Harry A. Thatcher, Auditor, Has Record For Economy-Service

In requesting the support of Republican voters at the primary on August 14, County Auditor Harry A. Thatcher issued the following statement:
"I am asking your support on my record for economy and service. For example—it cost less to run my office than two adjoining counties paid for deputies alone, and the total expense of the operation of the auditor's office of Latah County is much less than in any other county of the same class in the state of Idaho."
Your vote for Thatcher will mean continuing this same economy policy for four years without sacrificing one bit the complete service his office gives the public. His record of twelve years in the auditor's office is ample proof.

"Death Takes a Holiday"

Probably one of the most fascinating pictures that has ever been brought to the local screen will be "Death Takes a Holiday," which will be shown at the Kendrick Theatre this Friday and Saturday nights. Frederic March, who played the stellar role in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," will be seen at his best in this now famous picture. There is nothing gruesome about it, but it keeps one "sitting right on the edge of the seat all the time."

"There is something in this Life—something to be known and felt—something desirable that makes men fear me and cling to their life. I must know what it is"

With this immeasurable longing, Death seeks a holiday. This "vagabond of space" comes to Duke Lambert de Catolica, begs for his aid to appease his hunger for the knowledge of life

When Duke Lambert first sees the Shadow, cloaked in its garb of night, he is terrified. But when he hears Deaths piteous plea for Life—and when the plea becomes an order under pain of Death's "displeasure," Duke Lambert has no choice but to agree. For three days, Death will come to his home as a mortal guest—in the guise of Prince Sirki of Vistalba Alexandri.

"No one under this roof," says Death, "shall show repulsion or fear, on pain of my instant displeasure. If my secret is divulged, I shall leave instantly as Sirki and return in my proper person."

Why a Community Newspaper

Theodore Roosevelt was once asked, during a friendly discussion of relative value, to name three things which he would consider most essential to his welfare should he be marooned on an uninhabited island. His answer was most significant when he said: "First, I would desire my family. Second my hometown newspaper. Third, my gun."

The fact that his home-town newspaper came second in importance to his family speaks volumes for that institution and it is not altogether strange that a person with Roosevelt's perception of values should make this choice.

The community newspaper is essentially a serial history and biography combined of the people and events in the territory which it serves. Through its succeeding volumes the community's progress — or retrogression — is unconsciously portrayed. It makes its subscribers' problems its own problem; a sympathetic understanding exists between publisher and subscriber which is entirely absent in urban publications. This spirit of fraternalism extends to closer relationships between the advertiser in the home-town paper and those whom the advertiser serves. His appeal is not so much one of "better bargains" and "cut prices" as it is of friendship, cemented by years of pleasant and constructive community association. His advertisements are a message from one friend to another.

It is the function of the community newspaper to direct and to further the cultural, educational and spiritual life of its community, in addition to the dissemination of news. It holds as a sacred obligation the furtherance of all projects designed for public benefit, and it opposes with equal determination that which is detrimental to the dissemination of news. It holds as a sacred obligation the furtherance of all projects designed for public benefit, and it opposes with equal determination that which is detrimental to the dissemination of news.

The community newspaper occupies a traditional place in the existence of its home town parallel in importance to the school and the church. It is an integral part of the realization of pioneering effort to constructive living, the mouth-piece of an enterprising and progressive element of national life. The spirit of neighborliness is engendered by the familiarity with which it treats its family of readers; its flexible editorial policies permit of the same reportorial treatment of the news of twin calves born to Bill Jones' cow as is given to news of world-wide importance. And the same fine editorial discrimination compels the absence of news in its columns which directs unfavorable attention to a member of its circle.

By close adherence to a policy which is dictated by a philosophy peculiar to rural society, the community newspaper has come to be regarded as an indispensable part of the rural civic plan. Its subscribers enjoy a sense of proprietorship a feeling which is shared by the average home-town editor. It is the tie which binds the common interest of John Brown, who operates the corner store, with that of Jim White, who maintains a fine herd of Jerseys on his farm three miles south of town. By its influence the community spirit of interdependence is promoted, intimate news is made available to those far removed from childhood associations and through its sympathetic knowledge of community affairs it has become a vital necessity to all community programs of progress.

Your community newspaper needs you—you need your community newspaper!

