STATE CHAMBER TELLS IDAHO TAX HISTORY

Of the 127 separate and individual funds for the handling of state money, the general fund is the most interesting and one of the largest.

The general fund is really the state's credit bumper. When appropriations are desired and money is available from no other source, the old general fund is invariably called upon. If general fund hasn't the money, then it is up to the general fund to get it—which is not difficult to do as long as the state's credit rating is satisfactory. Most legislative appropriations read "from moneys in the general fund not otherwise appropriated."

The thing that keeps old general fund solvent is the annual ad valorem tax. It makes up the difference between what general fund has and what general fund should have in order to take care of the legislative appropriations.

Revenue Sources
Due to the fact that the state levies are made after the appropriations have already been determined, it is a simple matter of arithmetic for the state officials to keep general fund solvent, provided of course that the tax payers can foot their bills. It sometimes happens that the fund balance is in the "red" or overdrawn, but that, rather than being a serious matter, represents inequalities in the distribution over the biennium of disbursements and receipts.

The general fund, so the auditor's report for 1929-30 reads, consists of moneys received and not specially appropriated to any other fund. Its principal sources of revenue are the annual ad valorem tax, tax on insurance companies, interest on current funds in state depositories, license taxes, inheritance taxes, fees of the district courts and various other state departments, license tax on express companies and fees and licenses collected by the director of insurance.

Expenditures
The fund, the report continues, is expenditure in defraying the general running expenses of the state government, as specified in the various appropriations made by the legislature for those purposes, which means salaries, wages, lights, heat, stationery, traveling expenses and so forth.

The record of operation of the general fund for the biennium of 1929-1930 is interesting. On October 1, 1928, the fund was $808,519.58 overdrawn or in the "red." During the two-year period, however, it recuperated remarkably, receiving $5,916,914 in cash (largely taxes), $81,870.35 by transfers and $11,083.33 by cancelled warrants.

But total expenditures from the fund were well over six million dollars and we find that at the end of the fiscal period, September 30, 1930, it was back in the "red" again to the extent of $810,106.19.

Balance Budget
The small margin of difference between the expenditures from and the receipts of the general fund shows that the state arithmeticians had done their work well and that the budget was practically balanced.

It might be well in this connection to point out that state taxes are collectable from the various counties in lump sums rather than from individuals, which relieves the state of worry concerning non-payment of taxes and removes from the budget-balancing process the distribution and fluctuating factor of delinquents as long of course as the various counties are solvent.

The low rate of interest at which the state is able to obtain short time loans to defray running expenses pending the receipt of tax payments from the counties is evidence of Idaho's good standing in the financial world. Many of the counties, however, are at present suffering from tax delinquencies and unless that condition is remedied it will eventually reflect unfavorably upon the state's credit.

Other Funds
Several of the larger funds created for the purpose of financing the state's business are not derived from the ad valorem tax but have special sources of revenue, such as licenses and inspection fees, fines, confiscations, imposts, etc. Expenditures from such funds are necessarily limited by the amount of the receipts. In some instances economic officials have been able to build up goodly surpluses. While these moneys are not raised

Crops Look Fair

Several farmers in from different ridges on being questioned about their crops all replied, "They are looking fair." Some said "Good" and a few "Fine." Almost all qualified their statements by saying that the crops looked lots better than the the prospects of a fair price.

Beans are looking fine despite the late cool season, and should bear well, but they too, are down in price to where it hardly is worth while to harvest them. One farmer said he didn't think he would thresh either his wheat or beans, but would feed them all to stock.

NO WORD FROM THE STATE ABOUT ROAD

To date no word has been received in Kendrick from the State of Idaho regarding our road situation. The only item definitely known is that there is a crew of surveyors working out of here, and that doesn't say a thing except that a survey is being made and that, at least, is something.

Rumors have flown thick and fast about the state going to spend $72,000 in this section for roads, but a rumor is all that is, no definite word having been received about anything, and to date not even a surveyors report has been shown us.

We presume that the $72,000 mentioned in an article appearing in a daily paper was that of the Cavendish link of the state system, which is about what is to be spent there.

So far we haven't even been able to learn which way the Cavendish spur of the state system is to turn, or where it will go from there. We all know which way we would like to have it go, and which way it would serve the most people, but that isn't saying which way it will go. So to date, the sum total of Kendrick's road knowledge is "O".

There is no section of the country that needs an all-weather road worse than this section. We have paid gas taxes for years on thousands of dollars worth of gasoline per annum, and to date we haven't even received 1c worth of road, and we can't help but feel that in justice to us if nothing more, it is time the state gave us a little bit.

Better Lock Your Doors

Mrs. Frank Ellis reported Monday noon that someone had tried to enter their home sometime during the forenoon while she and Mr. Ellis were at the store.

Mrs. E. H. Emery, who resides just across the street, and who happened to be on her front porch, noticed a man trying to unlock the front door, but failing this he went to the rear of the house and was lost sight of. Mrs. Ellis stated that the kitchen window had been pried up about an inch, but it is evident the would-be burglar was frightened away by their dog, which happened to be in the house at the time.

Those who have been in the habit of going away from home and leaving their doors unlocked, might well take warning and turn the key and take it with them. There are hundreds of idle men in the country—and some of them may be none too honest. Better be safe than sorry.

Bill Breaks With Herb

And now Bill Borah has informed President Hoover that he will not play with him this fall if he runs on the platform as adopted by the republicans at their recent Chicago convention.

