STATE CHAMBER TELLS IDAHO TAX HISTORY

Endowment funds are at present a controversial subject which the State Chamber has no desire to aggravate, but because of the keen interest and general lack of knowledge which the public has in the matter, a short survey of our endowments, as contained in the latest report of the state auditor, is herewith presented.

When Idaho entered upon her career of statehood, some 40 years ago, she was the recipient of numerous paternal gifts from the federal government in the form of land grants with the understanding that these gifts were to be used for specifically indicated purposes of education, charity, public buildings and care of unfortunate.

Funds Unexpended
The principals of the various endowments are, in theory at least, non-expendable; only the earnings may be used, and these only for the designated purposes of the respective funds.

Control of the endowments is vested in the state land department and the department of public investments. It is the function of the first department to look after the grants, make land and timber sales and collect the payments. These payments constitute a part of the unexpended principals but may be invested under certain legal provisions in order that earnings in the form of interest and rentals may be had. The handling of these investments is the function of the second state department.

Grants Large
It might be appropriately stated here that while theoretically the endowment principals are "irreducible" they are subject to the same price fluctuations as other property and it logically follows that their values rise and fall with the times. No remedy for this condition has yet been devised.

Federal land grants to the state totalled 3,631,778 acres. The parcels are scattered all over the state, at least two being in every township. Some are rich timber and agriculture lands, some have only a moderate value for grazing purposes and still others are located in those areas of sage and lava for which little value, if any, has been discovered.

Worth "Millions"
Because of this and because of the ever fluctuating values, it is virtually impossible to compute with any degree of success the dollar-and-cents value of the federal grants. They are commonly spoken of as worth "millions" and they are—but as yet nobody can say just how many millions.

We do have, however, some definite figures that throw light upon the endowment values. Of the total acreage, 836,686.77 acres have been sold, bringing an aggregate price of $14,178,553.08. Timber sales have netted an additional four and a half millions. Computation on this bases would indicate a rough value of our endowments at more than 70 million dollars, but if the more desirable lands have been disposed of first, as is likely, the value of the remainder may fall far short of comparing on a per acre basis with that already sold, all of which makes our best figures nothing more than a guess.

School Grant Largest
The largest federal land grant was to our public schools. It contained 2,963,698 acres, 559,490 of which have been sold for more than nine and a half million dollars. The next largest grant, 150,000 acres, was for charitable institutions. Sale of 60,000 acres of this grant netted more than one million dollars.

The normal schools and the school of science (a part of the U. of I.) received grants of 100,000 acres each. Sale of 46,387 acres of the normal school lands has returned $747,110.66; while the 24,894 acres of the school of science land sold brought $335,598.35.

The University land grant contained 96,080 acres; 43,472 of which have been sold for $642,426.48. Of the 90,000 acres granted to the agricultural college, sale of 45,775 acres has returned $868,993.63.

Grants of 50,000 acres each were made for insane asylums (one grant) and the penitentiary. Asylum land totaling 18,524 acres has been sold for $335,213.47 and 15,635 acres of the penitentiary grant brought a total of $191,065.80.

"Eight times in one mile."

Kills Huge Rattler

An article recently in the Cottonwood Chronicle stated that one Mat Engle came into town from near Keuterville, where he had been helping in the hay, wearing a string of rattles on his hat, stating they had killed 30 rattlers within two weeks. He displayed the rattles of one snake containing 27 of the buzzers and a button and that he had killed another one with 16 rattles, which appeared as though about half of the original string had been lost.

These snakes make our little old rattlers found around here look like angle-worms.

INTERESTING ITEMS FROM JULIAETTA

Melons Late
The crop of watermelons and cantaloupes will be about 30 to 40 days later this season than that of last year, due to the cold wet spring, which hindered planting. It is expected, however, that the crop will be of a better quality, since more moisture is in the ground.

The tomatoes are looking fine, all that is needed to bring on a fine crop of superlative quality is a gentle rain and then a few nice warm days.

Apricots are coming in in good shape and should be ready for the market about the middle of next week, that is, at their height, a few are expected sooner.

Cherries Moving Fast

The Waybright Produce Company, packing at the Juliaetta Warehouse, are nearing the ending of the packing season for cherries. It is expected that the shipments this week will total six cars, making the total twelve.

