HIGHLIGHTS OF THE WEEK'S NEWS DISPATCHES

Columbus, O.—Senator William E. Borah of Idaho swung into his campaign for Ohio presidential convention delegates with a speech attacking the "favorite son" plan of choosing delegates and made an attack on monopolistic interests. He also attacked oil companies and what he called "other monopolies," terming them his chief opponents for the presidential nomination and declared they might succeed in defeating him, but "they will not change my position." Saying that probably most negro voters were opposed to his candidacy, Borah challenged other republican presidential candidates or possible candidates to state their position on the Costigan anti-lynching bill, which he opposed on the ground of unconstitutionality.

Washington—A warning from Secretary Morgenthau that the house bill fell far short of the revenue asked by President Roosevelt started the senate finance committee on a search for new levies to raise $337,000,000. The search was initiated after the treasury chief submitted to the committee a surprise figure—a forecast that the federal deficit for the fiscal year ending two months hence would reach the peace-time record smashing figure of $5,966,000,000. He intimated the total would include the full cost of prepayment of the soldiers' bonus. Predicting another deficit of $2,675,000,000 for the next fiscal year, the treasury secretary laid the basis for a calculation that the nation's public debt might surpass the $37,000,000,000 mark at that time.

New Orleans—Alvin Karpis, No. 1 bad man of the United States, was captured May 1 without resistance by officers led by J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the federal bureau of investigation. A few hours later, the men who succeeded John Dillinger as the country's most wanted criminal were placed aboard an airplane heavily guarded and manacled and taken from the city with the destination unannounced. Without a shot, Karpis was taken into custody along with Fred Hunter, 37, a suspect in the $34,000 Garrettsville, O., mail robbery, and a woman known only as "Ruth" as they emerged from an apartment building about half a mile from the center of the business district. Hoover made the announcement of the capture with the simple statement, "We've captured Alvin Karpis, generally known as public enemy No. 1—but not to us." Then he added: "They were taken without the firing of a shot. Karpis never had a chance. There were too many guns on him." Karpis is under indictment for the $100,000 kidnaping of William A. Hamm, Jr., wealthy St. Paul brewer, on June 15, 1933, and the $200,000 kidnaping of Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul banker, on Jan. 17, 1934. He is wanted on a charge of murder in connection with the slaying of Sheriff C. R. Kelley at West Plains, Mo., on Dec. 19, 1931.

Under a reign of terror by infuriated warriors of the collapsed Ethiopian empire, women and children were evacuated by the British from the United States legation in Addis Ababa Saturday night after an American woman fell among the victims of the loot and drink-crazed natives. Emperor Haile Selassie, whose flight from the capital signaled a virtual end of organized resistance to the Italian campaign of conquest, reached a haven in Djibouti, French Somaliland, with peace and a puppet emperor apparently in prospect. Fifteen thousand native Italian troops camped outside the limits of Addis Ababa Monday night as American officials in Washington ordered the evacuation of their legation within the riot-stricken city. The arrival of Italian troops in the suburbs of Emperor Haile Selassie's principal city was reported in Rome by a reliable military source. Cordell Hull, United States secretary of state, Saturday ordered the evacuation of the legation after the British foreign office received word from its minister that he was unable to spare a detachment of guards to assist in the defense of the American headquarters.

Gloomy Weather

Old Man Gloom has settled down on the Potlatch canyon and has had full control for the past week, with the exception of a day or two. On Thursday of last week one of the heaviest rains ever to fall in this section descended in "sheets" on the entire countryside and much good Potlatch soil was sent on its way to the Clearwater. However, everything is growing nicely—even the weeds.

Trio Sings At Lewiston

The Kendrick High school girls' trio, composed of the Misses Eileen Smith, Margaret Halseth and Mary Elizabeth Thompson, sang Tuesday evening over station KRLC at Lewiston, and are indeed to be praised for their splendid program.

There has been many an amateur trio presented on the National hook-up by Major Bowes, who had nothing on our girls—in fact, some have been given contracts who didn't do as well, in our opinion, as the Kendrick girls. John King, instructor in the High school, also sang in this program, and is also to be highly complimented on his presentation.