Bill probably got all het up because they didn't let him, or invite him, to construct the platform from his own peculiar type of timber. He should have been on hand with his little saw—everybody knows that he has plenty of hammers, when things do not go to his liking.

The republicans will probably have to fold up their tent and depart. If Bill can't "bell" he just won't sheep at all.

Ilse, Bomber, Given 50 Years

Henry A. Ilse, convicted of sending a dynamite bomb from San Francisco to the Associated Press in Spokane, must spend 50 years in prison.

The term was fixed by the prison board of terms and paroles at San Quentin prison, after considering Ilse's application for parole. Members of the board said there was evidence of insanity in Ilse's family and the long term was set to prevent him from being a menace to society.

He was convicted on five counts last year of sending the bomb.

COMMERCIAL CLUB SENDS GREETINGS TO OLD-TIMERS

The Kendrick Commercial club, through its secretary, W. A. Watts, has sent the following letter to former residents of Kendrick at Spokane, inviting them to hold a gathering at Kendrick at some future date:

Dr. John E. Hoyt, Paulsen Bldg., Spokane, Wash.

Dear Dr. Hoyt:

Next Sunday You old-timers who have lived at Kendrick, will be having a fine get-together picnic at Manito Park. The Kendrick Commercial club sends greetings and best wishes for a happy festival.

We deeply appreciate the fact that you people had a great deal to do with making our little city the beautiful place it is today.

No doubt your picnic will be so successful that it will be made an annual affair, and we hope that sometime soon all of you will be meeting us in the Kendrick Park.

Local Boy Scouts Take Hike

On Saturday of last week ten Boy Scouts of the local organization, accompanied by Scout Master Everett Fraser, went to Atwater lake and spent the week-end camping. They left Kendrick at 1:30 Saturday afternoon, returning home late Sunday evening. Each boy took his bedding and eats.

A large camp fire was built Saturday evening and many "weird" tales were told, games were played and most of the boys fished in the lake, while some went to Bear creek falls fishing and swimming.

This is the first of a series of hikes and good times the boys are planning for this summer. They wish to thank Thorvald Nelson for the excellent camp grounds they enjoyed.

Those making the trip were Wayland Davis, Karl Emery, Harold and Franklin Abrams, Garth and Gerald Hill, Junior Ramey, Paul and Keith Dammarell, Tommy Keene and Scout Master Everett Fraser. Owing to the absence of Assistant Scout Master Lester Crocker, Donald Miller and Elmer Fraser went along to help herd the boys.

The New Tax On Admissions

The tax on admissions under the new revenue act is of such widespread interest that the Bureau of Internal Revenue has issued the following statement on the subject:

The law which has been in effect since June 28, 1928, taxes admissions only if the amount paid for admission is in excess of $3, while under the new law all amounts paid for admission are subject to tax at the rate of one (1c) cent for each 10c or fraction thereof, if the admission charge is 41c or more. This tax must be collected from the persons who pay the admission charges and is a tax on admissions not only to theaters, but to any place—if the admission price is over 40c. There is no tax if the price of admission is under 40c.

The new revenue tax on admissions will not have much effect on local conditions, only perhaps admission to dances. If the admission price is $1, it will be necessary to charge $1.10 in order to pay the income tax.

Have Many Fine Roses

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Long, in addition to having one of the very pretty home of the town, have perhaps more fine roses than anyone in this part of the country, as well as a profusion of other beautiful flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Long have 60 different varieties, ranging from white all through the colors and tins, making a beautiful display when in full bloom. They have their own water-works system for watering their lawn—and plenty of water is one of the requisites for pretty flowers. Many visitors from out of town stop at the Long home to admire their fine display of roses.

Output Is Increased

Two hundred and sixteen lumber mills of the Douglas Fir region on the west coast, reported operating at 21.2 per cent of capacity for the week ending June 11 as compared to 19.2 per cent for the previous week and 43.4 per cent for the same week last year.

Many Swimming

The old swimming hole, over near the Vollmer-Clearwater warehouse is pretty much in demand these hot days, in fact, someone is always swimming there, and don't think for a minute they're all kids—not by a long ways, for grown-ups find the cool water refreshing as well as the kids these days.

It is really too bad that we can't have a sand beach there, in fact some talk has been heard of hauling sand in and building one, but the short length of time the pool is in use and the fact that the high water of each spring would take it out again, hardly justifies the expense.

INTERESTING NEWS ITEMS FROM JULIAETTA

Is Injured By Saw

George Christensen had his right hand and scalp badly lacerated last Friday while working with a drag-saw.

It seems that the log being sawed rolled, causing the saw to fly out of place and come in contact with Mr. Christensen. While the hand was not so severely hurt, it took six stitches to close the wound on his forehead and scalp. The damage done could easily have been much worse.

WHEAT MARKET WEAK BUT FEED GRAIN STEADY

Domestic wheat markets suffered further declines during the week ending June 17, under the influence of the approaching movement of new winter wheat crop, favorable progress of spring wheat and some slackening in demand for North American wheat, according to the Weekly Grain Market Review of the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Feed grains held fairly steady, largely because of the very light offerings since demand remained largely to the limited current needs of feed manufacturers and other industrial buyers. Rye was weak with wheat. Flax declined further, under a continued dull crusher demand and favorable growing conditions for the new crop.