New Deal vs. Drought

The race between the drought and the New Deal to raise farm prices is explained by Senator Thomas D. Schall, of Minnesota. He says: "Will Rogers calls the attention of the doctors of the New Deal to the fact that the drought in the Middle West has done more for farm prices in 30 days than all of the patent medicines of the alphabetical school in a year. In July, 1933, when the N.R.A. and the A.A.A. were applied to this country, the Chicago price of wheat was at the top of $1.15. Nine months later, after the A.A.A. the P.W.A., the C.W.A., the R.F.C., the F.E.R.A. had sunk Uncle Sam to the tune of $10,000,000,000 in debt and deficit, the Chicago price of wheat had dropped to 75 cents. The price had fallen 40 cents a bushel and the farmer had paid in a 59 cent dollar at that. Thus we had Dillingered the farmer, Caponed the taxpayer, jimmied the Treasury, and woodenpistoled the public. Then came the drought. And now the wheat crop is cut in half and the result threatens to put the N.R.A. into the waste basket. Old Sol has beat Wallace to it."

Holding Out

John: "What do you mean, dear, when you say I've been deceiving you for years?"

Helen: "I've just found out that you get $2,000 allowance on your income tax return for being married, and you only give me a miserable $10 a week."

GRAIN MARKET FIRM— EXTREME HEAT CUTS CROP

ments were relatively light. Only 577 cars were received at Puget Sound and Columbia River terminals compared with 1,306 cars for the corresponding week last year. Local milling demand was limited by the inability of mills to ship out flour and no export business was done because of the difficulty in moving grain by water. Bluestem Hard White was quoted July 27, at Portland, at 87c, 12 per cent protein Dark Hard Winter at 90c, and other varieties at 83c per bushel, basis No. 1 sacked. Harvesting has made generally favorable progress and has been completed in earlier districts. Supplies of white wheats are nearly 25,000,000 bushels under a year ago with stocks on farms, in country elevators and warehouses and in terminal markets totaling about 28,000,000 bushels at the first of July. A crop of about 63,000,000 bushels was indicated July 1, giving a total supply of about 91,000,000 bushels against approximately 115,000,000 bushels a year ago.

California wheat markets were rather unsettled. The situation in Central California was somewhat weaker with some slackening in milling inquiry and a slow demand for feed wheat because of the low purchasing power of consumers. Bay Region mills were working on stocks accumulated early in the season and industries and feeders were restricting purchases to small lots for immediate needs. Harvesting in Central California has been practically completed and offerings were sufficient for trade needs although growers were not pressing sales. Scattered purchases of high protein wheat from Intermountain states were reported but practically no Northern wheat was being received either at San Francisco or Los Angeles. Some of the larger mills at Los Angeles were reported to have placed extensive orders for Northwestern wheat for shipment at the close of the strike. At the close of the market July 27, No. 2 Hard White was quoted at San Francisco at $1.45-1.47, and at Los Angeles at $1.50 per 100. No. 2 Dark Hard Winter, 14 per cent protein from the Intermountain states was quoted at $1.80 per 100, in bulk, delivered San Francisco.

Corn markets advanced sharply during the week with near record temperatures and lack of rainfall causing rapid deterioration particularly from the Mississippi River to the Rocky Mountains. In this large area, the unfavorable conditions struck corn at its most critical stage of growth, causing heavy and irreparable damage. Conditions in the Ohio Valley are somewhat better than in the Western areas. Pacific Northwestern markets tended upward but demand slackened at the higher prices and the moderate receipts went mostly to mixed feed manufacturers and to nearby country points.

Pacific Northwestern barley markets held firm despite prevailing seasonal dullness in the malting barley situation and only a moderate inquiry for feeding types. Samples of new crop Willamette Valley barley are of lighter test weight than last season but its malting quality is not yet definitely known. Trading and movement continued very light reflecting the difficult unloading situation resulting from strike conditions with only one car received at Portland. Inquiry for an occasional car from mixed feed manufacturers provided almost the only outlet for current offerings. At the close of the market July 26, No. 2 Bright Western barley, sacked, was quoted at Portland at $1.00 per 100, with new crop malting types nominally around $1.30 per 100.

7,500 Idahoans On July Relief Jobs

Approximately 7,500 persons were employed in Idaho during July on relief projects and received an average of $22 a month each for their part time service. C. E. Gorenson, assistant Idaho-FERA administrator said August 1. There were nearly 10,000 persons on the FERA rolls during the month. All of them would have been given work in cases where they were physically fit and employed on approved projects if FERA funds had been available, Gorenson said. Those who did not work received relief ranging from $2 a week up, in some instances the money being provided to supplement funds that the recipients were earning, but which were insufficient to meet their needs. Projects in some instances have been held up by failure of cities and counties to pay workmen's compensation insurance, which is required by Idaho statutes, but which cannot be paid by the FERA under legislation which created it, Gorenson explained.