CHARLES THOMAS HAYWARD PASSES SUNDAY

Charles Thomas Hayward was born in Meigs county Ohio, November 3, 1867, to Rachel Ann Nickerson and Lewis Hayward, who was a direct descendent of Thomas Hayward, who came from England in 1638; and departed this life May 3, 1936, aged 68 years and six months. His mother died when he was but eight months of age and for two years thereafter he was cared for by his grandparents. Later his father married his former wife's sister, Mary Nickerson. They resided in Meigs county until 1883, when they came west as far as Missouri, residing there for three years, going from there to Arapahoe county, Colorado. He homesteaded in Colorado at the age of 21 years, later trading it for his father's place in Decatur county, Kansas.

On March 4, 1896, he was married to Mattie VanPelt. He continued to farm in Decatur county until 1919, when he came to Southwick where he had been engaged in farming until the time of his death.

As a child he was always a favorite and so it had been throughout his life among relatives and friends. He was one who could always be depended upon. He leaves to mourn their loss his wife, and four children: Cecil of Lewiston; Doyle of Milton, Oregon; Rupert and Clara Perry of Southwick. Three brothers: Homer and Albery of Southwick; George of Amity, Oregon; and one sister, Rachel Armitage of Southwick. There were six grandchildren and a host of other relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon from the U. B. church at Southwick with Rev. Geo. Calvert in charge. Music was by the Community choir, with Mrs. Ben McCoy accompanying. Burial was made in the Southwick cemetery.

Pullman To Lose Liquor Store

Pullman's liquor agency will pass out of existence at the close of business on Saturday, May 9. Determination to close the dispensary, which had been operating nine months, was reached by the state liquor board after Admiral L. E. Gregory, chairman of the board, and Henry Gregerson, board members, had canvassed local sentiment and conferred with representatives of several organizations interested in removing liquor from the college town.

The action of the board was taken after George T. McMahon of the White Drug store had expressed to members of the board his willingness to close the dispensary without protest in case the board decided such action to be expedient. He was highly commended by the board, and by many persons who joined in the demand that the agency be abolished, for his strict observance of the liquor laws and the high standards upon which he conducted the dispensary.

Many Straws

This week will put many "straws" in the air to give some sort of an idea of what is going to happen this fall when the votes are finally counted on November 3, for there will be several primary elections throughout the U. S., among them being California.

While many democrats profess not to like the "new deal," yet there is no suggestion of any other democratic candidate other than Roosevelt. In the meantime, republicans are bickering back and forth, especially Borah and Knox, about delegates. Bill accused Knox of trying to "swipe" some of Illinois delegates and Knox denies the allegation and as good as calls the "alligator" a liar.

Republicans, young and old, say they do not understand just what Bill is driving at, but suppose he will be satisfied, no matter what the score, since he will have the fun of having played the game, anyway.

HUGE VOLUME OF WATER IN CLEARWATER DRAINAGE

Missouli, Montana.—Those who have witnessed the quick rise of the Clearwater river in northern Idaho to near-flood levels this spring need no further proof of the large amount of water that was deposited last winter as snow in the headwaters of the drainage, part of Region I of the national forests.

It is, however, difficult even for them to conceive of the amount of water which must eventually pass through the Clearwater river channel at Lewiston, Idaho, where it empties into the Snake river. About a fortnight ago, before the advent of summerlike weather, snow moisture-content measurements taken in the Lochsa drainage, tributary to the Clearwater, showed that the snow in an area of about 430 square miles contained water enough to form a layer approximately 30 inches deep. The area sampled comprises only seven percent of the then snow-blanketed higher country of the Clearwater drainage.

The measurements were made by Regional Engineer F. E. Thieme and Fred Wolfong, a former member of the forest service. Near the summit of Lolo pass, at an elevation of 5,200 feet, snow depth was 36 inches with a water storage of 93 inches. At Brushy Fork, the lowest elevation reached, 3,900 feet, there were 59 inches of snow with a water content of 26 inches. Several measurements were taken between these levels.

"Although our survey was limited in scope," said Mr. Thieme, "conditions on the rest of the upper Lochsa drainage appeared to be similar."

While the run-off is rapid at the present time, normal weather conditions will permit retention by the forested lands of a good share of the moisture for slower release into the streams. The variation of temperatures in the mountains, with cold nights even though the days are warm, and the forest cover will have an effect in holding back the melting and resultant run-off of the moisture. The amount of water stored for later use should be very favorable.