Pacific Coast markets were also weak and lower, although declines at Portland and Seattle were smaller than in California markets. Futures in Pacific Northwest markets held comparatively steady but cash markets declined around 2c per bushel. Country marketings remained very small and receipts at Puget Sound and Columbia river terminals totaled only 317 cars, compared with 1,067 cars during the corresponding week a year ago. Warmer weather hastened the ripening of winter wheat and was very favorable for rapid growth of the spring crop, which is reported to be heading in some districts. Demand was dull and almost entirely from domestic mills, which are taking only occasional lots. Exporters were practically out of the market because of competition from Canadian and Australian markets, at prices ranging about 5c per bushel below quotations from Northwestern exporters. At the close of the market June 17, Big-Bend Bluestem hard white was quoted at Portland at 61c to 63c, soft and western white at 51c to 52c, hard winter, northern spring and western red at 50c to 52c, sacked, basis No. 1. Prices offered for new wheat at country stations in some cases ranged as low as 20c to 25c per bushel. The volume of new wheat contracted so far this season is reported very small. The bag market has been active, with around one-half of the season's requirements of approximately 22,000,000 bags reported sold. Current quotations were 7½c for domestics and 7¼c for calcuttas, delivered farmers at country points. No. 1 western white was quoted at Seattle June 17, at 53c, western red at 52c and early Baart hard white at 63c, sacked, basis No. 1. No. 2 Manitoba Northern was quoted at Vancouver at 51¼c. This is equivalent in U. S. currency to 44¼c. Three cargoes of Canadian wheat were reported sold at Vancouver to Shanghai during the week.

California markets weakened under increased offerings of new wheat and prices at San Francisco and Los Angeles declined 5c to 10c per 100. Current inquiry was generally of small volume, with mills in central California awaiting heavier movement of the new crop and feeders using principally cheap feed barley. At Los Angeles, however, the large buyers were reported accumulating supplies. Smaller industries were taking only fair amounts. Harvesting progressed rapidly in the San Joaquin valley and started in the early fields in the Sacramento valley during the week. The quality is good. The crop is of heavy test weight and relatively free from dockage. Current market quotations were netting San Joaquin valley growers around 80c per 100 at shipping points taking an average rate of freight to terminals. Bids to Sacramento growers were mostly near 78c to 80c per 100. Prospective freight rate reductions June 22 to 24 was curtailing movement to some extent from San Joaquin valley points. At the close of the market June 17, No. 1 hard white wheat was quoted at San Francisco at $1.00 per 100, sacked, and No. 1 soft white at 95c to 98c.

Foreign markets for wheat continued light, with inquiry for spot wheat relatively light, because of the generally favorable prospects for the new crop and liberal offerings from surplus areas. Buyers for the most part were meeting only current needs, awaiting heavier movement of the new crop. Prices of native wheats declined to $1.68 at Hamburg, to $1.72 at Paris and $1.57 at Milan. At the close of the market June 17, Argentine Rosafe was quoted at Liverpool at 53¼c and No. 3 Manitoba

... THROUGH CASTORIA'S GENTLE REGULATION

The best way to prevent colic, doctors say, is to avoid gas in stomach and bowels by keeping the entire intestinal tract open, free from waste. But remember this: a tiny baby's tender little organs cannot stand harsh treatment. They must be gently urged. This is just the time Castoria can help most. Castoria, you know, is made specially for babies and children. It is a pure vegetable preparation, perfectly harmless. It contains no harsh drugs, no narcotics. For years it has helped mothers through trying times with colicky babies and children suffering with digestive upsets, colds and fever. Keep genuine Castoria on hand, with the name:

STILL DOING BUSINESS

A question that is troubling a great many business men at this time is whether the stock and grain markets, at present levels, truly represent the business situation of the country. Some are prone to believe that the trend of speculation in both of these exchanges has been greatly influenced by threats of federal regulation and control, as evidenced by the stock probe being conducted by a senate committee and the interference with the smooth workings of the grain pit by the operations of the farm board.

In consideration of the situation it may be well to note that even in the poor year of 1931 the production of steel stood well above the level reached in 1921, when the last general depression hit the country; that the output of automobiles last year exceeded by more than 400,000 the production in 1921; that employment in this industry today is above the level reached in 1922, a year which marked the beginning of recovery, and that the railways, despite their present difficulties, carried 30,000,000 more ton-miles of freight last year than in the 1921 depression. Still more significant is the fact that bank failures, after reaching discouragingly large figures during several months last fall and winter, have recently declined so sharply that they are below the average for the pre-depression years from 1924 to 1928.

To recognize such facts as these is not to gloss over the serious problems which confront the country or to assume that matters will necessarily right themselves of their own accord, without further positive measures to promote recovery. The need for action of this sort is apparent at various points; in the hesitancy of congress to balance the budget, in the scant consideration thus far given to the interstate commerce commission's proposals for improving the position of the country's transportation system, in the failure of party leadership in Washington to acknowledge and to correct factors in part responsible for our great loss of export trade.

Nevertheless, however many and formidable our problems, the fact remains that business is still being done in the United States; that production in certain basic industries has recently been increasing, and that at least four-fifths of the population normally employed in gainful occupations are still at work. The extreme pessimism which refuses to admit such facts as these is as uncritical and misleading as was the buoyant over-confidence of 1929.—Lewiston Tribune.

