18th centuries, make the perilous passage of the sea and seek homes in the virgin wilderness. It took courage for the pioneers of that era to fight their way toward the interior against warlike savages and the savage wilderness.

Such conflict bred in men and women a self-confidence that finally sought and achieved national independence. It was no longer tolerable that America should be in leading-strings to European Kings.

European commentarians in the early years of the republic found a stock subject for ridicule in what they regarded as the boastfulness and self-sufficiency of Americans who, amid their crude surroundings, believed in the superiority of their institutions and the future greatness of America. Their villages they believed would be cities; the wilderness, they believed, would in time be teeming with people. Their hopes have been realized: their dreams have come true.

For Americans to lose their spirit of optimism would be to lose that which is a possession of greater value than all they have inherited, of material possessions, from the past. For courage and confidence can create anew. Cowards and weaklings cannot even defend that which they inherit.

Preachers of pessimism have been busy in this country in recent years. We have an extensive literature of cynicism, of deprecation, of despair. The Sinclair Lewises, the Menckens, the Driersers, have filled the air with their super-sophisticated, sneering, villifying assaults upon everything American. They have sought to break down the faith of Americans in themselves, in their country, in their civilization and with the superficial they have achieved a degree of success.

It would be difficult to over-estimate the part played in the creation of the present depression in the United States by the preachers of pessimism. It is generally agreed that fear, lack of faith, lack of hope and confidence, are chiefly responsible for the present halt in American prosperity, and if the belief were to arise tomorrow that the future is bright, it would immediately become bright.

Cynicism is the vice of both immaturity and senility. Those who become subject to such a mood have already failed. The resolution to do is half of the deed. Those who are constantly preaching lack of faith in America, in her traditions, her ideals and her future are doing all they can to break down that quality of the American mind which has been responsible for most of American achievement. And since many of these preachers of despair are known to be radical social revolutionaries, there is method in much of this madness.

Americans should preserve the psychology of youth which has made

America great. They should close their ears to the caterwaulings of the moral weaklings who choose to ignore all the values of our civilization, dwell solely upon abuses and misuses of the existing order, and thus do what they can to make a failure of America by giving to Americans the psychology of failure.—National Republic.

Quite Naturally

In a lesson in parsing a sentence the word "courting" came to a young miss of fourteen to parse. She commenced hesitatingly, but got on well enough until she was to tell what it agreed with. Here she stopped short. But as the teacher said, "Very well, what does courting agree with?" Ellen blushed and hung her head.

"Ellen, don't you know what courting agrees with?"

"Ye-ye-yes, ma'am," she answered. "Well, Ellen, why don't you parse that word? What does it agree with?"

Blushing still more and stammering, Ellen at last replied, "It agrees with all the girls, ma'am."

MARKET UNSETTLED—FEED GRAINS LOWER

Domestic cash wheat markets were firmer than futures, as a result of light offerings and a fairly active domestic mill demand. Marketings were of only moderate volume, receipts at the principal wheat markets totaling 1,089 cars, or about 322 cars more than for the previous week. Demand for cash wheat was fairly active both from mills and elevator operators, with the latter replacing grains shipped out for distribution by the Red Cross. At the close of the market April 8, prices at Kansas City were 1c to 2c higher than a week ago, with No. 2 hard winter, ordinary protein, quoted at 50 1/4c to 51c, and 13 per cent protein at 53c to 55c per bushel. Ordinary protein No. 2 hard sold at Omaha at 49c and at St. Louis at 54 1/4c. The Denver market was rather dull under a slow milling inquiry, both from local and outside mills. No. 2 hard winter, 13 per cent protein, was quoted at 32c to 34c and 15 per cent protein at 40c to 42c per bushel FOB eastern Colorado country points. No. 1 dark hard winter, 13 per cent protein, was quoted at Fort Worth at 55 1/2c to 56 1/2c, basis delivered Galveston rate points. Some high protein wheat was shipped to northern markets from local elevator stocks during the week.

Soft winter wheat markets held fairly steady, with offerings light and mill demand moderate. Active competition from mills advanced prices as much as 4c per bushel during the week at St. Louis, but demand slackened toward the close with a decline in futures.