Of especial significance to the Fire Weather Research division of the Northern Rocky mountain forest and range experiment station, which fostered the taking of these and other snow measurements, is the fact that there was an average of about 30 inches of water stored in the snow in an area where it has been generally estimated that the total annual precipitation is only 40 inches. This year is the first time the experiment station has been equipped to determine snow moisture content readily. The true measure of snow's worth is not its depth alone, but the amount it will melt into.

In many sections of Region I, particularly those on the east slope of the Continental divide, large communities depend upon water stored in snow for irrigation purposes. There is little irrigation to use the water supplied by the Clearwater drainage, but the Clearwater river feeds the Columbia and is of importance to the Bonneville dam project, which is planned to provide 430,000 kilowatts of electric power.

So. Idaho Students In Row

And now the question of "communism" among students has broken out within our own state. Down at the Southern Branch of the U. of I. it seems that the editors of the college paper were getting a little too red for some 400 or more of the students and they asked for a change of policy in the editorial management of the paper. The row finally wound up with both sides being given a chance to express their views in the same paper. Old Nicholas Murray Butler of the University of Chicago has been teaching socialism there for the past 30 or 40 years and seemingly getting away with it. And, by the way, there are several of his "professors" members of some one or another branch of the "brain trusters" down at Washington!

Our Village Park Beautiful

If there is a prettier park in a small town than the one almost in the center of Kendrick, we would like to know where it is. Ours is as green and pretty as a velvet carpet and the foliage on many of the trees is out, which makes one want to get a basketful of good things to eat and go right over.

The modern prodigal son comes home on three flat tires.

SUPREME COURT SAYS STATE SALES TAX VALID

Idaho's voters were given an opportunity last Friday by the state supreme court to participate in a referendum vote next November 3 on the 1935 sales tax law which in 13 months has produced $1,300,000 for relief, says a Boise news dispatch.

Final responsibility for the operation of the law was imposed on the people in an opinion which held its principal provisions constitutional. The law will remain in effect at least until November 23, the day the board of canvassers meets to check the general election vote. Under its own terms the law would expire automatically March 15, 1937.

The opinion answered in the negative four main questions presented in the appeal:

Does the state referendum law, invoked by the anti-sales tax league, suspend operation of the act?

Does the act violate the state and federal constitutions to the extent that it is inoperative?

Is the act void and invalid on account of discriminatory and uncertain provisions?

May the commissioner of finance impose a $2 annual license fee upon the 8,000 collectors of the tax?

The court held the referendum law applies to permit the people to vote on the act at the general election, and held that some minor provisions for administration were too broad and conferred upon the commissioner judicial powers.

Justice Edwin M. Holden concurred outright in Justice Wm. M. Morgan's conclusions; Justice Alfred Budge concurred specially, and Chief Justice Raymond L. Givens concurred in part and dissented in part. Justice James F. Ailshie did not participate.

"Now we are just where we were before," concluded Ben Diefendorf, commissioner of finance and administrator of the act.

Secretary of State Franklin Girard said he would follow the provisions of the referendum law and place the issue on the ballot in the general election.

The anti-sales tax league filed petitions several months ago bearing the signatures of 22,000 persons, who urged repeal of the act.

Thirty-three states have similar laws in operation.

Chief Justice Givens in dissenting held the law was suspended when referendum petitions were filed.

Bruno Hauptman Handled Money

Opinion that Bruno Richard Hauptmann had no accomplices in the Lindbergh baby kidnaping was expressed by Federal Agent Hugh McQuillan on the basis of Hauptmann's financial records.

McQuillan, attached to the intelligence unit of the bureau of internal revenue, has forwarded to Washington a tabulated report of Hauptmann's assets and expenditures between the time of the payment of the $50,000 ransom and his arrest.

The report, as released by McQuillan, indicates that all but $49.56 of the ransom money has been accounted for. For the period mentioned it lists assets of $40,529.02 and total expenditures of $15,530.63, a grand total of $56,059.65.

Hauptmann's assets prior to the time the ransom was paid amounted to $4,941.40, and his known earnings from that time until he was arrested were $1,167.81, a total of $6,109.21.