While the price has been low, the quality has been excellent. Had the price equalled the quality, some real money would have been realized by the residents of this section.

Parents of Daughter

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Millard are entertaining a little lady who came to their home Wednesday, July 20, to make her home. Mother and babe are said to be doing nicely.

Personals

John Frazier was a Lewiston business visitor Monday.

E. J. Walsh of Spokane spent the week-end here at home.

Mrs. T. Garrison and niece of Orofino were visitors in town this week.

John L. Woody made a business trip to Lewiston on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Albright, Herman and Carl Giese spent Sunday visiting at Peck.

Mrs. Grace Stinson is spending a few days visiting friends in Clarkston.

Harry Gallop and family were in town Sunday from Moscow. They visited friends and relatives.

Game Wardens Walter Harris of Nez Perce county and Walter Driscoll of Latah county were business visitors here this week.

Norman Wann and daughter of Lewiston were in town this week from Lewiston.

Kendrick Rochdale Co. Elects

At the regular annual meeting of the stockholders of the Kendrick Rochdale company, held at the company's offices here last Thursday, July 14, the following officers and directors were elected for the ensuing year: K. D. Ingle, president; Amos Moore, vice-president; R. B. Parks, secretary. In addition to the above officers, who are also directors, the following were chosen as directors: John Schwarz, Fred Mielke, Aug. F. Meyer, Jos. Tschantz, H. E. Brammer and Clarence Dougharty.

The only change made in the original personnel of the board of directors was the election of Clarence Dougharty to succeed A. G. Peters.

Putting On Iron Roof

Bill and George were awfully busy Tuesday nailing down a new iron roof on the top of their driveway at the Kendrick Rochdale company's place of business.

They are also real proud of a new coat of kalsomine that has been recently applied to the interior of the office.

Many Pheasants Planted

Deputy Game Warden Walter Harris has reported the planting of 592 chicks in different parts of Nez Perce county last Monday, making a total of nearly 1,000 birds that have been planted in that county thus far.

COMMISSIONERS CHANGE PRECINCT BOUNDARIES

The Latah county commissions wound up their official business the first of the week after a three-week session, during which time they sat as a board of equalization, changed three precinct boundaries and abolished three voting precincts in the county, as well as abolishing the offices of 24 constables and 48 justices of the peace within the county, and establishing in their stead three justice districts, which will carry the office of six justices of the peace and three constables, the districts to carry the same boundaries as the present commissioner districts, thus eliminating the necessity of keeping up so many minor offices.

The precincts changed are: North and South Troy precincts were consolidated, Cornwall precinct was divided among Troy, Southeast Moscow and East Moscow, while the Helmer precinct was divided between Bovill and Deary precincts. The boundaries of Genesee, Thorncreck and Lenville precincts were changed. Residents of any of the affected precincts must obtain transfer of registration in order to vote at the coming fall election.

Candidates for the offices of justice and constable, nominated at the recent primary election, will not be placed on the election ballot this fall, since all offices thus designated have been abolished. Candidates for the offices of justice and constable for the newly created districts will have to be written on the official ballots. Full explanation of the changes made will undoubtedly be forthcoming in due time from the county board.

The county commissioners refused the petition of the Clearwater Timber company for a reduction of 50 per cent on the valuation of their timber holdings. They also refused a like request from the Latah County Tax League, which asked for a 50 per cent reduction on the valuation of lands in the county. The commissioners refused both requests on the ground that the law provides the amount of millage that may be levied and that a reduction of valuation would not bring in sufficient revenue to operate the schools of the county.

It was intimated that both requests would be taken before the state board of equalization at Boise.

Ship 30 Cars Stock Weekly

Approximately 30 car loads of livestock are being shipped from central Idaho points weekly, information from rail officials disclosed yesterday. With rising prices being paid for all kinds of livestock growers have been quick to take advantage.

Consignments are mostly in one and two car lots. Principal shipping points are Cottonwood, Grangeville, Kamiah, Kooskia, Culdesac and Kendrick, although farmers at various other rail towns are adding their quota.

