NO. 32

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE WEEK'S NEWS DISPATCHES

A five million dollar difference of opinion over the value of lands at the Grand Coulee dam site was settled by a Federal court jury at Spokane with a smashing victory for the federal government. The jury set $17,338.92 as the "fair market value" of the disputed 1,104 acres. The government had offered $15,300, and instituted the condemnation suit when five landowners held out for $5,000,000. Court attaches estimated the cost of the trial to the landowners ran into the thousands of dollars. The land borders the Columbia river at the dam site. The jury returned the case at 11 a. m. The case had dragged through nearly three weeks before Judge J. Stanley Webster.

The nearly three-month-old strike, which has tied up or curtailed production of more than a score of Tacoma sawmill, door and plywood plants came to an end Saturday night when members of the Tacoma local, Sawmill & Timber Workers' union voted to accept the proposed agreement submitted by 22 Tacoma operators for return to work. The vote was 1,291 to 97 in favor of the proposal. Terms accepted include the basic 50 cents minimum wage now the standard in the Pacific northwest industry, and paid here since the mills reopened, with adjustments upward in the higher brackets, a work week of 40 hours and day of eight hours with time and one-half for overtime.

Bestiring itself after months of comparative quietude, the republican national committee has promised a vigorous anti-new deal offensive in an effort to oust President Roosevelt and the democratic party from power in 1936. A resurgence of activity in recent days was described at committee headquarters as a harbinger of greater efforts to come which will spread throughout the nation. In other words, the 1936 campaign is on. "The time has come for opening the campaign," a spokesman at republican headquarters said. "President Roosevelt is an avowed candidate for re-nomination and reelection. He is going to make a tour as soon as congress adjourns. There is less than a year before the conventions. It's time to get busy."

The supreme court of the United States was criticized by District Attorney James Davis in a statement concerning the lynching at Yreka, Calif., of Clyde L. Johnson for the alleged slaying of Chief of Police F. R. Daw of Dunsmuir. Davis declared that "uncontrollable unrest among the citizens," which he said led to the lynching, was caused by "apathy of the supreme court of the United States," and other federal courts in another police slaying case. The district attorney issued his statement only a few hours after the 24-year-old Johnson was dragged barefooted from his cell in the county jail and hanged to a pine tree three miles from the mountain town.

Treasury experts have concluded it is unlawful for states to issue pieces or tokens for making change in connection with sales taxes. Secretary Morgenthau disclosed this Monday in the light of his attempt to have congress pass legislation for midget coins of one mill and half-cent denominations to be used for sales-tax purposes. The measure is stalled in a house committee. Illinois, Colorado, Missouri and Washington have issued local pieces or coins.

A treasury department ruling that use of state-coined tokens to facilitate payment of fractions of a cent in sales taxes is unlawful will not result in the withdrawal of state tax tokens, T. M. Jenner, member of the Washington state tax commission, said. The announcement of the ruling by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau came as a surprise to members of the tax commission.

In a new blast at the national administration, Governor Eugene Tal-made of Georgia said he would support President Roosevelt for reelection in 1936 if he quit his "course of communism" and let American industry and agriculture "get out of the hospital." The Georgia governor, whose recent activities have been interpreted as meaning he might make a bid for the presidency himself, added that unless the present policies in Washington are changed he will make a "coast to coast" fight to "put Americans there who will stand by the Constitution and by the principles of Jeffersonian democracy."

Rumblings of what may be a new purge of "state enemies" in the nazi reich" were sounded by Paul Goeb-

FLOYD CROCKER HURT IN FREAK ACCIDENT

Floyd (Spud) Crocker was very seriously injured in a freak accident Sunday morning while target shooting with a .22 calibre rifle, as a result of which he may lose his right eye.

Floyd, it seems, was shooting the modern high-speed ammunition in an old-type rifle, and in some unexplained manner the head (or primer) of the cartridge, blew off, blowing out the clip magazine of the rifle, which struck the rocks below, the spring of which, in turn, bounced into the air and struck him in the right eye, piercing the eyeball.

Dr. Christensen was called immediately, dressed the wound and rushed him to a Lewiston hospital, where he is under the attention of a specialist. It is too early at this time to determine whether he will lose the eye, or just what the results will be. Only time can tell.