Two of your favorite players—Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell—will be seen at the Kendrick Theatre this Friday and Saturday evenings, in "The Man Who Came Back."
Broadway called him a playboy. His father turned him out as a rounder. But a love that staked everything brought him back. He searched the world over for happiness, and he finally found it in the heart of a girl whom he met in a questionable resort in Shanghai—and they both came back.

WHEAT MARKET WEAK BUT FEED GRAIN STEADY

for June shipment at the same price. Australian wheat afloat was quoted at London at 55c. The French government has rejected the new commercial treaty with Canada and Canadian wheat is now subject to the maximum duty rate of $1.60 per bushel. Russian wheat is also admitted subject to the maximum duty, but Argentine and U. S. wheats are admitted at the minimum rate of 34c per bushel. Roumanian and Yugoslavian wheats are subject to a special preferential treatment under the terms of an agreement which became effective May 24. No important changes occurred during the week in crop conditions in the northern hemisphere. Harvesting of new domestic winter wheat crops progressed northward as far as central Kansas. Spring wheat in the United States made good progress under favorable weather conditions. Rains provided additional moisture and helped minimize probable loss from grasshoppers. In the Canadian prairie provinces recent rains were fairly well distributed, but northern and southeastern areas of Manitoba report that drought has reduced the crop prospects. Grasshoppers and cut worms are numerous and menacing, but still fairly well under control. Crops throughout Alberta promised particularly high yields. Soil moisture is quite satisfactory at present, but June and July rains must be relied on to offset deficiencies resulting from three years of drought. Crop conditions throughout Europe are for the most part unchanged from a week ago, except for confirmation of less favorable prospects in north Italy, where shortage of fertilizer has resulted in lower yields. Some local damage from storms and hot winds has been reported in southern Italy. The Russian crop has been benefited by local rains in some areas but the weather is still too hot and droughty in southeastern sections and parts of the Don and Volga river valley. Conditions in the lower Danubians are only fair. In other parts of Europe conditions are generally favorable, although crops are two to three weeks later than usual.

Domestic wheat markets were mostly lower with futures. The movement of new wheat increased in Oklahoma and Texas and the first cars were marketed during the week in Kansas. Receipts at the principal central and southwestern markets totaled 1,699 cars, compared with 1,627 a week ago, and 1,266 a year ago. New crop receipts have been principally of good quality and high protein but high in moisture. Some of the new wheat from the south plains in Texas was of light test weight but of higher protein than the heavier wheat from other areas. Mills were fairly active buyers of new wheat at Fort Worth and No. 1 hard winter, 13 per cent protein, was quoted at 51c to 52c per bushel. Export demand was lacking.

The first new wheat of the season was received at Kansas City from the southwestern part of Kansas, it graded sample hard, 58 lb., 17.8 per cent moisture and only 9.25 per cent protein. This car sold at 42c per bushel to a local elevator. This was the earliest movement of Kansas wheat since 1918. Mill and elevator demand was fairly active during the week and daily offerings were readily taken. Shipments to outside mills were of good volume.

A large percentage of the Omaha receipts went directly to local flour mills. New wheat was expected the first week in July at that market. Inquiry from local mills at Denver was dull but offerings were light. No. 2 hard winter was quoted F. O. B. eastern Colorado shipping points at 34c to 36c per bushel.

STATE CHAMBER TELLS IDAHO TAX HISTORY

by direct taxation, they are nevertheless regarded as public funds and their disposition is under the direction of the legislature. It is noteworthy that the aggregate of funds raised by fees, licenses and indirect taxation is considerably larger than the total raised by the direct or ad valorem tax.

Fish and Game Fund

One of the most interesting funds of this type, especially to sportsmen and outdoors enthusiasts, is the fish and game fund. It is maintained by receipts from the sale of fish and game licenses and permits, from confiscations, fines and forfeitures, and by proceeds from the sale of property of the department. Not one cent of tax money, in the literal sense, goes into this fund and sportsmen are quick to resent any insinuation that the operation of the department has anything to do with high taxes.

The fish and game fund is used to pay the salaries of the game warden, deputy game wardens, clerks and assistants, hatchery and game farm attendants, as well as the expenses incidental to the operation of the department. The fund is also available for importing, propagating and protecting fish, game birds and game animals.

Game Fund Operations

The 1929-30 state auditor's report gives a good idea of the extent of the game department's financial operations. Cash receipts for the two year period totaled $441,761.92, coming principally from the sale of hunting and fishing licenses. Receipts by transfer totaled $2,389.43, and $58,226 accrued to the fund from cancelled warrants.

Expenditures during this period totaled $435,897.71, including an $8,000 transfer to the game warden's predatory animal fund. Worthless checks resulted in a $16 loss to the department. Final figures show an increase in the department's balance on hand of a little more than $8,000 for the biennium's operations.

Predatory Fund

The predatory animal fund, mentioned above, was created for the purpose of providing the financial wherewithal for extermination campaigns against predatory animals, which are heavy destroyers of game birds and animals. The fund receives a sum transferred annually from the fish and game fund and in addition is credited with the proceeds from the sale of furs taken under the provisions of the game laws. Wages of state trappers and hunters and the bounty on coyotes and cougars are paid from this fund.

Another fund that may well be considered at this time is the forest protection fund, which was created in 1925 "for the protection and preservation of the forest resources of the state". This fund receives allotments from the federal government for fire prevention and in addition is reimbursed by private land owners for expenditures in the protection of their property.

