IDAHO, MONTANA, WYOM— ING INCREASE BEAN CROP

The reported intentions to plant beans in three states, Idaho, Montana, and Wyoming, which produce principally Great Northern beans show that growers plan to increase their acreage about 18 per cent above last year. The intentions report indicates a 15 per cent increase in Idaho, 20 per cent in Montana, and 30 per cent in Wyoming. Together these three states plan an acreage in 1934 of 219,000 acres compared with 185,000 in 1933, and a low for recent years in 1932 of 136,000 acres. The acreage of beans in these three states in 1930 and 1931 had reached a peak of 252,000 acres.

Production on the intended acres at yields equal to the average for the five year period, 1929-33, would mean an outturn in 1934 of about 2,377,000 bags compared with an estimated production last season of 2,319,000 bags, and 1,507,000 bags in 1932.

The carryover of Great Northern at the beginning of the current season was about 100,000 bags less than a year earlier. On September 1, 1933, the estimate was 350,000 bags carried into the new season. That would mean that coupled with the 1933 crop the supply of that class of beans was about a third larger than the previous year.

Despite the fact that supplies of the Great Northern during the current season have been large, prices have shown a rather marked advance from the low offers received in 1932. Those higher prices have been due principally to the rise in the price level and increase in purchasing power of consumers and also to the smaller competing supplies of small white or pea beans.

Data are not available to indicate the amount of remaining supplies on hand or to serve as a basis for estimating the carryover at the end of the current season. Carlot movement, however, of beans as reported from the three principal Great Northern producing states, Idaho, Montana Wyoming, has been 30 per cent greater during the period from September 1 through January this season than during the corresponding period a year ago. Unless this increased movement has gone into storage in other markets this should be taken to indicate that the trade movement of Great Northern this year has been sufficiently increased to offset the increased supplies available at the beginning of the 1933-34 crop year.

Intentions reports from Michigan where the principal variety produced is pea beans show an indicated increase of 20 per cent in acreage over a year ago. In New York state the increase is estimated at 5 per cent. These increases in acreage probably mean larger supplies of this variety which compete with Idaho's Great Northern. For the United States as a whole the intentions reported indicate an increase of 16.4 per cent or an acreage of 1,943,000 acres compared to 1,671,000 last year and 1,408,000 in 1932. The intended acreage is about the same as in 1930 and 1931 when bean acreage in the United States was at its peak.

If average yields are secured on this intended acreage, it would mean a crop in the neighborhood of 13,420,000 bags as compared to 12,280,000 in 1933; 10,440,000 in 1932, and 13,759,000 in 1930, the record year.

Big Egg Contest Closes

The annual big egg contest put on by the gazette, came to a close last Saturday evening, with some 15 entrants, and many large "cackle-fruit" were brought to the office. All were carefully measured both for circumference and length. A careful check showed that Mrs. D. A. Bishop of Juliaetta and Mrs. Henry Kortemeier of Kendrick brought in eggs of identically the same size, each containing 236-16ths inches combined circumference and length, and each was awarded a six-months subscription to the Gazette.

Mrs. Harry Langdon of American Ridge brought in an egg that was so close in size to the others that we are giving her a three-months subscription, the size being 235-16ths.

Next year we will again put on our usual "Big Egg" contest, so it behooves all who would be in the limelight to improve their flocks with the idea of bringing in the largest egg. We still have the eggs, with the measurements, and anyone wishing to take a look at them, or measure them, are welcome to do so.

We might say that one of the contestants resides at Prosser, Wash.— J. H. Bolon.

Londoner Visits Kendrick

Mrs. J. A. Gordon-Roberts, whose home is in London, England, on Friday of last week visited at the home of her brother, Frank H. Rider, and family. Mrs. Gordon-Roberts formerly resided in Lewiston and she was accompanied from that city to Kendrick by Mrs. W. E. Gragg, who also spent the day at the Rider home. Mrs. Gordon-Roberts' husband is a retired English army officer.

DELINQUENT TAX SITUATION CHANGING

During the 4-year period 1929-1932, when tax levies and bonded debt in Idaho were being materially decreased, the amount of delinquent taxes on the county rolls jumped from $6,371,437 to $10,550,712, or 65.6 per cent, it is revealed by figures compiled by the State Chamber of Commerce.