Frank Crocker, local gun expert, examined the rifle following the accident, but said he was unable to determine whether it was caused by an obstruction in the barrel or by a faulty shell, as the lead from the exploding cartridge was still in the rifle barrel, but a light tap with a ram-rod dislodged it. However, Mr. Crocker wishes to warn all that high-speed ammunition should not be used in old-type guns, as it develops a much higher breach pressure than the gun was designed to withstand. If in doubt, have your gun inspected, or use the old-type ammunition.

Four Killed Over Week-End

That the highways of this part of the country have been taking their toll of deaths during the past week-end was carried in the news dispatches in the Lewiston Tribune.

A woman was killed last Saturday evening when two sedans collided some four miles west of Clarkston, Wash., on the Pomeroy road, she being Mrs. C. A. Harold of Calgary, Canada.

Three persons were killed and three seriously injured in a car wreck that occurred when a car plunged off the Gilbert grade, four miles south of Orofino, and rolled some 400 feet before coming to a stop in the chasm below.

The wreck took place when two cars, going in opposite directions, were passing, one going over the grade while the other went into the ditch on the other side.

Two of the victims resided in Lewiston Orchards and the other at Orofino. The three injured were taken to the Orofino hospital.

Carrie Nation II

Down in Colorado Springs, Colo., the other day an enraged woman staged a one-woman riot that called out police reserves and a few others when she became enraged at the multitudinous "No Parking" signs scattered along that Colorado town's streets. The woman, Mrs. Carrie Newton, is a bill collector in that city and often has occasion to seek parking places, but most of the parking space was taken up with "No Parking" signs, and she proceeded to tear down all that came within her range. She finally landed in a padded cell in the county jail, but was released and many "No Parking" signs were taken off the street.

Every city in the country is afflicted with the same kind of signs and it is next to impossible to get a parking space within several blocks of the business district. It is too bad that a few more modern Carries are not abroad in the land.

Co-Op Gets Million Loan

According to advices received from Spokane, a new commodity loan commitment of $1,000,000 to the North Pacific Grain Growers, Inc., to handle the 1935 wheat crop, has been announced by the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank, a unit of the farm credit administration. The loan will be secured by warehouse receipts.

It's a wonder world, mother has electricity in her hair and grandma has gas on her stomach.

GOVERNMENT MAY SPEND $2,222,747 IN IDAHO

Plans are being made by the Idaho state highway department to take advantage of opportunities offered by the federal works progress administration and, according to the setup for Idaho, $2,222,747 in federal funds is now available under the WPA for Idaho highways with $1,674,479 available for Idaho grade separation projects. This word was brought to Lewiston by E. A. Johnston, district engineer, after attending an extensive conference of heads of the department at Boise, says the Tribune.

"The allocation for Idaho under the WPA setup covers the amount made available by the federal government," said Engineer Johnston. "In addition to this sum it will be necessary for the state department to expend its proportion and the total will represent the figure to be spent. This allocation does not affect the regular federal aid funds which are matched by the state in extensive projects annually."

"Estimates on WPA projects will be made up in man hours and not in quantity of earth and rock to be moved. Under the provisions of the WPA the returning of men to work is the initial item. Ninety per cent of unskilled and intermediate labor will be taken from the public relief rolls and this is not restricted to counties or districts. Workers may be transferred from their homes to the jobs when deemed necessary. A man on the relief rolls in Nez Perce county, for instance, is eligible to work any place in the state. Skilled labor will not be taken from the relief rolls."

"Eighteen projects in five counties of this district have been submitted for approval as WPA projects. No information is available at this time as to the location of these projects until all suggestions have been received from other state districts."

"The matter of complications regarding oiling contracts and the rule providing that labor be taken from the relief rolls was discussed at the Boise conference. It was agreed that, because of oiling being the work of skilled men, this work would proceed at state expense. It would be folly to take men from the relief rolls and turn them loose on highly technical jobs such as oiling. These oiling jobs which have been let under contract will proceed and the maintenance oiling will continue to be done by the state department men."

"Work for hundreds of men will be provided in this district if the 18 projects in five counties are approved and necessarily much of this work will be hand labor because of the determination of the administration to provide labor for relief clients, rather than doing the work with machinery."

The Boise conference with J. H. Stemmer, director of Idaho highways, brought forth the announcement that the state will bear 25 per cent of the work relief load cost on highway and grade separation projects undertaken under WPA regulations.

District engineers who attended were A. D. Stanley of Pocatello, J. M. Johnson of Shoshone, E. A. Johnston of Lewiston, J. J. McCreehy of Coeur d'Alene and Lewis Roberts of Boise.

Mussolini, Hitler—Roosevelt!