Cash Receipts

During the 1929-1930 biennium the cash receipts of the forest protection fund totaled $193,718.30, being the government allotments and the collection from private holders. Fire protection, suppression and detection expenses for the period amounted to $187,145.07, leaving an operation profit of almost $7,000.

An unpleasant sequel to this however is the disastrous fire season of 1931 which not only burned over hundreds of thousands of acres of timber land and destroyed valuable improvements, but likewise practically bankrupted the state's forest protection fund. Also the non-payment of taxes and protection assessments by private owners is creating a serious condition of increased responsibility and decreased revenue.

Has Gold "Extracting" Machine

Harold Thomas says he does not claim to be an inventor, but he has built a machine for the washing of gold from sand and gravel that would make many a model in the patent office at Washington, D. C., look quite crude.

We don't know much (in fact nothing) about gold-digging, panning, or other processes of taking gold, but we do know that Harold has a nifty machine that takes water from the creek-bed through a suction hose, and pours it into the machine, jigs the rockers—in short, does most everything except put the stuff into bricks. He plans on trying it out on some of the streams in the gold regions within a short time.

Here's hoping he can show Old Man Depression a few things, anyway.

Wise—Say, don't you ever take a vacation?
Crax—I feel I shouldn't leave my job.

Wise—Why, can't the company do without you?
Crax—Yes; that's just what I don't want them to find out!

HOW TO PREVENT TICKS FROM ATTACHING TO YOU

If you want to avoid being bitten by a wood tick, make it as difficult as possible for the tick to become attached to your clothing. Dr. C. A. Philip of the U. S. public health service laboratory at Hamilton, Mont., told Idaho 4-H club members assembled at the University of Idaho for the 10th annual junior short course.

A pair of high-top leather boots or puttees were described as the best footwear to wear in tick-infested regions. Studies at the Montana station have established the fact that ticks congregate along trails, ready to attach themselves to any form of human or animal that comes along. Usually they are perched atop grass or weed stalks. When they sense an animal or human approaching they start waving their legs and prepare to grab anything with which they come in contact. If a person wears boots which extend above the grass and weeds it becomes very difficult for the tick to become attached.

Should a tick become attached Dr. Philip urged that no time be lost in extricating it. He discounted the prevailing belief that one should allow the tick to remain in the flesh until a person can get to a surgeon and have it removed. "Grip the tick firmly on both sides with the finger nails and pull," he said. "If the tick is firmly imbedded a little flesh may come too, but better that than to allow the tick to remain."

Chicks Thrive at Game Farm

Approximately 3,800 Chinese pheasant chicks have been hatched at the state game farm at Lapwai this spring, according to James Marshall, superintendent. Around 2,000 more eggs will be hatched.

To the present the chukar partridge hatch has amounted to 140 chicks. More are to be hatched, says an article in the Lewiston Tribune.

Farm hands are building 14 specially adapted growing pens for the partridges. They will be 12x6 feet in area and floored with mesh cloth to keep the birds off the ground. Considerable difficulty has been experienced in raising these birds due to contamination from the ground.

The chukars will be kept in the floored pens until frost before being released. The pens will be used after that to retain the breeding stocks for next year. The chicks are removed from the brooders at three months, going directly to the growing pens.

Squirrels are quite numerous this year, Marshall reported, but only two chicks have been killed by the rodents and it was believed that there was no great danger from these animals. Regular inspection trips are made around the growing pens every day, netting three or four squirrels, which are trapped or killed.

"Indications point to a very good season," Mr. Marshall stated. "The wet weather has improved conditions considerably. The grass is green and furnishes good feed and all the chicks seem to be thriving."

When Business Is Poor

A woman walked into a certain store and asked for a package of limburger cheese. She was not satisfied to buy sight unseen, so the grocer unwrapped it for her to sniff. "It doesn't smell as strong as the kind I used to get," she complained.

"We'll ma'am," drawled the proprietor, "it's hard to distinguish the odor nowadays with business so rotten."

"Was Harold's wedding a swell affair?"

"Positively! They even used puffed rice!"

First Telegraph Line Regarded as Mere Toy

In 1834 Thomas Davenport, a blacksmith at Brandon, Vt., exhibited at Springfield and at Boston a working model of an electric car running on a small track. He had studied the ideas of Michael Faraday with the object of applying the only half-understood electrical energy to the propulsion of a vehicle. Russell Gore writes, in the Detroit News. Unfortunately, the world was not yet ready for electric street cars, even if it had available—which it had not till the Michigan deposits were developed—the copper to make them run.

But the discovery of the magic metal lagged just around the corner, while electricity took some shy peeks to see if the way was clear. By 1835 Morse was exhibiting a model telegraph machine, based on the system of dots and dashes. Two years later the first telegraph line was installed on the London & Northwestern railway.

The first was regarded as a toy and was not even used for railroad business. Not until it was pressed into service to tell the London police that a notorious criminal, one Tawell, wanted for poisoning a woman, would stop off the train in the metropolis, did the magic dawn on the world. Tawell, astonished as he was that a slender strand of copper wire had carried a message faster than the fastest courier could carry it, Tawell, a crook; was electricity's best press agent in the infancy of the telegraph.