Ballots In The Making

Ballots for the primary election to be held August 14, are being printed in the Gazette office this week. Absentee ballots were mailed to County Auditor Harry A. Thatcher, Sunday, and may be procured there by those who may be leaving for a vacation or for other reasons, who wish to cast their vote before they leave.

HAROLD THOMAS, Editor

EDITORIAL

Well, Folks—Here we are right spang in the middle of harvest—and it's been rather a warm harvest at that—but now we're in the middle of another harvest—that of the political aspirants to office—but we can worry about that August 14. What we are concerned about now is cream—we want your cream—bring us a can. Our service and right-now payment is sure to please.

Going back to politics—when you grease the skids for the next political aspirant who bothers you—don't use our butter—the quality is much too good. Try a pound and be convinced.

"Well, how was the burlesque dance?"
"Abdominal!"

Try a sandwich and a malt at our place. You'll like both.

He: Do you like the Four Mills Brothers?

Dumb Dora: Oh, I love them. Especially the red-headed one who plays the harp!

Eat your noon-day lunch with us. A lot to eat for mighty little.

Read the Bullitin—keep posted.

The Compliment

"I'm quite out of practice," said Smithson, hoping for a compliment from the unusually stolid caddie. "I've been traveling for the last six months."
"Then Ye've played afore hae ye, sir?"

They're Not Flappers

"Dark and stormy night and the old engine was coming down the track whistling, puffing and flapping its ears—"

"Hold on, Pete; an engine hasn't any ears."

"Certainly it has, engineers."

Old Neighbors Enjoy Reunion

The Homer Hayward home was the scene of a happy group of about 50 people last Sunday, when a reunion of Kansas and Colorado people was held.

The affair was in honor of Albert Hayward and daughter Mildred, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Ostrander, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Rowley, Mr. and Mrs. Mann Rowley, Charlie Rowley and Delos Baker, all of whom came from near Hale, Colo. Those present besides the guests of honor were Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Hayward and Marjorie of Pasco, Wash., Mrs. Clara Bateman and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. John Phillips and Maxine, Mr. and Mrs. Chas Hayward and Rupert, Mrs. Cecil Hayward and children, Mrs. C. J. Perry and Barbra, Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Hayward and children, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Armitage and children, George Hayward, Carl Mustoe, Tyler Mills, Ray Whiting and Cecil Phillips and his business partner of Lewiston.

Practically all present were acquainted in olden days in Kansas and Colorado. A sumptuous dinner at 1:00 o'clock and the talking over of old times and the day passed by all too quickly.

FIAT MONEY TREND FLAYED BY SENATOR THOMAS GORE

That money as such is worth nothing unless it has value sufficient to cover its denomination and that the Government of the United States cannot by fiat money create prosperity, is the opinion of Senator Thomas P. Gore, of Oklahoma, a Democrat. He says:

"I do not think that anything can be a standard of value or measure of value that does not of itself possess value any more than a measure of length can exist without its having length. Anything else is a mere fiction. A $10 gold piece is worth as much, and should be worth as much, in bullion as in coin. If it should be melted down, as in the case where a house burned down, the bullion that was left would be worth as much as the coin before it was melted down. As I see it, that is indispensable to any sort of standard of value or standard money."

"I cannot bring myself to favor the coinage of silver, but if we are to have silver coins, their intrinsic or metal value should equal their nominal value as money. Otherwise you have a fiat silver money which is not different in kind or character from fiat paper money. As I understand the term 'bi metallism' or the double standard, it means the free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver into full legal tender money at a ratio fixed by law. Such a thing is an impossibility, a financial impossibility, a monetary impossibility. The thing cannot be done. It has been tried times without number in history and never did succeed in any age or in any country except during such limited periods as when the market value of gold and silver happened to correspond with the mint value of gold and silver. That was an accident and not a matter of policy or design.

"More than a century ago in 1832 a committee of the House reported on the subject of coining gold and silver. It reported that it had not been able to find in human history a single instance where the two metals had circulated concurrently, contemporaneously and indiscriminately. A double standard undertakes to fix a constant relationship between two variables, each of which itself varies in relation to the value of commodities."