At the close of the market April 8, No. 2 red winter was quoted in St. Louis at 55c to 56c.

Pacific Coast markets were steady to higher and did not follow the decline in futures at Chicago. The strength in the situation at Portland and Seattle was attributed principally to the very light offerings since demand was of only moderate volume. Export demand was still lacking and no export sales of either wheat or flour were reported during the week. Demand from California was of only moderate volume, reflecting the small purchases from mills and feeders in that state and the competition of offerings from the southwest. Prices of cash wheat at Portland advanced 2c to 3c during the week and at the close of the market April 8, Big Bend bluestem hard white was quoted at 68c to 70c, soft and western white at 58 1/2c to 60c, and hard winter, northern spring and western red at 56 1/2c per bushel, sacked, basis No. 1. At Seattle western red was quoted at 60c, western white and hard winter at 61c, sacked, basis No. 1, with No. 1 dark northern spring, 16 per cent protein, from Montana, in bulk, quoted at 95c per bushel. At Vancouver No. 1 Manitoba was quoted at 62 1/2c and No. 3 at 54c per bushel. These prices are equivalent to 56 1/2c and 48 1/2c respectively in United States currency.

California wheat markets were generally quiet but steady to somewhat higher, reflecting the advance in prices at northern markets. Local growers were offering very little wheat because of the rather uncertain prospects for the new crop, which in many areas was needing showers to relieve dry top soil conditions. The limited sales of local wheat were almost entirely to the interior points where freight rates were unfavorable on grain from outside areas. Mills are taking only limited amounts to round out milling mixtures, while feeders and feed manufacturers were purchasing only for immediate needs. Offerings at San Francisco and Los Angeles were principally from Washington, Oregon and Texas. Very little intermountain wheat was being shipped to California because of the light supplies in Idaho and Utah. Bay region stocks at the first of April, according to trade estimates, totaled 15,338 tons, compared with 10,873 tons of wheat a year ago. At the close of the market April 8, No. 2 soft white wheat from Washington and Oregon was quoted at San Francisco at $1.15 to $1.17 1/2 and the same grade with 10 per cent protein at $1.20 per 100.

Spring wheat markets were steady but trading was limited by light receipts. Only 312 cars were received at Minneapolis and 60 cars at Duluth. Mills were active buyers of the better grades and premiums for high protein heavy wheat were further advanced.

Canadian spring wheat markets were somewhat unsettled along with domestic markets. No. 1 Manitoba northern closed at Winnipeg April 8 at 60 1/2c, which is equivalent to 54 1/2c in U. S. currency.

It's There—If You Dig For It

The best preachment we have seen on the hard times that are with us, comes from H. R. Patterson of the Patterson Steel company.

The admonition of Mr. Patterson fits into the business of this community just as well as it fits into the steel business of which Mr. Patterson is president:

"If you are discouraged about conditions," says Mr. Patterson, "and business doesn't come as easy as it has in the past, just consider the hen.

Hard work means nothing to the hen. She keeps on digging worms and laying eggs regardless of what the prognosticators say about the outlook of this or any other year.

If the ground is hard, she scratches harder.

If it's dry, she digs deeper.

But she always digs up worms and turns them into hard shelled profits as well as tender, profitable broilers. Did you ever see a pessimistic hen? Did you ever hear of one starving herself to death waiting for worms to dig themselves to the surface.

Did you ever hear one cackle because work was too hard? Not on your life. They save their breath for digging and then cackle for eggs.

What the present situation needs is more work and less worry. If business seems a little harder to get, just scratch a little harder. Advertise more regularly and extensively, put on more pressure, more intensive, sustained effort. Just like the hen, there's a reward for you if you will dig deep enough for it.

Why does the black cow that eats green grass give while milk that makes yellow butter?

A Good Program For 1932

Here's a good program for the United States for 1932:

Keep the nation, at a time when there are more war-dogs growling than at any time since the World War, in what Washington called "a respectable posture of defense."

Put the unemployed to work by erecting such economic defenses as will insure the American market for American competitive products against foreign products made cheap by cheapening workers, and increase our foreign trade by the greater purchasing power for non-competitive imports that will thus be created.