Ball Playing Traced to Theory of Resurrection

It is interesting to read in Prof. Elliot Smith's "Human History" that the common origin of ball games may be traced to the fact that the ancient Egyptians' theory of the universe depended "upon the view that the death and resurrection of the god Osiris was essential for the maintenance of life." In the periodical dramatic representations of this belief, Professor Smith explains, "the conflict of the followers of Osiris with those of his enemy Set was enacted," and not only the bullfighting of Spain, and the cock-fighting of Asia . . . but also the tug-of-war, football, hockey, tennis, cricket, polo, and, in fact, all ball games are the modified survivals of the Osirian competitions in which the representatives of the rival parties struggled for the mummy of the king god or his head, the ball."—Montreal Family Herald.

Island Dwellers

There are only two good ways to come to Stockholm. One is to approach slowly by the canal from Goteborg, and the other is to arrive by sea through the glorious channels between its 75 miles of islands. The rugged sea and landscapes of these rocky islets not only made artists happy, but many families of the city make their summer homes on an island, and the business men commute daily by launch to their work. Everybody has a yacht or some more modest craft and they spend nearly all day on the water.

Valuable Health Rules

Irving Fisher's health rules are: "Ventilate every room you occupy; wear light, loose, and porous clothes; seek out-of-doors occupations and recreations; sleep out of doors, if possible; breathe deeply; avoid overeating; eat sparingly of meats and eggs; eat some hard, some bulky, and some raw foods each day; eat slowly; move the bowels regularly and frequently; do not allow poisons and infections to enter the body; keep the teeth, gums, and tongue clear; stand, sit, and walk erect; work, play, rest, and sleep in moderation, and keep happy."

Bad Telephone Manners

Alexander Graham Bell lived to deplore the casual manners his invention had introduced. "Nobody," he said—according to Catherine Mackenzie in her biography of Bell—"would dream of coming to one's house and demanding an audience while one dined, or bathed, or slept; but every one made these peremptory interruptions by telephone." He always made indignant protest when any member of his family left the table to answer a telephone call.—Kansas City Times.

"This Is So Sudden!"

They were strolling in the moonlight, this couple of the Stone age days, she slim and lively, he big, hairy and muscular. The dinosaurs and mastodons respectively alighted out of their way at their approach.

Suddenly, for no obvious reason, he reached over and laid her skull open with a vicious swing of his quartz club. As she sank to the ground, her eyes opened in wonderment. "O, Oswald," she cooed. "And I didn't know you cared!"—Exchange.

Novel "Change of Air"

Mr. Bata, Czechoslovakian boot manufacturer, is a very busy man, and his time is valuable. When his doctor told him that he must go to a mountainous district for a change of air, he decided that he could not spare the time. Instead of going to the mountains, Mr. Bata bought a balloon, anchored it to his factory chimney, and used it as an office. Thus he was able to enjoy the pure air of the heights and carry on his business at the same time.

Federals Gathered in Foe's Last Silk Dress

Captive balloons for observation purposes were used chiefly by the Union army during the first two years of the Civil war. Gen. Fitzjohn Porter made over a hundred ascensions. Count Von Zeppelin was a balloon observer with the Union army. A Confederate general writing in "Battles and Leaders of the Civil War" refers to the poverty which denied balloons to that side, except one patchwork ship made from silk dresses gathered up. "We had no gas except in Richmond and it was the custom to inflate the balloon there, tie it securely to an engine and run it down the York River railroad to any point at which we desired to send it up. One day it was on a steamer down the James when the tide went out and left vessel and balloon high and dry on a bar. The Federals gathered it in and with it the last silk dress in the Confederacy." The Zouave regiments that served in that war wore the brilliant uniform of the French colonials with fez, baggy trousers and a predominance of red.

Petulance Displayed by Central American Tree

A curious tree known as the "angry tree," grows in Central America. This tree, which is a species of acacia, grows to the height of about ten feet. At night the foliage of the tree curls up into strange coils, and if the tree is then touched, all the smaller branches begin to shake just as if the tree was thoroughly annoyed. S. Leonard Bastin writes, in St. Nicholas Magazine.

The angry tree was first noticed by some prospectors. In making a camp for the night, these men spread a blanket over a branch of the tree, which had curled its foliage for the night. At once the branch began to shake in a most uncanny way, and at the same time a most pungent odor was emitted. This was so powerful that the men were simply forced to move their camp to another position.

Chinese Bride Wears Crown

The wedding ceremony in China varies with the locality, but, generally speaking, it is a rather prolonged affair, sometimes lasting two days. More attention seems to be paid to the selection of the day than anything else and many things are taken into consideration before the date is finally fixed. The day must be a "lucky" one. There is no giving and taking or making of any pledges or promises. That is all taken for granted. In most of the provinces red is regarded as the essential color for the wedding garb and veil with a gorgeous crown and a lot of gewgaws. The two-day period is given up largely to feasting, but during the whole proceedings the bride does little but look on. The rule of feminine propriety requires that she should preserve modest silence throughout.

Snobbish Folly

The late Andrew Schroeder, the official rat catcher of Houston, who carried his wonderful rat-catching secret with him to the grave, was proud of his trade, and liked to tell a story about the folly of snobbishness.

"I knew a city missionary," he would say, "who invited a famous missionary bishop to dine at his slum residence and meet two local celebrities, a garbage collector and a rat catcher."

"Well, the bishop accepted the invitation gladly, and the rat catcher said that he too would be delighted, but the garbage collector spoiled the party. He must refuse, he said, to sit down with a rat catcher."