Kamiah and Kooskia shipped four cars last week. Kendrick is shipping on the average a car a week as are Culdesac growers. Cottonwood shipments are running around four cars weekly and Grangeville consignments are almost equal.

Hogs and cattle comprise the major part of the shipments. Many farmers have found it profitable to convert their wheat into pork and the recent price advance has justified their decision.

Local Swimming About Done

Swimming in the local swimming hole near the Vollmer-Clearwater Warehouse is about done for this year, the creek having dropped to such a level that it does not keep the eddy clean and a green scum is forming on the water.

It is said that the Jacobs hole, near the Ira Foster place is still fresh and wholesome and most of the youngsters are going up there. However, if the cool weather continues for a few weeks more, there won't be any use for a swimming hole of any kind.

A Freak Egg

Much has been said at various times about large eggs produced in various parts of the country, but Mrs. Claud Craig of Southwick brought to the Gazette office last Saturday an egg that is indeed a freak. By putting one's fingers around it, it resembles a large white horse eye, with the opening and winkers around the eye-ball.

It also looks like old biddy, after she had about made up her mind to go on laying eggs, was about to change it on account of the "repression." Anyway, it's a freak.

LESS SPENDING, NOT MORE REVENUE

While the newspapers of all parties and no parties, and men and women in all stations of life up and down the land are demanding that congress reduce the expenses of government by at least a billion dollars a year, why do those in charge of the government spend all their time trying to find new ways of raising revenue? We might not need to find many new ways to do this if we were to cut our costs to meet the revenue we have.

The people are distinctly opposed to being milked further and they are just as distinctly in favor of reducing expenses so that the milking process need not be extended.

Figures show that the cost of government in the United States—meaning the costs of all kinds of government—amounted to 17 per cent of our entire national income last year and statisticians say that this year the cost may be as much as 25 per cent. In other words the average man will be working nearly one-fourth of all his time in 1932 to support the government, with its tens of thousands of idlers and wastrels and its unnecessary agencies of one kind and another.

Of course the federal budget must be balanced, but that can easily be done if we first reduce the budget to the legitimate needs of the country. Our governments need to spend less, rather than to collect more.

It is stated with some show of authority that the federal government alone has been spending $5,000 a minute in the last year in excess of its income, and some states and cities have been doing the same thing proportionately. If the national government will lack two and a half billion dollars this year of being able to pay its debts, the fault is largely in the unnecessary spending, not altogether a lack of revenue.

Citizens have a duty to perform in this crisis. They can demand of every candidate for every office that spends the public's money, which means all of them, that he take a firm stand in favor of reducing the expenses of government, under threat that the voters will defeat him next November if he does not.

It's time to quit trying to life ourselves by our bootstraps, time to quit employing stimulants for business and to give it a remedy. That remedy is lower costs of government, not some new form of taxes, not the trying-out of some pet theory like that of the farm board, which has cost the people a half billion dollars while the farmers condition (and that of all us) was gradually becoming worse.

The American railroads have reduced their operating expenses 40 per cent since 1929. Had the governments of this country done the same thing we would not now have to be worrying about new tax laws and balancing budgets without sufficient funds.

More Locust Trees In Bloom

Last week we made mention of the fact that the locust trees around the telephone office building were in full bloom. Locust trees at the E. H. Dammarell home, which had also been treated to a generous pruning last spring, were also in bloom last week. Not heavily, of course, but many of the bloom were in evidence.

Boy Kills 224 Rattlers

Louis Johnson, Illa, Wash., a teenage boy, is credited with destroying 224 rattlesnakes, 52 crows, 21 skunks, 39 hawks, 4 kingfishers, 886 young magpies and eggs, 23 owls and 39 porcupines between March 1 and July 1 in a predatory bird and animal campaign conducted by the Wenaha Game Protective associations.

Dies From Auto Injuries

Returning from the funeral of his brother-in-law at Chatteroy, the Rev. J. G. Carrick drove his automobile into O. E. Bailey, 76, former Asotin county commissioner and prominent fruit grower at Clarkston Friday, and Bailey died Saturday. He suffered a broken leg, a broken arm, scalp cuts and internal injuries.

Many Beans Shipped

The Kendrick Rochdale company reports that they have shipped four cars of beans to Troy this week, while the Kendrick Bean Growers association reports the shipment of one car of cleaned beans to Seattle and several hundred sacks sent out on trucks to various points.