FDR announced long ago that he was going to carry his idea of socializing the nation to the youth of the land, and as an indication that he intends to carry out that idea, insofar as possible, he has set aside $50,000,000 of the people's money to promulgate another of his pet fantastic theories, which smacks of facism, natizism, and—Rooseveltism.

He has already named administrators for 34 states, including Idaho, to carry out the idea (if that is what it is). W. W. Godfrey of Boise has been appointed youth administrator for Idaho, of which he said: "All that I know about my functions is that I will be in charge in this state of the federal program designed to provide for the education needs of young men and women between the ages of 16 and 25."

Along just what lines of education FDR expects to direct the untutored mind of the youth of the land is not known, but it is safe to say that the $50,000,000 of the people's money will be spent, whether anything is accomplished or not.

Will the tax drain on a long-suffering people ever cease?

Death Of Friend

Mrs. M. A. Deobald received word Tuesday of the death of an old-time friend, Mrs. Frank Larkin of Sumnerfield, Kansas. They had been friends for some 45 years.

TRANSIENT CAMPS HOBOES' HEAVEN, SAY R. R. SLEUTHS

Big-hearted Uncle Sam's program of feeding, bedding and bathing the American hobo, has drawn the ire of the rovers' old enemy—the railroad detective.

Southwestern railroads complain their trains are smothered daily by hoboese shuttling from one federal transient camp to another in search of easily gained board and room.

Outspoken against the incidental cost of the government program is R. S. Mitchell, chief special agent of the Missouri Pacific railroad.

"Representatives from the detective forces of all American railroads have presented this acute problem to Harry Hopkins, federal relief administrator, but he has failed to do anything about it," Mitchell declared.

"The transient bureau has failed in that it was designed to stabilize the constantly moving population and instead has provided a foolproof means for the inveterate hobo to get by."

Continuing, Mitchell said 269 trespassers, mostly freight-riding hoboese, have been killed on Missouri Pacific property since an increase in free riders started with the opening of the federal transient bureau in January, 1933.

"We've spent $52,935 for hospitalization, claims and burials for these uninvited guests in the first seven months of 1935," he declared.

W. E. Brooks, special agent of the St. Louis-San Francisco railroad, supported Mitchell's complaint. He estimated that the expansion of transient camps boosted tenfold the number of hoboese riding the freights.

Ross Not Out Of Politics

Although he will not seek a fourth term as Idaho's chief executive, Governor C. Ben Ross said he was not "out of politics."

He declined, however, to divulge what role he will elect to assume, and he would not hint whether he would attempt to wrest the senatorial toga from the shoulders of William Edgar Borah, Idaho's veteran internationalist, in 1936.

Ross thus disposed of various reports that he would seek reelection to the governorship, that he would retire, and that he would enter the senatorial race as the administration candidate to defeat Borah, who has been sharply critical of many new deal policies, notably the NRA.

Reports that the former cowboy and county commissioner soon would leave politics, prevalent recently in eastern Idaho, are not well founded, Governor Ross said.

He suggested the reports possibly could be traced to a misinterpretation of remarks he made at a turkey day picnic at Wendell a week ago last Sunday.

"At that time I indicated that insofar as my administration of the affairs of the office of governor is concerned, no political significance can be attached to those remarks, as I will not be a candidate for reelection to the governorship again," he said.

The belief still prevails here in political circles that there is some credence to a recent rumor that Governor Ross plans to take the place of Senator J. P. Pope of Idaho, when and if the latter is appointed to fill a vacancy on the circuit court of appeals bench.

The Good Old Days Returneth

In some sections of the United States patrons of third emporiums are putting their foot on the brass rail and really enjoying the good old days of pre-prohibition.

Down at Dallas, Texas, they are quaffing 24 ounces of suds for a dime, while up in Boston they are again selecting dainty bits from the free-lunch counter, as in the olden days. But in north Idaho those who frequent the "parlors" complain that they get barely enough suds to make their breath smell, for a dime, with only a few of the places giving a salty taster on the side.

Return From Fishing Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Norla Callison and Mr. and Mrs. Ward Howell and family returned Sunday evening from a fishing trip in the Little North Fork country. They report huckle-berrying good but the fishing only fair.

A little incident happened on this trip that might well go in Ripley's "Believe It Or Not" drawings, for a deer, spying Ward in bed, and well smeared with "anti-bug" grease, decided that it liked the aroma, and proceeded to lick it from his face. An incident well worth recording.