This amount, subtracted from $56,059.65, left $49,950.44 which McQuillan listed as "unaccounted for and therefore presumed to be ransom money."

Genesee's Pioneer Day

The Genesee Pioneer day and Alumna meeting held on Friday of last week, was an unqualified success. The meeting was made up of pioneers, old schoolmates and the younger generation, all of whom had a most wonderful time.

There was a big picnic dinner in the city park at noon; there were sports of various kinds and an address by Lieut. Gov. G. P. Mix, who was used as a "pinch-hitter" for Gov. C. Ben Ross. There was also an address by Dean C. W. Chenoweth of the U. of I.

Harry A. Thatcher, county auditor, was the oldest living native Idahoan in attendance, he having been born at Lapwai in 1864.

Kendrick School Honored

Supt. James M. Lyle, Jr., the first of this week received a certificate of membership for the Kendrick High school in the Northwest Association of Secondary and Higher Schools, which reads:

"This certifies that the Kendrick High School maintains the standards of the Northwest Association for Secondary Schools and is hereby given accredited rating for the year ending April 6, 1937. Signed A. L. Filer, Secretary."

This is indeed a signal honor for the Kendrick school and the community in general should feel justly proud for the high standard attained and held.

Man Killed In Auto Accident

One man was killed and another badly injured last Saturday night at Lewiston about midnight, when a coupe with three hitch-hikers sideswiped a parked truck on Lewiston's Main street near the White Hospital. It was said the truck had no tail light.

The driver of the death car was alleged to have been Jack Potter, 19, Potlatch, who had "borrowed" a car from Kenneth Bowling, Potlatch, without his consent.

Whether the young people in the car that side-swiped the truck had been drinking or not was not stated, but a bottle of liquor that had not been opened was found near the injured men when they were taken to the hospital.

Tribune Centennial Edition

The Spalding Centennial edition of the Lewiston Morning Tribune, delivered to its readers last Sunday morning, was indeed a triumph in the printers art. The paper contained eight sections and 98 pages. The editorial work was all that could be desired and typographically it was artistic. It was undoubtedly the largest single paper ever published in north Idaho, or perhaps the state, and those having direct charge, as well as the artisans who executed the work, are to be congratulated.

GRAIN MARKET WEAKER—RAINS HELP WINTER CROP

The dominant influence of weather on grain markets at this season of the year was emphasized during the week ended May 1, by the sharp decline in prices following beneficial rains in the winter wheat belt and more favorable conditions for seeding spring grains, according to the Weekly Grain Market Review of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Wheat lost a good part of the April advance with new crop down about 5c per bushel from a week ago. Cash prices were also lower with the greatest decline in winter wheat. Improved conditions for planting, larger arrivals at terminals and declines in wheat were the weakening influences in other markets, oats and barley both turning weaker.

Domestic winter wheat benefited from moderate to heavy rains which saturated the top soil over a large part of the belt. Wheat made fairly good progress in the eastern half of Kansas but in the west the condition remained fair and in the extreme west very poor. Rainfall was too light to be of much benefit in Oklahoma but was helpful in Texas. In the spring wheat belt, weather was generally favorable for seeding with work nearly completed in South Dakota and Minnesota and well advanced in North Dakota. European crops made favorable progress but conditions are still irregular in parts of northwestern Europe and France.

Despite uncertain new crop prospects, world demand for wheat continues slow with international trade during the current season the lightest of the post-war years. World shipments of wheat and flour, August through April, excluding Canadian shipments to the United States, have amounted to only 338,000,000 bushels this season, against 386,000,000 bushels for the corresponding period a year ago. Argentina has suffered the greatest loss with shipments during the current year amounting to only 57,000,000 bushels compared with 136,000,000 bushels for the corresponding period last season.

Canadian markets declined about the same as domestic markets, with No. 1 Manitoba northern at Winnipeg quoted at 78½c or about 9c under the price guaranteed by the Wheat Board. Liberal country marketings with Canadian farmers cleaning up their farm stocks and taking advantage of the guaranteed price, contributed to the decline.

Intermountain and Pacific Coast markets turned downward with declines at eastern points. Denver mills were bidding 91c per bushel for high protein No. 2 hard winter and No. 2 northern spring, FOB Colorado common points. Mills at Ogden were offering 75c per bushel for No. 2 soft white, 94c for No. 2 hard white, 88c for No. 2 hard winter and 93c for No. 2 northern spring, FOB Utah-Idaho common points.