Gold Hunters Return

Harold Thomas and Lester Crocker returned to civilization again last Friday evening, bringing their gold separator with them. They said they were sure the machine would work all right if they had been able to find the proper place for its use.

There is no doubt but that there is much gold in "them thar hills" throughout the mountains of Idaho, as indicated by a find of color in almost every sand-bar in the entire region, but the question is, where does it come from?

Mr. Thomas says he is not going to give up as yet and will try again.

HEADING TOWARD SOCIALISM—FIVE-YEAR PLAN NEXT?

A proposal that Idaho go into the gasoline business to bring down the price was broached Saturday by George G. Barrett, state treasurer.

Analyzing in a statement the costs of delivering the gasoline to Idaho, he said it could be brought here at 20.3 cents a gallon and with the state charging two cents for overhead, a saving of more than four cents a gallon could be made.

"During March," he said, "Idaho used 2,834,925 gallons of gasoline. If the state made it possible to buy gasoline at 22 cents a gallon instead of the present 26 1/2 cent product, this would mean a saving of $127,571 a month or $1,530,859 a year. In two years we would save sufficient money to pay the state's bonded debt."

He said it would not seriously affect Idaho dealers in the commodity since retailers are assured a three or four cent a gallon margin regardless of the prevailing price.

Yes, but if the state went into the gasoline business, does Mr. Barrett mean to say that by supplying gas at a 2-cent margin isn't going to affect the dealers now handling that commodity?

It seems now-a-days that as soon as a man gets into politics he immediately begins to figure out some way to hamper the activities and profits of the independent dealer—no matter in what line.

It is understood that Gov. C. Ben Ross is advocating a state-printed warehouse receipt, which all elevators and warehouses in the state will be compelled to use—taking just that amount of business away from the local printer is just as good and worth just as much as one contracted for by the state and furnished to warehouses. The state of Idaho has no printing office of its own, hence the printing thus done would have to be let by contract, which would preclude many printers who are now doing that class of work satisfactorily.

Hoover To Blame For This?

When considering talk of further government participation in business, it might be profitable to recall what was happening in this country some fifteen years ago. Then the government was very much in business, forced in the entry of this country into the World War. Among its other activities was the buying of supplies for the American Expeditionary Force. It bought, and bought, and bought, far in excess of actual requirements. Some of the figures sufficiently tell the story.

According to statistics gathered by Professor James E. Boyle of Cornell, the government bought nearly 3,000,000 halters for 300,000 horses and mules. It bought more than 2,000,000 nose bags, or about three for each horse and mule. It was equally generous in caring for the men who might ride horseback in its service. It had in all 86,000 cavalry horses, and it bought 945,000 saddles, and 585,000 saddle bags. It made sure that ordinance officers who wore spurs need not worry about spur straps to replace those that broke. There were purchased 712,510 complete sets of these straps, or thirty-six for each officer. When it came to providing for the soldiers who were on foot, there were delivered 32,000,000 pairs of shoes, or nearly ten pairs for each of the 3,513,000 men enrolled.

"Ma" Kennedy In Print Again

"Ma" Kennedy has made application to a court of justice to get herself "tied loose" from her erring husband, "What-a-Man" Hudson. Now she says he is just a "vagabond lover" and says "I am just a little girl trying to get along" and can't stand the strain any longer.

And another thing—"Ma" just can't thrive without publicity.

GRAIN MARKETS LOWER AND DEMAND VERY DULL

Grain markets turned easier during the week ending July 15, with improved prospects reflected in upward revision of crop forecasts and continued slack inquiry for current market offerings, the principal weakening influence, according to the Weekly Grain Market Review of the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Domestic wheat markets weakened, with a dull export demand, although a moderately active local milling inquiry was apparent in some markets. Corn showed some independent strength under the more favorable feeding situation, but the favorable crop outlook was a weakening market influence. Rye was easier with wheat, and oats and barley weakened under the influence of an approaching good harvest. Domestic flax markets worked slightly lower in sympathy with other grains and despite the firmness in the situation abroad.