Drop the job of saving Europe from itself and tackle the job of saving America for ourselves.

Keep our nose out of foreign quarrels, thus keeping out of wars with the causes and purposes of which we have nothing to do.

Stick to a sound currency, even if the rest of the world goes to using swampum for money.

Let our foreign debtors pay or repudiate, just as they wish, and take the consequences, since we cannot do anything about it anyway.

Take a breathing spell in paying off the national debt until we get the money with which to do it.

Use the axe on public expenditures until we are able to pay the bills past extravagance has stirred up.

Stir up a revival of old-fashioned patriotism and religion and get away from some of the fads and follies that have muddled up our national thinking.

Impress our statesmen and financiers that looking after the United States is a bigger job than they have been able to handle and that hereafter they will be expected to look after the people from whom they got their power and their money.

Get back to common honesty and common sense in private and public affairs.

Where Good Roads Are Needed

Good roads are as essential to farm prosperity as good facilities for transport are to industrial prosperity. They are agriculture's arteries of progress.

The farmer who is able to take his goods to market, at any time of the year and over surfaced highways, will always be far ahead of the farmer who is cut off from communication with the outside world by unimproved, often-impassable roads. The lack of roads, of course, is not alone responsible for bad farm conditions. But it is an important contributory cause, as is demonstrated by increasing agitation for farm-to-market roads in all parts of the country since economical construction methods have been developed.

One Way of Doing It

The doors of the new house had shrunk horribly, as is the way of the modern door made of unseasoned wood. The builder would not send the carpenter to repair them, so the householder tried the ironical way, and wrote:

"Dear Sir: The mice can run under most of our doors, but our cat cannot follow them. Will you please send a man at once to make room under the doors for the cat and much oblige!"

They are making autos so beautiful now that it will be almost a pleasure for us pedestrians to get run over.

WHY SO MANY EDITORS HAVE GRAY HAIR

Just to show that the Gazette is not the only paper in the world to make errors, we clip the following, taken from papers all over the United States—having been assembled by the Publishers Auxiliary:

A certain percentage of the gray hairs that sprout are, no doubt, caused by the errors that slink past the copy desk and pop up in all their ugliness in the day's edition. They seem to slip through the finest editorial fine comb, and though the result is sometimes appalling, quite often it is comical enough to bring a grin even to the face of the harried editor.

Stewart Haral, director of publications of Southeastern State Teachers' college, has collected some of the more hilarious of such mistakes, which are printed in a recent issue of the Quill, organ of Sigma Delta Chi. Here are some headlines which are not all they should be:

Jap Guns Wound British Lady In Foreign Quarters.
Snake Bites Woman; Dies
Mother Of Two Gives Her Mate Some Credit.

Cheese Begins To Show More Life.
Wooden Brides To Be Abandoned.
Death Takes Lawyer, Here For 60 years.

Skeleton Of One Survivor Quizzed.
Widow Of 100 Won't Stay Dead."
Two Convicts Evade Noose, Jury Is Hung.

Poultrymen Hear Egg Talk.
But headlines aren't the only places where the pesky t. e. t.'s creep in, as witness these excerpts from news items:

"If you join the endowment association three months before marriage or birth, you will have three times as much money for the occasion."
"As the ushers bring the offering forward, the congregation will rise and sin."
"For the less formal interior, straight hanging unlined draw curtains are helpful in creating an atmosphere of intimate hostility."

"The bride wore an old rose, which is the last word in fall ensembles."
"The Blankville Chamber of Commerce Luncheon club will eat tomorrow for the first time in several months."

"Two hundred dollars were left to Penn Asylum for Indignant Widows and Single Women."
"Annual rush to bathing beaches starts as mercury mounts to 883 degrees, but swimmers find Lake Michigan too cold."

"He returned to his duties Monday after several week's absence due to his death."
"While the car is a wreck, its occupants can truly be grateful that they escaped with their lives. The tree is badly scared."

"All widows in the building are to be weather-stripped, a cost which is expected to be taken care of in the saving afforded the building."
"He is described as having brown hair, turning gray, and all his supper teeth are missing."

"Dr. Jones, formerly of Memphis, has completed a revival at the First Church here, during which tight members were received."
"A young woman wants washing or cleaning daily."
"Green colored girl wants work until Christmas."

