

as Convenient as Electric Light

NOW...a new low water heating rate (8/10 of a cent per kilowatt hour) and a new automatic water heater combine to bring the convenience of hot water any time and all the time within the reach of the most modest household budget.

You pay only for what you use. Automatic temperature control turns the current "on" and "off" as needed. The current is actually "on" only a part of the time, but the insulated tank keeps the water hot all the time...instantly available, day or night.

Because of our confidence in the perfection of this newest development in water heating we will make you this trial offer:

We will install this new water heater in any residence at our expense. If you are satisfied, it stays. If not...and you are the sole judge...out it comes, your down payment is refunded and your former water heating system re-installed...AT OUR EXPENSE!

THE ELECTRICITY SERVES & SAVES THE WASHINGTON WATER POWER CO.

"Her First Mate"

Those goofy love birds—ZaSu Pitts and Slim Summerville—are all at sea in a dizzy new love affair, contracted somewhere around Snag Harbor, Maine, from which place they had never gotten far. Slim had always wanted to be master of his own boat, so ZaSu worked in an office and saved her money and bought a ferry boat for him.

As husband and wife, they are the center of a side-splitting tale which is filled with laughable incidents, and complications which will keep you in a continual roar of laughter. Slim cackles with merriment when he sees the despised little ferry boat blow up at the dock of their little town on Long Island Sound—but he doesn't know that the agitated ZaSu has bought it with their life savings as a present for him!

You will see what happens when you go to the show Friday or Saturday night of this week.

winter "to arrive." In the cash market No. 2 hard winter, ordinary protein, was quoted at 93c to 95c. No. 2 hard winter was quoted at St. Louis at 98½c and at Chicago at 98c to $1.01 per bushel. No. 1 hard winter was quoted at Fort Worth, delivered Galveston at 99c per bushel and No. 2 hard winter at Denver, FOB Colorado or western Nebraska or Wyoming shipping points, at 75c to 77c per bushel. Soft winter wheat was offered more liberally but was readily taken at slightly lower prices. No. 2 soft red winter was quoted at St. Louis June 8, at 97½c, at Chicago at 98c to $1.01 and at Kansas City at 93c per bushel.

Marketings of spring wheat were relatively light with receipts of 295 cars at Minneapolis and 415 cars at Duluth. The protein of the receipts at Minneapolis was high. Milling demand was active and cash premiums were well maintained.

Pacific Coast markets were still dominated by the strike and trading was light. Prices at Portland declined along with eastern points, but quotations were largely nominal since no export business was possible and only a few domestic mills were receiving sufficient wheat to continue operations. The Export Association sold only 31,000 bushels of wheat, most of which was in the form of flour, for deferred shipment. Receipts at Columbia River and Puget Sound terminals totaled only 254 cars. An important market feature was inquiries from Atlantic Coast buyers for Northwestern wheat for August and September shipment. On June 8, Big Bend bluestem hard white was quoted at Portland at 79½c, dark hard winter at 84½c and other varieties at 79c per bushel, sacked, basis No. 1.

California wheat markets were fairly steady, influenced by the holding tendency on the part of local growers and the lack of offerings from the Pacific Northwest as a result of the strike. Harvesting began during the week in the Sacramento valley but was interrupted by heavy showers. Early samples show rather disappointing quality, with relatively heavy dockage, but samples were too few to indicate the general condition of the entire crop. Inquiry for both milling and feed grades slackened somewhat with Bay region mills generally working on supplies accumulated early in May. Industries and millers were both taking fair quantities at Los Angeles but sales were confined mostly to California shipments since offerings from Intermountain states were very light and very little wheat was available from the Northwest except by rail. Rail shipments, however, were too high to compete with local wheat.

The barley market at Portland was quiet with feeding grades unchanged at 95c per 100, sacked. Malting barley from the Willamette valley was firm as a result of a steady inquiry from eastern markets. Prices were slightly higher at $1.20 to $1.25 per 100, sacked.

Georgian Pulls Own Teeth

A newspaper story comes from down at Gainesville, Ga., as follows: Hamby Patterson's teeth never bothered him until he was past seventy years old.

When he did, he pulled them with a pair of pliers and made a set of false grinders with aluminum from kitchen utensils.

A blacksmith, Patterson lives in the mountains near Gainesville. He had never ridden a train.

When the teeth began hurting he came to Gainesville but sitting in the dentist's chair made him nervous and he fled. His grandson pulled—or rather knocked out one tooth.

"He got a horseshoe nail and hammer and knocked it out" Patterson said. "Then I decided I'd make some pullers and do the rest of the job myself."

"Didn't have a bit of trouble. The pullers never slipped once and the teeth came right out. You see, I have muscles. Have to, being a blacksmith."

"When I finished pulling all my teeth I went back to the dentist in Gainesville for him to make my plates. He made 'em alright but shucks, I just couldn't wear 'em so I decided to make some of my own."

Using the dentist's plates, Patterson made a mold on brick, then he melted aluminum from the kitchen—"A dipper, boiler or just anything"—and poured it into the mold. Now he has a set of grinders with which he is able to chew anything from beefsteak to rock candy.

In Pennsylvania

Little Rachel, with her mother, was visiting relatives in Missouri. Although only four years old, she had already imbibed the superiority complex of her Pennsylvania elders. Standing by the window one evening, she discovered the new moon.

"Oh! Auntie Belle," she exclaimed, "is that the kind of moon you have in the west? In Pennsylvania we have a big, round, white moon!"