Archie May Again First

It sometimes pays to "be on your toes." Archie May of Leland was again the first man in Nez Perce county, to receive his government corn-hog check. He happened to be in Lewiston at the time of the arrival of the checks—and of course when it was offered him he did not refuse. Mr. May was the first to receive his wheat allotment and corn-hog checks in 1934.

COUNTY AGENT GIVES MORE DATA ON PERENNIAL WEEDS

Perennial weeds differ from annuals and biennials in that the plant growth starts each year from underground root stocks, and that the plants have a root system which lives from year to year—and the new plant growth comes from this root system. In addition to starting this way, most perennials will also spread to a certain extent by seed, just the same as the annuals and biennials. However, once the patch is established the control of the spread of seed alone will not eradicate this weed.

Under the class of perennial weeds, the most common in Latah county are Canada thistle, morning glory, quack grass, Russian knapweed and white top. So far, we have very little perennial sow thistle, blue flowering lettuce and snap dragon.

Each of these perennial weeds have a somewhat different type of root system, but practically all of them will respond to the more or less same type of control. Quack grass alone varies considerably from the other weeds, in that it does not have a true type of underground root system, but rather has underground root stocks, which the new plant starts. Most of these root stocks are found in the upper six inches of soil, so that a somewhat different type of control should be used for quack grass than is used for other perennial weeds. Chlorates and carbon bisulphide are not too effective on quack grass, but cultivation during the dry part of the summer will very easily effect its control. There are two methods which may be used for controlling any perennial weed: clean cultivation—and chemical control. The most effective chemicals used so far are either sodium chlorate compounds or carbon bisulphide. The recommended means of control are as follows:

Large areas: Clean cultivation is the most satisfactory and economical means of eradication. Cultivation should start as soon as the weeds begin growth in the spring. A thorough deep plowing for the first cultivation is desirable. This should be followed by sufficiently frequent cultivations to keep down all top growth. Periods between cultivation depend upon the season, kind of weed and type of soil, but no green growth should be allowed above the surface. Occasionally, deep plowing may be used to supplant some of the cultivations. Any blade, rod weeder or cultivator with "Duck Feet," which will cut off the growing plants, may be used.

Small Areas: Either clean cultivation, carbon bisulphide or chlorates may be used. If carbon bisulphide is to be used, consult the County Agent for recommendations. Chlorate compounds have proven very effective. These may be applied either in solution or as a dry powder. In either case, from two to four pounds per square rod of weed area should be used, preferably applied in the fall. Weed areas should be mowed to prevent seeding during the summer. This mowed top growth should be removed before apply the chlorates. Do not burn this material on the patch.

For further directions consult either the department of Agronomy, University of Idaho, or County Extension Agent, L. V. Benjamin.

Bill Wilmot Buys Ritzville Paper

Bill Wilmot, son of A. Wilmot, formerly owner of the old Kendrick electric light plant, has purchased the Ritzville (Wash.) Journal-Times and will in the future publish that paper. Bill has always been "newspaper inclined," even when a boy here in Kendrick. Last year he was prominently connected with the University of Washington paper and has finally branched out for himself. His many friends in Kendrick will be glad to learn of his success in his chosen field, in which he will undoubtedly go far.

WHEAT HIGHER WITH FURTHER LOSSES FROM RUST

Domestic grain markets continued very unsettled during the week ending August 2, according to the Weekly Grain Market Review of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Wheat advanced to new highs for the current crop as rust and intense heat caused further losses in spring wheat areas, both in the United States and Canada. Rye was weak and lower with increased offerings from the relatively large new crop. Corn was firm in cash markets, reflecting an active inquiry for the light remaining stocks. Oats and barley were lower at most markets with demand dull and buyers generally awaiting larger and more representative arrivals of new grain.

That rust and intense heat have taken heavy toll from this season's wheat crop was indicated by August 1 trade estimates, which placed the domestic spring wheat crop more than 80,000,000 bushels below the official July 1 forecast and the winter wheat harvest about 45,000,000 bushels under the July official estimate. Should the estimate be borne out by final returns, the 1935 United States wheat crop will be below normal requirements. Severe rust damage has also occurred in Canada and trade agencies now place the probable outturn in the Prairie provinces only 25,000,000 bushels above last season's short crop. Stocks of old wheat in Canada, however, are heavy and a fairly large surplus will be available for export.