This astounding increase in delinquencies can be attributed directly to the depression which brought such restricted incomes that hard-pressed owners permitted the taxes against their property to accumulate. During the past few months, it should be remarked, the situation has been materially changed through improved industrial conditions and government refinancing of homes and farms, one requirement of which is the payment of taxes on property. Large amounts of delinquencies have been liquidated thereby from the rolls since the State Chamber's figures were gathered.

The five counties with the largest increases in delinquencies during the period in question were as follows: Latah, 264.1 per cent; Lewis, 262.2; Clearwater, 257.5; Gooding, 220.5; and Shoshone, 218.1.

In three counties, Bonner, Butte and Custer, the delinquent taxes actually decreased during the period, in the respective percentages of 2.1; 7.5 and 4.4 per cent.

In 1929 Cassia county had the largest amount of unpaid taxes, $423,214, with Ada county a close second with $418,956. In 1932 the high totals were as follows: Twin Falls, $751,092; Ada, $665,003; Cassia, $570,037; Canyon, $563,582; and Bannock, $562,890.

The combination of three significant tax facts during the period, lower levies, increased non-payments and steadily decreasing bonded debt, constitute first-hand proof of the effectiveness of the co-operative campaign for public economy that was conducted.

Returns From Germany

Henry Reil returned Tuesday from a four-months trip to Germany. He sailed from New York on December 7 on the SS Bremen, the crossing taking six days. He also returned from Germany on the Bremen, the crossing again taking six days, landing at New York March 29 and reaching home April 3—and he said, as they all do, "And I am more than glad to be back home in Idaho and am now ready to go to work."

Mr. Reil spent most of the time with his mother at their old home at Olsdurg, Germany, although he traveled over other parts of Germany with some of his friends, making the trip by auto. During that time he also visited an automobile show at Berlin, where he saw the first automobile ever made—a Benz.

Upon his leaving Germany, his brothers and some of his boy and girl friends gave him a farewell trip by auto to Bremerhaven, which was very much enjoyed.

Mr. Reil states that the people of Germany are satisfied with present conditions and with Hitler and his ideas and they say that Hitler is the only man who would and could help them. He states that conditions seem to be improving there—and that there is no talk of war in that country.

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE WEEK'S NEWS DISPATCHES

By a three-vote margin, the senate last week enacted over President Roosevelt's veto the independent offices appropriation bill with veterans and federal pay provisions higher than the administration had wanted. The vote of 63 to 27 ended seven hours of uproarious debate and completed the route of administration forces started by the house when it voted 310 to 72 against the president. A two thirds majority was required to pass the measure over the veto. Cheers and loud applause swept the packed galleries as vice-president Garner announced the result. Republicans lined up solidly to override the veto, 33 of them voting "aye." Twenty nine democrats left the reservation to vote with them, along with the lone farmer-labor member, Shipstead of Minnesota. The 27 answering "no" were all democrats.

The Senate moved swiftly last Friday to arm the federal government with power to cope with gangsters and racketeers. Virtually without debate, and by unanimous consent, it passed and sent to the house seven bills recommended by Attorney-General Cummings to control organized crime. The bills would give the justice department far broader power than it has had to track down and prosecute gangsters for kidnaping and commercial racketeering. The Senate acted on the important legislation with almost unprecedented speed after Chairman Ashurst of the judiciary committee and other senators urged approval of the bills.

A grim tragedy, the battering to death of six persons after they had been bound and gagged, was discovered Saturday at the pretentious beach home of Frank Flieder, a well-to-do retired grocery store operator, at Erland's point, near Bremerton, Washington. The victims, four men and two women, among them Frank Flieder and his wife, had been dead from 36 to 48 hours. Their hands had been tied behind their backs, and their mouths had been taped. Sheriff D. L. Blankenship reported. Robbery was the apparent motive for the ghastly deed, as the house had been ransacked, and Mrs. Flieder had been reported to have had diamonds and other valuables in the house.

John "The Killer" Dillinger, with a submachine gun in his hands and a big green sedan awaiting him, snatched his way out of a police trap Saturday at St. Paul, Minnesota, and once more foiled the law. Finger prints left behind as he fled with a woman, believed wounded, and a man, presumably one of the members of his old gang, John Hamilton, definitely established, authorities said, that one of the trio was the widely hunted desperado who broke out of jail at Crown Point, Ind., last month. "Dillinger's fingerprints," authorities said, were found on both the automobile abandoned by the trio and in the apartment. Among the clothing and other effects taken to headquarters for examination, was a bullet-proof vest and a photograph of Dillinger garbed in the uniform of a sailor taken when he was apparently about 20 years old.