Prices at Portland were down about 3½c with hard white (bluestem) quoted at $1.18½, soft white and western white at 85c, northern spring, hard winter and western red at 84c per bushel, all basis No. 1, sacked. Marketings in the Pacific Northwest remained light with only 264 cars received at Puget Sound and Columbia river terminals. Local mills were the principal buyers but demand was only moderate because of the slow flour business. California mills took small quantities of high protein wheat, but northwestern prices were out of line for shipment to Atlantic Coast or central western markets. At Seattle western white was quoted at 85c, western red and hard winter at 84c and hard white (baart) at $1.16 per bushel, basis No. 1, sacked.

Oats markets weakened with a dull demand for current receipts and more favorable prospects for new crop. Pacific Northwestern markets displayed independent firmness, with light offerings from growers the principal strengthening factors. Demand continued dull and no quotations were available on gray oats as supplies of this type are practically exhausted. White oats were slightly firmer with No. 2 white oats quoted April 30 at $1.10 to $1.12 per 100, sacked.

Pacific Northwestern barley markets were steady to slightly lower, reflecting the slow demand for the light current offerings. California feeding barley was offered in Pacific Northwestern markets at prices around 5c under local offerings. Trading and movement remained light at Portland, with only five cars reported during the week. On April 30, No. 2 bright western barley was quoted at Portland at $1.15 per 100, sacked.

Dining Room Closed

M. O. Raby, owner of the Raby Hotel, has closed the dining room of that institution, being physically unable to do the work required around such a place.

The Raby Hotel is known to traveling men as one of the cleanest and neatest places of its kind to be found in the country and it seems too bad that the dining room cannot be kept open for the accommodation of the traveling public, many of whom make Kendrick their stopping place.

DR. SIMMONS COMING

It's All Settled
Our own C. Ben Ross says it's all settled about him being the next U. S. senator. He hasn't said yet just whose seat he was going to sit in when he reaches Washington, but there isn't any question about his going. There is nothing that succeeds like success, and if C. Ben is successful in getting enough votes, he will be all right. But in case his "Yogi" philosophy doesn't work out the way he figures—well, he may have to go over and consult Mahatma Gandhi.
And by the way—while he is concentrating—we hope he will concentrate on just a little more of the Arrow-Deary road. It might help.

Likes His New Job
Word from Ted Davidson, who is now stationed with the Marines at San Diego, is that he likes it just fine. The last word his father had from him was to the effect that he was shooting on the rifle range and expected to make good as a sharpshooter. He also had been having a few seances with a machine gun—but Ted don't think he would like Chicago. Anyway, he likes the Marines and everything connected with the organization—and that is half the battle when it comes to being satisfied.

WELL, FOLKS—Seems like it just can't quit raining these days—but boy, the pastures sure are growing green—and if we could just run a lot of our political candidates about on them for a short time—the grass would "sure grow green."—All in favor signify by the usual voting sign.
Have you tried our ice cream this season? You'll like that fine full flavor and the absence of ice cream powder. We don't use it! Try our butter. You're sure to like it as well. In Fact—we believe you'll like any of our products.

Attention Tomato Growers
All tomato growers are requested to meet at the Thomas Creamery at 2:00 o'clock p. m., Saturday. Remember the place and date.

A typical American business man is one who makes money at his own business and loses it monkeying with another.

He: "This dance hall is surely crowded."

She: "I'll say so. Half an hour ago I fainted and had to dance around four times before I could fall."

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Meyer are the proud parents of a nine-pound son, who arrived at their home last Sunday. Mother and babe are doing very nicely.

It's Not Always Easy To Keep "One Jump" Ahead of Seasonal Appetites.

For in the spring and early summer, the appetite calls for lighter and different items. Cold meats take the place of roasts and stews—iced tea and coffee take the place of hot drinks—

Light prepared cereals take the place of cooked items—Fruit juices and fresh vegetables fairly leap into demand—

And we try to keep at least "one jump" ahead of these seasonal changes by anticipating them—and our stocks are ready for you! You'll find just what you want here.

Jams, jellies and canned fruit are running low on many basement shelves.

Our stock is complete. Let us supply you.