The market influence of reduced crops is partially offset by continued dull world demand. World shipments during the season ended July 31, dropped to the lowest level since the pre-war year of 1909, with the exception of 1917-18, when submarine warfare seriously interfered with the international wheat movement. World wheat shipments during the 1934-35 season totaled less than 507,000,000 bushels, compared with 520,000,000 bushels a year earlier, and the record 1928-29 movement of 597,000,000 bushels. Consumption in the United Kingdom continued about normal but movement to the heavy consuming countries of continental Europe was much below normal. The demand from these areas are reflected in greatly increased supplies, notably in France, Spain, Italy and Germany, together with restrictive trade regulations and monetary difficulties. Direct shipments to Italy, Greece, Turkey, Austria and the Scandinavian countries were slightly greater than a year ago, but dropped on others.

Cash wheat markets in the central west followed the advance in futures with premiums quite firm for heavy test weight wheat.

Marketings of winter wheat were the heaviest of the season with a total at the principal markets of 7,433 cars, compared with 3,688 a year ago. An increased proportion of the Kansas City receipts were of lower grade because of light test weight and it was estimated that about 60 per cent of inspections were below No. 2 because of light weight.

Intermountain and Pacific Coast markets did not reflect the full advance at eastern points, with uncertainty as to an outlet for surplus stocks in the Pacific Northwest a weakening factor in that area. At the close of the week, Denver mills were bidding 87c for No. 2 hard winter and northern spring. At Portland, Big Bend Bluestem hard white was quoted at 91c, soft white, northern spring and hard winter at 75½c, western white at 75c, western red at 74½c and dark hard winter at 88c per bushel, basis No. 1, sacked.

The Surplus Relief Administration was offering 78c for No. 1 white and red soft wheat, sacked, delivered tidewater terminals. Growers were marketing more freely but mills were buying only moderately and elevator interests absorbed most of the offering.

Oats markets displayed a somewhat stronger tone, reflecting the firmness in other grains, although inquiry for cash oats was only moderately active. Pacific Northwestern markets were dull with demand from cereal mills negligible and only a limited inquiry for white oats. Both white and gray oats declined around 15c per 100 for the week at Portland with No. 2 white oats quoted August 1 at $1.10 and No. 2 gray oats at $1.05 per 100, sacked basis.

MRS. WALTER CLARK WRITES OF TRIP TO VANCOUVER

The following interesting letter has been received by the Gazette from Mrs. Walter Clark, who is now visiting her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Snoen, at Vancouver, Wash.:

"Hello, home folks and friends in and around Kendrick and Juliaetta: Will write a few words on our trip: "On the 26th of June we left our home on Fix ridge for Vancouver, Wash., coming by the way of Juliaetta, we came down the oft-times raging torrent, the Big Potlatch, and down the Clearwater river—said to be the only river of crystal clear water in the world—a wonderful thing to live so near. In Lewiston we stopped for an hour or two, then came thru Clarkston and across the hills to Pomeroy, Wash., where we turned off the main highway to what is known as the Tucker ranch, where John Williams, a former resident of Fix ridge, is farming and our daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Rice, are working, and stayed until next morning. At 3 o'clock we left there, passing through Dayton, Waitsburg and on to Walla Walla, where we ate our breakfast. Then starting out we took the highway towards Pasco, passing many lovely homes on our way. We turned off before we came to Pasco. We came to the great Columbia river, following it most of the time the rest of the way. We saw the canal that was built to aid navigation on the Columbia river; saw the wonderful falls above The Dalles, where never a boat of any kind passed through until recently, when two young men made the trip safely in a tug boat, I believe it was. We had dinner in The Dalles—and there is some wonderful scenery through this part of the country. Passed through the town of Hood River but did not get far enough on that side of the river to see the great orchards.

"The Columbia Gorge highway traverses the Oregon side of the river from The Dalles to Portland and nowhere in America can one find another highway of the same length that offers as varied scenery. West of the "Bridge of the Gods" is "Eagle Creek," which is composed of ten waterfalls. Then Bonneville Dam, one of the greatest engineering feats in the world, and which you pass on the highway on the Oregon side, and Washington side, to Moffet creek bridge, the largest flat three-hinged bridge in the world. The Elowah falls, 289 feet high, may be seen from the McCord creek bridge, Horse Tail falls where tourist feel the spray as it falls into the side of the highway. Oneonta gorge and tunnel and falls, Multnomah falls, 620 feet—Mist falls, mentioned by Lewis and Clark, dashes its spray from an elevation of 1200 feet—and many more I could mention. Oh, yes, the Vista House, a memorial to the pioneers, and from there you can see the Columbia in all its grandeur for many miles in either direction.