Turkey has officially notified the American government it can have Samuel Insull for trial, and put him in jail—despite his tears—to insure his being on hand when American Agents arrived to start him back to Chicago. Turkish authorities, apparently mindful of the 74-year-old fugitive's heart which doctors say has been ailing for some time, agreed, however, to grant him a few liberties not given the ordinary run of prisoners. Among these privileges, it was learned, will be the right to go to a restaurant for his meals.

Miss Spencer Resigns Position

Miss Fern Spencer, who has been teaching home economics, together with other subjects, in the Kendrick High school since last fall, has resigned her position and has accepted a position with the state and federal government in extension work and home economics. She will spend two weeks each month traveling and two weeks in her office at the University of Idaho. Her territory will be from Moscow to the Canadian line.

Those interested in the Kendrick school are loth to give Miss Spencer up, but they feel that she should be given an opportunity to accept a more remunerative position and have released her from her contract.

Her successor has not been selected as yet, but assurances have been given that she will be on the job Monday morning.

WHEAT IN SLOW DEMAND —OFFERINGS MODERATE

Grain markets were dull during the week ended March 30, and prices lost most of the gains made since the first of January, according to the Weekly Grain Market Review of the U. S. Bureau of agricultural Economics. Reduced takings by mills, lack of export outlet except through subsidized shipments of the Emergency Export Association, and beneficial rains in some sections of both the winter and spring wheat areas, were the principal weakening influences in the wheat market. Feed grains declined more than wheat, with current demand very dull. Feeding and shipping inquiry for corn slackened and the heavy market stocks tended to depress prices. Trading in oats was nearly at a standstill and prices declined with corn. Barley was sharply lower, with demand slow for both malting and feeding types. Flax prices were down about 1c below a week ago, with offerings exceedingly small and crushers rather indifferent buyers.

The wheat situation on the whole was not materially changed during the week. Supplies in the principal exporting countries, outside of the United States are about as large as a year ago, but takings by importing countries are smaller.

Canadian wheat was in relatively better demand than grain from other countries and sales of about 800,000 bushels of No. 1 Manitoba northern were reported at Liverpool at 80 5-8c per bushel, for May shipment from Atlantic ports. This was reflected in a steady market at Winnipeg where No. 1 Manitoba northern was quoted at 66 1-8c per bushel. United States Pacific white wheat for March shipment was quoted at Liverpool at 61 1/2c per bushel. Prices of native wheat in Europe held about unchanged.

Prices of French wheat have advanced about 3c per bushel since the first of January, while Italian wheat has declined about 4c per bushel. Prices of German wheat declined during February but at the close of March were quoted at Hamburg at practically the same price as at the first of January.

Domestic wheat markets declined 1c to 2c per bushel, influenced by the receipt of needed moisture in some sections of the drought areas and by a continued dull demand from mills.

General to heavy rains were received in most of Oklahoma and Texas and wheat prospects were materially improved in that area. Good rains in the Ohio valley and light rains or snow in some sections of the spring wheat areas also were helpful.

In Western Kansas however, dust storms did some damage during the week and moisture was still badly needed in the northern Great Plains, including the Dakotas, Nebraska, Iowa and Wisconsin. Marketings of both Winter and Spring wheat were only moderate, but easily sufficient for current trade needs.

Cash wheat markets followed generally the decline in futures. Receipts at the principal winter wheat markets totaled 811 cars compared with 1,258 cars during the corresponding week last year.

Offerings of soft winter wheat were generally below current trade needs and sales were hardly sufficient to establish reliable quotations. No. 2 was quoted nominally at Kansas City at 80-80 1/2c, at St. Louis at 88-88 1/2c, and at Chicago at 90 1/2c per bushel.