Domestic wheat crop prospects improved during June and the indicated outturn of all wheat July 1, was placed at 736,971,000 bushels as against 894,204,000 bushels produced last year. Stocks of old wheat remaining on farms July 1 totaled 71,925,000 bushels against 31,865,000 bushels a year ago. The increase in farm stocks was largely offset by smaller stocks in store at the principal markets, which totaled 168,405,000 bushels as against 203,967,000 bushels for the corresponding date last year. Official data are not yet available for merchant mill and country mill and elevator stocks, but trade advices suggest increases in stocks in these positions, although such increases will not be sufficiently large to offset the reduction in the new crop. Even though domestic supplies for this season should be reduced materially from those of a year ago they will still be well in excess of the usual domestic requirements. During the last crop season, utilization of wheat within the U. S., including wheat ground for domestic consumption and wheat used on farms where grown, amounted to approximately 738,706,000 bushels as against 727,807,000 for the preceding year. Mill grindings, exclusive of wheat flour exports, totaled 467,889,000 bushels as against 480,599,000 bushels for the preceding year. Wheat fed on farms growing wheat, exclusive of wheat purchased for feed, reached the record amount of 184,158,000 bushels as compared with 159,142,000 bushels in the preceding year, and it was four times as large as the annual average from the six preceding crops.

The Canadian spring wheat crop has made generally favorable progress during the week and prospects are now considerably better than a year ago. The condition of all wheat as of June 30 was officially reported at 99 per cent of the long time average yield, as against 58 per cent at the corresponding date a year ago. Recent rains over the west have greatly added to the moisture supply and with few exceptions the moisture condition is fair to good.

European crop conditions are still mostly satisfactory, although some deterioration has recently occurred from unusually hot, dry weather. The harvest in the winter wheat regions of Russia were interrupted by rains, but conditions are reported generally favorable except where severe winter killing occurred. Additional inquiries for space for grain shipments from south Russian ports to the United Kingdom or Continent during August and September were reported during the week. Cutting of wheat is expected to begin in Germany next week and a record harvest is forecast.

Pacific Northwest markets showed some independent strength and were relatively firmer than middle western markets. Cash wheat prices were weaker than futures and showed up losses of from 2c to 3c, reflecting the lack of export inquiry and slack milling demand. Growers were offering sparingly at current low prices and receipts at Puget Sound and Columbia river terminals totaled only 230 cars as against 918 for the same week last year. Merchant Exchange statistics report wheat and flour exports from Puget Sound and Columbia river ports for the year ending June 30 at around 53,800,000 bushels against 48,600,000 for the previous season, with increased shipments to the Orient and California more than offsetting the smaller movements to Europe. GRAIN MARKETS LOWER AND DEMAND VERY DULL wheat arrived at Portland from central Oregon, grading No. 3 soft white and testing 57½ pounds per bushel. Foreign grain markets weakened under the influence of more favorable prospects for the new crops in North America and in some parts of Europe, together with a slack demand for current offerings. Import restrictions are still holding in check the free movement of wheat into consuming channels and trade regulations are being further tightened.

Rattlesnake Information
Since the snake scare of a week or so ago, there has been considerable discussion and much conjecture about rattlesnakes in general. In order to give as much information as possible regarding these deadly reptiles, we clipped the following from the Spokesman-Review, it being from the pen of a Mr. Wright, who has made a study of this variety of snakes, and you may "Believe It or Not."

At present Mr. Wright has interested himself in rattlesnakes and has become an authority on the subject. A member of the Arizona state game conservation organization and the Tuscon National History society of the University of Arizona, he has given many lectures in Arizona on the subject. Rattlesnakes don't die from the effect of biting themselves or each other, Mr. Wright contends. A rattlesnake will die in 20 minutes if it can't get out of the sun. They like reflected sunlight, not direct sunlight and only sun themselves from the middle of February until the first of May. At such times they pile themselves one upon another, coiled, sometimes eight or nine in a pile, just outside their holes.

Rattlesnakes eat squirrels, gophers, rabbits—things that are detrimental to man and shouldn't be killed. Rattlesnakes travel only during the nights and in the mornings and if not disturbed and if they find sufficient food, will probably not cover more than an acre a day. Fifty per cent of the rattlesnakes never rattle before they strike. When a rattlesnake gets hot it gets mean. Rattlesnake poison is orange-colored and crystallizes as soon as it contacts the air. A big rattler will squirt about a tablespoonful of poison. These are a few of Mr. Wright's deductions, gathered in his snake studies of the last four years.