Ruminating Animals

The cow is not the only animal that ruminates or "chews the cud"; the class of ruminants includes also sheep, goats, camels, llamas, giraffes and deer. In all of these animals the stomach is divided into several compartments. The food is swallowed hastily and passes to the first or second compartment. Later when the animal is resting, it is able to bring back this "cud" into the mouth for further chewing. After a thorough mastication, this is swallowed again and passes to the third and fourth sections of the stomach for assimilation. The rabbit does not belong to this family of animals.

Lenient French Justice

Terrible cruelty to an aged father was charged against three peasant sisters named Mardier at Le Peyca-Yelay in central France. It was stated that the father had refused to share his property with his daughters, who confined him in the kitchen, and employed such brutal methods in an effort to force his submission, and make him sign the deed giving them the property, that he died as the result. The oldest was given only a year's imprisonment, however, and the other two were dismissed.

Keeping the Secret

"Darling," said the elderly happily married man, "I'm going to give you such a surprise for your birthday."

"Henry," she exclaimed wonderingly, "do tell me what it is."

He took her in his arms.

"I'm going to give you a ten-dollar bill for each year of your life."

"Henry," she cried happily, "that is wonderful of you!" And then sadly: "But don't let anyone see the checks."

—London Answer.

(Delayed)

The machinery of state government finances is ponderous and complicated, a direct product of the American penchant for regulating and standardizing everything. Every law, no matter how seemingly innocuous, when once on the statutes is accompanied by a responsibility—that of enforcement. Our public officials frequently find themselves hedged into narrow and vexing routes by the impenetrable walls of legal thorns.

This minute and inflexible regulation of official activity not only serves to stifle possible beneficial originality on the part of incumbents but at times undoubtedly works to the financial disadvantage of the state.

Many Funds

The 1929-1930 report of the state auditor outlines the operations of 56 regular funds, 52 revolving funds and 19 suspense funds, making a total of some 127 different channels through which public moneys must be legally conducted in the course of carrying on the state's business.

Revolving funds are created by the state board of examiners to relieve temporary financial embarrassment of state officials, departments, boards and institutions who find themselves without money for necessary operations. These funds, which generally have some source of revenue other than taxes, are established by appropriations from the state general fund, except in cases where the board, institution or department has an interest or special fund available.

Suspense Funds

Suspense funds are provided for the safekeeping, pending final disposition or distribution, of any moneys received in trust by any state officer, department, board or institution. The law provides that money may be withdrawn from a suspense fund only under rules and regulations promulgated by the department of finance.

The complicated aspect of all this becomes increasingly apparent when one learns that each of the various funds is encased in a legal straight-jacket of legislative enactments. Each fund has its legal source or sources of revenue and each fund may be used for only certain legally defined purposes. No deviation, however desirable, from this is legally possible without legislative action. Indeed, some funds are so heavily burdened with red tape as to make their operation highly technical and a tedious affair.

Endowment Funds

The school and college endowment funds, as well as those of the charitable institutions and the penitentiary, are derived from the "sales of federal land grants and timber." These are "irreducible" funds, meaning that only the earnings and no part of the principal may be legally expended. The proceeds of the various sales, as they accrue, are invested under the direction of the department of public investments and the earnings in interest, rentals and so forth are made available for the maintenance and operation of the institutions endowed.

Supervision of the various endowment funds is a tremendous and highly responsible task. It involves the handling of huge sums of money annually, the hair-line segregation between earnings and principals, the making of many legally regulated investments and the equitable distribution of the interest and rental earnings.

Operations

Some idea of the size of the endowment funds operations is had when one learns that the earnings of the public school endowment fund for the 1929-1930 biennium were considerably more than two and a quarter million dollars. Cash receipts from the University endowment fund for the same period were $202,354.99; the school of science fund earned $80,428.72 and the agricultural college endowment fund earnings totalled $117,528.81.

Other endowment fund earnings for the biennium were: Charitable institutions, $273,412.23; insane asylum, $62,019.87; normal schools (divided equally between Lewiston and Albion normals), $146,156.62; North Idaho sanitarium, $36,226.59; and penitentiary, $113,838.59.

Weather Warming Up

The weather man surely changed his tactics last Saturday and finally turned on the heat. The dial kept turning farther and farther until on Monday the mercury reached a "cool" 90 degrees. The day was very oppressive and nearly everyone was wishing they had not complained about the very cool weather we have been having for the past—well, almost since last fall.

When Old Sol gets busy, there is something really doing in the canyon. However, we are much better off than the far-famed banana belt, at that.

CLOSER CONTROL IS AIM OF LATAH COUNTY

A system of county government entirely under the control of a board of commissioners or a county manager empowered to employ, all persons necessary to carry on the county's business has been recommended to the tax committee of the State Chamber of Commerce by the Latah county committee, it is reported by L. F. Parsons, secretary of the state chamber, Boise, on June 4.

The recommendation specifies that all county offices with the exception of the board of commissioners be abolished and that all work, including the keeping of records and the assessing and collecting of taxes be under the direct control of the board.

Such a plan, according to the recommendation, would not only materially decrease the expense of county government, but likewise would make for increased efficiency. Under the new system a beneficial correlation between the various branches of county government could be attained that is not now possible, the Latah committee believes.

The committee also recommended that the gasoline tax be increased from 5c to 6c, with the additional revenue to be used for the retirement of the bonded debt of highway and good road districts.

Consolidation of school districts without redistribution of the bonded indebtedness is also favored. The committee believes that it would be advantageous if small school districts were permitted by law to enter contracts with adjoining districts for the education of children in the first district.