"While trimming a cottonwood tree Monday, Bill Smith suffered a severe blow on the head, when a large branch turned and struck him."
"Harry Taylor, school principal here, has a stone-apple jar that has been in the family 109 years. Next year it will be 110 years old."

Young lady—Eighteen years old as beginner in respectable office or otherwise."
"Operatives of the stolen car department were ordered Tuesday to pick up a green roadster driven by a good looking blonde with a new model chassis."

"The will disposes of a million-dollar estate, the bunk going to relatives."
"Mr. Kelly said that he fired at Jones when he believed the young man was starting toward him with a wife."

"All last winter he slept in a bed with his lower extremities perched ten inches above his head, to hoist up a sagging stomach."

"Miss Bessie Blank, a Batesville belle of twenty summers, is visiting her twin brother, aged thirty-two."

"Records reveal that he spent forty days in jail last January."

WHY HE DIDN'T PAY

Requested by his banker to remit, an Oklahoma man replied: "I wish to inform you that the present condition of my bank account makes it impossible for me to send you a check as requested." And, as related by an Oklahoma newspaper, the debtor went on to say in further and full explanation:

"My present financial condition," he wrote, "is due to the effects of federal laws, state laws, county laws, corporation laws, by-laws, brothers-in-laws, and outlaws that have been forced upon an unsuspecting public. Through these various laws I have been held down, held up, and walked on, flattened and squeezed, until I do not know where I am, what I am, or why I am."

And, still in vein descriptive of multitudinous folks elsewhere, anywhere, and everywhere, he continued his explanation of why he couldn't remit:

"These laws compel me to pay merchant's tax, capital stock tax, excise tax, income tax, real estate tax, property tax, auto tax, gas tax, water tax, light tax, street tax, school tax, syntax, and carpet taxes."

"In addition, I am required or requested to contribute to the Society of St. John's, the Woman's Relief, the Navy League, the Children's Home, the policeman's benefit, the Doras society, the Y. M. C. A., the Boy Scouts, the Jewish Relief, the Near East, the Gold Diggers' Home, and also to every hospital and charity institution in town, the Red Cross, the Black Cross, the White Cross, and the Double Cross."

In conclusion he says: "I am supposed to provide money for every known need, desire, or hope of the human race, and because I refuse to donate to all and go out and beg, borrow, or steal the money to give away, I am cursed, discussed, boycotted, talked to, talked about, lied to, lied about, held up, held down, so the only reason I am clinging to life is to see what in hell is coming next."

Under these circumstances, wouldn't it seem as if his banker would be touched, worried, saddened, sorrowed, conscience-stricken, distressed, ob-

A Royal Target

Former King Alfonso XIII of Spain would hardly be classed as a great ruler, but he has the distinction of having been the target of would-be assassins oftener than any other monarch—ten times to be exact—and came through unscathed.

Alfonso was proclaimed king on the day of his birth, May 17, 1886, his father having died some months before, of tuberculosis, at the age of 28. The first attempt on Alfonso's life was on the day of his coronation, when he was 18 years old. Among the most spectacular attacks made on him was one while driving with President Loubet of France, in Paris, and another on his wedding day, May 31, 1906, when a bomb thrown at him and his bride while riding from the church killed twenty or more in the streets of Madrid, the royal pair escaping injury. The last attack was on April, 1913, when an anarchist fired three shots at him. This time the king wheeled his horse and ran down his assailant.

In between were attempts by bomb and pistol, but he seemed to have a charmed life. Throughout all these ordeals Alfonso displayed absolute coolness and courage, which greatly added to his popularity. For in spite of the many attempts to assassinate him, he was popular with the Spanish masses.