"Located at a point of interest on the Columbia stands a steel span known as the "Bridge of the Gods," which name was taken from the legend told by Indians, and supported by geologists, that a natural bridge once spanned the river at this place. It connects the Evergreen highway and the Columbia highway. We crossed it and came down the Washington side, coming by the Cascade Locks, which is said to be the rocks that fell from the natural bridge, which, it is said, that the beacon rock was one of the missels that was thrown there when God Manito, in his anger, raised his voice to heaven and rent and shook the foundation of the bridge, hurling it down because of the death (at each other's hands) of his three sons, whom he sent that man might learn from them. Beacon rock is now one of the places the government has put a beacon light for night plane flights, and where Lewis and Clark scaled its almost perpendicular walls to view the river and country about. Some great things are to be seen all along the way.

"We arrived at Vancouver the evening of July 27, in time for supper, coming by way of the soldiers' barracks, the aviation field, etc. It is no uncommon sight to see as many as six planes in the air at one time. Our daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Snoen, live where we can see them plainly.

"Next morning Mr. and Mrs. Caus Clark and family went to Salem, Ore., to visit Mrs. Clarke's brother, Jesse Cox and family. Returning to Mrs. Snoens and stayed all night. Next morning we went to Kelso, Wash., where we visited another daughter, Mrs. Maude Palmer and daughters. On arriving we learned of the wedding of Mrs. Palmer's oldest daughter, Mildred, to Howard Curtis, which happened a few days before we arrived. Next day we came back to Mr. Snoen's and Walter Clark, Caus Clark and family, with Walter Snoen, started for Juliaetta.

The writer came to Vancouver to try to recuperate from an illness. This is a pretty country around Vancouver. No wheat fields like the Pahouse, and it looks mighty strange to a wheat farmer. Prunes, poultry, berries of all kinds and dairying is the principal products. The climate is much cooler than at home."

Japan's Feelings "Bruised"
Last week "Vanity Fair," an eastern magazine, carried a caricature of the Emperor of Japan, and the magazine was banned in Japan. The Japanese ambassador to the United States, who must have been on a week-end fishing trip, the same as FDR takes every week end, hurried back to Washington to see what could be done about it.

Isn't it just too bad if someone in the United States—supposedly a free country—should make a little fun of the Japanese Emperor! The Japs consider their Emperor sacred. Fooyey!

Young Couple Marry

Miss Ada Candler and Ben Westendahl, two popular young people of the community, were married Saturday at Lewiston. Both have attended the Kendrick High school, and with the exception of this summer, Ben has been employed by the Vollmer-Clearwater Co., Kendrick, for a number of years.

They will make their home at Harvard for a time, where Ben has employment. Their many friends join in wishing them happiness and prosperity in full measure.

Thursday a party made up of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Benjamin, Mr. and Mrs. Gunder Reiseron, Mrs. Arlos Crocker, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bovenkamp, Henry Emmett and Gilbert Rudy went on a joint huckleberrying and fishing trip. The women picked 12 gallons of berries and the men caught about 12 fish.

Probably the great-granddaddy of all the rattle snakes was killed by Mrs. Albert Westendahl Friday evening. The reptile measured four and a half feet long and was about six inches around. A number of the rattles were gone, but judging from the size where they were broken off, Mr. Westendahl thought it to be about 14 years old. Mrs. Westendahl showed a great deal of fortitude, as the snake wanted to fight, and only clods were available with which to kill it. Her small Fox terrier dog was bitten before she could put an end to the snake's life. Chas. Westendahl said it was by far the largest rattler he had ever seen in the canyon, and says he has killed dozens of them.

The John Thomas family accompanied by Ray Cuddy, spent Sunday at the Frank Wittman home near Southwick.

Mrs. Chas. Weber and two sons from Bovill and her daughter, Mrs. Alfred Neuman and three children of Spokane visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Westendahl Sunday.

Last Thursday Mr. and Mrs. John Thomas, Mary and Earl took the day off and drove to Pullman and Colfax. At Pullman they visited with John's brother, Sidney. Mrs. Thomas remarked that harvest was in full swing every place but none of the crops looked better than those on Little Bear ridge.

Funny, isn't it, what some folks will do just to get their names in the paper, for instance: Hi had his hair cut last week and Henry Emmett has made his fourth trip to the mountains after huckleberries.

Art Ozman returned home Friday after spending a week at Harvard with Ben Westendahl.
