Select Books
While in Boise during vacation Miss Swayne visited the State Traveling library and selected a new shipment of books for the school library to replace the ones that were borrowed this fall. Along with twenty books received just before vacation this will enlarge greatly the high school library. The students read more of these books than those in the school library.

Athletics
The boys' and girls' basketball teams will appear in their new uniforms for the first time next Friday night when they play a double-header game with Lapwai at the gymnasium, starting at 7:15. This is one of the hardest games on the schedule, and some fine playing is expected. This being the first game played in the new uniforms, we are hoping that they will bring lots of luck. Everyone should be on hand to witness a real thriller.

The boys have red jerseys and shorts, while the girls suits are one-piece black and white rompers.

Miscellaneous News
The Home Economics girls served candy to the manual training boys who finished the necessary equipment for the domestic science room.

This week the girls will study one-dish meals.

The Spanish newspaper, "Nuevo Mundo" has arrived. Some of the boys have already taken a fancy to the senioritas. It is also interesting to know that the movie, "The Sign of the Cross" is now playing in Madrid and that Joe E. Brown and Farina are also showing there.

Vernon Henry has finished a fine radio stand and Herbert McDowell has painted his tool chest.

Typing I class is now using a new system of computing the gross number of words, whereby a person making over three or more errors finds he has not written any words. This is a more severe step in eliminating errors.

Grade Notes
The first and second grades are beginning the study of Eskimos. The seventh and eighth grades are busily preparing for the January state examination.

Bits of Nonsense
Miss Swayne: "James, what is the plural of hippopotamus?"
James: "The plural of hippopotamus is h-i-p-e.— Oh, well, who'd want more than one, anyway?"

Beware Southern Grown Alfalfa Seed

With a short crop of northern grown seed during this last season, most of this has been shipped east where it commands a good price. In order to furnish the local market with seed for spring and summer plantings some seed dealers have been forced to ship seed into Idaho from New Mexico and Arizona. Experiment station results have proven conclusively that southern grown seed is not adapted to Idaho and that results from seeding this seed will be disappointing.

The Idaho state seed law requires that all seed exposed for sale or sold within the state shall be labeled as to origin. Farmers are advised and urged to ask for this information before purchasing seed and to have the dealers furnish a written tag or statement relative to the origin of the seed purchased.

Southern grown seed usually has a splendid appearance, being bright and of good color. However, appearance has nothing to do with winter hardiness. Idaho has an enviable reputation as a producer of "hardy alfalfa seed". Let's not spoil this reputation by seeding southern grown seed, says H. L. Spence, Jr., field agronomist and seed commissioner.

Poor Little Kitty

Four-year-old Bobby was stroking his cat before the fireplace in perfect content. The cat, also happy, began to purr loudly. Bobby gazed at her askance for a while, then suddenly seized her by the tail and dragged her roughly away from the hearth. His mother interposed.

"You must not hurt your kitty, Bobby."

"I'm not," said Bobby protestingly, "but I've got to get her away from their fire. She's beginning to boil."

Change in Banking Hours

Owing to a new code being prepared and formulated in Washington in accordance with the NRA and Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation governing all banks, the local banks will, in order to comply with all requirements of the code and to satisfy the demands of the Surety and Bonding companies, make some changes in their hours.

The tentative hours for banking business will be from 9 o'clock to 12 noon and 1 o'clock to 3 o'clock p. m., with closing hour as 12 noon on Saturdays. It will be only during those hours that the banks will be permitted to keep their money safe open and transact commercial business.

This may work a little hardship at first on many who have been accustomed to receiving 24-hour banking service in the small towns, but due to the many recent bank hold-ups in the small communities, in the early mornings and late evenings, they believe this will aid considerably in curtailing the activities of holdups and reduce the excessive premiums the banks have to pay at this time for protection from thugs.

The banks which come under the Federal Deposit Guarantee must comply, as the Insurance Corporation are guaranteeing the deposits and must insist that these regulations be complied with for their own protection.

GRAIN MARKET TURNS UPWARD IN 1933

In the middle of December, Argentine wheat was quoted at Liverpool in terms of U. S. money at about 59c, No. 2 Manitoba at 75c, Australian wheat at 70c and Russian wheat at 57c per bushel.

Pacific Northwestern barley markets held practically unchanged from a week ago. A moderate but steady demand from eastern and middle-western areas for malting types was a strengthening influence. Local demand for feeding grades continuing dull, but a firm holding tendency by growers, with a more active inquiry for malting grades, held the market steady. On December 28, No. 2 bright western barley was quoted at Portland at 92½c per 100, sacked.

Oats markets shared the firmer tendency in other grains although there was little change in the general market situation. In Pacific Northwestern markets demand was only moderate to light from both local and eastern markets. No. 2 gray and No. 2 white oats were selling at $1.12½ per 100, sacked, at Portland.

Wheat prices fluctuated sharply during the season under variable market influences. Domestic wheat prices at the beginning of 1933, were nearer the lowest point in many years. Early in March an advance began which carried the average price on all classes and grades to $1.08 per bushel, around the middle of July. Some of this gain was lost later, however, and at the middle of December the average price had declined to 84c per bushel. Durum held independently firm during the second half of the year, as a result of short supplies.

Price changes in foreign wheat markets were obscured by fluctuations in foreign exchange. When prices of wheat at important Continental European markets, however, are converted at par values of exchange, quotations on French wheat advanced about 13c per bushel during the year, with German wheat at Hamburg quoted practically the same at the close of the period as at the first of the year, while Italian wheat declined about 40c per bushel. Prices in these countries have been held up above quotations on foreign wheat. Quotations on foreign wheat at Liverpool were higher in December than in January, 1933, but during the year prices of foreign wheats at Liverpool reached the lowest point in terms of gold, in the history of that market.