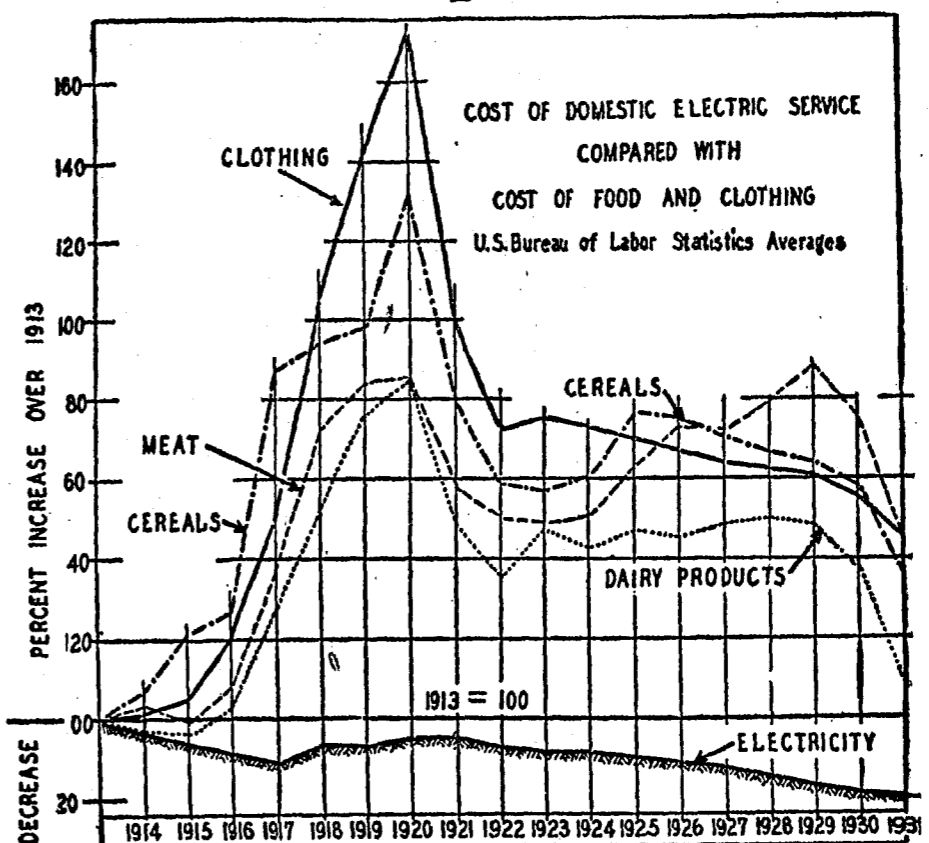

When the revolt against the monarchy became too great to be withstood last April, Alfonso quietly abdicated and left the country. Those who have watched his career will hardly believe that he fled through lack of personal courage. His action was doubtless inspired more by a desire to see Spain saved from the terrors of civil war. If he sometimes sighs for the lost glories of kingship, he may also reflect that he is extremely lucky to be alive.

Von Hindenburg Again President

A grateful German nation, casting well above 19,000,000 votes for him, decided that the venerable President Paul Von Hindenburg should guide the ship of state for another seven years.

Adolph Hitler, his fascist opponent of the socialist party in the runoff presidential election, although he gained a goodly portion of the national votes from the first election March 13, fell short of reaching the 15,000,000 ballots he had claimed in the campaign. He obtained less than 13,500,000.

Ernst Thaelmann, communist and the other candidate this time received only 3,750,000 votes, as compared with his nearly 5,000,000 votes four weeks ago.

Germany, like America, is not yet ready for communism or other radical changes in government.

Chased By Infuriated Bull

Fred Newman had a narrow escape last Sunday morning, when he was attacked by an enraged bull. Mr. Newman had gone out to hunt squirrels. While walking through the pasture he was greatly surprised, upon looking back, to see the bull charging at him only a short distance away. Luckily he was near some trees, to which he took flight. As the trees had no limbs low enough for him to reach, he was unable, physically, to climb to safety, having only recently partially recovered from an illness that had confined him to his bed for nearly three months. In an attempt to drive the infuriated animal away, he fired at him, hitting him in the rear leg. This caused the bull to retreat a short distance, only to charge again. A second shot brought the same result. Mr. Newman then decided it was either kill or get killed and so aimed the third time at the animal as to mortally wound him.

His services were cheerfully and faithfully given and the memory of him and his work—an example of service and loyalty—will stay with the students and teachers who knew him. The number of students and teachers who attended his funeral last Monday attest the deep respect and admiration Mr. McAllister's associates had for him.