Pacific coast markets held generally steady despite weakness at Eastern points. The operation of the Emergency Export association was the principal strengthening influence in the Northwest, since local mill demand continued dull and inquiry from Atlantic coast and California buyers was very light. Receipts at Puget Sound and Columbia river terminals were twice those of a year ago and totaled 892 cars. Receipts represented principally deliveries to the Export Association. Export sales by the Association during the week totaled approximately 1,500,000 bushels bringing the total to 23,300,000 bushels, of which about 3,750,000 bushels was sold as flour. The prices offered by the Export Association was advanced March 29, to 76c per bushel for No. 1 soft white, sacked, delivered track tidewater terminals. In the cash market Big Bend bluestem hard white was quoted at 76 1/2c, 12% protein dark hard winter at 81c, and other varieties at 75c per bushel, sacked, basis No. 1. California wheat markets were steady but quiet. Mills were taking

Away To The Mountains
Robert Ratliff

Away, away to the mountain side
Away to the tumbling streams
Where little boats upon them ride
While I follow them in dreams.
Out they start with leaves for boats
And but two feet by line
It goes on the sea and floats
The steamers of our time.
It carries my thoughts back
When I was small but burning
To follow my ambition's track
And to see my young life's yearning.
Long has that ceased to be,
But fresh in my memory the feeling
My dreams have reached their sea
And all are slowly fading.

Barnum Formerly Sold Bicycles
We note an article on the front page of the LeRoy, Illinois, Journal, under date of March 9, 1934, under the heading "LeRoy's Business and Professional People of Over Forty Years Ago."

In the list we find Geo. P. Barnum—Bicycles and Sporting Goods. The article goes on to state that of the one hundred and fifty merchants mentioned, only eighteen remain in LeRoy and mentions Mr. Barnum as a resident of Idaho.

Mr. Barnum in 1890 sold his bicycle business in LeRoy, going further east, working in a large bicycle factory in winters and bicycle racing summers, finally landing on the Pacific Coast in 1896. Quitting his job with the Scott Shipbuilding Co., San Francisco, in 1898, and enlisting for the Spanish American war. Transferring to the 14th Infantry Regulars, he saw service in China during the Boxer uprising.

Mr. Barnum returned to the U. S. in 1904, coming to Kendrick and has been a resident and business man here since that time, with the exception of the period of the World's War, during which time he served as a captain in the Engineering Corps.

In checking up on the business men of Kendrick we find Mr. Barnum is the only man in business today who was in business here at the time of the big fire in 1904, which destroyed the main part of Kendrick.

In that year Barnum was a building contractor and operated the Barnum Lumber and Mill Co., which is now known as the Barnum Lumber & Hardware Co.

WHEAT IN SLOW DEMAND —OFFERINGS MODERATE

only small quantities for current needs while feeders were using increased amounts of feed barley which is now relatively cheaper than wheat. Growers were selling slowly but current offerings were generally sufficient for trade needs. Small quantities of Washington and Oregon high protein wheat were taken by Bay Region mills to complete mill mixtures. Additional sales of California wheat were made to Atlantic Seaboard points, consisting principally of Soft White, with a small tonnage of hard white wheat. Milling inquiry at Los Angeles was also slow and smaller quantities were being taken by poultrymen as a result of reduced flocks and the comparatively light hatch of chicks this season. At the close of the market March 29, No. 1 hard white wheat was quoted at San Francisco at $1.15-1.20 and at Los Angeles at $1.20-1.22. No. 1 soft white was quoted at San Francisco at $1.10-1.15 and at Los Angeles at $1.20 to $1.22 per 100, sacked. No 2 soft and western white from Washington and Oregon were offered at $1.30 in bulk, delivered San Francisco docks.

Oats markets were dull and weaker with continued liberal offerings. Pacific Northwestern markets were quiet and trading extremely light. Atlantic Seaboard buyers who have taken considerable quantities of Oregon oats this season, were out of the market. Demand from cereal mills for gray oats continued dull with no sales reported. At the close of the market March 29, No. 2 white oats were quoted at Portland at 95¢ per 100, sacked. Middlewestern markets were weak and unsettled with prices averaging 3¢ to 4¢ lower for the week.

Pacific Northwestern barley markets were quiet with demand for both malting and feeding types extremely dull. Trading and movement were the lightest of recent weeks. Inquiry for malting types from the Willamette Valley was negligible, with reports indicating that the present needs of Eastern dealers are practically filled. Local inquiry for feeding barley was light with good pasturage and low returns from dairy products restricting feed purchases. Light offerings from growers were a steady factor and tended to maintain local prices. At the close of the market March 29, No. 2 Bright Western was quoted at Portland at 90¢ per 100, with malting barley from the Willamette valley nominally quoted at $1.05 per 100, both sacked.