Other recommendations of the committee were: Appointment of all city officers by the mayor and city council; a consumers tax on luxuries; that real property be assessed but once each five years; that taxpayers be required to file inventories of all property; that exemptions on household goods and farm machinery be reduced from $400 to $200; that incomes from investments, stocks, bonds, etc., be taxed; that gifts be taxed; that all county offices be made self-sustaining in so far as is possible from fees, and that the cost of state government be reduced at least 25 per cent.

A good many politicians are now engaged in an intensive study of the perplexing problem of how a man can carry water on one shoulder and beer on the other.

Asks France Take All Gold
There seems to have been a big hullaboo raised because France has been withdrawing her gold from our Uncle Samuel's coffers, but it now turns out that our uncle does not need any of France's gold to "balance our budget" or stabilize our currency.
It added that gold reserves of the federal reserve banks were $1,034,000,000 in excess of legal requirements at the beginning of the present month.

Tuesday First Day of Summer
Both according to the almanac—and actually—Tuesday was both the longest day in the year and also was the first official day of the summer season. That the latter was a fact, there is no denying, for the mercury registered all the way up to 96, but the thermometer at the Deobald garage registered 93 degrees at 3:30 o'clock. The thermometer hangs in an ideal place to get the proper temperature and as the instrument is supposed to be a good one, its reading can hardly be questioned. But it was warm enough, at that.

A Taking Girl

She took my hand in sheltered nooks.
She took my candy and my books;
She took that lustrous wrap of fur,
She took the gloves I bought for her;
She took my words of love and care,
She took my flowers, rich and rare;
She took my time for quite a while,
She took my kisses, maid so shy—
She took, I must confess, my eye,
She took whatever I would buy—
And then she took—another guy!

Fifty and Fit

A MAN is as old—or as young—as his organs. At fifty, you can be in your prime. Why go along with "fairly good health" when you might be enjoying vigor you haven't felt for years? There's a simple little thing anyone can do to keep the vital organs stimulated, and feel fit all the time. People don't realize how sluggish they've grown until they've tried it. The stimulant that will stir your system to new life is Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin. It will make a most amazing difference in many ways. This famous doctor's prescription is a delicious syrup made with fresh herbs, active senna, and pure pepsin. It starts its good work with the first spoonful. That's all you need to drive away the dullness and headache of a bilious spell, and rid the system of that slow poison that saps your strength. It's better than a tonic for tired bowels, and unlike habit-forming laxatives, you can take it freely or give it to any child. And it isn't expensive. Get some syrup pepsin today, and take a little tonight. Don't wait until you're sick to give your system this wonderful help. You can avoid those spells of biliousness or constipation. A spoonful every now and then is better than constant worry about the condition of your bowels, or fear of auto-intoxication as you grow older. Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin protects the system. All druggists keep this preparation.

Bought "Red Canary"

It would seem that people now-a-days just must be humbugged, as indicated by the following news item sent out from Salt Lake City, Utah—but who ever heard of a red canary?

"A bird racket was introduced here today. It cost Hugh E. Cummings just $3.

"Cummings reported to police he purchased a "red German canary" from a "bird salesman" who came to his door. The salesman offered the "rare species" at the extremely low price of $3, only because he was "broke."

"The 'red canary' died a few hours later. Becoming suspicious, Cummings washed the 'singer'. The 'red' part of the 'canary' dissolved, leaving only an English sparrow."

Selway Area Good Trout Region

The Clearwater watershed is ideally adapted for trout, was the conclusion of M. Burnell, Salt Lake City representative of the U. S. bureau of fisheries, who spent 10 days inspecting the various streams of the middlefork, District Warden J. E. Robertson, Kamiah, said.

In company with rangers, Burnell examined creeks and tributaries of the river for food and water conditions. He was impressed with the idea as the home of "game, scrappy fish."

"Plans are under way for the planting of a large number of trout in the middlefork area, this year," Robertson said. "Approximately 250,000 rainbow trout fry have been hatched at the Grangeville hatchery and 500,000 steelhead eggs are eying out."—Lewiston Tribune.

Good Ball Game Sunday

Baseball fans who missed the game last Sunday surely over-looked a close and exciting contest.

Lewiston Orchards and Kendrick locked horns in a return game. The score stood 4 to 5 in favor of Kendrick when Flaig crossed the plate with the winning run, leaving two men on bases and none down. The score stood 4 to 2 in favor of Lewiston Orchards when Kendrick came to bat in the last half of the ninth inning. Hits by Davis and Ross put two men on bases. An error by a Lewiston short-stop let Flaig reach first, filling the bases. A hit by Boyd scored Davis and Ross, tying the score 4-4. Another hit by Gruell, and Flaig crossed the plate with the winning run.

This season the manager, Geo. P. Barnum, has used nothing but local players. A few are old stand-bys, and the rest of the team high school players. The boys have been playing consistent ball, having lost four games and won four.

For the first time in years the management has asked no financial help from the business men, but has tried to make the games self-supporting. With the exception of the donations of base balls by F. S. Curtis and N. B. Long & Sons and the use of Fraternal Temple for a benefit dance, the manager has footed all bills personally.

The attendance so far at the games has been very slim and the support of the people is needed badly to make both ends meet.

Next Sunday, June 26th, Troy plays Kendrick on the Kendrick grounds. Come out and root and help the boys out financially. They have asked little enough. The admission will be 25c.