Commissioners Adopt New Plan
The Latah county commissioners, in session at Moscow, have adopted the following plan for taking care of charitable work: A paid supervisor acting under set rules, a county woodyard, central supply depot and uniform rates for county medical aids, were the major purposes of a five-point relief program adopted by the county commissioners. Coordination of the work of the associated charities, Red Cross anti-tuberculosis league and the county commissioners was the goal sought by the program. Tentative approval was given the scheme. The complete program includes a paid supervisor to investigate all relief cases to avoid duplication; a uniform set of rules to apply to all charity and indigent cases; continuation and extension of the wood pile plan to supply unemployed with work and provide fuel for needy; establishment of a central depot for clothes and produce donated to charity; formulation of a satisfactory fee system to be used as basis for paying charity cases from county funds.

IDAHO SPENDING MORE THAN $2,000,000 FOR ROADS
Idaho now has two million dollars worth of highway work under construction or contracted for, the bureau of highways announced Monday. Remaining to be let is about three-quarters of a million of federal aid work and possibly a quarter million dollars worth of state aid work. Of the total now under construction a million and a half, or $1,464,000, is federal aid work, of which the federal government is to pay 60 per cent, the remainder being paid by local and state funds. This figure represents the completed cost, as estimated, of the contracts now in effect. An additional $758,180 has been budgeted for other federal aid projects to be let in the near future, making a total of $2,223,947 of federal aid work on the program this year. State aid projects now under construction total $354,664. In addition to this there is work being done by stipulation—that is, either by state or county, and being done without advertising or by force account, to the total of $61,443, making a total state aid program of $416,107. These figures, it was explained, are larger than the sum total of the contracts since the state on oiling jobs must buy the oil, and also purchase culverts, piping, guard rail and other materials. The state aid contracts which may be let this year are dependent upon the state of the highway receipts for the remainder of the year.

"A Law Ridden" Country
Around 500 laws were enacted by congress during the session ended Saturday night. They were chosen from 18,000 bills introduced, one of the bumper bill crops of history. Of this extraordinary total of ideas on what legislation the country needed, 13,000 were presented in the house, 5,000 in the senate. Most were of minor importance. The house figure compares with only 7,700 for the last long session of congress. Besides the bills in both houses this term, there were simple resolutions, joint resolutions, concurrent resolutions which would add approximately another thousand thoughts on the public weal—that's 19,000 brain children. The tally of the last previous long session showed 517 public laws, 281 private laws and resolutions, 84 public resolutions passed and signed by the president—a larger total than for this session.

The Indispensable Foods
When the family budget must be curtailed, the amount of care exercised in buying foods must be increased. Certain foods are essential to the health of both adults and children. Among these are cereals, citrus fruits, leafy vegetables, eggs and most important of all—first-quality milk. Milk in its various forms contributes more than half the total calcium consumed in the ordinary American diet. It is the greatest of bone builders. According to health authorities, better health is often enjoyed by thin children who have been properly fed with milk and fruits, than by children of normal weight who over-indulge in filling and fattening foods. Milk belongs on every table. The housewife should take every precaution to make sure that it comes from a responsible source of supply, and of unquestioned purity.

Weed Seed
Here's weed news for the farmer—but it's bad. Seeds of wild morning glory, buried for 30 years, sprouted almost at once after being unearthed and planted, the United States Department of Agriculture reports. The seeds were buried as part of an experiment to discover how long seeds may lie in the soil and still grow, and to discover how long seeds must be buried to be killed. The morning glory will be given a further opportunity to prove its "staying power," as some seeds buried 30 years ago are still in the ground and will not be removed for 10 more years.

No Tax Santa Claus
Uncle Sam, tax collector, is the very reverse of Santa Claus, for whom some deluded people have mistaken him, says the Oregonian. He does not spread bounty; he collects with relentless hand from all of us, from the cradle to the grave. When we ask Congress for money, we might as well realize that it will be taken from our own pockets.
